GROSS INCOME TAX Withholding on Payments to Contractors

Under P.L. 2006, c.85, beginning January 1, 2007, any person (other than a governmental entity, a homeowner, or a tenant) who maintains an office or transacts business in New Jersey is required to withhold New Jersey gross income tax at the rate of 7% from payments made to unregistered, unincorporated contractors (e.g., builders, plumbers, landscapers, painters, carpenters, electricians) for services performed in this State. Any payor who is not already registered with the State as an employer will file the new Form NJ-550 to report and remit the gross income tax withheld.

Safe Deposit Box Release

R.S. 54:35-19 provides that the contents of a safe deposit box standing in the name of a decedent either individually, jointly, or otherwise may not be released without at least a 10-day notice to the Director, Division of Taxation, of the intended delivery and the retention of sufficient assets to pay any tax and interest that may be assessed on the assets delivered. The statute provides that the Director may examine the assets of a decedent contained in a safe deposit box.

In 1992 the Division determined that it would no longer inventory safe deposit boxes held by a decedent at the time of his or her death. On September 30, 1992, the Director issued a blanket waiver for the period to January 1, 1997, authorizing the immediate release of the contents of a safe deposit box. On October 11, 1996, the period was extended by the Director to January 1, 2002, and on January 4, 2002, the period was extended to January 1, 2007.

On January 12, 2007, the Director reissued the blanket waiver authorizing the immediate release of the contents of a safe deposit box for the period from January 1, 2007, to January 1, 2012. See below. □

To: All Banks, Trust Companies, Savings Institutions, Safe Deposit Companies, Savings and Loan Associations, or Other Institutions:

The Director, Division of Taxation, Department of the Treasury of the State of New Jersey, hereby waives the requirements of Revised Statutes 54:35-19 with respect to the issuance of the ten days notice and retention of assets for the opening of safe deposit boxes standing in the name of decedents either individually, jointly, or otherwise, or to which they had access and consents to release of the contents thereof.

This waiver is effective January 1, 2007 and shall expire January 1, 2012 unless cancelled by prior notice.

The institution releasing the contents of safe deposit boxes should keep the original of this letter for its own records.

Field Investigations

As of March 5, 2007, Special Projects Branch employees and functions were merged into the Field Investigations Branch. For administrative purposes the new Field Investigations Branch is divided into northern and southern jurisdictions.

The specific responsibility of the Special Projects Branch, which is obtaining compliance from out-of-State businesses, will now be handled by the Field Investigations Branch. Investigators will continue to work in cooperation with the New Jersey State Police, inspectors from the Division of Motor Vehicles, and local law enforcement agencies at weigh stations and vehicle and emission sites to check out-of-State commercial vehicles. Investigators will also continue to check locations such as construction sites and warehouses in order to uncover nonregistered or noncompliant out-of-State vendors. In-State vendors will also be checked for tax compliance. When necessary to protect the State's interest, investigators will continue to utilize the authority granted in N.J.S.A. 54:49-5 and N.J.S.A. 54:49-7 to make a jeopardy assessment and demand immediate payment. Failure to satisfy the jeopardy assessment may result in immediate seizure of available assets. Companies subject to the jeopardy assessment process have ninety (90) days from the date of the action to appeal the jeopardy assessment (appeal rights).

The Field Investigations Branch will be expanding its focus from performing its traditional tax collection and enforcement work for the Division to also include the out-of-State vendors doing business in New Jersey. Field Investigations will now be involved in all aspects of tax compliance from the initial contact with a new business to the seizure and sale of assets from an uncooperative taxpayer. Field Investigations will continue working closely with all sections of the Division to enhance voluntary tax compliance by taking the tax enforcement actions appropriate to the situation. □

LOCAL PROPERTY TAX PAMS Demonstration

New Jersey's new Property Assessment Management System (PAMS) will be implemented this year in three counties: Camden, Hunterdon, and Salem. In addition to assessors, collectors, and tax administrators, county and municipal officials had the opportunity to see a demonstration of the PAMS computer-assisted mass appraisal (CAMA) module, which is an optional feature of the new system.

PAMS team members visited each of the three counties during the last week of February and the first week of March and provided an update on the project. Attendees had the opportunity to ask questions about PAMS CAMA, progress on the collections module, and the project in general.

Municipalities are being encouraged to take steps to prepare for PAMS, including reviewing contracts that involve assessment or collections software, looking at Internet connections, and considering budget effects.

For more information on the PAMS project, visit the Division's Web site at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/pamsvol/pams.shtml □

Criminal Enforcement

Criminal Enforcement over the past several months included:

- On October 25, 2006, in Oldmans Township, Miguel A. Hernandez, 53, and Juana Berrios, 50, both of Jersey City, were arrested and charged by the New Jersey State Police with transporting 55 cartons of assorted brand Delaware stamped cigarettes. Hernandez was also charged with narcotics violations. The State Police also seized $2,839 in cash and impounded their vehicle. In a written statement given by Hernandez to the State Police, he admitted that the two drove to Delaware to pick up the cigarettes at a gas station and paid $1,640 for 55 cartons. Taxation records show that Hernandez and Berrios own Juana Deli located at 477 Ocean Ave., Jersey City. The Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) immediately inspected this location, resulting in the seizure of an additional six cartons of untaxed cigarettes. An investigation concerning other tax issues is continuing and it is anticipated that OCI will be initiating additional criminal charges and tax enforcement.

- On November 30, 2006, in Roselle, OCI agents arrested Terry Tolbert, 25, of Bayonne, New Jersey, and Ryan Mills, 24, of Lake Orion, Michigan, on charges of possession of cigarettes bearing counterfeit tax stamps, sale of untaxed cigarettes, failure to maintain records with intent to evade the payment of tax, and transportation of untaxed cigarettes. Seized were 33 cartons of cigarettes bearing counterfeit tax stamps, a 2003 Dodge Neon, three cell phones, and numerous records indicating the suspects had been operating for some time under the fictitious names C & M Tobacco, Tobacco Express, Tobacco Outlet, and other names not registered with or licensed by any governmental authority. Both suspects were held on $75,000 bail in the Union County Jail. This investigation is continuing.

- On December 13, 2006, Gregory Slaton, 44, of Cherry Hill, pled guilty to theft and tax evasion. Mr. Slaton, the former treasurer of Little Rock Baptist Church, admitted stealing church funds for his own use and not paying New Jersey gross income tax on the illegal income for 2001 through 2004. He was scheduled to be sentenced on February 2, 2007. This matter was a joint investigation by the Division of Taxation and the Office of the Camden County Prosecutor.
- On December 19, 2006, three individuals were arrested when investigators from the Division of Criminal Justice and the New Jersey Division of Taxation, assisted by officers from the Lyndhurst Police Department, executed a search warrant at an apartment in Lyndhurst, New Jersey. Arrested were Rosa Victoria Rivera (a.k.a. Vicky Rocsana Rivera-Peralta), 39, and Rivera's son Wilson Armondo Pinos Rivera (a.k.a. Wilson Pinos), 21, both residing in the Lyndhurst apartment, and Rivera's boyfriend, John Arturo Perez Silva (a.k.a. John Perez), 38, of Belleville, New Jersey. Nearly $200,000 in cash, a computer, and several motor vehicles were seized along with blank social security cards, tax forms, and W-2 forms. Several bank accounts of the defendants containing a smaller amount of money were seized, and a second search warrant was executed at a self-storage site leased by the defendants in Belleville where additional records were confiscated. In this ongoing investigation OCI identified 540 fraudulent tax returns for which refund checks were issued between February 6, 2004, and July 11, 2006. The returns contained similar taxpayer information, such as similar names, common addresses, and common employers. About 400 of the returns were filed electronically and the remainder filed on paper. Of the 540 refund checks, 276 checks totaling $826,974 were deposited in bank accounts. The Division of Taxation was able to stop payment on the remaining 264 checks totaling $1,005,030. The defendants were each charged with second-degree theft by deception and are being held at the Mercer County Jail in lieu of $1 million bail. The arrests were the result of a joint investigation by the Division of Taxation and the Division of Criminal Justice.

- On January 9, 2007, in Jersey City, New Jersey, OCI conducted its twenty-seventh seizure of untaxed cigarettes at the New Jersey International Bulk Mail Center. These untaxed cigarettes arrived at the facility from numerous overseas countries via Newark Liberty International Airport. OCI was initially alerted to this situation in November 2004 by government authorities and has since worked in conjunction. To date, OCI has seized approximately 57,762 cartons of untaxed cigarettes at this facility with a forfeiture value of approximately $3,572,556.24.
- On January 18, 2007, a Paterson man pled guilty to stealing $210,035 by fraudulently obtaining and cashing hundreds of New Jersey tax refund checks and homestead rebate checks. Mack Barden, 58, pled guilty to a charge of second-degree theft by deception. That charge was contained in a State Grand Jury indictment obtained by the Division of Criminal Justice in July 2006. As part of the plea agreement, Barden agreed to pay full restitution to the New Jersey Division of Taxation. Second-degree crimes carry a maximum sentence of 10 years in State prison. An investigation by the Office of Criminal Investigation revealed that Barden, a truck driver who earned additional income by preparing tax returns, submitted hundreds of fraudulent New Jersey gross income tax returns and homestead rebate applications between 1997 and 2005 using false names and social security numbers. Barden submitted altered W-2 forms with the tax returns, including forms from his tax preparation clients. In pleading guilty, Barden admitted that he obtained and cashed 418 State tax refund checks totaling $197,837 and 120 homestead rebate checks totaling $12,198. Barden cashed the checks against his personal bank accounts and through independent check cashing agencies.

- On February 5, 2007, six Jersey City residents, including five members of one family, were indicted on charges they conspired to steal $573,383 from the State by filing fraudulent applications for 745 homestead rebate checks. All six of the defendants were indicted by a State Grand Jury on charges of first-degree conspiracy, first-degree money laundering, and second-degree theft by deception. First-degree charges carry a maximum sentence of 20 years in State prison and a criminal fine of $200,000, while second-degree charges carry a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and a fine of $150,000. The defendants are Paul Sarris, 50; Achilles "Butz" Amante, 55; his sister, Matilda Amante Ramos, 56; and his three sons Aristides Amante, 27, Amorito "Angelo" A. Amante, 33, and Aloysius M. Amante, 31. The indictment was sealed until February 8, 2007, which allowed for the execution of arrest warrants. State investigators from the Division of Criminal Justice arrested Matilda Amante Ramos, Aristides Amante, and Angelo Amante on February 6, 2007, and Aloysius M. Amante on February 7, 2007. The defendants were transported to Mercer County Jail, where they are being held in lieu of bail. Paul Sarris and Butz Amante remain at large. Matilda Amante Ramos ran a travel agency, while all of the other defendants operated their own financial service companies offering tax preparation services. Between August 2001 and September 2003, the six defendants allegedly filed 745 false homestead rebate applications with the State of New Jersey, including multiple applications for each of 15 residential and commercial addresses they rented in Jersey City. The defendants allegedly filed the applications using names and social security numbers obtained from tax preparation clients without permission of the clients. The defendants allegedly laundered the $573,383 in stolen funds by depositing the rebate checks in various commercial bank accounts maintained for their businesses.

- In the area of refund fraud, the Office of Criminal Investigation prevented the issuance of fraudulent refund claims totaling $1,428,391.99 for the period July 2006 through mid-February 2007. In addition, OCI issued assessments based on refunds found to be fraudulently obtained.

Corporation Business Tax

AMA: Allocable Receipts — There is no provision within the New Jersey tax laws that allows sales made to governmental entities to be excluded when calculating gross receipts allocable to New Jersey. The sale of goods shipped to a New Jersey customer where possession is transferred in New Jersey results in a receipt allocable to New Jersey, regardless of the purchaser’s identity.

NOL Suspension — For privilege periods beginning in 2002 and 2003, net operating loss (NOL) deductions were disallowed. For privilege periods beginning in 2004 and 2005, the NOL deduction was limited to not more than 50% of taxable income. Any NOL deduction that was disallowed and would have expired in privilege periods beginning in 2002 and 2003 was extended for two years. Any NOL deduction that was disallowed by the 50% limitation and would have expired in privilege periods beginning in 2004 and 2005 was extended for one privilege period for each privilege period it was disallowed. The full NOL was allowed for privilege periods beginning in 2006.

Gross Income Tax

Principal Residence: Military — The New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act, N.J.S.A. 54A:6-9.1b, provides for the exclusion from New Jersey gross income of all or part of the gain derived from the sale or exchange of a principal residence up to a maximum of $250,000 for an individual or $500,000 for a couple filing jointly. To qualify for the exclusion, during the five-year period ending on the date of sale of the property, it must have been used by the taxpayer as a principal residence for periods totaling two years.

The New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act adopted the Federal IRC Section 121 that was in existence in 1998. New Jersey does not have a provision similar to the Federal Military Family Tax Relief Act which gives members of the U.S. uniformed services and foreign service some tax relief by extending certain deadlines, increasing the allowable exclusion for certain types of income, and providing tax deductions for certain expenses. Therefore, New Jersey does not conform to the Federal income tax exclusion for the sale or exchange of a principal residence that suspends the five-year test period for up to 10 years of extended duty overseas or at a domestic location for qualified military and foreign service personnel.

Sales and Use Tax

Barter Transactions — The Division of Taxation continues to receive inquiries regarding the sales and use tax treatment of barter transactions.

A transaction in which one party provides its goods or services in exchange for the goods or services that it wants to receive clearly constitutes a “purchase” and a “sale” within the meaning of the Sales and Use Tax Act. These terms are defined in the act as:

Any transfer of title or possession or both, exchange or barter, rental, lease or license to use or consume, conditional or otherwise, in any manner or by any means whatsoever for a consideration, or any agreement therefor, including the rendering of any service, taxable under this act, for a consideration or any agreement therefor. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(f).

“Sale” or “purchase,” as defined in this provision, explicitly includes “barter,” and the goods or services

given in exchange for the goods or services received constitute the requisite “consideration.” The two parties to a barter transaction function as both “buyer” and “seller”; the goods and services exchanged serve, in turn, as both the items sold and the consideration paid.

When the “seller” of taxable goods or services sold in a barter transaction is a New Jersey vendor (i.e., a vendor who has sales tax nexus with New Jersey, or a vendor without nexus who has voluntarily chosen to register as a vendor in this State), then the seller should collect and remit sales tax calculated on the normal retail value of the item sold, assuming that the purchaser cannot claim a valid statutory exemption (e.g., resale, exempt organization, production equipment, farm production use). The normal retail value is the price, in dollars, at which merchandise or services of the same kind are offered for sale by him to retail customers paying by traditional means (money).

For example, a lighting store and a plumber may enter into a barter transaction in which the store provides the plumber with a lighting fixture in exchange for the plumber’s repair services. The plumber, who normally charges $50 per hour for this work, provides an hour and a half of labor in exchange for the lighting fixture, which has a retail price of $75. Both the plumber and the lighting store will owe $5.25 tax on their respective purchases. The plumber must report the $75 sale of services in his gross receipts on the Sales and Use Tax Quarterly Return, ST-50, and remit $5.25 tax payable by the lighting store on the sale; the lighting store must report the sale of the $75 fixture in its gross receipts on the ST-50 and remit the $5.25 tax payable by its customer (the plumber).

The same lighting store may decide to barter with a barber. In exchange for a lamp sold for a retail price of $30, the three co-owners of the lighting store are given haircuts, which the barber normally gives for $10 each. The barber should be charged $2.10 tax for the lamp. However, the lighting store will not be liable for sales or use tax on the services received from the barber, because the haircuts are a nontaxable service.

If the seller is an out-of-State vendor, not registered in New Jersey, who delivers taxable merchandise to a New Jersey customer in a barter transaction, then the New Jersey customer will be liable for compensating use tax. The New Jersey customer will owe the tax on the value of the consideration that it paid. This consideration will consist of the goods or services that it gave to the seller, in lieu of money. For example, an accountant in New Jersey may want a Pennsylvania carpenter to make him a bookcase for his office. The accountant prepares the carpenter’s income tax return, while the carpenter delivers a bookcase to the accountant as payment for the accounting services. The accountant would normally charge $400 for the tax return. He is deemed to have paid $400 for the bookcase and will therefore owe $28 use tax on this piece of furniture, payable with the Annual Business Use Tax Return, ST-18B, after the close of the year.

Dog Park Membership —

Fees for membership in a dog park, a fenced-in area where people can let their dogs run and play safely, are not subject to sales tax. They are not deemed to be fees for use of the facilities of a “health and fitness, athletic, sporting club” within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(h) because the Division of Taxation interprets this language to apply to fitness, health, and athletic clubs primarily for use by humans.

Parking — A taxpayer inquired if a parking garage that is operated for an office building that is not open to the general public is exempt from the sales tax on parking. The issue is whether the employee parking exemption applies when the employee pays to park in the office building’s garage or whether the exemption applies only if the employer is paying for the parking and does not pass the cost on to the employees.

On and after October 1, 2006, sales tax is imposed on the receipts from parking, storing, or garaging a motor vehicle, excluding charges for the following types of parking: residential parking; employee parking, when provided by an employer or at a facility owned or operated by the employer; municipal metered parking; and such receipts subject to tax pursuant to any other law or ordinance. See N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(i).

If the employer located in the office building only permits his own employees to park in the parking garage, then that parking would not be subject to the new sales tax on parking whether purchased by the employer or by the employee. The employer is permitted to pass the parking cost on to the employees by charging them for it and the parking will still be exempt from sales tax as employee parking.

Sourcing Rental Payments — The New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act provides that if the lease of a motor vehicle requires periodic payments, each periodic payment is sourced to the primary property location. The “primary property location” is the address given by the lessee and maintained in the lessor’s ordinary business records, provided that the address is used in good faith. If the lease does not require periodic payments, the payment is sourced the same as a retail sale, i.e., to the location where the property is delivered. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3.1.

Streamlined Sales and Use Tax: Central Registration System — A key aspect of the Streamlined Sales and Use Tax Agreement (SSUTA) is the development of a central online registration system which can be used as an alternative to the traditional system currently available through the Division of Revenue’s Web site. Registering through this central system is voluntary, unless the seller seeks to take advantage of the amnesty program (see below). Central registration constitutes registration with every member state, including those that adopt the Agreement after the seller registers. By registering through this system, sellers agree to collect and remit tax on all sales sourced to any member state. Thus, even though a registrant may not have sales in other member states, by using the central system, the sellers are registering in every other member state, all of which are listed on the registration form.

Sellers that register through the central system have the option of choosing among three methods of calculating, reporting, and remitting the tax. These methods involve the selection of a certified service provider (CSP), a certified automated system (CAS), or using the seller’s own proprietary system. Sellers may also report and remit based on traditional means, but there are benefits to utilizing one of the other systems that will not be available for traditional systems. Amnesty is available for uncollected or unpaid sales and use tax due from a seller in their capacity as a seller. However, in order to obtain amnesty now the seller must utilize CSP or CAS and meet other criteria. Amnesty in New Jersey ends on May 31, 2007.

Additional information concerning the central registration system, the identification and certification of CSPs and CASs, and other administrative simplifications will be provided as it becomes available from the SSUTA’s Governing Board. The central registration system can be accessed on the Division’s Web site at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/streamregpro.shtml

Taxability of Massage, Bodywork, and Somatic Services — P.L. 2006, c.44, enacted July 8, 2006, made numerous changes in the Sales and Use Tax Act, expanding the tax base to include many previously nontaxable categories of transactions effective October 1, 2006. Among the changes was section 3, codified as N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(9), which imposes sales tax on “massage, bodywork or somatic services.”

Massage, Bodywork, and Somatic Services Defined

“Massage, bodywork, and somatic services” means systems of activity of structured touch which include holding, applying pressure, positioning and mobilizing soft tissue of the body by manual technique and use of visual, kinesthetic, auditory and palpating skills to assess the body for purposes of applying massage, bodywork or somatic principles. Such application may, for example, include the use of therapies such as heliotherapy or hydrotherapy, the use of moist hot and cold external applications, and external application of herbal or topical preparations.

The sales tax applies to massage, bodywork, and somatic services that are rendered in New Jersey. There is no New Jersey use tax on those services received outside the State.

For purposes of the Sales and Use Tax Act, massage, bodywork, and somatic services are not deemed to include services rendered by persons licensed in the following medical and medical-related fields, when they are performing services they are authorized to perform within the scope of their licenses: medical doctors (M.D.), doctors of osteopathy (O.D.), dentists, chiropractors, physical therapists, registered nurses (R.N.), podiatrists (D.P.M.), or certified midwives (CM); acupuncture; or cosmetic and beauty services such as manicures and pedicures, cosmetic facials and cosmetic wraps, depilatory services, hair styling, and other services that are designed primarily to enhance appearance or cleanliness.

The taxability of the services does not depend upon the type of facility where the services are performed. Massage, bodywork, and somatic services are taxable regardless of whether they are performed in a massage-only facility, a clinic, a spa, an athletic facility or other location, unless they are performed by a massage, bodywork, or somatic practitioner pursuant to a doctor's prescription as detailed below. In addition, the services are taxable regardless of whether they are performed by a professionally trained massage therapist, a student intern, or an untrained massage practitioner.

Doctor's Prescription

For purposes of this Sales and Use Tax Act provision, a "doctor's prescription" for massage, bodywork, or somatic services will mean direction by a licensed medical doctor, osteopath, chiropractor, podiatrist, psychologist with a doctorate in psychology, or dentist for initiation of massage, bodywork, or somatic services for a patient for whom the medical doctor, osteopath, chiropractor, podiatrist, psychologist, or dentist is providing treatment or consultation services within the scope of his or her license. This direction must be in writing, and must contain the following: name of patient; name and signature of referring medical doctor, osteopath, chiropractor, podiatrist, psychologist, or dentist; purpose of the referral and description of conditions or needs to be addressed by the massage, bodywork, or somatic therapy. Massage, bodywork, or somatic services provided without a doctor's prescription are taxable.

Contracted Services and Employee Services

The tax on massage, bodywork, and somatic services is imposed on the customer. Masseurs and other service providers who are employed to perform these taxable services do not collect sales tax from their employers on their salaries. Masseurs and other service providers who work for a professional office, athletic facility, spa, clinic, or other facility as independent contractors should not collect sales tax from the facility on the fees they charge to the facility. They should instead enter into a resale agreement with the facility, specifying that the facility, rather than the individual practitioner, will be responsible for collecting sales tax from clients on any taxable receipts for massage, bodywork, and somatic services. This agreement will take the place of a resale certificate, and should be retained by both the facility and the masseur or other service provider for at least four years. The individual or business billing the client for the services collects the tax.

Gift Certificates

Gift certificates, whether for a dollar amount specified on the certificate or for a specific service, are not taxable at the time when the certificate is sold. Sales tax will be due when massage, bodywork, or somatic services are provided to the gift certificate holder, unless a doctor's prescription for the services has been provided to the practitioner.

Massages for Animals

The change in the law is deemed to apply only to services provided to humans. The policies regarding sales and use tax treatment of massages for nonhuman animals remain the same and are as follows. Massages performed by veterinarians and their staffs are exempt from sales tax. Massages performed by a service provider other than a veterinarian, but prescribed by a veterinarian, are also exempt. Rub downs, calming touch techniques, and other massage-like activities performed as part of animal grooming are treated as part of grooming, which is a taxable service. □

Alimony in the Credit for Taxes Paid to Other Jurisdictions Calculation – DiLorenzo v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided February 2, 2007; Docket No. 000157-2006.

This case involved a taxpayer who is a New Jersey resident, works in New York, and pays alimony. The taxpayer felt that he should not have to include the alimony deduction, allowed on the New York nonresident return, in the numerator of the credit calculation of the credit for taxes paid to other jurisdictions since he was not able to reduce the "entire New Jersey income" (denominator of the credit calculation) by the alimony paid.

Judge Pizzuto stated that the leading factor in his ruling was the Court decision, Ambrose v. Director, Division of Taxation, 198 N.J. Super. 546, 487 A.2d 1274. Judge Pizzuto stated, "A decision of another tax court judge is not binding. (However) a decision of the Appellate Division is binding on the Tax Court. Ambrose is binding on this Court."

In response to the taxpayer stating fairness as an issue, Judge Pizzuto cited Judge Lasser in Nielsen v. Director, Division of Taxation, 4 N.J. Tax 438, (1982). Judge Lasser stated, "Taxpayers argue that they would pay less New Jersey tax if no alimony were paid. If no alimony were paid, the numerator would be increased by $10,000 but the denominator would remain the same, increasing the fraction, increasing the New Jersey credit and reducing the New Jersey tax. However, if there were no alimony deduction in New York, the New York tax would also be higher, thus justifying the greater New Jersey credit. When taxpayers pay less tax in New York because of an alimony deduction, their New Jersey credit should be decreased."

Judge Pizzuto granted summary judgment in favor of the Division.

Local Property Tax

Farmland Assessment – All Monmouth Landscaping & Design, Inc. v. Manalapan Township, decided October 20, 2006; Tax Court No. 007199-2005.

The subject matter of this case was whether the plaintiff was eligible for farmland assessment under the Farmland Assessment Act for tax year 2005 if he failed to file his application by the statutory filing deadline of August 1, 2004.

The plaintiff's property was purchased under the conditions of the Garden State Preservation Trust Act, which by deed restriction required the property be used for farm use, and which the plaintiff believed meant no application for farmland assessment was needed. The plaintiff's contention was that because the deed restricted the land to no other use but farmland, the assessor should have assessed the property as farmland on that basis and should have been aware of the restrictive covenant. The defendant's position was that since the application was not filed by August 1, 2004, the property was not qualified, no matter how eligible it might otherwise have been.

The defendant said that the plaintiff had always filed timely applications and the subject property had been assessed as farmland under the provisions of the Farmland Assessment Act for tax years 2003 and 2004. Plaintiff stated that the property owner filled out the application sometime in July and gave it to his secretary to submit to the defendant by the August 1, 2004, deadline. However, the secretary failed to file the application by the due date. On August 12, 2004, the defendant's assessor notified the plaintiff that the application had been denied due to untimely filing.

The plaintiff filed an appeal with the Monmouth County Board of Taxation. The County Board confirmed the assessments and the plaintiff then hired counsel, who filed an appeal with the New Jersey Tax Court.

The plaintiff pointed out that the idea of the Farmland Assessment Act was to preserve farmland and open space and argued that the strict covenant in the deed served the same purpose as the Act. The defendant did not argue that the use of the subject property was inconsistent with the purposes of the Act, but believed that the plaintiff must adhere to the requirements of the Farmland Assessment Act: he should have made a timely application.

N.J.S.A. 54:23.6 permits the assessor to extend the deadline for the application until September 1st, but only where the owner is ill or has died. New Jersey courts have consistently stood by the provisions of the Act and held that a failure to file a timely application for farmland assessment would preclude preferential valuation, assessment, and taxation for the tax year no application was filed.

In Interstate 78 Office Park, Ltd. v. Tewksbury Twp., 11 N.J. Tax 172, 181 (Tax 1996), the Court explained why an application is required:

This legislative requirement for the filing of the farmland assessment application is to notice the assessor as to the exact agricultural or horticultural use the owner is claiming and the facts relied upon in support thereof so the assessor may check it out and make an informed determination whether the application sets forth a claim recognized by the act and whether the facts found by him support the claim.... When the assessor makes his physical inspection, naturally and logically, he is guided by the application as to what facts he should investigate.

So, even though the plaintiff's deed restricted the use of property, the Act still required the assessor to determine whether the property was eligible for farmland assessment. Since the plaintiff did not file his application in a timely manner, the New Jersey Tax Court found the land not to be entitled to a farmland assessment for tax year 2005.

Also, the plaintiff wanted the Court to examine how the assessor valued the property. The plaintiff thought that the assessor should have taken the restrictive covenant into account when valuing the property. The plaintiff incorrectly equated the true value of the property as restricted with the value under the Farmland Assessment Act. In valuing land under qualifying agricultural or horticultural use, the assessor must consider evidence of soil capability derived from Rutgers, the State University; the National Co-op Soil Survey; and the State Farmland Evaluation Advisory Committee.

When farmland is not eligible for farmland assessment, the assessor must determine "the full and fair value of each parcel of real property situate in the taxing district at such price as, in his judgment, it would sell for at a fair and bonafide sale by the private contract on October 1 next preceding the date on which the assessor shall complete his assessments." N.J.S.A. 54:4-23. This means that the assessor must value the property the same way it would be valued in the marketplace even if it is farmland with a restrictive code.

The plaintiff was entitled to a trial to determine whether the market value of the property was different than the assessments. However, he was not eligible for a reduced assessment for the tax year 2005 under the Farmland Assessment Act.

Sales and Use Tax Responsible Person and Timeliness of Complaint – Rosner v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided November 6, 2006; Docket No. 007501-2005.

This case involves a responsible person case and the underpayment of sales tax.

After conducting an in-person conference, the administrative conferee had sent a final determination letter by certified mail to the address of record (which was the taxpayer's correct address). However, the post office returned the certified mail as "undeliverable as addressed." The administrative conferee then sent the final determination by regular mail to the same address in July 2005.

The taxpayer claimed he did not receive the final determination letter until September 29, 2005. To prove this point, the taxpayer submitted a copy of an envelope sent from the Conference and Appeals Branch containing PO Box 198 in the left-hand corner and a stamped date of September 29, 2005, in the right-hand corner.

The Division countered that the administrative conferee had sent out a "Settlement Agreement Packet" which the taxpayer had requested via telephone. It was this mailing that the taxpayer received sometime after September 29, 2005.

Judge Hayser in his opinion stated, "We have a situation where the Division claims to have mailed certain documents and the taxpayer claims to have received certain documents at different times. We could have another hearing as to the credibility of the conferee and the taxpayer. However, I do not think that will be necessary.”

Then Judge Hayser stated that just as the Division was required to turn “square corners,” the taxpayer also had a responsibility to file a “timely, diligent appeal.” Quoting from Prospect Hill Apartments vs. Borough of Flemington, 411 A.2d 737, 1 N.J. Tax 224, 172 N.J. Super. 245 (1979), Judge Hayser said that the taxpayer waited 80 days from the date the taxpayer said he received the final determination by regular mail and 150 days from when the original final determination was mailed by certified mail to appeal to Tax Court. Judge Hayser said the “tolling of a statute is not open-ended.” “Not only does the Division have a responsibility with timeliness issues, but the taxpayer also has a duty when they appeal to be diligent.”

Judge Hayser opined, “The plaintiff knowing that the appeal time was going to run out, waited until the final days to mail his appeal. Due diligence would have required an earlier filing. He (the taxpayer) did so at his own peril.”

From Prospect Hill Apartments, supra, Judge Conley said, “Plaintiff is correct that the Tax Court as a judicial body has greater powers than were possessed by county boards of taxation or the Division of Tax Appeals. The Supreme Court has held that jurisdictional statutes of limitation may be tolled by courts in appropriate circumstances if the legislative purpose underlying the statutory scheme will thereby be effectuated.” White v. Violent Crimes Comp. Bd., 76 N.J. 368, 379, 388 A.2d 206, 211 (1978). In an apparent effort to invoke the application of this principle, plaintiff argues that the post office at which its complaint was mailed on August 14, 1979, promised delivery the next day, which would have resulted in a timely filing. This argument has no merit. Plaintiff waited until the day before the statutory filing deadline to mail the complaint. The mailing was in Elizabeth and the envelope was addressed to Trenton. Due diligence would have required either an earlier mailing of the complaint or a direct filing of the complaint by August 15. Leake v. Bullock, 104 N.J. Super. 309, 250 A.2d 27 (App. Div. 1969). There are no circumstances in the present case to warrant any consideration of a tolling of the filing deadline established by N.J.S.A. 54:3-21. The Court need not consider in this case whether such a tolling could effectuate the legislative purpose underlying the statutory scheme of tax appeals in other circumstances.

Judge Hayser granted the Division its motion to dismiss for untimely appeal to Tax Court.

Jurisdiction – Scott Frybarger, t/a Titan Power Equipment, Inc. v. New Jersey Department of Treasury, decided December 27, 2006; Civil Action No. 05-4648 (KSH).

Mr. Frybarger, a resident from Florida, sent a tractor-trailer full of construction equipment to New Jersey to be sold. Mr. Frybarger hired four gentlemen from Ohio to drive around New Jersey construction sites and to sell the merchandise.

The four gentlemen from Ohio were responsible for picking the equipment up from a New Jersey site and driving the equipment to prospective customers located in New Jersey. Once the construction site foreman saw equipment that he was interested in, the Ohio driver would make a phone call to Mr. Frybarger who would finalize the deal. The Ohio gentlemen are not considered a common carrier, nor should they be considered independent contractors since Mr. Frybarger closed all the deals on the cell phone.

Mr. Frybarger filed in United States District Court, District of New Jersey, claiming that the State of New Jersey deprived him of rights guaranteed by the Fourth and Fourteenth Amendments to the Constitution when property was searched and seized for failure to pay sales tax. Mr. Frybarger also claims 1983 action (civil rights were violated) as well as emotional distress.

Judge Katherine S. Hayden of the Federal District Court has issued an order denying plaintiff’s motion for entry of default and granting the Division’s motion to dismiss the case citing that Mr. Frybarger had two alternative methods of challenging tax assessments made against him. Mr. Frybarger should have either filed a written protest for a hearing or appealed to the Tax Court of New Jersey. Accompanying the order is a seven-page unpublished opinion.

Mr. Frybarger had 30 days to file an appeal with the U.S. Third Circuit Court of Appeals. □

The Act also allows the Director to extend the electronic filing requirement, beginning in taxable year 2007, by regulation, to practitioners who filed 50 or more gross income tax returns the prior year, and it allows the Director to develop a procedure whereby a taxpayer might elect not to have the

What's New for Tax Year 2006

There have been some important changes affecting the preparation of New Jersey income tax returns and applications for New Jersey's property tax relief programs this year:

Income Tax

- Practitioners' E-File Mandate — Tax practitioners who prepared 100 or more 2005 New Jersey resident income tax returns must use one of the New Jersey electronic filing methods (NJ WebFile or NJ E-File) to file all 2006 New Jersey resident income tax returns and to pay any tax on behalf of their clients. A tax preparer is liable for a penalty of $50 for each return he or she fails to file electronically when required to do so.

A list of links to materials relating to this requirement appears on page 17.

- NJ TeleFile Discontinued — The NJ TeleFile System that allowed taxpayers to file their returns by phone has been discontinued. Taxpayers who want to file their returns electronically can use NJ WebFile, the Division's free Internet filing program, or approved vendor software. For information on New Jersey's electronic filing methods, go to:

www.njfastfile.com

- Earned Income Tax Credit Schedule — The Earned Income Tax Credit Schedule no longer appears on page 3 of Form NJ-1040 but is now included in the instruction booklet instead. Eligible taxpayers must complete the schedule to calculate the amount of their New Jersey earned income tax credit. Taxpayers who asked the Internal Revenue Service to calculate their Federal earned income credit must fill in the oval at Line 50, Form NJ-1040 instead of entering a credit amount.
- Designated Contribution — In addition to the charitable funds listed on the return, taxpayers may designate a contribution to one of seven other funds. The new fund added for 2006 is the World Trade Center Scholarship Fund (07).
- Sheltered Workshop Tax Credit — Certain taxpayers that employ qualified handicapped person(s) in a "sheltered workshop" arrangement may be eligible for a credit. Eligible taxpayers must complete Form GIT-317 to calculate the amount of their credit.
- Use Tax Due on Out-of-State Purchases — The New Jersey sales and use tax rate increased from 6% to 7% on all retail sales of taxable merchandise or services occurring on or after July 15, 2006. When calculating the exact amount of use tax due on their out-of-State purchases to report on Form NJ-1040, taxpayers must use the rate in effect at the time of the purchase.

- Total Property Taxes Paid — Taxpayers are now required to enter on Line 36a of their resident income tax return the total property taxes due and paid during 2006 on their qualified principal residence in New Jersey. For tenants, 18% of the rent paid during the year is considered property taxes paid.
- Homeowner on October 1, 2006 — Taxpayers who owned, occupied, and paid property taxes on a home in New Jersey that was their principal residence on October 1, 2006, must fill in the oval at Line 36b, Form NJ-1040. Taxpayers who were tenants on October 1, 2006, or who were not homeowners on October 1, 2006, do not fill in the oval.
- Credit for Taxes Paid to Other Jurisdictions — The Philadelphia nonresident wage tax rate for 2006 is .037716.

Property Tax Relief Programs

- Homestead Rebate Program — The Homestead Rebate Program (previously referred to as the FAIR rebate) provides rebates for New Jersey homeowners and tenants who meet the eligibility requirements. How you apply for the rebate is determined by whether you were a homeowner or a tenant on October 1, 2006. Homeowners and tenants file different applications.

Benefits available under this program are subject to change.

Tenants who meet the eligibility requirements use the application in the New Jersey income tax return packet, Form TR-1040, to apply for the homestead rebate for tenants.

Homeowners do not use the application in the income tax return packet. Applications for the homeowner rebate are expected to be mailed at the end of April, and homeowners will apply either online or by phone.

- Property Tax Reimbursement — Income Limits. Residents applying for reimbursements for tax year 2006 must have total annual income less than:

2006: $43,693 if single, or $53,576 (combined income) if married, and 2005: $41,972 if single, or $51,466 (combined income) if married.

Benefits available under this program are subject to change. □

Urban Enterprise Zones

Clarification

An article in the summer 2006 issue of the New Jersey State Tax News entitled "FY 2007 Budget Legislation" contained a section about Urban Enterprise Zones which described the procedural changes affecting the sales tax exemption for purchases made by qualified urban enterprise zone businesses. Effective July 15, 2006, only a "small qualified business" (annual gross receipts less than $1 million in the prior annual tax period) is exempt from paying sales tax at the time of purchase; other qualified urban enterprise zone businesses must pay the tax at the time of purchase and apply for a refund.

The article stated that for purposes of determining whether annual gross receipts are less than $1 million in the prior annual tax period “a business may use its gross receipts from sales as reported for sales tax in the prior year.” However, the gross receipts of a business for the prior annual tax period are to be determined from the following sources:

- If the business is a corporation, the amount reported on Schedule A, Line 1 of the prior year (2005) New Jersey Corporation Business Tax Return (Form CBT-100 or CBT-100S).
- If the business is a partnership, the amount reported on Line 1c of Federal Form 1065 submitted with the prior year (2005) New Jersey Partnership Return (Form NJ-1065).
- If the business is a sole proprietorship, the amount reported on Federal Schedule C, Part 1, Line 3 submitted with the prior year (2005) New Jersey gross income tax return (Form NJ-1040).
- Other: if the above classifications are not applicable, the appropriate tax return information (e.g., foreign state tax return). □

INHERITANCE/ESTATE TAX Waivers for Brokerage Accounts

The New Jersey inheritance and estate tax statutes provide that property which belongs to or stands in the name of a resident decedent may not be transferred without the written consent of the Director, Division of Taxation. The taxes remain a lien until paid on all the property of a decedent.

The Division has received numerous inquiries regarding the tax waiver requirements for brokerage accounts.

An inheritance/estate tax waiver is required for all brokerage accounts belonging to or standing individually or jointly in the name of a resident decedent. A tax waiver is required if the brokerage firm has an office in New Jersey regardless of where the account was opened.

Assets held in a brokerage account which are registered in “street name” may be bought and sold without the necessity of first obtaining a tax waiver. The assets must remain in the account and nothing may be transferred or released to the estate or beneficiaries until a tax waiver is obtained.

In those situations where an account passes to a decedent’s surviving spouse, child, stepchild, legally adopted child, issue of any child or legally adopted child, parent, grandparent, or surviving domestic partner, and the taxable estate plus adjusted taxable gifts as determined under the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code in effect on December 31, 2001, does not exceed $675,000, Form L-8 may generally be used. Form L-8 is an affidavit and self-executing tax waiver which is filed directly with the brokerage firm.

The blanket waiver provisions of N.J.A.C. 18:26-11.16 are applicable to brokerage accounts. Assets valued at one-half the value of an account on the decedent’s date of death must be retained and may not be released without a tax waiver. The remainder of the account may be released without a tax waiver.

Example:

The decedent held a brokerage account which contained 1,000 shares of XYZ Corporation stock valued at $100,000 on his date of death.

- a. If three months after the decedent’s death the account is valued at $200,000, assets valued at

$150,000 may be released without a tax waiver. Assets valued at $50,000 must be retained pending receipt of a tax waiver.

- b. If three months after the decedent's death the account is valued at $60,000, assets valued at $10,000 may be released without a tax waiver. Assets valued at $50,000 must be retained pending receipt of a tax waiver.
- c. If three months after the decedent's death the account is valued at $40,000, no assets may be released without a tax waiver.

Questions regarding tax waivers may be sent to: Inheritance and Estate Tax Section, Individual Tax Audit Branch, PO Box 249, Trenton, New Jersey 08695-0249. The Inheritance and Estate Tax Section may be reached by phone at 609-292-5033. □

INHERITANCE/ESTATE TAX Family Limited Partnership Valuations

The Division has received an increasing number of inquiries related to the valuation of family limited partnerships for New Jersey inheritance and estate tax purposes.

A family limited partnership is defined by the Division as a limited partnership in which more than 50% of the partners are related by blood or marriage and which does not have a true business purpose. The partnership may or may not hold an interest in another partnership or other asset which has a true business purpose. One indicia of a true business purpose is that the family limited partnership has and engages in business or commercial transactions with customers, clients, persons or entities other than the partners, their family members, or other related individuals or entities.

For inheritance tax purposes an interest in a family limited partnership is valued at the value of the underlying assets on the decedent's date of death. Discounts are not allowed unless the Director, Division of Taxation (Director), determines that they are warranted by the nature and risk associated with the underlying assets.

In those cases where a Federal estate tax return is required to be filed and where there is a Federal estate tax consequence, the discounts, if any, permitted by the IRS will generally be permitted for New Jersey estate tax purposes unless the Director deems them to be excessive. In other cases:

1. If an interest in a family limited partnership was created or funded within one year of a decedent's death, the value of the interest is presumed to be the value of the underlying assets on the decedent's date of death unless conclusive proof to the contrary is submitted which clearly indicates a different value. Discounts are not permitted unless the Director determines that they are warranted by the interest in the partnership and/or the nature and risk associated with the underlying assets. Discounts totaling more than 10% are not permitted unless the Director determines that a greater total discount is warranted by the nature and risk associated with the underlying assets.
2. If an interest in a family limited partnership was created or funded more than one year prior to a decedent's death, the interest is valued based upon the interest in the partnership and the value of the underlying assets on the decedent's date of death. Discounts totaling more than 10% are not permitted unless the Director determines that a greater total discount is warranted by the nature and risk associated with the underlying assets.

3. If the Simplified Tax System is used, an interest in a family limited partnership is valued at the value of the underlying assets on the decedent's date of death. Discounts are not permitted unless the Director determines that they are warranted by the nature and risk associated with the underlying assets. □

Compliance Agreements

Sales and Use Tax Compliance Agreements (SUTCAs) are formal, individualized agreements between the Division of Taxation and the taxpayer. SUTCAs allow the use of an "effective tax rate" to calculate sales and use taxes owed. SUTCAs generally have a term of three years or less. Conditions under which the agreement may require modification or termination are agreed upon by both parties. Upon request to enter the program, the Division will determine if the taxpayer is qualified to participate and then conduct an audit to establish the "effective tax rate." A taxpayer is eligible if they:

1. Are required to file and remit any New Jersey sales and use tax returns and payments;

2. Demonstrate a willingness and ability to understand and comply with tax laws;
3. Maintain an acceptable system of internal controls and business records; and
4. Have maintained a good filing record for all taxes and are currently in good standing.

If the taxpayer is qualified for the program, the taxpayer will be able to apply the agreed upon “effective tax rate” to applicable purchases made during each filing period. The “effective tax rate” is determined by calculating the ratio of the base period taxable purchases to the base period total purchases. Some of the benefits offered to both the Division and the taxpayer include:

1. Eliminates the need to pay the sales tax at the time of purchase or compute and remit the use tax on a transaction-by-transaction basis;
2. Predictability and consistency of approach in tax reporting;
3. Decisions regarding tax compliance are made by in-house and/or outside tax experts as opposed to nontax personnel;
4. Increased accuracy in sales and use tax budgeting and more certainty and consistency of sales and use tax expenses;
5. Development of cooperative relationship with the Division of Taxation;
6. Reduced audit costs;
7. Increased confidence in reported taxes;
8. Redirection of staff to other audit candidates; and

9. Timely receipt of sales and use taxes.

The Division will not enter into agreements with taxpayers that:

1. Have failed to correct improper reporting methods;
2. Filed for bankruptcy or are controlled by a company that has filed for bankruptcy;
3. Maintain inadequate books and records and have poor internal controls; or
4. Are involved in or have been involved in an ongoing criminal investigation.

Upon approval of the agreement the taxpayer will receive a Direct Pay (Audit) Certificate (ST-6X). Purchases that will be excluded by the agreement include but are not limited to:

1. Resale and inventory purchases;
2. Utility and telecommunications services;
3. Meals and lodging;
4. Motor vehicles, vessels, and aircraft;
5. Items on which the Division and the taxpayer do not agree.

Large volume purchases made for a business’s own use on an ongoing basis and capital assets may be included in an SUTCA. As a part of this agreement the Division agrees to waive the audit process and the taxpayer agrees to waive all rights to refund claims. However, the taxpayer can file a refund claim for overpayments or amounts erroneously paid to vendors for items outside the agreement. The agreement can be terminated by either party with a 90-day written notice. The Division may terminate the agreement and conduct an audit if the taxpayer fails to fulfill the terms of the agreement and the failure is materially adverse to the Division. Legislative changes to the sales and use tax statutes may require modification of an agreement. Listed below are additional examples of conditions necessitating modification:

1. Merger or acquisition;
2. Significant start-up or closing costs of facilities;
3. Significant changes involving business activities;
4. Adoption of cost containment programs; or
5. Significant financial or accounting changes.

While there is no “true-up” conducted at the end of the agreement, the Division will perform at least one interim review and a final review of procedures and sample transactions to determine if the taxpayer is in compliance with the

PAMS Testing and Training Planned

For the past 18 months, staff from the Division of Taxation's Local Property Tax Branch, the Division of Local Government Services, the Office of Information Technology, contractor Tyler Technologies, and volunteer assessors, collectors, and tax administrators have been working diligently through the development of New Jersey's new Property Assessment Management System (PAMS). They are now looking ahead to the fourth quarter of 2007, when PAMS is scheduled to be implemented in the first three counties.

Results of the behind-the-scenes work will take center stage as the project moves into testing, training, and preparations for going live in the three early implementation counties: Camden, Hunterdon, and Salem. These counties will be increasingly engaged in PAMS activities beginning in the spring.

Because PAMS is an integrated system using an Oracle database, users will have access to information from one source. As the PAMS system becomes populated with more data, users will be able to find information that in the past would have required research in several files, books, and individual computer systems.

In addition, each office — tax administrator, collector, and assessor

P.L. 2005, c.126, effective October 1, 2005, conformed the New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act to the Streamlined Sales and Use Tax Agreement. More information is available at: Streamlined Sales and Use Tax

P.L. 2006, c.44, increased the New Jersey sales and use tax rate from 6% to 7%, effective July 15, 2006. The rate change affects all retail sales of taxable merchandise or services. For more information on the rate increase visit: Information for all Sales and Use Tax Vendors

Additional provisions of P.L. 2006, c.44, effective October 1, 2006, extended the sales and use tax to new services, limited some existing exclusions and exemptions, and encompassed product categories that have come into being with new technologies. Criminal Enforcement

Criminal Enforcement over the past several months included:

- On March 26, 2006, in Hackensack, Superior Court – Bergen County confirmed that Francisco P. Delgado, 60, of Clifton, New Jersey, entered a plea of guilty to charges of failing to file domestic security fee returns in 2003, and failing to pay $2,572 sales tax and $1,902 domestic security fee. These counts were contained in an indictment which charged Delgado as the responsible person of Estrella Rental Car Incorporated, in Paterson, New Jersey. Delgado was also charged with making false statements in documents submitted to the Division of Motor Vehicles and with presenting false documents for filing with the Division of Motor Vehicles. This was a joint investigation by the Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) and the Bergen County Sheriff's Office, which commenced after Delgado was arrested by the Sheriff's Office for selling "international driver's licenses" to illegal aliens. The "international driver's license" is similar in appearance to a legitimate driver's license, but is not issued by or honored by any government agency. On June 16, 2006, Delgado was sentenced to three years' probation and ordered to pay restitution of $6,000 in tax, penalty, and interest. This case marked the first criminal prosecution for violations involving the domestic security fee, which was instituted after the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks to fund New Jersey counter-terrorism operations. The fee is collected by vehicle rental businesses at the current rate of $5 per day per vehicle rented. This case was prosecuted by the Bergen County Prosecutor's Office.

- On April 3, 2006, in Trenton, Anthony Howlen, 40, of Trenton, New Jersey, was arrested by the Trenton Police Department and charged with selling cigarettes not bearing the required revenue stamp, possessing cigarettes not bearing the required revenue stamp, failure to keep records required by law with intent to evade tax, and failure to obtain a New Jersey cigarette consumer license. On April 8, 2006, Trenton Police arrested Willie I. Howlen, 35, of Morrisville, Pennsylvania (believed to be Anthony Howlen's brother), and charged him with possession of 17.8 cartons of cigarettes not bearing required revenue stamps. (Willie Howlen had previously been arrested by OCI and Trenton Police in March 2006 and charged with sale and possession of 22.8 cartons of untaxed cigarettes; these charges are still pending.) These enforcement actions by the Trenton Police were the result of OCI's efforts to deal with street sales of untaxed cigarettes by enlisting the cooperation of local police and providing them with the necessary information.

- On April 19, 2006, in Toms River, an Ocean County Grand Jury returned a six-count indictment against Charles G. Skoog, formerly of Brick, New Jersey, charging him with second-degree theft by deception, second-degree insurance fraud (two counts), third-degree filing false or fraudulent New Jersey gross income tax returns, third-degree failure to pay New Jersey gross income tax, and fourth-degree workers' compensation fraud. It is alleged in the indictment that Charles Skoog had been employed between 1999 and 2004 in various capacities by businesses controlled by his son, Erik G. Skoog. During this time his employment status was disguised by his son so that Charles Skoog could collect social security disability payments and workers' compensation payments that he was not entitled to. Through this scheme, Charles Skoog received over $180,000 in fraudulently obtained disability income, failed to report this illegal income on his New Jersey gross income tax returns, and failed to pay the tax due on the unreported income. The indictment also accused Erik Skoog of two counts of second-degree insurance fraud and one count of second-degree theft by deception for his part in the alleged scheme. This investigation was jointly conducted by the Ocean County Prosecutor's Office, OCI, and the Social Security Administration.

- On May 4, 2006, in Superior Court – Monmouth County, Freehold, Joseph W. Hughes pled guilty to one count of second-degree theft by deception and one count each of filing false tax returns and failing to pay tax in the amount $120,229.50. In June of 2005, a Monmouth County Grand Jury handed up a 27-count indictment charging Hughes, the former pastor of The Church of the Holy Cross in Rumson, New Jersey, with the theft $2,032,422 from the church, and tax-related charges for filing false New Jersey State tax returns and failure to pay tax. Hughes wrote and endorsed checks to cash and wrote checks to cover personal expenses against church bank accounts between 1997 and 2004. Hughes waived his right to a restitution hearing and agreed to pay the $120,229.50 in back taxes. On June 2, 2006, Hughes was sentenced to five years in State prison. This case was a joint investigation by OCI and the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office.

- On May 4, 2006, in Camden, OCI and the Camden County Sheriff's Office executed a search warrant on a private residence which had been the subject of complaints from licensed cigarette retailers. The retailers alleged that large quantities of untaxed cigarettes were being sold to consumers from the residence, causing substantial harm to nearby legitimate businesses. New Jersey State Police assisted in the investigation by providing an undercover trooper who purchased several packs of untaxed cigarettes at the residence. As a result of the search warrant, 5.7 cartons of untaxed cigarettes bearing Delaware tax stamps were seized and resident Iris M. Acevedo, 55, was charged in Camden Municipal Court with possession of untaxed cigarettes, engaging in activity for which a license is required without first having obtained a license, and failure to keep records required by law.

- On May 18, 2006, in Newark, police seized 117 cartons of untaxed cigarettes and charged Aku

Muhamad, 36, and Cornell Braxton, 26, both of Newark, with sales of untaxed cigarettes and conspiracy. On May 23, 2006, in Atlantic City, police, assisted by OCI, seized 12.3 packs of untaxed cigarettes from Anthony Minor, 43, of Atlantic City. Minor was charged with engaging in conduct requiring registration without having done so, sale of unstamped cigarettes, failure to file returns or reports, and possession of untaxed cigarettes. At the time of Minor's arrest he was carrying business cards reading "Omar's Cig Sales, 432-3294 after 2:00PM." This is Minor's second arrest for selling untaxed cigarettes. He was arrested by OCI in December 2005, and was fined $1,000. These enforcement actions were the result of OCI's efforts to deal with street sales of untaxed cigarettes by enlisting the cooperation of local police and providing them with the necessary information.

- On June 3, 2006, in Newark, Victor Sanks, 41, of East Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania, was indicted by an Essex County Grand Jury on charges of failure to turn over sales tax collected, failure to collect $13,582.48 in sales tax, failure to pay a total amount of sales tax of $80,248.22, and failure to file sales tax returns from 2002 and 2005 in connection with Scratch Records, a retail DVD and CD store in Irvington. This case was a joint investigation by New Jersey State Police, Irvington Police, and OCI, and is being prosecuted by the Essex County Prosecutor's Office.

- On June 9, 2006, in Superior Court – Ocean County, Richard Carroll, 48, Brick, New Jersey, was sentenced to five years in State prison, immediately remanded to the custody of the Department of Corrections, and ordered to pay restitution of $12,342.60 sales tax plus penalty and interest pursuant to his guilty plea to charges of selling unstamped cigarettes and failure to maintain records between 2001 and 2004 at Towne Stationery, a convenience store in Toms River. This case was investigated jointly by OCI and the Dover Township Police and prosecuted by the Ocean County Prosecutor's Office, and resulted from numerous complaints that Carroll was selling cigarettes to students of nearby Toms River South High School. Carroll had previously pled guilty in municipal court to possession of untaxed cigarettes in May 2002 and November 2002.
- On June 14, 2006, a State Grand Jury indicted Muslimah Suluki, 58, College Park, Georgia, for failure to file New Jersey gross income tax (GIT) returns for 2001, 2002, and 2003; indicted her son, Robert Parish, 42, Neptune, for failure to file New Jersey GIT returns for 2002 and 2003; and indicted her ex-husband, Mahdi Suluki, 64, East Orange, for failure to file a New Jersey GIT return for 2003, in connection with the operation of New Africa Day Care Center Inc. The corporation and individuals were also indicted on theft and other charges for diverting more than $200,000 in State funding from the day care center for personal use, including purchases of two Jaguars and vacations in Chicago and Hyannis Port, Massachusetts. In addition to Federal funds, New Africa received Abbott preschool funding. At the time of the indictment, New Jersey Department of Education (DOE) acting commissioner Lucille E. Davy stated, "For the past four years, DOE has been working to improve the quality of our Abbott preschool program, provide better state and district oversight and increase the level of fiscal accountability to which we hold the vendors," and State Attorney General Zulima Farber noted, "We allege that these defendants stole State funds that were intended to help young children in disadvantaged school districts. They violated the law and they violated the trust that the State and their community placed in them." This case was a joint investigation by the Division of Criminal Justice – Special Prosecutions Bureau and the Division of Taxation – OCI, and was presented to the grand jury by the State Office of the Attorney General.

- On June 28, 2006, in Trenton, a Mercer County Grand Jury indicted Tormu E. Prall, 33, of Trenton, on charges of possession of untaxed cigarettes, failure to maintain records with intent to evade tax, possession of illegal video tapes with intent to sell, failure to pay tax with intent to evade, failure to file tax returns with intent to evade, and violation of the counterfeit recording Anti-Piracy Act. On January 26, 2006, Prall was arrested by the Office of Criminal Investigation

(OCI) for possession of 70 cartons of untaxed cigarettes in Trenton on September 2, 2005. At the time of his arrest on January 26, Prall was in possession of an additional 37 cartons of untaxed cigarettes. Search warrants were then executed on Prall's house in Trenton and two motor vehicles, resulting in the seizure of an additional 140 cartons of untaxed cigarettes, $3,300 in cash, and several hundred DVDs, CDs, and video games. A 1995 Lexus was also seized along with computer hard drives, CD/DVD burners, and a large quantity of blank CDs and DVDs. Prall is free on $75,000 bail. This was a joint investigation by OCI and the Mercer County Prosecutor's Office, with assistance from the Trenton Police Department. The investigation was begun by OCI in response to numerous complaints from the Trenton Downtown Association and its members concerning the sale of untaxed cigarettes on street corners and at bus stops.

- On July 17, 2006, in Trenton, a State Grand Jury handed up a two-count indictment charging Mack Barden of Paterson with one count of money laundering and one count of theft by deception, both second-degree crimes. Barden filed 418 fictitious State income tax returns and 120 fictitious homestead rebate applications for tax years 1996 through 2004. The returns were filed either in the name of Mack Barden or variations. In many instances the W-2 attached to the return was altered to agree with either the name or the social security number used on the returns. All of the refunds and rebates were mailed to a post office box and a mail box leased by Barden. Barden then cashed or deposited 418 tax refund checks totaling $197,837.05 and 120 homestead rebates totaling $12,198.70. The amount of the theft totaled $210,035.75. Barden was arrested on July 20, 2006, and bail was set at $100,000 cash. He was remanded to the Passaic County Jail. This case was a joint investigation with the Division of Criminal Justice and was presented to the grand jury by the Office of the Attorney General.

- On July 25, 2006, the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office confirmed that in Superior Court – Monmouth County, Lisa A. Gordon, 38, of Beachwood, pled guilty to the second-degree crime of theft of movable property and one count of failure to file a New Jersey gross income tax return for tax year 2000. In June 2005 a Monmouth County Grand Jury
- During the July 2006 reporting period, Eric E. Ford, 39, and Ed King Jr., 66, both of Trenton, were charged by OCI with possession of untaxed cigarettes and handed up a seven-count indictment of Lisa Gordon and her husband, Christopher, charging that in 2000 and 2001 they embezzled more than $400,000 from her employer, the Jewish Community Center in Ocean Township. The investigation established that the Gordons used these funds to gamble in Atlantic City in addition to purchasing automobiles and property. The plea was entered by Lisa Gordon only. The Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office will recommend at the time of sentencing that the remaining charges against Lisa Gordon and all charges against her husband be dropped. This was a joint investigation by OCI and the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office.

related offenses in separate incidents after they were stopped by Trenton Police as part of the continuing cooperative effort by the police department and the Division of Taxation to address the problem of untaxed cigarettes being sold on the streets by unlicensed vendors, causing injury to legitimate retailers.

- On August 10, 2006, in North Bergen, the New Jersey State Police, as part of an ongoing joint investigation with OCI, arrested Maria A. Barahona, 36, of North Bergen, and Gerardo J. Rodriguez, 20, of Brooklyn, New York, while they were loading untaxed cigarettes into a storage unit. A consensual search of the storage unit and searches pursuant to warrant of Barahona's house and safe deposit box were conducted by OCI, the State Police, and the Hudson County Prosecutor's Office, resulting in the seizure of 1,066 cartons of cigarettes bearing counterfeit tax stamps, one Lexus, one Dodge Caravan, and $28,000 in cash. Both suspects were charged by OCI with forging or counterfeiting cigarette tax stamps, engaging in conduct requiring licensure without license with intent to evade tax, possession of 2,000 or more unstamped cigarettes, and transporting unstamped cigarettes.
- On August 18, 2006, in Trenton, as part of an investigation begun by OCI in response to complaints by local businesses concerning the sale of untaxed cigarettes on street corners, the Trenton Police Department arrested the following eight people who were then charged by OCI in complaints filed in Trenton Municipal Court: Willie I. Howlen, 35, Levittown, Pennsylvania, sale of untaxed cigarettes; Jamar Adams, 27, Trenton, failure to obtain registration or license with intent to evade tax; Nely Ramos, 39, Trenton, possession of untaxed cigarettes; Dweli Koom, 19, Trenton, possession of untaxed cigarettes; Larry Howlen, 21, Trenton, possession of untaxed cigarettes; Jesse Evans, 42, Trenton, possession of untaxed cigarettes; Benjamin Bethea, 37, Trenton, possession of untaxed cigarettes; and Andre Howlen, 20, Trenton, possession of untaxed cigarettes. Seized were 54.8 cartons of untaxed cigarettes, $2,833 in cash, a 1994 Oldsmobile that had been used to transport untaxed cigarettes, and 15 counterfeit DVDs and 27 counterfeit CDs being offered for retail sale. The Trenton Police Metro District, which is responsible for patrolling downtown Trenton, Tactical Anti-Crime Unit 1, Regional Violent Crime Interdiction Task Force, and the Vice Enforcement Unit assisted OCI investigators. Metro officers closed off North Broad Street between West Hanover and West State Streets while the enforcement operation was conducted.

- On August 22, 2006, in Jersey City Municipal Court, Afzal Sheikh, 52, of Jersey City, was fined a total of $3,000 after he pled guilty to possession of untaxed goods and failure to maintain required records, as a result of the seizure of 22.1 cartons of untaxed cigarettes from Sheikh's

The sentencing judge imposed an initial fine of $1,500. OCI's case agent made the Court aware that in 1996 this taxpayer pled guilty to misapplication of $45,000 in sales tax collected by his corporation, Ehsan Corp., and had made full restitution and served three years' probation. As a result of this information, in the present case the judge invoked the provisions of N.J.S.A. 2C:43-3, which allows for fines to be doubled in the case of a second or subsequent conviction for any State tax offense, and increased the fine to $3,000.

- On September 1, and September 13, 2006, acting on information provided by a citizen who stated he was aware of OCI's recent initiative in response to complaints by local businesses concerning the sale of untaxed cigarettes in Trenton, OCI seized a total of 52 cartons of untaxed cigarettes, including two cartons bearing counterfeit tax stamps, from three Trenton stores. Fausto Gomez, proprietor of Espinal Grocery; Reginald Gilbert, owner of Tyrone's Deli; and Luther P. Mills, owner of M&M Deli, were charged in Trenton Municipal Court with possession of untaxed cigarettes and related offenses. Gilbert was also charged with failure to file sales and use tax returns.
- On September 14, 2006, Brenda J. McGinty pled guilty in Mercer County Superior Court to one count of theft by deception, a second-degree crime, and one count of failure to file a New Jersey gross income tax return for tax year 2002. Brenda McGinty, the bookkeeper for a Mercer County business, had been indicted on November 17, 2004, for embezzling $1,085,457.50 from the business. The embezzlement took place over the three-year period from 2001 through 2003. As part of the plea agreement, Brenda McGinty, a Pennsylvania resident, will have 60 days from date of sentencing to file New Jersey nonresident returns for the above-mentioned tax years. This investigation was a joint investigation with the Mercer County Prosecutor's Office.

- On October 6, 2006, in Superior Court – Hudson County, Manuel Mier, 50, of Hillside, New Jersey, was sentenced to five years' probation, conditioned on his serving 364 days in county jail and paying the Division of Taxation $523,385 in unpaid taxes, interest, and penalties for cheating the State out of taxes owed by his gas station and trucking companies. The sentencing judge said Mier could be ordered to serve five years in prison if he does not make full payment. Mier brought a $300,000 check to the Court on October 6, 2006, and must make regular payments until the amount is paid in full. Mier pled guilty on January 29, 2005, to charges of failure to file New Jersey motor fuels tax returns and failure to turn over taxes. Mier admitted that he cheated the State out of $277,000 in tax revenues. The balance of the amount that the judge ordered Mier to pay is interest and penalties. The charges resulted from a joint investigation by the Division of Taxation and the Division of Criminal Justice. The joint-agency investigation determined that Mier failed to file returns for and remit $95,909 in motor fuels taxes collected through the sale of gasoline and diesel fuels at his service station in North Bergen, 76 Tonnelle Friendly Service LTD, from September 1997 through February 2000. Additionally, the State's accusation charged that Mier and his wife had an ownership interest in two waste disposal trucking companies located in North Bergen and Newark — Leticia, Inc. and L&M Services, Inc. — which failed to remit more than $181,199 in State use taxes. The investigation was coordinated by OCI and the Division of Criminal Justice – Financial Crimes Bureau.

- One hundred eighty-three (183) complaints alleging tax evasion were evaluated from April through June 2006 in the Office of Criminal Investigation.
- During the same period, one hundred thirty (130) charges were filed in court and twenty-six (26) arrests were made in forty-one (41) cases involving violations of the Cigarette Tax Act. Seized were 1,059.3 cartons of untaxed cigarettes, having a total value of $65,909.65 and including 535.5 cartons bearing counterfeit New Jersey cigarette tax stamps.
- Eighty-two (82) complaints alleging tax evasion were evaluated from July through September 2006 in the Office of Criminal Investigation.
- During the same period, seventy-four (74) charges were filed in court and twenty-two (22) arrests were made in forty-nine (49) cases involving violations of the Cigarette Tax Act. Seized were 1,847.9 cartons of untaxed cigarettes, having a total value of $118,063.69 and including 1,493.7 cartons bearing counterfeit New Jersey cigarette tax stamps. □

Investment Company Deductions

Test — An inquiry was received relating to certain expenses incurred by a corporation (whose shares are publicly traded) to comply with requirements of the Securities and Exchange Commission and the provisions of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002 (SOA). The corporation engages an independent auditor to audit and report to shareholders on its operations, financial records, and activities and prescribed areas. As a result the corporation's Federal income tax return will reflect deductions for incurred professional fees to independent auditors, SOA related compliance expenses, and 10-K filing fees to provide the required reports by virtue of the corporate existence as a publicly traded corporation. Deductions for annual franchise taxes imposed by the state of domicile and New Jersey will also be reflected on the return.

The issue is whether the professional fees and franchise taxes reported as deductions on the corporation's current Federal corporation income tax return are qualifying deductions under N.J.A.C. 18:7-1.15(f)1.iii. That section reads as follows: "iii. (Deductions): For purposes of the 90 percent requirement provided by (a) above, taxpayer, during the entire period covered by its report, must have incurred 90 percent or more of its total deductions as reported for Federal income tax purposes, for holding, investing and reinvesting in cash and/or investment assets.”

The rule requires that the deductions must be “for holding, investing and reinvesting in cash and/or investment assets.” Thus, it would appear that the expenses paid for Sarbanes Oxley compliance, S.E.C. compliance, and State tax expenses are expenses paid by taxpayers regardless of what activities are engaged in by the corporations. Such payments are not unique to investment companies; they are paid whether the corporation is a manufacturer or any other type of corporation. As a result, these expenses would rightly fall in the category of the 10% of expenses that are not distinctively considered investment expenses but are common administrative expenses to any corporation regardless of its business activity. “Exemptions from tax are strictly construed and granted only when clear and unambiguous.” Middlesex Water Co. v. Director, Division Taxation, 3 N. J. Tax 233, at 240 (1981). Accordingly, the expenses in question do not qualify for the deductions portion of the business test.

LLC Filing Requirements — A limited liability company (LLC) with two members is treated as a partnership for New Jersey tax purposes if it is treated as such for Federal purposes. An LLC that is recognized as a partnership and that has a New Jersey resident member or any income or loss derived from New Jersey sources must file a New Jersey partnership return, Form NJ-1065, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54A:8-6. An LLC is not subject to corporation business tax in New Jersey unless it is treated as a corporation for Federal purposes.

QSSS Filing Requirements — To maintain the separate entity principle, every qualified New Jersey Subchapter S Subsidiary (QSSS) must complete and file a CBT-100S and pay the minimum tax. Income and loss from the QSSS “roll up” into the parent’s return.

For a taxpayer that is a member of an affiliated or controlled group pursuant to sections 1504 or 1563 of the Federal Internal Revenue Code of 1986, and whose group has total payroll of $5,000,000 or more for the privilege period, the minimum tax is $2,000.

Furthermore, N.J.A.C. 18:7-3.4(i) provides: “If a taxpayer is part of a group of taxpayers in which the tax liability of the group is reflected on a single return of a member of the group, the other members of the group are required also to file returns with New Jersey. Such returns shall reflect the minimum tax.”

Realty Transfer Fee Purchase of Commercial Real Estate — Partnership A owns Class 4A (commercial) real property. For purposes of this example, assume that consideration for the sale/transfer or the equalized assessed value of A’s property exceeds $1,000,000. Partnership B owns an 80% interest in Partnership A, and Partnership C owns a 20% interest. Entities W, X, Y, and Z each own a 25% interest in Partnership B. Partnership B “distributes” its 80% controlling interest in Partnership A equally to W, X, Y, and Z so that each owns a 20% interest in Partnership A. Does this transaction represent a transfer of a controlling interest (in Partnership A) from Partnership B to W, X, Y, and Z that would be subject to the 1% Realty Transfer Tax?

N.J.S.A. 54:15C-1a(2) states, in part, “Sale or transfer of a controlling interest subject to taxation pursuant to paragraph (1) of this subsection may be accomplished by one purchaser or may be made by a group of purchasers acting in concert. Purchasers who are related parties are presumed, unless shown to the contrary, to be acting in concert.” In the example above, W, X, Y, and Z together own an 80% interest in Partnership B, regardless of the percentages each of them individually may own. Accordingly, the presumption is that W, X, Y, and Z have acted in concert to acquire Partnership B’s controlling interest in Partnership A. Therefore, on the facts presented, the Division believes that the Realty Transfer Tax applies to the transfer of Partnership B's controlling interest in Partnership A to W, X, Y, and Z.

Armored Car Services — On and after October 1, 2006, P.L. 2006, c.44, imposes tax on "investigation and security services." See N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(11). The definition of investigation and security services includes armored car services (N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(xx)).

Armored car services are sourced for sales tax purposes where the customer makes first use of the service; i.e., where the service originates is "first use." N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3.1. For example, if the service originates in New Jersey and the protected goods are delivered out of State, New Jersey tax is applicable. Conversely, if the service originates out of State and the goods are delivered to New Jersey, New Jersey tax does not apply.

Baked Waffles — The Division received an inquiry concerning the taxability of a baked waffle on a stick dipped in chocolate and coated with toppings (e.g., sprinkles, coconut, or peanuts).

N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(c)(1) imposes sales tax on the sale of "prepared food." Prepared food is defined to include food items that are a result of the combination of two or more food ingredients by the seller to make a single item.

Since a baked waffle on a stick dipped in chocolate and coated with toppings meets this definition, it is taxable as a prepared food. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(c)(1).

Exemption Certificates and "Good Faith" Requirement — Prior to October 1, 2005, a seller who accepted in good faith any exemption certificate which upon its face disclosed a proper basis for exemption was relieved of any liability for collection or payment of tax on transactions covered by the certificate. N.J.A.C. 18:24-10.3. The seller must not have known, or had reason to have known, that any information on the face of the exemption was false or misleading. N.J.A.C. 18:24-10.4(a). The vendor was presumed to be familiar with the law and the regulations pertaining to his business, and to know when he could issue or accept exemption certificates. N.J.A.C. 18:24-10.4(b).

Effective October 1, 2005, the Streamlined Sales and Use Tax Agreement became effective in New Jersey and made several changes to the Sales and Use Tax Act. In particular, the "good faith" requirement was relaxed. Absent fraud or collusion, sellers who accept a properly completed exemption certificate are relieved of liability for improperly claimed exemptions. The exemption certificate must contain specific identifying information about the purchaser and the type of exemption claimed, e.g., resale or manufacturing.

The Division will continue to allow the use of the current exemption forms (ST-3, ST-4, ST-5, ST-6, ST-7, ST-8, ST-10, ST-13) and the relaxed good faith requirement will apply for all purchaser or use exemptions for transactions occurring on and after October 1, 2005. The Streamlined Sales and Use Tax Certificate of Exemption may also be used as documentation for an exemption. It can be found on the Division's Web site at:

Horse Boarding — The service of boarding horses is deemed to be "storing all tangible personal property not held for sale in the regular course of business" and is therefore taxable pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(3). The horse-boarding business must be registered as a vendor and must collect New Jersey sales tax on its charges. It may claim a resale exemption when purchasing feed for the horses that it boards. Separately itemizing the charges for feeding a customer's horse has no practical effect. If the business charges customers for the feed, the charge is taxable under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a). If the feeding is included in the boarding charge, the entire charge is taxable as a service under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(3).

If a customer simply rents a horse stall without receiving other services, the transaction is treated as a rental of storage space, which is now taxable pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(3). Rentals of stalls and other storage space were nontaxable prior to a change in the Sales and Use Tax Act effective October 1, 2006.

If a horse is being boarded and services are provided in connection with the boarding (e.g., feeding, grooming), the boarding charge is taxable under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(3). Separately stating a charge for the stall rental will have no effect on taxability since both the boarding service and the stall rental are now taxable.

A business that is engaged primarily in boarding horses is not a "farming enterprise" for purposes of the Sales and Use Tax Act because it is not primarily engaged in producing an agricultural product. Therefore, although it may be viewed as a farm for property tax assessment purposes, it does not qualify for the farming use exemption from sales tax and may not use a Form ST-7 (Farmer's Exemption Certificate) when making purchases.

Prepaid Telephone Calling Cards/ Prepaid Internet Access Cards —

Sales tax must be collected on retail sales of prepaid telephone calling cards (landline and cellular), including the recharging of such cards. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(g). A prepaid calling arrangement is defined as the right to exclusively purchase telecommunications services which give the customer the ability to make a call using an access number or an authorization code. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(11). Under the law, the customer is considered to be purchasing such services in advance of using them. Thus, sales tax must be charged on retail sales of prepaid telephone calling cards to end users regardless of whether anything tangible is shipped.

The charge for Internet use is not subject to sales and use tax. Therefore, the sale of prepaid Internet access cards, which allow customers to log onto the Internet for a set amount of time from any computer, is not subject to sales tax.

Streamlined Sales and Use Tax Agreement Registration — The Streamlined Sales and Use Tax Agreement (SSUTA) contains a provision permitting the creation of a Central Registration Online System. Central registration constitutes registration with New Jersey and every SSUTA member state, including those that join after the seller registers. By registering through this system, sellers agree to collect and remit tax on all sales sourced to any member state. This central registration system may be used as an alternative to the methods currently available for registering with the State of New Jersey: online through the Division of Revenue's Web site or by completing and filing Form NJ-REG contained in the New Jersey Complete Registration Package (NJ REG).

Vendors that are registered with the State of New Jersey for sales tax purposes have the same responsibility for the collection of the New Jersey tax whether they registered directly with New Jersey or through the Central Registration Online System. Sales of taxable goods and services in New Jersey are subject to New Jersey sales tax if the goods are picked up or delivered in New Jersey, unless a specific statutory exemption applies (e.g., resale, exempt organization, or various specific exempt uses). If the customer does not take possession of the goods in New Jersey, but instead requests shipment by the seller to an out-of-State address, the transaction is not treated as a New Jersey sale, and no New Jersey sales tax is due. The taxability of the transaction is determined by the laws of the state in which the purchaser or the purchaser's agent takes possession of the merchandise.

Vending Machine Sales — The question was raised as to how the Streamlined Sales and Use Tax Agreement (SSUTA) affected the taxability of vending machine sales.

Legislation that conformed New Jersey's Sales and Use Tax Act to the requirements of the SSUTA, effective October 1, 2005, did not affect vending machine sales. See P.L. 2005, c.126. New Jersey continues to tax vending machine sales as they have always been taxed, as stated in the law at N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(c)(2).

The gross receipts from all sales of tangible personal property (other than food and drink) such as toys, laundry detergent, cigarettes, nail clippers, barrettes, and bobby pins sold through coin-operated vending machines are taxable. Sales of items that are exempt by law, such as clothing and footwear (e.g., shoe laces and bathing caps), as well as sales of any items for 25 cents or less, are not taxable and should be deducted from gross receipts before calculating the tax.

To calculate the tax due on receipts from the sale of taxable nonfood items, multiply the total gross receipts (less exempt sales if any) by the current sales tax rate (7%).

To calculate the tax due on receipts from the sale of food and beverages, the taxable amount is the wholesale price, which is defined as 70% of the retail vending machine selling price.

The vending machine operator may purchase all items to be sold through coin-operated vending machines without paying New Jersey sales tax by issuing a New Jersey Resale Certificate (Form ST-3) to its supplier. For more information on vending machine sales see publication ANJ-16, Vending Machines & New Jersey Sales Tax, which is available on the Division's Web site at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/pdf/pubs/sales/anj16.pdf □

Cash Audit

Methodology – Charley O's Inc., t/a Scotty's Steakhouse v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided July 12, 2006; Tax Court No. 0002836-2002.

The Division conducted an audit of plaintiff's (Charley O's) restaurant. The auditor requested various documents to verify that the filed returns were reported correctly. Charley O's accountant provided sales journals as well as cash disbursement journals and other records, but not cash register tapes. Therefore, the auditor commenced a markup analysis.

The Court found that the auditor's supervisor directed him to stop the markup analysis and use the CBT reported gross sales before the markup analysis was completed. The CBT returns reported larger amounts of gross sales than did the sales tax returns. In determining purchases, the Court found that the auditor had some purchase information but had to plug in a number of $231,109 to result in total audited purchases of $383,888 for the test year. The auditor stated that he did not audit the CBT returns because he was directed to accept them as filed. Additionally, the auditor did not look at Charley O's cash receipts and cash disbursements journal.

The auditor also prepared a summary of Charley O's bank account deposits for the test period from Charley O's bank statements. Testimony indicated that the auditor was cognizant that Charley O's maintained bank accounts for deposits from the proceeds of its various credit cards but was not aware that funds were transferred from these accounts into Charley O's operating bank account.

Charley O's claimed that it provided their representative (accountant) with bank statements, cash register tapes, and other records for purposes of the audit and that the accountant stated that he would protest the audit. The accountant never filed a protest and ran into his own legal troubles that resulted in his incarceration. Additionally, the accountant did not return all the records to Charley O's that were allegedly provided to him. Therefore, Charley O's engaged another firm who filed an untimely protest. The Conference and Appeals Branch (CAB) allowed the untimely protest due to the unusual circumstances surrounding the accountant's failure to protest in combination with his incarceration.

At CAB, Charley O's presented unsigned amended CBT returns that it had prepared for all the years at issue. Essentially, the amended returns reported reduced amounts of gross receipts and indicated that Charley O's had overpaid CBT taxes. The amended returns gross receipts were based upon the original cash receipts journal and the original cash disbursements journal and were intended to support the sales and use tax return gross receipts. The CAB upheld the audit assessment pursuant to its Final Determination. Subsequently, Charley O's filed signed amended returns with the Division and timely appealed the Final Determination to the Tax Court.

After the filing of the appeal, attorneys for both parties agreed that the Division would review the audit. The auditor and his new supervisor spent almost two days reexamining

Charley O's records and a spreadsheet reconciling gross receipts and bank deposits ("spreadsheet") with the sales and use tax returns. The Division's auditor and his supervisor were both satisfied with the spreadsheet analysis reflecting that $21,260.10 in sales tax was due, which was less than the $77,609.99 previously determined. However, the auditor's supervisor recommended the spreadsheet analysis to his manager, who rejected it because there were no register tapes through which the receipts journal could be verified.

The Court found that the Division had no authority to accept the gross receipts on the CBT returns rather than the sales tax returns. The Court ruled that the Division's audit methodology was aberrant in that the auditor stopped the markup analysis and accepted CBT gross sales for sales tax purposes by increasing Charley O's purchases by an arbitrary amount that when multiplied by the markup produced estimated gross receipts in conformance with the gross receipts reported on the CBT return for the test year. Therefore, the Court concluded that the correct sales and use tax assessment was $21,260.10 as determined on the spreadsheet and agreed to be correct by the Division's auditor and his supervisor. Moreover, the Court found that Charley O's provided a "convincing demonstration" that cash receipts and disbursement journal entries corresponded with various bank statements and also correlated to the spreadsheet.

The Court also found that Charley O's cash receipts and cash disbursements journal were summary records that were adequate records for sales tax purposes pursuant to the Division's own regulations. The Court cited N.J.A.C. 18:24-2.4(a) stating that a taxpayer may dispose of individual sales slips, invoices, receipts, statements, memoranda of price, or cash register tapes when a taxpayer maintains summary records. Therefore, the Court opined that cash register tapes are not absolutely required by the regulations when verifiable summary records are available. The register tapes may be helpful when an auditor believes the summary records are inaccurate and the auditor may perform a markup analysis in that situation when there are no cash register tapes available. Additionally, the Court opined that if the auditor had completed the markup analysis, then it would have been difficult to find fault with the Division's methodology.

Corporation Business Tax Public Utility Exemption – Delmarva Power & Light Co., v. Division of Taxation, decided July 14, 2006; Tax Court Nos. 000343-1999 and 001433-2000.

During the period at issue, 1994–1997, plaintiff (Delmarva) was engaged in the business of making wholesale sales of electricity through an association of seven utilities located in Maryland, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania to New Jersey regulated public utilities which, in turn, sold the electricity to New Jersey retail customers. Delmarva did not have a retail service area and hence had no retail sales in New Jersey.

Delmarva had nuclear generation capacity in New Jersey that was provided by the Salem Nuclear Generation Station, which was owned by Delmarva and New Jersey public utilities as tenants in common. This facility and others were connected by the Lower Delaware Valley Transmission System that included the Salem conductor and Salem switching station, which both intersected with and extended over New Jersey public streets, highways, and roads. Delmarva's generation and transmission facilities were owned and operated on an integrated basis with those of an association. Although Delmarva was regulated by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, it did not apply to the New Jersey Board of Public Utility (BPU) Commissioners for designation as a public utility in New Jersey.

Delmarva filed corporation business tax (CBT) returns and paid taxes in each year from 1994–1997. Subsequently, Delmarva timely filed amended returns claiming a refund of all CBT paid during those years on the basis that it was exempt from CBT because it was subject to the franchise and gross receipts tax (F&GRT). The F&GRT Act levies an excise tax on the gross receipts of electric power corporations that use or occupy public streets, highways, roads, or other public places in New Jersey; however, the F&GRT exempts sales to other public utilities.

In deciding whether or not the F&GRT applied to Delmarva, the Court did not find it determinative whether Delmarva was a New Jersey public utility or that Delmarva did not apply to the BPU for designation as a public utility in New Jersey. The Court opined that Delmarva's 1% ownership in the Salem plant, its New Jersey property valued between $150 and $170 million and its receipts of as much as $27 million from wholesale sales of electricity to New Jersey public utilities was sufficient to make it a taxpayer for purposes of the F&GRT Act.

The Court ruled that a taxpayer engaged in utility businesses, like Delmarva, would be exempt from CBT pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:10A-3(f) if it was subject to the F&GRT, a tax based upon gross receipts. Delmarva's F&GRT returns indicated zero tax liability for all years at issue because its only energy sales in New Jersey were wholesale sales to other public utilities, which sales were excluded from the tax base of the F&GRT. Therefore, the Court opined that Delmarva was not "subject to tax" under the F&GRT from 1994–1997 as it did not owe F&GRT. Moreover, the Court stated that there was no basis for arguing that "subject to tax" did not mean "liable for tax." Delmarva's F&GRT tax base was zero and therefore its gross receipts were not subject to F&GRT.

The Court held that N.J.S.A. 54:10A-3(f), for the period 1994–1997, required that a corporation engaged in a utility business in New Jersey be liable for F&GRT in order to be exempt from CBT. Accordingly, Delmarva was not exempt from CBT. Furthermore, the Court found that it was not unconstitutional to impose CBT on Delmarva because of the way it conducts business in New Jersey and reasoned that a sensible reading of the CBT and F&GRT would not support the conclusion that Delmarva would be exempt from both taxes.

Financial Business Corporation –
Chemical New Jersey Holdings, Inc.

v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided July 31, 2006; Tax Court No. 000213-2001.

On remand from the Appellate Division, the Tax Court was to determine whether plaintiff (Chemical) met the statutory requirements to be taxed as a financial business corporation for the 1992 and 1993 tax years.

Chemical claimed that it met the statutory and regulatory requirements to file its 1992 and 1993 returns as a financial business corporation as a result of its making $75 million of interest-bearing loans in 1990 and 1991 to its wholly-owned subsidiary, Chemical Bank New Jersey, N.A. (Chemical Bank) that remained outstanding during the tax years at issue. The loans were unsecured and subordinated to other creditors' claims. Chemical Bank needed the loan so that it would have additional capital to satisfy regulatory minimums for its capital ratios that were requested by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (Comptroller). In a November 7, 1994, letter, Chemical Bank requested approval from the Comptroller to repay $75 million to Chemical and included a pro forma capital ratio computation. The Comptroller granted approval for payment and Chemical Bank repaid the $75 million to Chemical in December 1994. In a November 2000 letter to the Division of Taxation in support of the proposition that Chemical was an investment company, Chemical stated that the transaction between itself and Chemical Bank was not a loan but a capital contribution and, therefore, should be considered investment assets.

Chemical borrowed the funds to make the aforementioned loan from its parent. Chemical charged interest at 10.25% per annum, which was approximately 2% in excess of the interest rate Chemical paid to its parent. Chemical's 1992 and 1993 corporation business tax (CBT) returns indicated that 88% and 86% of its total investment income was the result of the interest received on the Chemical Bank loan. Chemical provided no evidence that would support it was involved with any other loans to qualify it as a financial business corporation.

The Court ruled that under N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4(m) a bank holding company engaged in activities that are "in substantial competition with the business of national banks" could qualify as a financial business corporation if the loan constituted moneyed capital with the object of making a profit. Therefore, the first issue addressed was whether national banks would make loans that were similar to or competitive with Chemical's loan to Chemical Bank in 1992 and 1993. The Court found that Chemical presented no evidence that Chemical Bank could have obtained a loan with similar terms from a national bank or that national banks would have made loans on the same terms. Consequently, the Court concluded that Chemical failed to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that national banks would have competed for loans similar to the loan at issue; a loan that was unsecured, subordinated to all of the borrower's other debts, and required approval by the Comptroller for repayment. The Court did not address the second prong of whether the loan constituted moneyed capital with the object of making a profit.

Chemical appealed this decision.

Nexus – Lanco, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided October 12, 2006; Supreme Court of New Jersey No. A-89 September Term 2005.

In a unanimous decision, with one Justice not participating, the New Jersey Supreme Court affirmed the Appellate Division's decision that a foreign corporation is subject to corporation business tax when it derives income from a licensing agreement with a company conducting retail operations in New Jersey notwithstanding the foreign corporation's lack of physical presence in New Jersey. The New Jersey Supreme Court acknowledged the split of authority among the states, but believed that the Quill sales and use tax decision did not create a universal physical presence requirement under the Commerce Clause. Additionally, the remand of this case to the Tax Court for further proceedings was also affirmed.

Domicile – Groudin v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided August 3, 2006; Appellate Division No. A-5370-04T3, Tax Court decided May 27, 2005, No. 000220-2003.

The Superior Court affirmed substantially for the reasons stated by Judge Kahn in his written decision of May 27, 2005.

Although the taxpayers maintained an apartment in Lithuania, the country of which the wife was a citizen and the husband was a dual citizen, the taxpayers did not abandon their New Jersey domicile for the tax year in question. The evidence showed that the taxpayers used their New Jersey address for their Federal and State tax returns, place of business, and marriage license. They claimed a deduction for property taxes and mortgage interest for the New Jersey residence. They claimed and received an NJ SAVER rebate. They maintained bank and other financial accounts, and the husband maintained a driver's license in New Jersey. Although it was not clear whether the wife was a New Jersey domiciliary or resident, she attested to the New Jersey address on their joint tax returns and listed that address on her application for a marriage license. Therefore, despite their argument that they intended to make Lithuania their permanent home, the overwhelming evidence supported a finding that the taxpayers did not abandon their New Jersey domicile.

Domicile – Samuelsson v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided May 10, 2005; Tax Court No. 03615-04.

Up until the 1998–1999 hockey season, Kjell Samuelsson played hockey for the Philadelphia Flyers, a professional ice hockey team in the National Hockey League (NHL). Mr. and Mrs. Samuelsson owned a home in Voorhees, New Jersey.

In October 1998, Kjell Samuelsson signed a one-year contract (1998–1999 season) to play hockey for the Tampa Bay Lightning of the NHL. The Samuelssons rented a home in Tampa, Florida. The Samuelssons testified that they removed all of their furniture from the house in New Jersey and, at the expense of the Tampa Bay Lightning, moved all their possessions to a rental home in Tampa and a storage facility, also in Florida. They listed their New Jersey home for sale, yet they did not sell it. Mrs. Samuelsson testified that she looked to purchase a home in Tampa; however, she did not want to purchase a house before they sold their house in Voorhees, New Jersey.

Kjell Samuelsson, at age 41, retired from hockey at the end of the 1998–1999 season. The Samuelsson family spent the summer of 1999 in Sweden visiting relatives and returned to their New Jersey home in September 1999. In November 1999, Kjell Samuelsson was employed as an assistant coach with the Trenton Titans minor league hockey team, an affiliate of the Philadelphia Flyers hockey team of the NHL.

The Court stated that the issue was “Did the Samuelssons abandon their New Jersey domicile in 1998 and resume it in the fall of 1999 or were the Samuelssons New Jersey domiciliaries throughout the (entire) period.”

In order to abandon their New Jersey domicile, the Samuelssons would have had to acquire a Florida domicile in the fall of 1998.

The Court found that the facts supporting the Samuelssons' acquisition of a Florida domicile and the abandonment of their New Jersey domicile were:

1. They moved all of their furniture and belongings to Florida.
2. They listed their New Jersey house for sale.
3. They did not rent out their New Jersey house.
4. Mrs. Samuelsson looked for a house to purchase in Florida.
5. They sadly said farewell to their friends in New Jersey.

6. They enrolled their children in school in Florida.
7. They closed their New Jersey bank accounts and opened accounts in Florida.
8. Mr. Samuelsson got a Florida driver's license and registered his car in Florida.

The facts supporting the argument that the Samuelssons never abandoned their New Jersey domicile are as follows:

1. They never sold their New Jersey home.
2. They returned to their New Jersey home within one year of moving to Florida.
3. They never purchased, but only rented, a home in Florida.
4. Mr. Samuelsson worked in Florida for less than one year — when he left New Jersey, he was working in Philadelphia; when he returned he worked in Trenton and Philadelphia.
5. Mrs. Samuelsson did not change her voter registration or driver's license to Florida.

The Court determined the key issue to be what the Samuelssons' intention was when they moved from New Jersey to Tampa in the fall of 1998.

In Lyon v. Glaser, 60 N.J. 259 (1972), the New Jersey Supreme Court wrote:

“Domicile is very much a matter of the mind—of intention. It has been said that concurrence, even for a moment, of physical presence at a dwelling place with the intention of making it a permanent abode, effects a change of domicile. And once established, the domicile continues until a new one is found to have been acquired through an application of the same tests.”

The Court found that, although Mr. Samuelsson's contract was for less than one year and it was uncertain where he would work after the end of the contract, he had no reason at the time of signing the contract and moving to Florida to believe that he would be in New Jersey rather than Florida or Pittsburgh at the end of the year. Mr. Samuelsson's decision to return to New Jersey was only made after he had abandoned his New Jersey domicile as a result of his declining skills as a hockey player, which became evident during the 1998–1999 season, and his inability to secure a coaching position in Florida.

The Court stated that the Samuelssons had abandoned their New Jersey domicile for Florida when they moved in the fall of 1998. The fact that after that abandonment they returned to New Jersey is a result of facts and circumstances which arose during the 1998–1999 season, after they had abandoned their New Jersey domicile. The fact that the Samuelssons were domiciled in New Jersey up to the fall of 1998 and after the fall of 1999 does not mean that they could not abandon and then reestablish that New Jersey domicile.

Judgment was entered in favor of plaintiffs, dismissing the Director's assessment of taxes based on a conclusion that the plaintiffs were full-year residents for 1999. The Court found that during 1999, the Samuelssons were part-year residents beginning in September, and that the Samuelssons had filed returns claiming part-year residency from July 1, 1999, to December 31, 1999. Thus, the Samuelssons were not residents of New Jersey during the first half of 1999, and Mr. Samuelsson's salary earned during that period, except for those few dates when he actually played hockey in New Jersey, was not subject to the New Jersey gross income tax. See N.J.A.C. 18:35-5.1 (relating to New Jersey source income for members of professional athletic teams).

Statute of Limitation on Refunds — Mints v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided August 23, 2006; Tax Court No. 005360-2005.

In this case, the taxpayer had not filed New Jersey gross income tax returns stating that Division of Taxation employees had verbally told him it was not necessary to file until he had all the necessary information to file his NJ-1040 returns. The Division denied making such statements to the taxpayer.

When the taxpayer filed his NJ-1040 returns, the Division of Taxation granted him a partial refund based on a subsequent change of income by the Federal Government. Per N.J.S.A. 54A: 9-8(c), if a taxpayer is required to report a change in Federal income for Federal tax purposes, to be eligible for a refund such change shall be filed with the Director within two years from the time of the Federal notice of change or correction. The taxpayer had filed his NJ-1040 returns within two years of the Federal change. However, the taxpayer was seeking that portion of his refund relating not to the Federal change, but to the original filing of his return that was out of statute for New Jersey gross income tax purposes.

Judge Small stated "In tax matters, strict adherence to deadlines are essential and claims or appeals filed even one day late are late." FMC Stores v. Morris Plains, 100 N.J. 418, 426 (1985). "Estoppel is rarely invoked against the government especially in tax matters." Black Whale v. Director, 15 N.J. Tax 338, 354-56 (Tax 1995). "Tax consequences must follow what a taxpayer did, not what he could, should, or might have done." General Trading v. Director, 83 N.J. 122, 136-38 (1980). And "Just as the government is required to turn square corners when dealing with its citizens, FMC v. Morris Plains, supra, taxpayers who seek refunds must comply with the government's procedural requirement for obtaining those refunds both as to time and other formalities."

Judge Small further opined, "I understand the unfortunate situation Mr. Mints finds himself in and the equities of his argument; however, our laws with respect to time limitations for filing tax refund claims, the prosecution of crimes, or assessment of taxes (as examples) embody a legislative determination that at some point the values of repose, certainty, and finality outweigh getting to the correct substantive result."

In a letter decision, Judge Small has entered judgment in favor of the Director in this matter.

Trust Income – Kushner v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided June 15, 2005; Tax Court No. 002867-2002.

The Tax Court granted summary judgment for the plaintiff, thereby overturning the Division's assessment.

The specific question addressed was whether the distributive share of partnership income received by a trust of which the taxpayer was the sole beneficiary should be treated on the trust's beneficiary gross income tax return as distributive share of partnership income under N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(k) or income from a trust or estate under N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(h).

For tax years 1994 and 1995 the receipts from a trust that were required to be distributed to a beneficiary retained their character and could be netted against losses of similarly characterized income.

The gross income tax instructions were changed for the 1996 tax filings so that receipts distributed to a beneficiary were now to be reported as trust income on the "Other Income" line of the NJ-1040. The instant case deals with a 1996 NJ-1040 filing.

The Court stated, that when changing positions, a letter in the State Tax News did not amount to sufficient authority to change tax return instructions under the Administrative Procedures Act and Metromedia v. Director, 97 N.J. 313 (1984).

Judge Small held that the Division was well within its authority to change the way trust income was to be reported, and in fact the 1999 partnership regulations accomplished the "sufficient authority" premises to enact the change. The only problem is the instant case deals with a tax year 1996 NJ-1040 return filed in 1997, while the revised partnership regulations were enacted in 1999.

Insurance Tax

Retaliatory Tax – American Fire and Casualty Company v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided October 19, 2006; Supreme Court of New Jersey A-134 September Term 2004.

At issue was the determination of the proper method of calculating a foreign company's retaliatory tax obligation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 17:32-15 when the N.J.S.A. 54:18A-6 premium tax cap statute is applicable.

In general, both domestic and foreign insurance companies are subject to a 2.1% tax rate on their New Jersey taxable premiums. However, the premium tax cap statute allows either a domestic or foreign company to pay tax on only 12.5% of its worldwide premiums if its New Jersey premiums account for more than 12.5% of its total worldwide premiums. This tax cap statute was enacted in 1945 and is unique to New Jersey. A foreign insurer is also subjected to a provision that requires it to pay retaliatory tax if its home state's own tax and other obligations would be higher than the tax and other obligations calculated to be due to New Jersey. In 1981, the United States Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of retaliatory taxation as to insurance companies in Western & Southern Insurance Co.

In a four to three decision, the New Jersey Supreme Court decided that the benefits received from the premium tax cap are not included in a foreign insurer's retaliatory tax calculation. Therefore, majority determined that foreign insurers must pay retaliatory tax to New Jersey to the extent their home state imposed a higher tax rate than New Jersey's tax rate. The majority stated that their interpretation was a harmonization of the statutes and was not a decision on constitutional grounds. The three-member dissent believed that the foreign insurers should be taxed in New Jersey the same way New Jersey insurers would be taxed in their state. Consequently, the dissent would not have permitted New Jersey's premium tax cap to effectively reduce the amount of retaliatory tax unless the insured's home state had a similar provision(s).

Paper Products – Random House, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided August 23, 2006; Appellate Division No. A-1359-05T5.

The Appellate Division affirmed the Tax Court's decision that Random House's sales of books to wholesalers, distributors, and retailers from 1993 to 2000 were not "litter-generating products" and were therefore not subject to the litter control tax.

Wrapping Supplies Exemption – Quest Diagnostics, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided August 2, 2006; Appellate Division No. A-901-04T2.

Plaintiff (Quest) purchases and then provides vacutainers to physicians at no charge for their use in collecting samples of human blood and other bodily fluids that are prescribed. Vacutainers are test tubes that are sealed with a vacuum inside and each one contains a chemical essential to the sample for testing purposes. When drawing blood, the physician inserts a needle into the patient's arm and punctures the vacutainer's rubber top with the other end of the needle causing blood to be drawn through the needle into the vacutainer. After the sample collection process is completed, the physician places the vacutainer in a courier box from which Quest or a competitor collects the vacutainer. Quest also maintains a center for patients whose physicians do not collect samples in their own offices.

Quest operates a medical testing laboratory that performs and provides test results. Quest, as does its competitors, provides testing services for both its own supplied vacutainers as well as competitor supplied vacutainers. The vacutainers are destroyed after testing and are never reused.

When the vacutainers were acquired, Quest paid sales tax on the purchase price. Pursuant to an internal audit, Quest determined that the vacutainers should be exempt from sales tax. Quest claims that the product qualifies for the N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.15 exemption from sales and use tax because they are nonreturnable containers or other wrapping supplies. In general, N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.15 (8.15) provides an exemption for the sales or use of wrapping supplies including cartons, nonreturnable containers, etc. and all other wrapping supplies that are used incidentally in the delivery of personal property.

The Tax Court previously ruled that the vacutainers were neither other wrapping supplies nor nonreturnable containers and thus were subject to sales and use tax. On Quest's appeal, the Appellate Division (AD) affirmed without adopting the Tax Court's full analysis. The AD stated that the vacutainers are returnable containers even though they are not reusable; however, it opined that the vacutainers were neither containers nor wrapping materials entitled to exemption based upon the objectives of the N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.15 legislation. The AD noted that the words of this statute as applied to these facts demonstrated the inherent ambiguities in the statute. Therefore, the AD focused on the principle of narrow construction where N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.15 was ambiguous. □

P.L. 2006, c.44, increased the New Jersey sales and use tax rate from 6% to 7%. The rate change affects all retail sales of taxable merchandise or services that take place on and after July 15, 2006. View the law at: www.njleg.state.nj.us/2006/Bills/AL06/44.PDF

Additional provisions effective October 1, 2006, extend the sales and use tax to new services, limit some existing exclusions and exemptions, and encompass product categories that have come into being with new technologies.

Effective July 15, 2006

- The New Jersey sales and use tax rate increased to 7%.
- Businesses in Urban Enterprise Zones and Salem county businesses that are authorized to charge the 50% reduced rate are required to charge and collect sales tax at the rate of 3.5% on all qualified taxable sales.
- The combined rate for sales subject to both the New Jersey sales and use tax and the Atlantic City luxury tax increased from 12% to 13%.

- Businesses in Wildwood, North Wildwood, and Wildwood Crest that are subject to the tourism sales tax must collect 9% tax on tourism-related sales (2% tourism tax and 7% sales tax). This is in addition to the 1.85% tourism assessment and the 3.15% State occupancy fee on hotel occupancies.

The new sales tax rate schedules effective July 15, 2006, are available on the Division's Web site at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/salestaxrates.shtml

For more information on the rate increase visit: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/vendors.shtml

Effective October 1, 2006

- Investigation and security services (For more information visit: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/investsecserv.shtml);
- Information services;
- Limousine services originating in this State, except as provided in connection with funeral services;
- Membership fees (For more information visit: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/membership.shtml);
- Parking, storing, or garaging a motor vehicle (other than residential parking, certain employee parking, municipal metered parking, and parking subject to municipal parking taxes.); and
- “Digital property,” which means electronically delivered music, ring tones, movies, books, audio and video works, and similar products where the customer is granted a right or license to use, retain, or make a copy of such items.

The law changes the taxability of certain property and services as follows:

- Software. The current exemption for prewritten software delivered electronically is limited to electronically delivered software that is used directly and exclusively in the conduct of the purchaser’s business, trade, or occupation.
- Delivery Charges. The law modifies the exemption for delivery charges that are separately stated from the purchase price of an item on the invoice, bill, or similar document given to the purchaser. Delivery charges on taxable items are now taxable, and delivery charges on nontaxable items like clothing are exempt.

- Laundering. The sales tax exemption for laundering, dry cleaning, tailoring, weaving, and pressing is limited specifically to providing those services to clothing. The exemption does not apply to items such as drapery, carpets, blankets, slipcovers, and bed or hospital linens.
- Floor Covering Installation Services. The exemption for the installation of floor covering that resulted in capital improvement to real property is eliminated. Thus, the labor charge to install floor covering (e.g., carpeting, linoleum, tile, and padding) is now taxable. For more information, visit: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/floorservices.shtml
- Landscaping Services. The exemption for landscaping services that resulted in a capital improvement to land is eliminated. Labor charges for landscaping services, such as seeding, sodding or grass plugging of new lawns; planting trees, shrubs, hedges, plants; and clearing and filling land are now taxable. For more information visit: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/landscape.shtml collected on sales made to qualified businesses on and after July 15, 2006, unless the business is a “qualified small business” (annual gross receipts less than $1 million in the prior annual tax period). For this purpose, a business may use its gross receipts from sales as reported for sales tax in the prior year. A qualified business other than a small qualified business must pay the tax and apply for a refund. For more information visit the Division’s Web site at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/uez.shtml. Tobacco Taxes

Cigarette Tax. P.L. 2006, c.37, increased the cigarette tax, effective July 15, 2006. The rate increase is $0.175 cents per pack for a total of $2.575 per pack of 20 cigarettes. Previously, the tax was $2.40 per pack.

Tobacco Products Wholesale Sales Tax. P.L. 2006, c.37, was also amended to impose a separate tax, effective August 1, 2006, upon the sale, use, or distribution of moist snuff at the rate of $0.75 per ounce on the net weight, as listed by the manufacturer of the moist snuff, and a proportionate rate on all fractional parts of an ounce of the net weight of moist snuff.

The $0.75 per ounce tax on the net weight of moist tobacco is to be paid and collected in a manner similar to the 30% tobacco products wholesale tax on other tobacco products and is simply a change in amount of tax assessed from a tax based on price to a tax based on weight. View the law at: www.njleg.state.nj.us/2006/Bills/AL06/37 .PDF

P.L. 2006, c.38, imposes a 4% surtax in addition to the annual corporation franchise tax. For privilege periods ending on or after July 1, 2006, but before July 1, 2009, each taxpayer shall be assessed and must pay a surtax equal to 4% of the amount of tax liability remaining after applying credits against liability, other than credits for installment payments, estimated payments made with a request for extension to file a return, or overpayments from a prior privilege period. Payments of the surtax are to be made annually as required under N.J.S.A. 54:10A-15. No credits shall be allowed against the surtax liability except for credits for installment payments, estimated payments made with a request for an extension of time for filing a return, or overpayments from prior privilege periods.

The law also makes adjustments to the New Jersey minimum tax under the Corporation Business Tax Act. For calendar years beginning in 2006 and thereafter. View the law at: www.njleg.state.nj.us/2006/Bills/AL06/38 .PDF

Domestic Security Fee

P.L. 2006, c.42, amends P.L. 2003, c.34, by providing for an increase in the daily rental fee imposed on motor vehicle rental companies from $2 to $5 for each day or part thereof that a motor vehicle is rented under rental agreements of not more than 28 days. The increased fee must be separately stated on the agreement and applies with respect to certain motor vehicle rental agreements in New Jersey entered into on or after July 8, 2006. The fee is separate from, and in addition to, any sales tax imposed on the cost of the rental transaction and is not to be included in the receipts subject to sales tax liability. View the law at: www.njleg.state.nj.us/2006/Bills/AL06/42 .PDF

Fur Clothing Retail Gross Receipts Tax and Use Tax

P.L. 2006, c.41, enacted July 8, 2006, and effective July 15, 2006, imposes a gross receipts tax at the rate of 6% on the retail sale of fur clothing in this State and a use tax on the use of certain fur clothing in this State for which a tax has not been paid. For more information visit the Division’s Web site at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/pdf/furclothingusetax.pdf. To view the law visit: www.njleg.state.nj.us/2006/Bills/AL06/41 .PDF

INHERITANCE/ESTATE TAX NJ Estate Tax Return Preparation

On July 1, 2002, the New Jersey estate tax was decoupled from the Federal estate tax. The revised statute provides that the New Jersey estate tax is either the amount of the maximum credit for state death taxes

allowable under the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code in effect on December 31, 2001, or an amount determined pursuant to a simplified tax system prescribed by the Director.

Estate representatives may, at their election, use either the Form 706 method or the Simplified Form method to determine an estate's New Jersey estate tax liability. The Form 706 method is based on the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code in effect on December 31, 2001. The Simplified Form method is based on the net estate as determined for New Jersey inheritance tax purposes with certain changes.

The New Jersey Supreme Court's Committee on the Unauthorized Practice of Law concluded in Opinion No. 10 that the preparation of a New Jersey inheritance tax return requires the application of a gamut of technical legal principles and therefore its preparation by a non-lawyer acting for another would constitute the unauthorized practice of law. The New Jersey Supreme Court opinion In the Matter of the Application of the New Jersey Society of Certified Public Accountants, 102 N.J. 231 (1986), modified Opinion No. 10 to permit the preparation and filing of New Jersey inheritance tax returns by qualified certified public accountants licensed in New Jersey.

Under the provisions of prior law the Division permitted the preparation of New Jersey estate tax returns by individuals who were not licensed New Jersey attorneys or certified public accountants. The rationale behind this policy was that the preparation of the New Jersey estate tax return did not involve the practice of law as the tax was a sponge tax based solely upon the credit for state death taxes allowable in the Federal estate tax proceeding. The preparation of the New Jersey estate tax return involved nothing more than copying numbers from the Federal estate tax return filed with the Internal Revenue Service to the New Jersey estate tax return.

Since the New Jersey estate tax is no longer dependent upon a Federal determination and is now a stand-alone tax, the preparation of the estate tax return requires knowledge of technical legal principles similar to that referenced in Opinion No. 10. Therefore, the Division requires that the New Jersey estate tax return be prepared and filed either by the estate representative or his/her New Jersey licensed attorney or certified public accountant. □

PAMS: Building the Future

The PAMS (Property Assessment Management System) project recently completed a series of presentations to county tax boards, the League of Municipalities, and tax collector and assessor associations. Representatives from Property Administration and the Division of Local Government Services discussed the status of the PAMS project, gave a preview of what to expect with the new system, and answered questions.

The presentations were made to counties throughout the State, including the early implementation counties of Salem, Camden, and Hunterdon, from January through April. Stephen Sylvester, Assistant Director of Property Administration, was pleased with the participation. "We are very encouraged to see the interaction occurring between the State, county, and local government in the development of PAMS, and we are further encouraged by the dialogue these presentations generate. This makes us very confident that we will end up with a state-of-the-art system that meets the needs of all stakeholders," said Sylvester.

Another round of presentations is being planned for fall of 2006. In addition, the PAMS information booth will be on display at conferences to be held by the Tax Collectors and Treasurers Association of New Jersey, the Association of Municipal Assessors of New Jersey, and the New Jersey Association of County Tax Boards this spring and summer.

Seized were 19.2 cartons of untaxed cigarettes and about 500 untaxed cigars. Jaswal was charged with sale of untaxed cigarettes, failure to pay cigarette tax, failure to maintain books and records, and possession of untaxed goods.
- On March 3, 2006, in Trenton, OCI agents, assisted by the Trenton Police, arrested Willie Howlen, 35, of Morrisville, Pennsylvania, in possession of untaxed cigarettes he was attempting to sell on the street. Seized were 22.8 cartons of Newport cigarettes with no tax stamps, a 2000 Land Rover registered to Howlen and used to transport the cigarettes, numerous bootleg DVDs Howlen was attempting to sell, and $507 cash. Howlen was charged with sale of untaxed cigarettes, possession of untaxed cigarettes, and transportation of untaxed cigarettes. Additional charges are pending.

- On March 7, 2006, in Dover Township, OCI and Dover Township Police arrested Richard Carroll, 49, of Brick, New Jersey, at his sole proprietorship, Towne Stationery, after an investigation and inspection established that Carroll was engaged in the sale of untaxed cigarettes. Seized were 39.1 cartons of untaxed cigarettes found in a locked, hidden compartment under the store counter and secreted in a wall of the store's bathroom, and $1,221 currency, including $1,150 found in the hidden compartment with the untaxed cigarettes. Carroll was charged with sale of untaxed cigarettes and possession of untaxed cigarettes. Carroll was awaiting sentencing on previous charges of sale of untaxed cigarettes and failure to maintain books and records with intent to evade payment of $12,342.60 in sales tax, and has a record of two earlier tax offenses.
- On March 7, 2006, beginning in Carney's Point, OCI, New Jersey State Police, and the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives (ATF) conducted a continuous 22-hour joint investigation and mobile surveillance resulting in the arrest of Abel Concepcion, 33, of Miami, Florida, and seizure of 48,000 cartons of stolen, untaxed cigarettes which he was transporting in a tractor-trailer. The street value of the seized cigarettes is $2,986,560. This seizure averted a cigarette tax and sales and use tax loss of $1,320,960. Concepcion was charged with failure to maintain records with intent to evade, possession of 100 or more cartons of untaxed cigarettes, dealing with unlicensed persons, engaging in conduct requiring registration or licensure without same, and transportation of untaxed cigarettes. He was subsequently turned over to ATF and charged with Federal offenses relating to possession and transportation of the cigarettes, which had been stolen in-transit in North Carolina.

- On March 15, 2006, a Monmouth County Grand Jury returned a five-count indictment against Joan and Richard Orlando, Dover Twp., charging them with conspiracy, failure to pay New Jersey gross income tax, and theft-related crimes. Joan Orlando, 60, had been the bookkeeper of St. Benedict's Church in Holmdel since 1998. The allegations are that Ms. Orlando submitted grossly inflated salary figures for herself to Automatic Data Processing, Inc. (ADP), a payroll processing company, from 2001 to June 2005. Through this scheme Orlando received over $800,000 in excess salary. To conceal the theft Ms. Orlando altered tax records that ADP forwarded to St. Benedict's. Ms. Orlando was charged by the grand jury with theft by deception and two counts of failure to pay tax with intent to evade. Richard Orlando, also 60, received nearly $300,000 in cash and checks from his wife's bank account between January 2003 and June 2005. These payments of monies misappropriated by Joan Orlando are the basis for the second-degree conspiracy and receiving stolen property charges. This investigation was jointly conducted by OCI, the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office, and the Holmdel and Dover Township Police Departments.

- One hundred twenty-six (126) complaints alleging tax evasion were evaluated from January through March 2006, in the Office of Criminal Investigation.
- During the same period, one hundred eight (108) charges were filed in court and fourteen (14) arrests were made in twenty-five (25) cases involving violations of the Cigarette Tax Act. Seized were 48,546.2 cartons of untaxed cigarettes, having a total value of $3,020,544.56 and including 156.4 cartons bearing counterfeit New Jersey tax revenue stamps. □

Corporation Business Tax
IRC §1033 Involuntary Conversion of Business Assets — The term “entire net income” refers to the corporation's total net income from all sources, whether inside or outside New Jersey and includes any gain derived from the employment of capital and/or labor and profit gained through the sale or conversion of capital assets. A corporation's Federal taxable income, before net operating losses and other special deductions and subject to certain modifications, is deemed to be, prima facie, the taxpayer's entire net income for corporation business tax purposes. N.J.S.A. 54:10-4(k); N.J.A.C. 18:7-5.1(a); N.J.A.C. 18:7-5.2.

Items reported above Line 28 on Schedule A of Form CBT-100 must be the same as those reported to the IRS for Federal income tax purposes. There is no adjustment required by New Jersey for IRC Section 1033 involuntary conversion of business assets. Therefore, to the extent that a gain resulting from an IRC Section 1033 involuntary conversion is recognized for Federal purposes, such a gain will be recognized for New Jersey purposes.

Gross Income Tax

Credit for Taxes Paid to Other Jurisdictions Clarified — Taxpayers are often confused about how to calculate the credit for taxes paid to other jurisdictions in situations where there is income reported to another jurisdiction (e.g., a state) and its political subdivision (e.g., a city). Detailed information and examples illustrating the calculation of the credit are provided in N.J.A.C. 18:35-4.1(a)11, Tax Topic Bulletins GIT-3W and GIT-3B, and Jenkins v. Director, 4 N.J. Tax 127 (1982).

N.J.A.C. 18:35-4.1(a)11 states, “A New Jersey resident taxpayer in determining the resident credit allowed, as defined in this section, shall not combine in the numerator (Schedule A, Line 1, N.J. 1040) the same income subject to tax by the jurisdiction and/or political subdivision. The amount of income or wage tax during the tax year shown on Schedule A, Box B, N.J. 1040 for the taxpayer paying both a tax to another state and to a political subdivision of such state would be the total amount of state income tax and income tax or wage tax paid to the other state and political subdivision of such state where the same amount of income is subject to tax in both the other state and political subdivision of such state.”

If the income taxed by the political subdivision is more than the income taxed by the other state, then a separate Schedule A must be completed to calculate the additional credit for taxes paid to the political subdivision. For example, a taxpayer earned $95,000 of wages in City A located in State B. If State B taxed $90,000, and City A imposed tax on $95,000, the taxpayer may claim an additional credit based on the $5,000 of income that was taxed by City A but not by State B.

Please keep in mind when calculating the potential credit for taxes paid to another state and its political subdivision that the limitations of a credit for taxes paid to another jurisdiction as noted in N.J.S.A. 54A:4-1 and N.J.A.C. 18:35-4.1 still apply. That is to say, the total income from all jurisdictions in which the taxpayer may be seeking a credit may not be in excess of the income taxed by New Jersey. For detailed examples of how to calculate the credit when the same income is taxed by more than one jurisdiction outside New Jersey, refer to Tax Topic Bulletins GIT-3W, Credit for Taxes Paid to Other Jurisdictions (Wage Income), and GIT-3B, Credit for Taxes Paid to Other Jurisdictions (Business/Nonwage Income).

LLC Electing Disregarded Entity Status — New Jersey filing requirements for a limited liability company (LLC) depend on Federal tax treatment. The entity is treated the same for State purposes as it is for Federal purposes. If a single-member LLC elects “disregarded entity status,” the LLC is treated as a sole proprietorship rather than as a corporation, and income from the LLC must be reported on Form NJ-1040.

Realty Transfer Fee

Senior Citizen Partial Exemption — An inquiry was received regarding whether a senior citizen occupying a home to which she had conveyed title from herself as an individual to a trust in her name, can now, when selling the property, receive the senior citizen’s partial exemption from the realty transfer fee upon the recording of the deed for the conveyance of the property.

This question has been resolved by the New Jersey Tax Court. In Terrell v. Director, Division of Taxation, 22 N.J. Tax 297 (Tax Ct. 2005), the Court said:

“The statute [N.J.S.A. 46:15-10.1a(1)] specifically defines a ‘senior citizen’ as ‘any resident of this State of the age of 62 years or over.’ N.J.S.A. 46:15-5(f). A trust, not being a natural person, cannot be a senior citizen, and so it cannot claim the partial exemption from the realty transfer fee that is accorded to property owned, occupied, and sold by a senior citizen. In administering a transactional tax, the clerk has no duty to look beyond the grantor named in the deed. The taxpayer cannot later recharacterize the form in which they elected to hold the property. See Zimmerer v. Clayton, 7 N.J. Tax 15, 22 (Tax Ct. 1984).”

Accordingly the claim of partial exemption is not permitted in the situation described.

Sales and Use Tax

Artificial Fireplace Logs — Natural and artificial logs are treated as “fuel delivered to consumers...in bulk” within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.7 and are exempt from sales tax. This provision was not changed by the Streamlined Sales and Use Tax legislation, P.L. 2005, c.126, which took effect October 1, 2005.

Lessor Certification (Form ST-40) — As of October 1, 2005, Form ST-40 is no longer used for leases beginning on or after that date. Prior to that date, the lessor (not the lessee) was legally obligated to pay the tax on a lease transaction, and lessors were not permitted to charge the lessee “sales tax.” The lessor provided the lessee with a completed Form ST-40, affirming that the tax would be paid directly to the Division of Taxation, or that an exemption was claimed. If the lessor did not pay the tax, the lessee could not be held responsible for the tax as long as the lessee had been given a completed Form ST-40. Under the provisions of the Streamlined Sales and Use Tax legislation (P.L. 2005, c.126) that took effect on October 1, 2005, the lessor is no longer the taxpayer but, rather, must collect sales tax from the lessee on both leases and rentals. Therefore, the ST-40 is no longer applicable.

Nonalcoholic Mixers — An inquiry was received regarding the taxability of nonalcoholic drink mixes. Pursuant to the changes enacted in the Streamlined Sales and Use Tax legislation (P.L. 2005, c.126) that took effect October 1, 2005, liquid nonalcoholic drink mixes that are sold for use in creating mixed drinks generally fall within the definition of taxable “soft drinks” as they contain natural or artificial sweeteners. However, if they contain milk or milk products (including soy, rice, or similar milk substitutes) or more than 50% vegetable or fruit juice by volume, they are excluded from the taxable soft drink definition and are considered exempt “food ingredients.” N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.2. Powdered nonalcoholic drink mixes are exempt as “food and food ingredients.”

Storage of Cargo Containers and Truck Chassis — The Division received an inquiry concerning the taxability of the storage of cargo containers and truck chassis at off-pier depots.

Sales tax is generally imposed on storage services; however, there is a specific exemption for certain storage services for the marine terminal industry. Sales of commercial ships, barges, and other 50-ton-burden vessels, including cargo containers and repairs to such, and machinery and equipment for use at a marine terminal facility in loading, unloading, and handling cargo, as well as storage and other services rendered with respect to such loading, unloading, and handling of cargo at a marine terminal facility, are exempt. Thus, storage services for cargo containers that are provided at a marine terminal facility are exempt. There is no provision that would exempt the storage of cargo containers at a location other than a marine terminal facility.

Trucks, tractors, trailers, and semi-trailers are not included within the exemption for the marine terminal industry described above, since they are not machinery or equipment used to load, unload, or handle cargo at a marine terminal facility. Thus, storage services provided for trucks and trailers are subject to tax, regardless of where the storage occurs. However, an exemption applies to sales of commercial trucks, tractors, semi-trailers, and vehicles used in combination with a gross vehicle weight rating in excess of 26,000 pounds, or those engaged exclusively in interstate commerce. Sales and Use Tax

Bulk Sale Notice – GABGEO v. Division of Taxation, Division of Alcoholic Beverage Control, and Township of Colts Neck, decided April 21, 2006; Tax Court Nos. 007640-2004 and 007676-2004.

George Mavrookas was the owner/chief executive of P. Phaneromeni Corp. (Phaneromeni), which owned and operated a restaurant in Colts Neck, New Jersey. The Division had filed numerous judgments in the form of certificates of debt against Phaneromeni for deficient and/or delinquent taxes. On September 17, 1996, the Division notified Phaneromeni that the Division had obtained a judgment against Phaneromeni, George Mavrookas, and fellow officers and partners for approximately $195,356 of sales and use tax and corporation business tax liabilities regarding tax years 1996 and prior. Between October 1996 and July 1997 there was correspondence between the Division and Mr. Giacomo Duva, the attorney for Phaneromeni, regarding payment of the liabilities. On July 7, 1997, Mr. Duva notified the Division that Phaneromeni had “contracted to sell the business, assets, liquor license, and real property to a bona fide buyer who presently has a loan commitment.” The letter also stated that the buyer’s lender had set a July 17, 1997, closing date, but that date could not be guaranteed. This letter did not disclose the identity of the buyer, a sales price, firm closing date, or if the purchaser would assume Phaneromeni’s tax liabilities.

Plaintiff (GABGEO) purchased the assets and liquor license of Phaneromeni on July 18, 1997, for an unstated amount of money. GABGEO was incorporated on June 27, 1997, listing Peter Mavrookas (son of George Mavrookas of Phaneromeni) as the sole shareholder of GABGEO and Mr. Giacomo Duva as the registered agent. Although the purchase included the real property in which the business was located, the real estate was deeded in a separately recorded transaction on July 18, 1997, from George Mavrookas and his wife to Peter Mavrookas and his wife for $1,800,000.

On September 2, 1997, Mr. Duva sent an attorney trust account check to the Division to pay off most of Phaneromeni’s tax liabilities and indicated that GABGEO would assume responsibility for the remaining approximately $20,000. The Division notified Phaneromeni that the judgments were satisfied and warrants for satisfaction would be prepared and forwarded to the Superior Court.

Mr. Duva, acting as the attorney for GABGEO, delivered a Bulk Sale Notice to the Division on September 11, 1997, almost 60 days after the closing. Thereafter, the Division issued a conditional tax clearance certificate that allowed Phaneromeni to transfer the liquor license to GABGEO, and issued a Notice and Demand of Payment From Transferee to GABGEO in the amount of $34,969. In the following months, Mr. Duva corresponded with the Division inquiring about the status of the clearance of the transfer of the liquor license. In a letter dated April 1, 1998, the Division informed Mr. Duva that GABGEO did not timely file its Bulk Sale Notice and therefore the Division could not inform the purchaser of the requirements to obtain a tax clearance certificate and did not perform an analysis of Phaneromeni's food and liquor purchases and gross receipts. Nonetheless, the letter stated that the Division would relinquish the escrow requirement and issue a conditional clearance certificate to allow the transfer of the liquor license with the caveat that upon completion of the current audit pertaining to Phaneromeni the Division would pursue collection activities against Phaneromeni and/or GABGEO.

In 1999, the Division issued a clearance certificate for the renewal of the liquor license indicating that there were no outstanding liabilities for sales through September 1997. Thereafter, the Division issued a tax clearance certificate for the transfer of the liquor license to GABGEO.

In a letter dated October 18, 1999, the Division issued a notice to Phaneromeni that it owed $417,187 in sales tax and interest for tax years 1995 through 1997. On May 15, 2003, the Division notified GABGEO of their additional transferee liability of $429,790 as a result of the audit of Phaneromeni.

At issue is whether GABGEO is responsible for the taxes, interest, and/or penalties of Phaneromeni as a result of the 1999 audit. In essence, N.J.S.A. 54:32B-22(c) requires that a purchaser in bulk of the business or business assets must notify the Division by registered mail at least 10 days prior to the sale or possession and include the price, terms, and conditions as well as acknowledge that the seller has informed the purchaser that the seller owes taxes or the purchaser will be personally liable for any taxes determined to be due from the seller.

The Court determined that the July 7, 1997, notification to the Division did not substantially comply with N.J.S.A. 54:32B-22(c). Mr. Duva sent the notice on behalf of the seller, not the purchaser, the purchaser was not named, and the notification was not the form of notice required by the statute. The letter did not inform the Division whether the seller informed the purchaser of the outstanding taxes or that the purchaser would assume liability of any taxes owed. As to the September 11, 1997, notice, the Court found that it was a proper notice but was untimely to put the Division on notice as it was not provided at least 10 days before the July 18, 1997, sale as required by the statute. Therefore, the Division could not perform a quick bulk sales audit, address potential liabilities after an audit, and prescribe an escrow until after the sale closed.

The Court also questioned whether the transaction was a bona fide sale because the same attorney represented both the seller, whose principal was the father, and the purchaser, whose principal was the son; the sales price of the business assets was miniscule in comparison to the separate price paid for the real estate; and there was no proof of the true values of the real estate and the business.

In addressing whether the Division should be equitably estopped from collecting the liabilities of Phaneromeni from GABGEO because of the months of negotiations prior to the sale between Mr. Duva and the Division regarding the amount of monies owed to secure transfer of the liquor license, the Court decided that the Division could only be estopped in this case if the bulk sales notification provisions were complied with or pursuant to a closing agreement. The Court found that the Division's April 1, 1998, letter was fair warning to GABGEO that an audit was in process and the Division reserved the right to collect against Phaneromeni and/or GABGEO.

In affirming the Division's assessment and holding GABGEO responsible for the tax liabilities of Phaneromeni, the Court reiterated that GABGEO did not comply strictly or substantially with the bulk sale notice provisions, GABGEO was on notice that it would be held responsible for Phaneromeni's audit liabilities, and there was no evidence presented at trial disputing the amount of the assessment.

Plaintiff operates a museum containing a doll collection, pipe organ, model railroads, as well as an outdoor railroad train. Customers paid an admission charge for entrance and received an admission ticket. The ticket stated only the admission price and did not provide the amount of sales tax.

The Division's auditor (Auditor) found that the gross receipts used to calculate sales tax plus 6% of that amount equaled plaintiff's gross receipts as recorded in a notebook by plaintiff's principal for the fourth quarter of 1997. Dividing the gross receipts by 1.06 produced taxable gross receipts. Plaintiff's accountant described this method of determining sales tax from the gross receipts as backing into the sales tax. The Auditor disagreed and determined that the entire admission price was taxable because the admission tickets did not separately state the tax as required by N.J.S.A. 54:32B-12(a) and the interpretive regulation. In other words, hypothetically, if the admission ticket price was $10.60, plaintiff contends that $10 is the gross receipt and $0.60 is the sales tax. On the other hand, the auditor claims that the entire $10.60 is the gross receipt and therefore subject to the 6% sales tax of $0.636.

At trial, plaintiff's principal testified that the 6% sales tax was included in the admission price and that signs were posted indicating such for the four-year period at issue. On the other hand, the Auditor as well as an assistant testified that they did not see any posted signs relating to the sales tax.

In evaluating the testimony, the Court noted that this was not a case of concealment, plaintiff maintained adequate books and records, taxes were consistently reported and paid timely, and plaintiff's principal was a credible witness. The Court then opined that a sign was posted during the entire audit period. The Auditor's testimony was discounted because the Division did not produce any evidence such as a photograph in support of its position. Furthermore, the Auditor's testimony was found to be due possibly to faulty recollection or a failure to observe the sign.

N.J.S.A. 54:32B-12(a) provides as follows:

Every person required to collect the tax shall collect the tax from the customer when collecting the price, service charge, amusement charge or rent to which it applies. If the customer is given any sales slip, invoice, receipt or other statement or memorandum of the price, service charge, amusement charge or rent paid or payable, the tax shall be stated, charged and shown separately on the first of such documents given to him. The tax shall be paid to the person required to collect it as trustee for and on account of the State.

The Court determined that plaintiff's sign "satisfied the purpose if not the letter of the statutory requirement" of N.J.S.A. 54:32B-12(a) even though sales tax was not separately shown on the admission tickets as required by the statute. The Court reasoned that the "purpose" of N.J.S.A. 54:32B-12(a) was to notify the customer of the amount of sales tax collected as well as to provide a basis for a sales tax refund where appropriate. Furthermore, the Court stated that additional sales tax was not retained by the plaintiff and that the Division sought to effectively impose additional sales tax on the sales tax reported and remitted. Alternatively, the Court opined that even if a sign was not posted, that additional sales tax was not due. “No provision of the sales tax statutes or regulations states that a failure to disclose separately the amount of sales tax being collected will automatically result in liability for payment of tax on the portion of the admission charge used to pay sales tax.” □

John Baldwin, Director

John Baldwin, former Director of the Division of Taxation, died on March 9, 2006, at the age of 68. Mr. Baldwin, a career public servant, began his State service at the Division of Taxation in 1960 in the local property tax field. He was appointed Assistant Director in 1978 and served as Director from 1983 to 1990.

During his career with the Division, Mr. Baldwin was instrumental in establishing the administrative systems required at the inception of the sales and use tax. He also played a key role in implementing the State income tax and the original Homestead Rebate Program. Of his many accomplishments, he was most proud of the New York/New Jersey Cooperative Interstate Tax Agreement, the first pact in the nation in which two states agreed to collect and administer each other's sales and use taxes.

Mr. Baldwin was also active in various organizations. He was a former president of both the Federation of Tax Administrators and the North Eastern States Tax Officials Association, vice president of the National Tax Association/Tax Institute of America, and a former vice president of the Delaware Valley United Way. He was also one of the first state tax administrators to serve on the Commissioner's Advisory Group of the Internal Revenue Service, and most recently he served as chairman of the New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Review Commission.

Joseph C. Small, presiding justice with the Tax Court of New Jersey, fondly remembers Mr. Baldwin. "John was bright, tough, and decisive. His decisions on tax matters were always made with the public's best interests in mind," recalled Judge Small.

Mr. Baldwin earned his bachelor's degree in economics from the College of the Holy Cross, Worcester, Massachusetts, in 1959. The presentations include information on the design process, current status, and highlights of the new system. Assessors, collectors, and tax administrators will have the

The team has already spoken to assessors, collectors, and county tax administrators from Hunterdon, Somerset, Camden, Gloucester, Salem, Cumberland, Atlantic, Cape May, and Bergen counties. Presentations to the remaining counties as well as the New Jersey State League of Municipalities and other meetings are scheduled throughout 2006.

INHERITANCE/ESTATE TAX Domestic Partners

P.L. 2005, c.331, approved on January 12, 2006, provides a surviving domestic partner with the same intestacy rights as a surviving spouse. Additionally, a surviving domestic partner now has the right to take an elective share in a deceased partner's estate, be appointed administrator of the estate, and make funeral arrangements.

The Domestic Partnership Act, which was approved on January 12, 2004, formally recognized domestic partnerships and provided certain rights and benefits to individuals participating in them. The Act made significant changes to the New Jersey inheritance tax for individuals dying on or after July 10, 2004. Transfers made to a surviving domestic partner, as defined in section 3 of P.L. 2003, c.246 (N.J.S.A. 26:8A-3), were made exempt from the inheritance tax. Thus, all transfers made by a decedent to a surviving domestic partner whether by will, survivorship, contract, under the laws of intestacy, under the elective share provisions of the statute, or by any other means are exempt from inheritance tax.

The New Jersey estate tax is based upon the Federal estate tax credit for state death taxes allowable under the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code in effect on December 31, 2001. The provisions of the Internal Revenue Code do not provide a deduction for property passing to a surviving domestic partner. □

Information regarding continuing education courses can be found on the Division of Taxation's Web site at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/lpt/recert.shtml □

- On December 8, 2005, in Atlantic City, New Jersey, OCI agents, assisted by the Atlantic City Police Department, arrested Anthony R. Minor, 43, of Atlantic City, and charged him with sale of untaxed cigarettes and engaging in conduct without required registration or licensure with intent to evade tax, both indictable offenses. 10.5 cartons of untaxed cigarettes with a retail value of $622.20 were seized.

On the same date Atlantic City Police arrested Garrett S. Wilkerson of Atlantic City on charges related to his sale of trademark-counterfeit CDs and DVDs. Information regarding Wilkerson's unregistered business was turned over to OCI for investigation of possible sales and use tax and gross income tax violations.

These arrests were in response to complaints received by OCI from legitimate retailers regarding sales on the streets by unregistered vendors, and were carried out utilizing video surveillance to document the violations.

- On December 16, 2005, in Newark, New Jersey, OCI assisted New Jersey State Police and other agencies of the Essex Anti-Crime Partnership in the execution of a search warrant at Scratch Records, a CD/DVD retail store at which both stolen goods and trademark-counterfeit goods are known to have been sold. The search resulted in the recovery of a large volume of business records which were turned over to OCI for investigation of possible sales and use tax and gross income tax violations. Victor Sanks, 40, of East Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania, the responsible person of Scratch Records II LLC, was arrested and charged with failure to turn over $66,665.74 in sales tax collected (3rd degree crime), failure to collect $13,582.48 in sales tax with intent to evade (3rd degree crime), failure to pay sales tax in the amount of $80,248.22 with intent to evade (3rd degree crime), failure to file quarterly and monthly sales tax returns with intent to evade (3rd degree crime), dealing in stolen property (3rd degree crime), and conspiracy to deal in stolen property (3rd degree crime) between January 2002 and November 2005. Sanks was released on $250,000 bond.

2005, pled guilty to selling unstamped cigarettes on June 13, 2005, and failure to maintain records as required by both the Cigarette Tax Act and the Sales and Use Tax Act with the intent to evade tax between 2001 and 2004 in connection with Towne Stationery, a convenience store operated by Carroll as a sole proprietor in Toms River, New Jersey. Carroll also agreed to pay restitution of $12,342.60 in sales and use tax. This case was investigated jointly by OCI and the Dover Township Police and prosecuted by the Ocean County Prosecutor's Office. The case resulted from numerous complaints that Carroll was selling cigarettes to students of nearby Toms River South High School. Carroll had previously pled guilty in municipal court to possession of 42.1 cartons of untaxed cigarettes in May 2002 and possession of 35.6 cartons of untaxed cigarettes in November 2002.

- On December 23, 2005, in Mount Olive Municipal Court, Lakeview Energy LLC, trading as Lakeview Gulf, was charged with engaging in business as a seller of special fuels (diesel fuel) without first obtaining a license from the Division of Taxation to do so. This case was opened as a result of a referral of information from the Division's Audit Services Branch.
- One hundred fourteen (114) complaints alleging tax evasion were evaluated from October through December 2005 in the Office of Criminal Investigation.

- During the same period, one hundred two (102) charges were filed in court and twenty-two (22) arrests were made in thirty-four (34) cases involving violations of the Cigarette Tax Act. 5,725.3 cartons of untaxed cigarettes, having a total value of $356,228.17 and including 250 cartons bearing counterfeit New Jersey tax revenue stamps, were seized. □

9-1-1 System and Emergency Response Fee

Wireless Phone Cards — A fee of $.90 is charged by (1) mobile telecommunications companies on each mobile telephone number of a customer with a primary place of use in New Jersey, and (2) telephone exchange companies for each voice grade access service line. The fee is only imposed on periodic bills received by the customer for such service. Since periodic bills are not issued for prepaid wireless phone cards and prepaid pay-as-you-go service, the sales of these cards and services are not subject to the fee.

Telephone Bills: Taxes and Fees —

Of the various charges that appear on telephone bills, the Division of Taxation administers only the "9-1-1 System and Emergency Response" fee, which is assessed on mobile and land telephone numbers, and sales tax, which is imposed at a rate of 6%. Information on sales tax and the 9-1-1 fee is available on the Division's Web site or by calling the Customer Service Center at 609-292-6400. Customers with questions regarding any other tax or fee on a telephone bill should contact his or her service provider. In addition, the FCC maintains an informative Web site at: <http://ftp.fcc.gov/cgb/phonebills/WirelessPhonebill.html> explaining various charges found on telephone bills.

Corporation Business Tax

Federal Employment Credits — In general, the amount reported on Line 28, Schedule A of the New Jersey CBT-100 should be the same as the amount reported on Line 28 of Federal Form 1120. If a Federal deduction, such as for wages, is reduced because a taxpayer elects to take a Federal credit, the amount shown on Line 28, Schedule A, Form CBT-100 also reflects the reduced wage deduction as shown on the Federal return above Line 28. The election to take a Federal credit is a choice made by the taxpayer. No wage adjustment can be made at the State level to increase the deduction to what it would have been if the Federal credit had not been elected by the taxpayer.

A taxpayer is not entitled to take a deduction for State purposes which it could not take Federally when it elected to take a credit at the Federal level. This principle was litigated successfully by the Division in the context of the ESOP credit in AT&T Co. v. Director, Division of Taxation, 13 NJ Tax 534 (1993).

Net Operating Losses: Liquidation

— Net operating loss (NOL) carryover deductions not due to expire in 2002 or 2003, which were disallowed due to the suspension in 2002 and 2003 of the NOL deduction, could be carried forward for use in 2004 and 2005, subject to limitations. Legislation enacted June 29, 2004 (P.L. 2004, c.47), allowed for a limited NOL for privilege periods beginning during calendar years 2004 and 2005. The deduction permitted a reduction of entire net income by up to 50% during those tax periods.

Corporations dissolving in 2004 or 2005 had to limit the deduction of unused NOLs as indicated. There is no exception allowing corporation business taxpayers that dissolve and completely liquidate to deduct an amount greater than the statutory limits.

Trucking Companies: Filing Requirements — One way corporations become subject to New Jersey corporation business tax is by “doing business” in the State of New Jersey. Under N.J.A.C. 18:7-1.9 et seq., whether a corporation is considered to be doing business in New Jersey is based upon the nature and extent of the activities of the corporation in this State. Other factors include the continuity, frequency, and regularity of the activities of the corporation in New Jersey.

A foreign (out-of-State) corporation may complete a “Nexus Questionnaire” to determine whether it engages in activity within New Jersey that makes the company subject to corporation business tax. This form is not yet available on the Division of Taxation’s Web site; however, you may request the questionnaire by contacting the Nexus Audit Group at 609-984-5749.

A foreign (out-of-State) corporation providing routine trucking services, such as the pickup or delivery of goods within New Jersey, is considered to be deriving receipts from transporting freight in this State and is therefore subject to New Jersey corporation business tax pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:10A-2. In addition to filing the corporation business tax return (Form CBT-100 or CBT-100S), the entity must pay at least the minimum tax of $500 (or $2,000 in certain situations) or a tax based on the alternative minimum assessment, whichever is greater. Taxpayers may obtain Form CBT-100 or CBT-100S, along with complete filing instructions, through the Division’s Web site at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/prntcbt.shtml

Any entity that intends to do business in New Jersey must register with the State for tax purposes at least 15 days before starting business by completing and filing a Business Registration Application (Form NJ-REG) contained in the New Jersey Registration Package (NJ REG). This form can be completed online, or downloaded and printed from the Division of Revenue’s New Jersey Business Gateway Services Web site at: www.state.nj.us/njbgs/ There is no fee for filing Form NJ-REG.

In addition, certain business entities (profit or nonprofit corporations, limited partnerships, limited liability partnerships, or limited liability companies) must complete and file a Public Records Filing for New Business Entity form to create the business entity, or to receive authorization to conduct business in New Jersey if the business is a foreign entity. This registration form is available in the NJ REG package and can also be completed online. A fee must be submitted with the Public Records Filing for New Business Entity form. Sole proprietorships and partnerships are not subject to the Public Records Filing requirement. Foreign entities without nexus to this State that need a Business Registration Certificate to contract with New Jersey public agencies may not need to complete this filing.

Foreign corporations that do not have a Certificate of Authority to do business in New Jersey, but carry on certain activities in the State are required to file a Notice of Business Activities Report (Form CBA-1).

Cosmetic Medical Procedures Gross Receipts Tax

Removal of Skin Tags — Removing a person’s skin tags is subject to the 6% cosmetic medical procedures gross receipts tax (CMPGRT) under N.J.S.A. 54:32E-1 if the procedure is performed in order to improve the patient’s appearance without significantly serving to prevent or treat illness or disease or to promote proper functioning of the body. In other words, if the skin tags are being removed simply to make the patient look better, the service is subject to the CMPGRT.

If, instead, the growths are suspicious and need to be biopsied, then their removal has a significant medical purpose (preventing disease) and is not subject to the CMPGRT. When skin tags tend to bleed or become painful because of friction with the patient’s clothing or jewelry or when they protrude from the eyelid and cause itching or interference with the patient’s field of vision, then their removal significantly serves to promote the proper functioning of the body. In those cases, the fees for removing skin tags are not subject to the CMPGRT.

Partnership Filing Requirements

— Every partnership that has income or loss derived from New Jersey sources, or has a New Jersey resident partner during the tax year, must file a New Jersey Partnership Return (Form NJ-1065) even if its principal place of business is outside of New Jersey. Tax is imposed on the partners on income derived from a partnership, whether or not the income is actually distributed. The partnership must include a Schedule NJ-NR-A with Form NJ-1065 if (1) the partnership is doing business both inside and outside of New Jersey, or (2) 100% of the partnership's business is carried on outside of New Jersey.

Under the New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act, individual members of a partnership are subject to tax on their distributive share of partnership income (loss), whether or not the income has actually been distributed. The partner's share of the partnership's income (gain or loss) is determined by the partnership agreement in the same manner as determined for Federal income tax purposes. N.J.S.A. 54A:2-2; N.J.S.A. 54A:5-4. Each member receives a Schedule NJK-1 from the partnership showing that particular partner's distributive share of the partnership's income (loss). Nonresident partners are subject to New Jersey gross income tax on their distributive share of partnership income only to the extent the income is derived from sources within New Jersey.

A partnership is required to make a payment of tax on behalf of its nonresident partners with Form NJ-1065 unless it is classified as a qualified investment partnership, an investment club, or listed on a United States national stock exchange. The amount of tax is based on each partner's share of the partnership's income and is calculated at the rate of 6.37% for individual partners and 9% for corporate partners. Under N.J.A.C. 18:7-17.6, when the Division receives a payment from a partnership, the amount of tax paid is "credited to accounts of its nonresident partners in proportion to each nonresident partner's share of allocated entire net income and the rate for that partner class as set forth in N.J.A.C. 18:7-17.5." An individual nonresident partner may claim a credit on their New Jersey nonresident income tax return (Form NJ-1040NR) for the amount of tax allocated to it by the partnership. The partner may also request a refund for any excess tax payments that are made. N.J.A.C. 18:7-17.6(c). A copy of the partner's Schedule NJK-1 showing the amount of tax paid on their behalf must be included with Form NJ-1040NR.

Transportation Fringe Benefit —

For New Jersey income tax purposes, qualified employer-provided transportation benefits up to a specified limit per employee are excluded from the employee's New Jersey gross income under N.J.S.A. 54A:6-23. Qualified benefits include those provided in connection with alternate means of commuting, including public transportation, car pools, van pools, bus pools, ferries, and bicycling. The exclusion provided in N.J.S.A. 54A:6-23 does not apply to any commuter transportation benefit unless such benefit is provided in addition to, and not in lieu of, any compensation otherwise payable to the employee.

The inflation-adjusted limit for employer-provided commuter transportation benefits excludable by an employee for New Jersey gross income tax purposes is $1,310 for calendar year 2005, and $1,360 for 2006.

Ingestible Telemetric Gastrointestinal Capsule Imaging Systems —

The Division received several inquiries regarding the taxability of ingestible telemetric gastrointestinal capsule imaging systems (PillCams) sold to gastroenterologists who use them in providing virtual endoscopies to view and diagnose small bowel problems.

The pill-sized camera is swallowed by the patient. While in the patient's body, the camera transmits images to computer equipment contained in a belt worn by the patient during the procedure. After the photographing is completed, the doctor downloads the images from the computer and interprets them in order to find the source of intestinal bleeding or find other abnormalities. The camera passes through the patient's digestive system and is eventually excreted. It is not retrieved.

The purchase of the ingestible camera, which is consumed by the patient and then discarded and not returned to the physician for analysis or use, is treated as exempt from sales or use tax. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.1. The purchase of the hard drive worn on the patient's body during the procedure and of any equipment used to download the images or to read them is taxable and not subject to any exemption.

Promotional Gift Cards — The Division responded to an inquiry concerning the following transaction:

Retailer XYZ owns and operates department stores nationwide. A number of these stores are located in New Jersey. XYZ has a marketing program to encourage the public to shop at its department stores on a regular basis. The program rewards customers who spend a predetermined amount of money in the store with a gift card redeemable as cash on the customer's next purchase in the store. The gift card can only be used in XYZ stores and may not be exchanged with XYZ for cash. For example, every customer who spends $50 on a single visit to the store will receive a $10 gift card to be used on the customer's next purchase.

In general, the sale of a gift card or gift certificate is not a taxable transaction; when the gift card is redeemed, it is treated as money and sales tax is collected on the full price of the taxable goods. On the other hand, where a vendor issues a store coupon entitling a purchaser to receive a discount upon presentation, and the vendor receives no reimbursement from any person, the sales tax is due from the purchaser on only the discounted price, which is the actual receipt.

In the situation described above the gift card is not "sold." Instead, it is offered as a promotional item to customers who make the minimum purchase of goods. Unlike the transaction where a gift card is purchased and then valued as money when redeemed, the store receives no compensation whatsoever for the gift card. Rather, it is more like a store coupon transaction where the store discounts the subsequent purchase by the amount of the gift card. Thus, the redemption of gift cards that are given away by the vendor in transactions as described above should be treated in the same manner as a store coupon. The customer will only pay sales tax on the amount actually charged after the gift card amount is deducted. □

In Our Courts

Corporation Business Tax Nexus: Activities of Delivery Drivers – Chester A. Asher, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided January 5, 2006; Tax Court No. 004061-2003.

Plaintiff (Asher) is a Pennsylvania corporation that manufactures and sells candies and confection products. Asher's primary place of business is in Pennsylvania and it did not own or lease any real property in New Jersey during the years at issue.

Asher held a certificate of authority to conduct business in New Jersey and during the three years at issue consummated over $8 million of gross sales to customers located in New Jersey. Asher's salespersons regularly visited customers in New Jersey to solicit orders that would be written up and faxed to the Pennsylvania headquarters. Daily deliveries were made in Asher trucks that advertised the company logo. Pursuant to company policy, the delivery drivers also would collect and return goods and damaged products from its customers as well as collect payments on delivery and on outstanding balances from certain New Jersey customers.

Asher claimed that the activities of its delivery drivers did not result in the loss of immunity granted under P.L. 86-272 as the activities were ancillary to the solicitation of sales. Alternatively, Asher contended that the delivery driver activities were immune under P.L. 86-272 because the activities were de minimis.

The Court's analysis centered on P.L. 86-272 and Wrigley. In general, P.L. 86-272 prohibits states from imposing a net income tax on income derived within the State from business activities involving interstate commerce where the only activities in the State involve the solicitation of orders. In Wrigley, the United States Supreme Court determined that Wrigley's activities of replacement of stale gum, as a matter of company policy on a continuing basis by sales representatives, supplying gum through agency stock checks, and the storage of gum exceeded the scope of the term solicitation of orders because the activities did not facilitate the requesting of sales and therefore were not protected activities under P.L. 86-272. However, the Wrigley Court recognized that an unprotected activity would not result in the loss of immunity from state income taxation where the activity was only de minimis; where the unprotected activity only established a trivial additional connection to the taxing state. The Court decided that Wrigley's unprotected activities taken together amounted to more than de minimis even though the activities were not large compared to Wrigley's other operations in the State.

Addressing the instant case, the Court decided that Asher's salesmen's activities did not exceed the boundaries of solicitation of orders of P.L. 86-272. However, the Court found that the activities of Asher's delivery drivers did not facilitate the requesting of sales and thereby exceeded the scope of solicitation of orders. The Court determined that the drivers' collecting of New Jersey customers' damaged, spoiled, or overshipped packages was an unprotected activity similar to the salespersons picking up stale gum in Wrigley. Furthermore, the Court determined that the drivers' collection activities existed independently of solicitation of orders and were therefore also unprotected activities.

Turning to the issue of whether the unprotected activities were de minimis, the Court found that the collection of money and returned goods from customers was regular and pursuant to company policy rather than picked up on a few occasions as a courtesy to the customer. Therefore, the Court concluded that the unprotected activities constituted more than a de minimis connection to New Jersey regardless of the total amount. Consequently, the Court held that Asher must file New Jersey corporation business tax returns for the years at issue as it was not protected by P.L. 86-272.

Net Operating Loss and Dividend Exclusion – Ronson Corporation v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided November 21, 2005; Appellate Division No. A-6776-03T2.

In determining its corporation business tax income for tax year 1995, plaintiff (Ronson) used its net operating loss (NOL) carryover deduction from 1991, 1993, and 1994 to reduce its net income. From that figure, Ronson deducted its N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4(k)(5) dividend exclusion to reduce its income to a negative net income figure.

Ronson utilized the 1995 negative income as an NOL deduction for 1996 and then applied the dividend exclusion to generate another negative income figure that it used as an NOL carryover for 1997.

In 1998, 1999, and 2000, Ronson sought to reuse the NOL carryover that it had used in 1995 on the basis that the dividend exclusion would eliminate the 1995 net income and therefore the pre-1995 NOL carryover was available.

At issue was whether an NOL carryover must be applied to the first available income and before the subsidiary dividend exclusion, and whether the subsidiary dividend exclusion could generate or add to an NOL that could be carried forward.

After analyzing the relevant statutes, the Tax Court found that the statutes required that the NOL carryover must be used against available net income as soon as the income is available and that the NOL carryover be applied to entire net income before application of the dividend exclusion. Consequently, the pre-1995 NOL carryover had to be used in 1995 before utilizing the dividend exclusion. Secondly, the Tax Court stated that an NOL is statutorily defined as where there are excess deductions over gross income when computing entire net income without considering the NOL deduction and other statutory exclusions such as the dividend exclusion. Therefore, Ronson's dividend exclusion could not create an NOL.

Ronson appealed to the Appellate Division claiming that the two relevant statutes, N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4(k)(5) and (6), contradict each other and that if the NOL carryover is applied first, then the purpose of the dividend exclusion could be negated because dividends could be subject to double taxation. Specifically, Ronson asserts that (k)(5) states that entire net income is calculated by excluding dividends whereas (k)(6) defines the NOL carryover deduction as the excess "of the amount of the loss over the sum of the entire net income, computed without the exclusions permitted in [N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4(k)(4) and N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4(k)(5)]."

The Appellate Division ruled that although (k)(5) creates a dividend exclusion from entire net income, it is not and does not change the definition of entire net income. Therefore, the Court determined that there was no inconsistency pertaining to the definition of entire net income. As to the argument regarding double taxation, the Appellate Division found that dividends would not be taxed in the situation where there was a profit, loss, or an NOL carryover and noted that the legislature was aware of the interplay between (k)(5) and (k)(6) because (k)(5) was amended at the same time (k)(6) was enacted in 1985. Consequently, the Appellate Division affirmed the decision of the Tax Court.

Sale, Exchange, or Other Disposition of Property – Diana King v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided May 25, 2005; Appellate Division No. A-5189-03T2.

In April 1991 plaintiff, Ms. Diana King (King), entered into a loan agreement with Amiro Fiorintino Associates, Inc. (AFA). The loan was evidenced by a revolving credit note. The principal shareholder of AFA was the guarantor of the loan. The loan was also secured pursuant to a security agreement granting King a security interest and lien in certain AFA collateral. When King recorded her security interest pursuant to the Uniform Commercial Code (UCC), King's loan was subordinated to a bank loan. In 1992 and 1995 the loan agreement was amended. Essentially, Ventura Entertainment Group (VEG) was an additional guarantor of AFA's obligation and the loan was secured pursuant to a security agreement that granted King a security interest in 100,000 shares of VEG.

as a secured creditor in the amount of $568,857.35 consisting of the $450,000 principal, $106,090.65 interest and $12,766.70 arrears. As a junior secured creditor, King consented to the sale of AFA's assets conditioned upon her receipt of $120,000 and that she be released from claims against the debtor. King's consent was evidenced on a bankruptcy document titled "Response of Diana King to the Debtor's Application for an Order Approving a Purchase Agreement and Authorizing a Sale of Assets." Thereafter, King terminated her UCC filings and the bankruptcy proceeding was later dismissed.

On her 1996 Form NJ-1040, King reported a $330,000 loss ($450,000 principal less $120,000 payment) and $32,973 of attorney fees as a $362,973 nonbusiness bad debt deduction. Thereafter, she filed an amended return reclassifying the $362,973 as a long term capital loss, claiming that it was an investment loss on the disposition of a security.

On both her NJ-1040 return and amended return, King offset this loss against other gains included under N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(c) disposition of property category. However, the Division disallowed the deduction claiming that it was a nondeductible, nonbusiness bad debt.

N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(c) includes net gains, net losses, and net income derived from the sale, exchange, or other disposition of property. At issue is whether King engaged in a sale, exchange, or disposition of property. The Court found that King settled her claim for a reduced amount by giving up her right to sue on the note and that she did not sell or transfer the note evidencing the debt or any other security. Also, the Court noted that King presented no evidence that she exchanged the note. Citing Vinnick and Walsh, the Court upheld the Division's assessment.

On appeal, King argued that her loan was an investment that produced a capital asset that sold at a loss during bankruptcy proceedings and therefore she is entitled to a loss on the sale or exchange or other disposition of property pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(c). The Appellate Division disagreed with King by affirming the well-reasoned opinion of the Tax Court. Furthermore, the Appellate Division commented that although under the Internal Revenue Code notes from nonbusiness loans implicate Federal capital gain or loss when they become worthless, New Jersey statutes do not allow for the deduction of worthless nonbusiness debts. Similarly, unlike Federal tax law, New Jersey does not generally recognize discharge of indebtedness as income. In the instant case, King did not sell, exchange, or dispose of the note, King focused on collecting and securing the debt for herself and not on transferring the note, and in her "counsel's own words, 'sur-rendered' the debt."

Evidence of Food Consumed Off the Premises Where Sold – Bubbles, Inc. t/a Auntie Anne's Pretzels v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided June 2, 2005; Tax Court No.
003209-2002.

Plaintiff (Bubbles) is a franchise of Auntie Anne's, Inc., that sold hand-rolled soft pretzels, dips, carbonated soft drinks, lemonade, and Dutch Ice at the Quakerbridge Mall (Mall). Bubbles sold its products from a leased store as well as a kiosk-type cart or stand. The store was not accessible to customers as the front of the store is bounded by a counter where products are sold to customers standing in a common area of the Mall. Like the store, customers purchased products over the counter of the kiosk. Testimony indicated that other Mall stores had their own dine-in seating and that there were no tables or chairs in the common areas of the Mall.

Bubbles prepared pretzels from raw ingredients that are placed in an oven for baking. After they are baked, most of the pretzels are dipped in butter and placed in a piece of equipment so that the butter is baked into the pretzels. Occasionally, pretzels are sold immediately after they are removed from the oven without being buttered. When pretzels are purchased, Bubbles delivers them in either a wax paper bag that holds six pretzels or another bag that holds up to three or four pretzels depending upon the quantity purchased. Each bag has instructions for reheating the pretzels. Pretzels are served with napkins. Bubbles did not collect sales tax on the sale of pretzels, noncarbonated lemonade, and the Dutch Ice believing that the sales were not subject to sales tax.

Bubbles argued that the pretzels were not sold for consumption on its premises because it had no premises on which its customers could consume food. Bubbles claimed the areas leased by it were not open to the public, that there was no seating made available for consuming food, and that the Mall, not Bubbles, controlled the common areas of the Mall.

The Court found that N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(c) imposes sales tax on sales of food and drink for consumption on the premises where sold and that N.J.A.C. 18:24-12.2 defined the phrase "on the premises."

In Campo, the Tax Court recently upheld the Division's regulation in defining premises broadly as the total space and facilities in or on which a vendor conducts his business to mean that Campo's premises constituted the entire stadium and arena despite the fact that its license did not grant Campo the right to use any specific area of the facilities for either preparation or sales. Therefore, as to Bubbles, the Court ruled likewise that the phrase "on the premises" meant within the Mall even though the lease did not grant Bubbles any rights to the Mall beyond the boundaries of its store and kiosk.

Bubbles further argued that the pretzels were not sold for consumption in the Mall because 75% of the pretzels sold were either purchased in quantities greater than one or exited the doors of the Mall unconsumed. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-12 presumes that all N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(c) sales are taxable unless the contrary is established by the person contesting the tax. Moreover, case law recognizes that the Division's assessments are presumed correct. The Court concluded that Bubbles' testimony and evidence did not overcome the Division's presumption of correctness. The Court did not find Bubbles' witnesses' testimony credible or reliable as to where the customers consumed the pretzels and beverages. The Court opined that Bubbles failed to establish with credible evidence the percentage of sales that were consumed off the Mall's premises as it did not produce any documentary evidence, such as cash register tapes, to support its contentions. The Court cited case law that “A taxpayer’s ‘naked assertions,’ without supporting records or documentation are insufficient to rebut the presumption that the Director’s assessment is correct.” Consequently, the Court concluded that Bubbles’ sales of food and beverages were for consumption on the premises as Bubbles could not overcome the presumption that the Division’s assessment is correct by proving with “evidence that is definite, positive, and certain in quality and quantity” that any portion of the food and beverages were consumed off the premises.

Plaintiff appealed this decision to the Appellate Division. □

Practitioners' E-File Mandate

All practitioners (firms and individuals) who prepared 200 or more 2004 New Jersey income tax resident returns are required to use one of the three NJ FastFile options — NJ WebFile, NJ TeleFile, or NJ E-File — to file 2005 New Jersey income tax resident returns for their clients. Practitioners who filed fewer than 200 New Jersey resident returns in 2004 are not required to file electronically for the 2005 tax year, but are strongly encouraged to do so.

Streamlined Sales and Use Tax

Current information about the effect of the Streamlined Sales and Use Tax Agreement on New Jersey's sales and use tax is available at:

We will be updating the information on an ongoing basis. A list of links to the materials that have already been published appears on page 6.

What's New for Tax Year 2005

There have been some important changes affecting the preparation of New Jersey income tax returns and instructions this year:

Income Tax

- Form NJ-1040EZ discontinued — The NJ-1040EZ resident return form has been discontinued. Taxpayers who need to file a paper return must use Form NJ-1040.
- Sign Form NJ-1040 on Page 1 — The signature section of the 2005 New Jersey resident income tax return has been moved. Taxpayers now sign the return at the bottom of the first page.
- Dependents' Information — Taxpayers must list the full name, social security number, and birth year of each dependent child or other dependent claimed on their New Jersey resident return. Taxpayers who qualify for a New Jersey earned income tax credit must also provide this information for any "qualifying child" listed on the Federal Schedule EIC who is not claimed as a dependent for New Jersey purposes.
- Health Enterprise Zone Deduction — Taxpayers who provide "primary care" medical and/or dental services at a qualified practice located in or within five miles of a Health Enterprise Zone may be eligible for a deduction.
- Underpayment of Estimated Tax — Taxpayers who owe interest for failing to pay the required amount of estimated tax now report the interest amount on a separate line of the New Jersey resident and nonresident income tax returns.

- NJ TeleFile — Taxpayers can use NJ TeleFile if their interest income and dividend income are each less than $10,000. The limit in each category was increased from $2,500.

- Credit for Taxes Paid to Other Jurisdictions — The Philadelphia nonresident wage tax rate for 2005 is .038197.

- IRC Section 199 Deduction — New Jersey has uncoupled from many provisions of IRC Section 199. The New Jersey allowable IRC Section 199 deduction should be taken into consideration in calculating the gain or loss on disposition of applicable property.

The New Jersey adjustments affect the determination of income in the categories net profits from business; net gains or income from disposition of property; net gains or income from rents, royalties, patents, and copyrights; income from estates or trusts; distributive share of partnership income; and net pro rata share of S corporation income.

- Retirement Income Exclusions — The pension and other retirement income exclusions are limited to use by taxpayers with gross income of $100,000 or less (before subtracting any pension exclusion).

- Extension of Time to File — An extension of time to file the New Jersey income tax return will be granted for a single, 6-month period, provided all requirements are met. □

Estimated Payment Verification

Taxpayers who need to verify the amounts of their New Jersey estimated tax payments and credits to complete their 2005 gross income tax returns can review their payment history on the Division of Taxation’s Web site. Payment information is available for tax years 2004 through 2006 for individuals, both resident and nonresident, and estates and trusts.

To obtain an estimated payment statement of account taxpayers need the following:

- Social Security Number (Federal Identification Number for estates or trusts)
- Date of Birth (Estates or trusts use either the date of the decedent’s death or the date the trust was created)

- Amount of refund or balance due from the taxpayer’s 2004 New Jersey income tax return

Taxpayers whose filing status is “Married, filing joint return” must use the social security number and date of birth of the spouse who is listed first on their estimated payment voucher (Form NJ-1040-ES) or last year’s New Jersey income tax return to obtain their account information.

A 2004 New Jersey income tax return must be on file for a taxpayer to use the online inquiry. If the taxpayer did not file a 2004 return or needs to verify payments or credits for tax years prior to 2004, the Division’s Customer Service Center has representatives available at 609-292-6400 to provide assistance during normal business hours.

To access the estimated payment inquiry visit the Division’s Web site at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/online.shtml and choose “Gross Income Tax Estimated Payments Statement of Account.” □

Criminal Enforcement

Criminal Enforcement over the past several months included:

- On July 15, 2005, in Superior Court – Monmouth County, Freehold, New Jersey, Norman Levine, 60, of Barnegat, New Jersey, was sentenced to two and one-half years' probation, fined $305, and ordered to pay to the Division of Taxation restitution in the amount of $17,858 in cigarette tax and sales tax pursuant to his guilty plea on July 12, 2004, to one count of possession of untaxed cigarettes. The Division of Taxation's Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) had arrested Levine after an investigation identified Levine as the recipient of untaxed cigarettes by way of a FedEx shipment from Virginia. Levine appeared in court in Maryland on December 12, 2003, in a case stemming from a previous arrest. Immediately after pleading guilty to a felony count of transportation/possession of contraband cigarettes, Levine was followed by agents of the Maryland Comptroller of the Treasury to Virginia and North Carolina where they observed him purchasing cigarettes again and shipping them from Virginia Beach to a New Jersey business. OCI surveillance led to the arrest of Levine after he took possession of the cigarettes and was placing them in a storage unit in Neptune Township. Levine was actively engaged in a mail-order cigarette business with an Internet site. A total of 754 cartons of contraband cigarettes were seized; 457 cartons were in the delivery that had been observed, and the remainder were found in his storage unit. A combination of Delaware tax stamped, Virginia tax stamped, and unstamped cigarettes (from North Carolina) were seized along with $2,138 in cash and a 1998 Mercury, which has been forfeited to the State.

- On July 20, 2005, in Teaneck Municipal Court, Xiu Ming Liu, 32, of Bergenfield, New Jersey, entered a plea of guilty to one count of sale of untaxed cigarettes at Fook Yong Restaurant, Teaneck, New Jersey. Liu was charged after a joint investigation by OCI and the Teaneck Police Department in which a confidential informant purchased untaxed cigarettes from Liu. Pursuant to her guilty plea, Liu was fined $1,155. At the same time, Jin Gui Li, the owner of Fook Yong Restaurant, pled guilty to possession of untaxed cigarettes and engaging in the purchase of untaxed cigarettes without a license. Although the maximum fine for each of these offenses is normally $1,000, Li was fined double that amount, or $4,000, as provided by law because Li has a prior conviction for possession of untaxed cigarettes.

- On July 28, 2005, in Newark Municipal Court, Elvis M. Manjarraz, 36, of Newark, was charged with transportation of untaxed cigarettes as a result of a cooperative investigation with U.S. Customs and Border Protection that resulted in the seizure at Newark Liberty International Airport of 50 cartons of cigarettes which Manjarraz was attempting to smuggle from Ecuador.
- On August 3, 2005, in Woodbury Municipal Court, cigarette retail dealer Bhupendra Shah, 45, of East Greenwich Twp., New Jersey, pled guilty to selling cigarettes without a license at his store, Woodbury Food & News, Woodbury, New Jersey, in May 2005. Shah was fined $658. Prior to the plea and sentencing, Shah satisfied sales tax delinquencies which had caused the Division to withhold renewal of his cigarette retail dealer license as part of the enforcement initiative known as the License Suppression Project. In the same Court session, cigarette wholesale dealers Klein Candy Co. of Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, and Allen Brothers Wholesale Distributors, Inc., of Philadelphia each pled guilty to one count of selling cigarettes at wholesale to Shah, a person not licensed as a retailer at the time of the transactions. The two wholesalers were each fined $700. The Shah case was the result of a referral from the Division of Taxation's Audit Activity as part of the Division's comprehensive cigarette tax enforcement program, which includes field audits of selected cigarette vendors.

- On August 17, 2005, Ramoni Mustapha, 50, of Newark; Blessing Iwarimie, 35, of Elizabeth; and Gladys Soto, 31, of Linden, were indicted by a State Grand Jury on charges of conspiracy and theft by deception. Mustapha, a self-employed tax preparer, fraudulently received hundreds of New Jersey earned income tax credit checks for tax years 2001, 2002, and 2003, filed from February 2004 through March 2005. As a result of the fraudulent filings, 401 earned income tax credit (EITC) refund checks totaling $265,397 were obtained by Mustapha. The indictment further charges that Iwarimie and Soto, tellers at Bank of America, cashed the EITC refund checks obtained by Mustapha in exchange for a portion of the proceeds. Mustapha was arrested on April 15, 2005, at his Orange office. A search of his office

pursuant to a search warrant resulted in the seizure of tax returns, various tax documents and records, computer systems, false/fraudulent credit cards and identification documents, and related evidence. Each defendant faces up to 20 years in State prison and fines of up to $300,000 upon conviction of the second-degree charges. This is a joint investigation by OCI and the New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice-Financial Crimes Bureau.

- On August 24, 2005, an indictment was unsealed charging Brenda McGinty and her sister, Toni Carlisi, both residents of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, with one count of theft by deception, three counts of failure to file New Jersey gross income tax returns, and three counts of failure to pay New Jersey gross income tax. The subjects were indicted by a State Grand Jury in Mercer County on November 17, 2004. The indictments arose from a joint investigation with the Mercer County Prosecutor's Office which determined that Brenda McGinty, the bookkeeper for a Mercer County business, embezzled $1,085,457.50 during the years 2001, 2002, and 2003. It was also determined that, during those three years, she wrote checks to her sister, Toni Carlisi, which totaled $979,789. Neither individual filed New Jersey non-resident income tax returns reporting the illegal income. The amount of New Jersey gross income tax evaded for the three-year period by Brenda McGinty was $62,812.93 and the amount evaded by Toni Carlisi was $51,064.91.

- On August 31, 2005, in Superior Court – Mercer County, Trenton, New Jersey, Thomas Boller, 42, of Denville, New Jersey, waived his right to indictment by grand jury and entered a guilty plea to an accusation charging him with one count of filing fraudulent New Jersey gross income tax returns for tax years 1997 through 2000 and one count of failing to pay New Jersey gross income tax. Upon entry of the plea, Boller was sentenced to five years' probation, and was ordered to pay restitution to the State of gross income tax in the amount of $158,496.99 and penalty and interest in the amount of $109,378.30, for a total restitution of $267,875.29. The case was initiated by the Money Laundering Task Force of the New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice based on Boller's gambling history in Atlantic City. A joint investigation by OCI, the Division of Criminal Justice-Casino Prosecutions Bureau, and the Internal Revenue Service-Criminal Investigation Division established that Boller had underreported revenue and misclassified expenses of API Systems Inc., a computer services firm that Boller owns. The case was prosecuted by the State Office of the Attorney General.

- On September 6, 2005, in Superior Court – Salem County, Salem, New Jersey, Jaswinder S. Dhillon, currently a resident of Henderson, Nevada, who on June 20, 2005, pled guilty to a charge of failing to file motor fuels tax returns, was sentenced to four years' probation and ordered to pay restitution to the State of $70,000 in motor fuels tax. He had been indicted on February 2, 2005, by a Salem County Grand Jury on three criminal charges as a result of an investigation which established that Dhillon, the principal of MJS Truck Plaza Inc. in Carneys Point, New Jersey, failed to file tax returns and remit motor fuels tax he collected from customers as a trustee for the State. Dhillon closed his truck stop on July 31, 2000, and failed to turn over the entrusted tax dollars he had collected for June and July 2000, the last two months of business. The matter was investigated by OCI and prosecuted by the Salem County Prosecutor's Office.

- On September 9, 2005, Anthony Murphy, 49, of West Orange, New Jersey, was sentenced to repay more than $25,500 after pleading guilty to fraudulently misrepresenting that he and his family were qualified for Medicaid benefits. Essex County Superior Court Judge Michael Ravin ordered him to pay more than $25,590 in restitution and to serve two concurrent one-year probation terms. Judge Ravin clarified that Murphy will serve probation until the restitution has been paid back in full. On June 29, 2005, Murphy pled guilty to a criminal accusation filed by the Division of Criminal Justice. The accusation charged Murphy with Medicaid fraud and failure to pay income taxes. At the guilty plea hearing, Murphy admitted that between May 30, 2001, and March 30, 2004, he wrongfully obtained more than $16,000 in health benefits from the Medicaid Program. Murphy admitted that he applied for FamilyCare for himself, his wife, and his three children by falsely advising the Division of Medicaid Assistance and Health Services that he did not have health insurance through his employment and could otherwise not afford health coverage.

Murphy further admitted that he is a self-employed contractor and the owner of A. Murphy Contracting. A joint investigation with the Division of Criminal Justice-Office of Insurance Fraud Prosecutor determined that Murphy falsely advised Medicaid that his income level qualified him to enroll in the FamilyCare program sponsored by Medicaid. The investigation further determined that the income and profits Murphy received from that business far exceeded the $25,071 per year income limit necessary to qualify for FamilyCare.

- One hundred forty-seven (147) complaints alleging tax evasion were evaluated from July through September 2005 in the Office of Criminal Investigation.
- During the same period, one hundred thirteen (113) charges were filed in court and twenty-four (24) arrests were made in thirty-eight (38) cases involving violations of the Cigarette Tax Act. 1,223.6 cartons of untaxed cigarettes, having a total value of $76,132.39 and including 396.3 cartons bearing counterfeit New Jersey tax revenue stamps, were seized. □

Tax Briefs

Gross Income Tax

Proof of Payment of Estimated Tax Made by Nonresident Seller of New Jersey Real Estate — The question was raised as to what form of receipt, if any, is to be given to a nonresident seller of New Jersey real estate as proof of payment of estimated gross income tax for reference when filing a nonresident gross income tax return.

Estimated tax must be paid by the nonresident seller of a property before a deed can be recorded, but there is nothing in the law requiring that a receipt for the tax paid be provided to the seller. The seller can request that the settlement agent forward a copy of the recorded deed and completed GIT/REP form (GIT/REP-1, Nonresident Seller's Tax Declaration, or GIT/REP-2, Nonresident Seller's Tax Prepayment Receipt) which the seller gave to the buyer at closing. However, the agent is not required to comply with this request. The payment of estimated tax by the nonresident seller, which can be made in advance or at the time of closing, is documented as follows:

Prepayment made at a Division regional office. If a nonresident seller chooses to pay the estimated tax prior to closing, the seller goes to a Division of Taxation regional office, completes Forms GIT/REP-2 and NJ-1040-ES (New Jersey Gross Income Tax Declaration of Estimated Tax Voucher), and makes payment (by check or money order only). The original GIT/REP-2 with the Division's raised seal is given to the seller to provide to the buyer or settlement agent at closing. The GIT/REP-2 and the deed are then forwarded to the county clerk for recording.

If the seller paid by check, the cancelled check is proof of payment. The seller may also make a copy of the GIT/REP-2 form as proof of actual payment made in the Division's regional office.

Payment made at closing. Alternatively, the seller may complete Forms GIT/REP-1 and NJ-1040-ES and give them, along with the estimated tax payment, to the buyer or settlement agent at closing. The forms, payment, and deed are then forwarded to the county clerk for recording.

The county clerk may or may not issue a receipt to the settlement agent for the estimated tax payment. The seller may request a copy of the completed GIT/REP-1 form from the settlement agent; however, the copy does not prove actual payment. The seller may give the agent a check at closing in order to get back the cancelled check as proof of payment, but the check may not reflect the actual amount of the estimated payment. The settlement agent usually deducts closing costs, realty transfer fees, etc. from the gross amount due from the seller and then makes disbursements, including the estimated tax payment, out of the agent's trust account set up exclusively as the conduit for real estate disbursement payments.

Resolution Funding Corporation Bonds — The Resolution Funding Corporation is a government agency established by Congress in 1989 to issue bailout bonds and raise funds for the activities of the Resolution Trust Corporation, as well as to administer struggling institutions inherited from the disbanded Federal Savings and Loan Corporation. The Resolution Funding Corporation is established under the same Federal law (Title 12, Chapter 11) as the Federal Home Loan Banks in the United States Code.

New Jersey exempts the interest and gains received from obligations of the State of New Jersey and the Federal Government from gross income tax. N.J.S.A. 54A:6-14. Specifically, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(c) and N.J.S.A. 54A:6-14, gross income does not include gains and interest derived from: (1) obligations of New Jersey or any of its political subdivisions, agencies, authorities, commissions, instrumentalities and public corporations (including such corporations created or existing under an interstate agreement or compact); and (2) obligations free from State or local taxation under any Federal or New Jersey law.

As the Federal Home Loan Bank is treated as an agency of the United States whose obligations are exempt from New Jersey gross income tax, the Resolution Funding Corporation is treated in a similar manner, and its obligations are considered exempt from gross income tax under N.J.S.A. 54A:6-14 both as to the interest and gains to the same extent as any obligation issued by the Federal Home Loan Bank.

Medical Malpractice Fund Assessments

2005 Attorney Fee Mailing — The New Jersey Medical Care Access and Responsibility and Patients First Act (P.L. 2004, c.17) assesses an annual surcharge of $3 per employee for all employers who are subject to the New Jersey unemployment compensation law. In addition there is a $75 fee for all State licensed physicians, podiatrists, chiropractors, dentists, optometrists, and attorneys. The Division of Taxation is responsible for collection of the annual $75 fee from attorneys only. The fee expires in three years and will be collected for 2004, 2005, and 2006. The 2005 attorney fee assessment was mailed by the Division in December 2005.

The fee applies to all attorneys licensed to practice law in New Jersey except those attorneys: (1)

constitutionally or statutorily barred from the practice of law; (2) that can show that they do not maintain a bona fide office in New Jersey for the practice of law; (3) who have retired completely from the practice of law; (4) on full-time duty in the armed forces, VISTA, or the Peace Corps and not engaged in the practice of law; (5) ineligible to practice law because they have not made their New Jersey Lawyers' Fund for Client Protection payment; or (6) newly admitted to the bar that have not practiced law for at least one year.

All revenues from the surcharges and fees are deposited into the Medical Malpractice Liability Insurance Premium Assistance Fund. The fund is administered by the New Jersey Department of Banking and Insurance and is used for a variety of health care purposes, including providing relief towards the payment of medical malpractice liability insurance premiums to certain health care providers in this State and providing payments to hospitals as charity care subsidies.

Inquiries regarding payments made from the fund should be directed to the New Jersey Department of Banking and Insurance at 609-777-9470. Inquiries regarding the attorney fee should be directed to the Regulatory Services Branch, Division of Taxation, 609-292-5994.

Miscellaneous

Business Registration Requirement: Bid Threshold — The public contracting law, P.L. 2004, c.57, which went into effect September 1, 2004, requires business organizations that provide goods or services to public entities to obtain proof of business registration. Businesses located outside of New Jersey are not exempt from this requirement.

However, if the dollar amount of the cost of providing goods or services in the aggregate on an annual basis is below the 15% bid threshold level, then the governmental entity may waive the business registration certificate requirement by administrative procedures established by the Department of Community Affairs, Division of Local Government Services, along with the Divisions of Taxation and Revenue in the Department of Treasury.

Chemical and Catalyst Exemption

— The Division responded to an inquiry regarding whether the purchase of dry ice is exempt from tax under N.J.S.A. 54:32-8.20.

The taxpayer provided sterilization services for the producers of single-use medical devices. One of the items processed are single-use thermometers. Due to the heat that is generated during sterilization (which would activate the thermometers and render them useless), the thermometers must be packed in dry ice during the sterilization process.

Receipts from sales of materials, such as chemicals and catalysts, used to induce or cause a refining or chemical process, where such materials are an integral or essential part of the processing operation, but do not become a component part of the finished product, are exempt from the tax imposed under the Sales and Use Tax Act. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.20.

The term “finished product” used in the above exemption does not contemplate the furnishing of a service. Therefore, since sterilization is a service rather than the sale of tangible personal property and, as such, is not a “finished product” for purposes of the catalyst exemption, the dry ice used during the sterilization process is not exempt from sales and use tax pursuant to the above exemption.

Interior Decorators — The Division views separately stated interior design or decorator services as a professional service transaction which is exempt from sales tax under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(e)(4)(A). If the decorator also sells tangible property to the customer, such charges are subject to tax pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a). Interior decorators registered in New Jersey may use a New Jersey Resale Certificate (Form ST-3) to purchase tangible personal property intended for resale in its present form or which will be incorporated into other property intended for sale. Sales tax is collected from the decorator’s customer when these items are sold at retail.

Thus, when an interior decorator purchases property which will be resold to their customer, the interior decorator issues Form ST-3 to either the wholesaler or manufacturer. This exempts the interior decorator from the sales tax on the purchase.

The definition of “receipt” does not allow a deduction for expenses of the seller. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(d). Thus, expenses incurred in connection with the taxable sale of property (e.g., procurement fees) are also subject to tax. Expenses that directly relate to separately stated and non-taxable design/consulting services are not subject to tax.

Leases: No Further Use for ST-40 Under Streamlined Sales Tax Legislation

Under the amended sales and use tax provisions included in the Streamlined Sales and Use Tax Agreement legislation, the lessor must now collect sales tax from the lessee on both short-term (six months or less) and extended-term (more than six months) rentals and leases. Therefore, there is no further need for the ST-40 in leases beginning on or after October 1, 2005. Lessors should not use the ST-40 in any leases beginning on or after that date. □

In Our Courts

Administration

Res Judicata – Hamburg Music Corp. v. Robert Winter; Robert K. Thompson; David M. Gavin; Ronald Cavanaugh; Cheryl Fulmer; Harold Fox; Thomas McDonald; John Doe, decided September 8, 2005; United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit No. 04-2738.

This is an appeal from Hamburg's complaint in the United States District Court for the District of New Jersey claiming that its due process rights were violated because of the named defendants' seizure and sale of its liquor license at auction without advance notice.

Previously, the New Jersey State Tax Court dismissed Hamburg's complaint against the Division of Taxation because the complaint was untimely. On appeal to the Appellate Division of the Superior Court, the Appellate Division affirmed the Tax Court's dismissal noting that Hamburg presented no factual foundation that its procedural due process rights were violated by the Division of Taxation's actions. Hamburg then filed a complaint against the above named defendants with the District Court, which dismissed the complaint for failure to prosecute. On a motion to reinstate the complaint, the District Court opined that even if the complaint was reinstated that it would be dismissed on grounds of res judicata or qualified immunity.

The Third Circuit ruled that the District Court did not abuse its discretion by refusing to reinstate the complaint and that the complaint presumably would have been dismissed on res judicata grounds because the New Jersey courts dealt with the same factual and legal arguments raised in the Federal action. In concluding, the Court quoted language in a Seventh Circuit case that "[f]ederal litigation is not a replechage round for losers of earlier contests, or for those who overslept and missed the starters' gun."

Add-Back of PPGRT – Ross Fogg Fuel Oil Co. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided June 7, 2005; Tax Court No. 006544-2003.

The Division added back the petroleum products gross receipts tax (PPGRT) that plaintiff deducted in arriving at its reported taxable income for tax years 2000 and 2001.

In relevant part, N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4(k)(2)(C) states that New Jersey entire net income shall be determined without deducting taxes paid or accrued (1) to a state or a political subdivision thereof that are measured by profits or income, business presence, or business activity and (2) for the tax imposed by this act.

The Court inquired into whether the corporation business tax (CBT) required an add-back of New Jersey taxes other than the CBT itself and whether the term "a state" referred only to states other than New Jersey or included New Jersey. The legislative history indicated that N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4(k)(2)(C) was passed to equalize the tax burden on corporations doing business only in New Jersey. To effect that purpose, “a state” meant states other than New Jersey. Therefore, the Court determined that the add-back of taxes paid to “a state” did not include taxes paid to New Jersey, other than the CBT. The Court also reasoned that the PPGRT would not be “added-back” on the grounds it was similar to an excise or sales tax and was not a tax on “profits or income, or business presence or business activity” that was required by statute. Consequently, the Division’s assessment was dismissed.

Litter Control Tax

Paper Products – Random House, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided September 13, 2005; Tax Court No. 006262-2003.

The Division assessed litter control tax on plaintiff publisher’s sales of hardcover and softcover books to wholesalers, distributors, and retailers for tax years 1993–2000.

The dispositive issue was whether plaintiff’s books are “paper products” and thereby “litter-generating products” that are subject to tax. The Division argued that the term “paper products” included books as they are made wholly or primarily of paper.

The Court decided that the term “paper products” as defined in N.J.S.A. 13:1E-94(e)(12) was not to be read literally. Finding that the Division recognized that not all paper products were intended to be “litter-generating products” and even excluded newspapers and magazines from the definition of paper products, the Court compared books to newspapers, magazines, and other products on paper. The Court determined that the value of the paper was secondary to the value of the content that was on the paper and that the main function of the paper, binding, and book jacket was to contain the text or other information sought by the book purchaser. Therefore, the Court determined that the books are not paper products and not subject to the litter control tax.

The Division appealed this decision to the Appellate Division.

Realty Transfer Fee

Senior Citizen Exemption – Norman and Thalia B. Terrell v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided May 10, 2005; Tax Court No. 004258-2000.

Plaintiffs created and appointed themselves the trustees of the Terrell Family Trust. In January 1995 the plaintiffs transferred a property, known as 214 Windsor Avenue, Cape May, New Jersey, by deed to this trust. In May 2000 the trust as grantor sold this property to grantees Cynthia and George Yesgiosh, Jr. for $335,000. The affidavit of consideration attached to the deed requested a partial exemption from the realty transfer fee stating that the grantor is a senior citizen who owned and occupied the property at the time of sale. The Division denied the request.

N.J.S.A. 46:15-10.1(a)(1) grants a senior citizen, defined as age 62 or over who is a New Jersey resident, a partial exemption from the realty transfer fee on qualifying property.

The Court ruled that a trust cannot be a senior citizen as it is not a natural person. Furthermore, the Court found that the Legislature did not include senior citizens’ trusts on the exemption list. Consequently, the Court held that the senior citizen exemption did not apply to the sale of this property. □ period or taxable year for the employment of a handicapped person who qualifies as an "extended employee" pursuant to N.J.S.A. 34:16-40 and who has worked for the taxpayer in a "sheltered workshop" arrangement for at least the minimum amount of time set forth in the Act. The credit may not exceed 50% of the tax liability otherwise due.

Tax Credit for Film Production Expenses — P.L. 2005, c.345, enacted January 12, 2006, and effective immediately, applies to qualified film production expenses incurred on or after the date of enactment. The credit provisions apply to privilege periods and taxable years beginning on or after July 1, 2005, and will expire with privilege periods and taxable years beginning after July 1, 2015.

"Qualified film production expenses" are expenses incurred in New Jersey for the production of a feature film or a television series or show of at least 15 minutes and intended for a national audience, and also include post-production costs incurred in New Jersey. Such expenses include, for example, wages paid to individuals employed in production, costs of editing, photography, sound synchronization, lighting, wardrobe, and facilities rental. Qualified expenses do not include expenses incurred in marketing or advertising a film.

The Act allows a credit against corporation business tax in an amount equal to 20% of the qualified film production expenses paid by the taxpayer during the privilege period, provided that at least 60% of the total production expenses (other than post-production) will be for services performed or goods used in New Jersey, and provided that the principal photography begins within 150 days after the credit application is approved.

The Act allows a similar credit against the gross income tax. The credit is applied against the gross income tax otherwise due after other credits are applied. If the credit exceeds the amount of tax otherwise due, the excess credit will be treated as an overpayment.

Gross Income Tax

Treatment of Tax Payments Made By Pass-Through Entities on Behalf of the Owners — P.L. 2005, c.288, enacted January 9, 2006, and effective for privilege periods beginning on or after January 1, 2007, requires partners and other owners of pass-through entities (excluding qualified investment partnerships or investment clubs or entities listed on a United States stock exchange) to credit against their estimated gross income taxes certain payments that the entities have made on their behalf.

Director's Authority to Extend Gross Income Tax Deadlines — P.L. 2005, c.297, enacted January 9, 2006, and effective immediately, authorizes the Director of the Division of Taxation to extend the gross income tax filing or payment deadlines to coincide with similar extended dates established for Federal personal income tax returns.

Checkoff for New Jersey World Trade Center Scholarship Fund — P.L. 2005, c.298, enacted January 9, 2006, effective immediately, and applicable to tax years beginning on or after January 1, 2006, allows taxpayers to donate to the New Jersey World Trade Center Scholarship Fund by specifying that a certain amount of their income tax overpayments should go to that fund or by enclosing a contribution with their gross income tax returns.

The exemption is also extended to groups of two or more qualified UEZ businesses in a single “redevelopment area” (pursuant to N.J.S.A. 40A:12A-1 et seq.) when they collectively employ at least 250 people, at least 50% of them directly employed in a manufacturing process, and the energy and utility service is for the exclusive use of each of such qualified businesses.

The Act also extends the exemption to business facilities located within a county that qualifies for 50% sales tax exemption, under certain circumstances, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.45 (currently Salem County), provided that the business certifies that it employs at least 50 people at the facility, at least 50% of whom are directly employed in a manufacturing process, and provided that the energy and utility services are consumed exclusively at that facility. □

GROSS INCOME TAX Grantor Trusts

For tax year 2004, the Division of Taxation revised its position on the reporting of taxable income from a grantor trust, changing the reporting requirement to be the same as that of a beneficiary. The grantor was to net all income from the trust, regardless of its character, and report the result in the category "net income from estates and trusts" on the grantor's tax return.

The Division's prior position was that income from a grantor trust retained its character, as reflected on the trust's NJ-1041, and was reportable by the grantor in the appropriate categories on the grantor's tax return.

A grantor trust is different from other trusts and has unique income reporting requirements. Income and deductions of a grantor trust are taxable to or reportable by the grantor even though the grantor does not receive the trust income. A grantor trust is a legal entity created under State law that is not recognized as a separate tax entity for income tax purposes because the grantor or other substantial owners retain certain powers over or interests in the trust. A grantor is generally the person who sets up the trust.

Clearly, a grantor is not the same as a beneficiary and as such is treated differently for Federal income tax purposes and for the same reasons should be treated differently for New Jersey gross income tax purposes. Therefore, the Division is reinstating its previous position on the reporting of income from a grantor trust by a grantor.

For tax years 2005 and after, income from a grantor trust retains its character and is reportable on the grantor's tax return in the appropriate categories of income.

For tax year 2004 only (for taxpayer convenience and to avoid the filing of amended returns with no real tax impact), the Division will accept the reporting of income from a grantor trust by a grantor under either position.

GROSS INCOME TAX Post-Retirement Contributions to 403(b) Plan

Under provisions of the Federal Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act (EGTRRA), employers may make post-retirement contributions to a §403(b) plan up to five years following an employee's separation from service. For Federal tax purposes, these contributions are not taxable to the employee when made to the plan but are taxable upon withdrawal from the plan.

The New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act, unlike the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, does not have a provision deferring the tax on contributions made by an employer or employee to a §403(b) plan. As such, these contributions are taxable for New Jersey tax purposes in the year made and are subject to withholding like any other wage or remuneration paid to an employee.

Thus, employers making post-separation contributions to a former employee's §403(b) account must issue the employee a W-2 indicating the amount contributed in the State wages box and must withhold New Jersey gross income tax if the amounts contributed require withholdings.

When completing their gross income tax return(s), the employee must report these contributions reflected on the W-2 received as wages in the year(s) made, calculate their tax accordingly, and claim any withholdings listed on the W-2. Any distributions the employee receives from the §403(b) plan must be adjusted/reduced for the contributions already reported and taxed for gross income tax purposes. □

INHERITANCE/ESTATE TAX
Common Filing Errors

When filing a New Jersey Inheritance Tax Return (Form IT-R) or a New Jersey Estate Tax Return (Form IT-Estate), there are a number of common errors and omissions which may result in a delay in the processing of the return and the issuance of tax waivers or in an estate being selected for audit. The forms referred to below are available on the Division's Web site at:

www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/prntinh.shtml

Decedent's Social Security Number. The decedent's social security number must be entered in the space provided. Common errors include entering the social security number of the decedent's spouse or the executor, or entering the decedent's social security number incorrectly.

It is important to verify that the decedent's social security number is entered correctly on all submissions including estimated payments; applications for extensions of time to file; and Forms L-4, L-8, and L-9.

Other Social Security Numbers. The social security number of the executor or administrator and beneficiaries must be entered where indicated.

Missing or Incomplete Schedules. All schedules must be attached even though they may contain no information. All questions listed on Schedule C of Form IT-R must be answered and all beneficiaries must be listed on Schedule E of the form.

Missing Supporting Documents.

1. The decedent's last will and testament, along with any codicils, must be attached to the return even though they may not have been probated.
2. A copy of the decedent's last full-year Federal income tax return must be included or a statement attached to the return indicating that none was filed.
3. If real estate was held other than in the decedent's name alone (joint tenants with right of survivorship or tenants-in-common), a copy of the deed is required.
4. If an appraisal was made of real estate listed in the return filed, a copy should be submitted. It is generally not necessary to include the supporting documentation for the appraisal.
5. A supplemental affidavit should be submitted fully explaining:
 - a. The basis for a claim that the full value of any jointly held asset should not be subject to tax.

- b. Extraordinary expenses incurred by the estate which are claimed as deductions.
- c. Legal actions involving the decedent and/or the estate.

Missing or Invalid Signatures. The tax return must be signed and notarized by the legal representative of the estate.

Incorrect Distributions and/or Tax Calculations.

1. Inheritance tax
 - a. The amount distributed on Lines 10–14 of the first page of the inheritance tax return must equal the amount listed on Line 9.
 - b. Each Class C beneficiary is entitled to an exemption of up to $25,000. The lesser of $25,000 or the amount received by a Class C beneficiary is exempt from tax. Only the excess over $25,000 is subject to tax.

common filing errors - from pg. 3

- c. If a Class D beneficiary receives property valued at less than $500, the property received is exempt from tax. If a Class D beneficiary receives property valued at $500 or more, there is no exemption and the full value of the property received is subject to tax.
2. Estate tax
 - a. The simplified method (column A) cannot be used if a Federal estate tax return has been filed or is required to be filed.
 - b. The New Jersey estate tax is based upon the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code in effect on December 31, 2001, and the credit for State Death Taxes allowable thereunder. The New Jersey exclusion amount is $675,000.

Other Causes for Delay. The processing of an inheritance tax return or an estate tax return and the issuance of tax waivers may also be delayed by:

1. The filing of duplicate copies of returns.
2. The submission of copies of items previously filed such as estimated payment forms, applications for extensions of time to file, and Form L-4.
3. The submission of duplicate sets of supporting documentation when the inheritance tax return and the estate tax return are filed at the same time. Only one set of supporting documentation is required.
4. The use of binders or large staples.

5. Stapling items other than the check to the front of the return.

LOCAL PROPERTY TAX Two-Year PAMS Project Under Way

Efforts to replace the State's outdated MOD IV property assessment system with a new Property Assessment Management System (PAMS) are well under way since the announcement of the implementation assignment to Tyler Technologies' CLT Division in May. Tyler/CLT is working closely with Division of Taxation staff to examine how the company's integrated assessment and tax collection product will be modified to suit the needs of New Jersey jurisdictions.

Approximately 120 people on two dozen committees were involved in developing the requirements for the new system, and the Division is continuing to seek input from assessors, collectors, and county tax board representatives as the project team conducts a "gap/fit analysis." The analysis is conducted through a series of meetings that examine assessment and tax collection business processes in New Jersey. Throughout the meetings, participants discuss best practices and reach a consensus on how to incorporate a requirement within the framework of the new system.

Representatives from the assessment and tax community have been enlisted to provide feedback on a variety of topics such as: changes to the block/lot qualifier, revisions to the New Jersey manual and tables for residential properties, SR-1A processing, and a new farmland module. The Division appreciates the additional time and effort being volunteered by these assessment and tax collection professionals.

The Division has estimated that approximately 70% of Tyler/CLT's product, iasWorld, already fits the required functionality of PAMS and has been implemented in other jurisdictions across the United States. As a result, the State will see significant cost and time savings by modifying an existing product.

"We are putting our efforts into modifying the system for New Jersey," said Stephen Sylvester, Assistant Director of Property Administration. "This is an opportunity to take a fresh look at our assessment and tax business processes. We want to be sure the State's requirements make sense for today and the future, instead of being tied to 20-year-old paper-based procedures."

The gap/fit analysis is expected to be completed in October. Additional information about upcoming events and milestones for the project will be available on the PAMS Web site, through association meetings and publications, and from various communication pieces developed during the two-year project.

LOCAL PROPERTY TAX Realty Transfer Fee Collections

Realty transfer fees, which replaced the expiring Federal documentary tax in 1968, are collected when a deed is offered for recording.

A record amount of realty transfer fees was collected for fiscal year 2005. A total of $653.3 million in realty transfer fees was collected by the counties. $83.5 million was remitted to the county treasurers for the use of the counties, $37.1 million was collected by the counties for deposit into the Public Health Priority Fund, and $532.7 million was forwarded to the State for deposit into various State funds. This was a 64% increase over the amount collected for fiscal year 2004.

Much of the increase was due to the enactment of Chapter 66, P.L. 2004, effective August 1, 2004, which increased fees to their current level. The realty transfer fee totals were also increased by the imposition of a 1% fee on the buyers of certain residentially classed property for consideration in excess of $1 million and a general purpose fee paid by the seller in increments based on the entire consideration. □

- On April 15, 2005, Ramoni Mustapha, 50, of 221 Custer Avenue, Newark, Essex County, was arrested and charged via a criminal complaint with theft by deception and filing and/or preparing false or fraudulent tax returns. Mustapha, a self-employed tax preparer and the owner/operator of Ramsalam Business and Tax Consultancy located at 103-105 South Day Street, Orange, Essex County, was arrested at his Orange business location by State investigators from the Division of Criminal Justice – Financial Crimes Bureau and tax agents from the Division of Taxation’s Office of Criminal Investigation. A joint-agency tax fraud investigation targeting the theft of thousands of dollars from the State Treasury resulted in the arrest of Mr. Mustapha on charges of filing hundreds of false or fraudulent New Jersey State income tax returns which resulted in refunds being issued in the names of fictitious “tax-payers.” The ongoing investigation has uncovered the filing of nearly 300 fraudulent New Jersey tax returns seeking over $195,000 in illegal refunds. In conjunction with Mustapha’s arrest, the State law enforcement agents conducted a search of Mustapha’s office pursuant to a court-authorized search warrant. As a result of the search warrant, State investigators confiscated and seized tax returns, various tax documents and records, computer systems, false/fraudulent credit cards and identification documents, and related evidence. Mustapha has been released from the Mercer County Jail after posting $100,000 bail. The second-degree charge carries a maximum penalty of up to ten years in State prison and a fine of up to $150,000 upon conviction.

- On April 20, 2005, the Superior Court – Monmouth County confirmed that Asif Hafeez, 50, formerly of Millstone Township, New Jersey, pled guilty to charges of possession of counterfeit New Jersey cigarette tax stamps, possession of 2,000 or more cigarettes bearing counterfeit tax stamps, and conspiracy. Hafeez had been arrested by OCI in Matawan, New Jersey, in the act of selling 319 cartons of counterfeit-stamped cigarettes to a retailer on June 27, 2001. A subsequent search of Hafeez’s home in Millstone resulted in the seizure of 29,793 counterfeit New Jersey, New York, and Oregon cigarette tax stamps. Hafeez later jumped bail and fled to Canada. While in Canada he was convicted in Canadian court of illegally exporting pseudoephedrine (which can be used in the manufacture of methamphetamine) into the United States and sentenced to probation, but was held by Canadian immigration officials. He was subsequently extradited to New Jersey. Hafeez was scheduled to be sentenced on April 29, 2005, and also faces in Pennsylvania a charge of violation of probation which had been imposed for an earlier violation of Pennsylvania’s cigarette tax. This investigation was conducted by OCI with assistance from the Matawan Police Department and was prosecuted by the Monmouth County Prosecutor’s Office, whose efforts included pursuit of international extradition of the subject and his transportation back to New Jersey.

- On May 9, 2005, in Paterson, New Jersey, the Passaic County Grand Jury released an indictment of Francisco P. Delgado, 59, of Clifton, New Jersey. The indictment charges that Delgado, as the responsible person of Estrella Rental Car Incorporated, in Paterson, New Jersey, did, with the intent to evade tax, fail to file a 2003 corporation business tax return; fail to pay 2003 corporation business tax; fail to file sales and use tax returns for the second, third, and fourth quarters of 2003 and the first quarter of 2004; fail to pay over to the State the sales and use tax for the corresponding quarters; fail to file domestic security fee returns for the second, third, and fourth quarters of 2003 and the first quarter of 2004; and fail to pay over to the State the domestic security fee for the corresponding quarters. Delgado was also charged with making false statements in documents submitted to the Division of Motor Vehicles and with presenting false documents for filing with the Division of Motor Vehicles. This was a joint investigation by OCI and the Bergen County Sheriff’s Office which commenced after Delgado was arrested by the Sheriff’s Office for selling “international driver’s licenses” to illegal aliens. The “international driver’s license” is similar in appearance to a legitimate driver’s license, but is not issued by or honored by any government agency. This case marks the first indictment for criminal tax violations involving the domestic security fee, which was instituted after the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks to fund New Jersey counter-terrorism operations. The fee is collected by vehicle rental businesses at the rate of $2 per day per vehicle rented. This case was presented to the grand jury by the Bergen County Prosecutor's Office.

- On May 12, 2005, OCI began an analysis of the records of cigexpress.com in Richmond, Virginia, relating to Internet sales of cigarettes to New Jersey residents in 2001–2004. Preliminary analysis indicates that this vendor made approximately 315 separate sales to New Jersey residents during this period and failed to report these sales to the Division of Taxation, a violation of the Federal Jenkins Act. This information will be forwarded to Audit Activity for billing of consumers for the appropriate cigarette tax and sales and use tax.
- On May 12 and 13, 2005, as part of a program of enhanced cigarette tax enforcement, OCI conducted inspections of 20 cigarette retailers identified by the Field Audit Branch as candidates for comprehensive audits involving sales and use tax, cigarette tax, corporation business tax, and gross income tax. Three of the retailers were cited by OCI for cigarette tax and sales tax violations, 13.3 cartons of untaxed cigarettes were seized, and data regarding retailer identification, volume of cigarette sales, and retail price markup was forwarded to Field Audit.

- Between March 4 and May 20, 2005, at Secaucus, New Jersey, OCI seized 1,750 cartons of untaxed cigarettes which had been flown into Newark Airport from various European countries by Internet vendors for delivery to customers. This brings the total number of cartons of cigarettes seized in this ongoing investigation, which began on November 24, 2004, to approximately 45,582. The approximate values of these seizures are as follows:

Retail value	$2,836,112.04
Tax loss averted:
Cigarette	$1,093,968.00
Sales & Use	160,448.64
Total	$1,254,416.64

These seizures were accomplished with the cooperation of the U.S. Bureau of Customs and Border Protection, as a result of information developed by the U.S. Postal Inspection Service. Since the beginning of this operation, the number of cartons being shipped into New Jersey by air per month has declined from 16,297 in November 2004 to 351 in May 2005. In addition, as a result of our investigation U.S. Customs has instituted a policy of holding and turning over to the Division all untaxed cigarettes shipped into New Jersey. That agency previously had not interdicted cigarettes being shipped by air freight.

- On June 3, 2005, in Superior Court – Monmouth County, Freehold, New Jersey, Michael J. Buonopane, 44, of Rumson, New Jersey, pled guilty to charges of collecting and failing to remit $4.9 million of taxes including $2,014,386 in sales and use tax, $106,013.51 in State gross income tax withheld from employees' wages, $653,965.41 in State unemployment and disability contributions, and $2,074,362.16 in Federal taxes, and of failing to file corporation business tax returns in connection with the operation of Mr. Good Lube, Inc., and seven other corporations which provided retail automobile maintenance and car wash services at 17 locations in Monmouth, Ocean, Middlesex, Union, Essex, and Morris counties between 1999 and 2004. This case was a joint investigation by OCI, the New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice, and the New Jersey Department of Labor and Workforce Development, who initiated the inquiry, and was prosecuted by the New Jersey Office of the Attorney General.

- On June 10, 2005, in Superior Court – Monmouth County, Mitesh J. Shah, 34, of Middletown, New Jersey, was sentenced to three years’ probation and ordered to pay restitution in the amount of $25,000 to the Division of Taxation and a fine of $5,000. Shah had been arrested by OCI on June 27, 2001, after an investigation determined that he was engaged in the sale of untaxed cigarettes, bearing counterfeit New Jersey tax revenue stamps, at the Krauszer’s convenience store he operated in Matawan, New Jersey. This case was prosecuted by the Monmouth County Prosecutor’s Office.
- On June 13, 2005, in Dover Township, New Jersey, Brian C. Swedberg was arrested by investigators from the Ocean County Prosecutor’s Office based on an arrest warrant charging him with misapplication of entrusted funds (second degree). Mr. Swedberg operated The Christian Counseling Center and Guardian Elder-care Management, both located on Route 37 in Dover Township. In addition, auditors from the Office of Criminal Investigation assisted in the execution of a search warrant at the business locations which resulted in the seizure of computers, business records, and financial records. Mr. Swedberg is suspected of abusing his position as a court-appointed legal guardian of the elderly. This joint investigation with the Ocean County Prosecutor’s Office is continuing.

- On June 17, 2005, in Dover Township Municipal Court, Richard Carroll, 48, of Brick Township, New Jersey, was charged with sale of untaxed cigarettes and eight disorderly person offenses for violations of the Cigarette Tax Act and the Tobacco Products Wholesale Sales and Use Tax Act, as a result of a joint investigation at Towne Stationery, Toms River, by OCI and the Dover Township Police which resulted in the seizure of 8 cartons of untaxed cigarettes and 173 cigars for which there was no record of payment of tobacco products tax. The investigation was opened after Dover Township Police received numerous complaints that Carroll was selling cigarettes to students of nearby Toms River South High School. This case coincides with an initiative ordered by State Treasurer John E. McCormac. Taxation’s enforcement agents have begun inspections of retail establishments frequented by minors to ensure that no untaxed cigarette or cigar products are being sold and that no sales of single cigarettes, referred to as “loosies,” are being made. Any untaxed tobacco products or loose cigarettes will be seized and the appropriate charges filed.

- On June 20, 2005, in Freehold, New Jersey, a Monmouth County Grand Jury handed up a 27-count indictment charging Joseph W. Hughes, the former pastor of The Church of the Holy Cross in Rumson, New Jersey, with the theft of $2,032,422 from The Church of the Holy Cross. Hughes stands accused of eight second-degree counts and one third-degree count of theft by deception and 18 tax-related charges for filing false New Jersey State gross income tax returns and failure to pay New Jersey gross income tax in the amount of $120,229.50. Joseph W. Hughes wrote and endorsed checks to cash and wrote checks to cover personal expenses against church bank accounts between 1997 and 2004. He used these funds to support a lavish lifestyle; neither the church nor its parishioners received benefit from these expenditures. This case was a joint investigation by the Office of Criminal Investigation and the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office. The Diocese of Trenton referred this case to the Prosecutor's Office and fully cooperated in the investigation.

- On June 20, 2005, in Superior Court – Salem County, Jaswinder S. Dhillon, currently a resident of Henderson, Nevada, pled guilty to a charge of failing to file motor fuels tax returns. Singh had been indicted on February 2, 2005, by a Salem County Grand Jury on three criminal charges as a result of an investigation which established that Dhillon, the principal of MJS Truck Plaza Inc. in Carneys Point, New Jersey, failed to file tax returns and remit motor fuels tax and sales tax he collected from customers, as a trustee for the State, in an amount greater than $75,000, a second-degree offense. Dhillon closed his truck stop on July 31, 2000, and failed to turn over the entrusted tax dollars he had collected for June and July 2000, the last two months of business. The matter was investigated by OCI and prosecuted by the Salem County Prosecutor's Office.
- Two hundred eight (208) complaints alleging tax evasion were evaluated from April through June 2005 in the Office of Criminal Investigation.

- During the same period, one hundred forty-four (144) charges were filed in court and thirty-two (32) arrests were made in thirty-four (34) cases involving violations of the Cigarette Tax Act. 968.2 cartons of untaxed cigarettes, having a total value of $60,241.19 and including 351.2 cartons bearing counterfeit New Jersey tax revenue stamps, were seized. □

9-1-1 System and Emergency Response Fee

9-1-1 System and Emergency Response Assessment — Legislation enacted last year imposes a “9-1-1 System and Emergency Response Assessment” fee of $.90 to be charged on each mobile and land-line telephone number on and after July 1, 2004. If the customer is capable of accessing 9-1-1 through the public-switched network, the line or number will be subject to the fee. The fee is imposed on customers with a primary place of use in this State.

According to the legislation, revenue collected from the fee will serve to replace the current 9-1-1 infrastructure statewide with a state-of-the-art enhanced 9-1-1 system.

With regard to telecommunications services, the Division only administers sales tax and the 9-1-1 fee. If a customer has questions regarding any other tax or fee on a telecommunications bill, the customer should contact his or her carrier for more information. In addition, the FCC maintains an informative Web site at www.fcc.gov explaining various charges found on a telephone bill.

For more information on the 9-1-1 fee, please see “Notice to Telecommunications Providers” available on the Division's Web site at:

AMA Consent After December 31, 2006 — As indicated in N.J.S.A. 54:10A-5a.e., after December 31, 2006, a corporation whose net income is exempt from taxation pursuant to U.S.C. §381 et seq. (Pub. L. 86-272) will be relieved of Alternative Minimum Assessment (AMA) responsibilities if it consents to jurisdiction to pay corporation business tax (CBT).

Between June 30, 2006, and December 31, 2006, a corporation whose income is exempt from CBT based upon Pub. L. 86-272 must continue to calculate the AMA. Consent to jurisdiction is required after December 31, 2006.

Under N.J.A.C. 18:7-18.5(b), an AMA credit may be carried forward to subsequent privilege periods, including periods when the AMA is no longer applicable, during which the tax pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:10A-5 exceeds the AMA provided that:

1. The credit applied shall not reduce the amount of tax otherwise due to an amount less than the AMA for that period;
2. The credit applied shall not reduce the amount of tax otherwise due by more than 50%; and
3. The credit applied shall not reduce the amount of tax otherwise due below the statutory minimum set forth in N.J.S.A. 54:10A-5(e).

Specific procedures have not yet been implemented for filing the “consent” referenced above. As 2006 approaches, the Division will notify taxpayers of the proper procedure for filing consent with regard to the AMA calculation.

Converting an LLC to an S Corporation — Some states and statutes have particular legislative authority to convert a particular entity that has been formed pursuant to one title to another title. For example, conversion from a for-profit to a not-for-profit corporation may be made pursuant to N.J.S.A. 15A:1-4b. In New Jersey there is no analogous provision that authorizes “conversion” in the context of an LLC.

Thus, a business owner must choose whether its business is to be operated as an LLC under the terms of LLC law, N.J.S.A. 42:2B-1 et seq., or as a corporation operated under the terms of corporate law, N.J.S.A. 14A:1-1, et seq. In the case of corporations, the owners have transferable shares to signify ownership. In the case of LLCs, the owners are members governed by an operating agreement rather than a certificate of incorporation and bylaws.

For tax purposes, the Federal Form 8832 entity classification filing governs taxability but does not affect entity governance. If the business owners decide to be governed by corporate law and to be taxed as an S corporation, then they could terminate the LLC registration (Form L-109), incorporate as a C corporation by filing a certificate of incorporation, and then file the Federal Election by a Small Business Corporation (Form 2553) and a New Jersey S Corporation or New Jersey

QSSS Election (Form CBT-2553) to be taxed as an S corporation for New Jersey purposes. Under some circumstances there may be tax consequences to terminating and commencing a new entity.

Alternatively, the members of the LLC may file a Federal Form 8832 Entity Classification Election and a Federal Form 2553 so that the LLC is taxed as an S corporation Federally. For New Jersey tax purposes this change in classification would meet the definition of “corporation” under the corporation business tax pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4(c) which, for tax purposes, defines a corporation as an “entity classified as a corporation for federal income tax purposes.” Accordingly, the S corporation registration section for the New Jersey Division of Revenue will accept the filing of a Form CBT-2553 to allow an LLC to be taxed as a New Jersey S corporation (assuming that the Federal Forms 8832 and 2553 have been properly filed.) Under this scenario neither the Request for Change of Registration Information (Form REG-C-L) nor the Business Entity Amendment Filing (Form REG-C-EA) would be required by the S corporation registration staff.

Dissolution Without Assets — Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 14A:12-16, a Certification of Dissolution Without Assets (Form C-159C) may be used to dissolve a corporation only if the corporation meets the criteria as provided in N.J.S.A. 14A:12-4.1. If cash is still in the bank, then the corporation has assets which can be distributed to shareholders and the corporation is precluded from filing Form C-159C. However, if the cash has been distributed 24 months prior, the corporation may file Form C-159C.

N.J.S.A. 14A:12-16 also provides that distributions to shareholders may be made in cash and/or in kind.

Gross Income Tax

Taxation of Employee Stock Options Earned in New Jersey and Exercised by a Nonresident — For New Jersey income tax purposes, stock options are taxable as wages/compensation and are included in gross income under N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(a). Nonqualified stock options are taxable as compensation in the same manner as prescribed for Federal purposes. Taxpayers, however, will not realize a taxable gain until the options are exercised. The gain is then measured by the difference between the fair market value of the options at the time of exercise and the taxpayer’s exercise price.

Nonresidents are subject to tax on income earned from sources within New Jersey. Included in the definition of New Jersey source income is income earned in connection with a trade, profession, or occupation carried on in this State or for the rendition of personal services performed in this State. Regardless of the taxpayer’s current residence, the stock options the taxpayer received while working in New Jersey, or for a New Jersey company, will be taxable as New Jersey source income when exercised.

Nursing Home Assessment

Pass-Through to Residents — The Division of Taxation received an inquiry regarding the Nursing Home Assessment: specifically, whether the obligation is the nursing home’s alone or if it can be passed on to the nursing home residents.

The New Jersey “Nursing Home Quality of Care Improvement Fund Act” was signed into law on July 1, 2003, as P.L. 2003, c.105, and was subsequently amended on June 29, 2004, by P.L. 2004, c.41. The Act establishes a quarterly assessment on nursing homes in order to provide additional funds for improving the quality of care by increasing Medicaid reimbursement for services delivered to those senior citizens and other persons residing in New Jersey nursing homes. The law was made effective on July 1, 2004.

Although the assessment is on the nursing care provider, the provider may pass on the assessment to residents or third-party payers to the extent that the provider would recoup its net loss taking into account any Medicare reimbursement funds received. The Division of Taxation does not have the authority to regulate whether or not a facility chooses to pass on the assessment or in what manner the facility chooses to do so.

Direct Pay Permits — Under the New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act, the Director of the Division of Taxation may use his discretion to authorize a purchaser who acquires tangible personal property or services under circumstances which make it impossible at the time of acquisition to determine the manner in which the tangible personal property or services will be used, to pay the tax directly to the Director and waive the collection of the tax by the vendor. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-12(b). The holder of a valid Direct Payment Permit (Form ST-6) may issue a Direct Payment Certificate (Form ST-6A) at the time of purchase if the taxable status of the purchase is unknown at the time of purchase. To obtain a Direct Payment Permit Application contact Audit Services at 609-984-5775. The Division publishes a list of the current ST-6 holders, which is available at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/taxinfo.shtml

Under certain circumstances, taxpayers may be able to enter into Sales and Use Tax Compliance Agreements, also known as Effective Use Tax Rate Agreements (“EUTRA”), which allow the use of an “effective tax rate” to calculate sales and use taxes owed. A taxpayer must apply and meet certain qualifications in order to participate in the program. Specific information regarding the agreement program is available in the notice located on the Division’s Web site at:

www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/sucta.shtml

Virtual Tour Services — The Division responded to an inquiry about the application of the New Jersey

Sales and Use Tax Act to a photographer who sells brochures and also provides virtual tours of real estate online.

If a photograph is either scanned, taken with a digital camera, or computer-generated and then transmitted solely by e-mail or other form of electronic transmission, the transaction is treated as the sale of intangible property, which is not subject to tax. As such, photography services rendered in producing photographs used solely in virtual tours are not subject to tax as long as the photographs are only accessible electronically and the customer does not receive anything in tangible (hard-copy) form, such as prints, negatives, or discs.

Sales of portraits, photographs, motion pictures, slides, frames, photograph albums, picture post cards, and brochures are subject to sales tax as sales of tangible personal property. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a).

In Our Courts

Administration

Power of Attorney – Corallos, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided June 13, 2005; Tax Court Nos. 006766-2003 and 006985-2003.

Vincenzo Carollo was the sole shareholder and president of the plaintiff (Corallos). Mr. Carollo is a 56-year-old with a fifth-grade education who can speak and understand English; however, he can read and write only a little English. Mr. Carollo has run a business for ten years and has obtained bank loans for the business. With help, Mr. Carollo testified that he could understand the terms of the loan documents that he was required to sign.

In an initial contact letter, the Division notified Corallos that an audit was to be conducted. The letter also included the Division's standard power of attorney (POA) form advising that if Corallos desired to be represented by someone else, that it should complete and return the document. The POA testified that he filled in the blanks on the POA form except for Mr. Carollo's signature, his title, the date signed, and the years covered under the POA. The POA form contained language indicating that the POA had authority to "executive consents extending the statutory period for assessments." Mr. Carollo acknowledged that it was his signature on the POA form naming his accountant as the POA. The POA form was faxed to the Division by the POA who testified that he did not explain the legal effect of the POA form to Mr. Carollo.

After the audit commenced, the POA signed a form that consented and agreed to extend the statute of limitations (SOL) for assessment to a date certain in the future at which time certain periods under audit would have been beyond the SOL period for assessment. Later, Corallos's POA signed a similar form extending the SOL for assessment further into the future. The POA testified that he was certain that he did not explain the consent form to Mr. Carollo.

During the audit, the auditor went to the POA's office to examine Corallos's books and records and obtained information from the POA concerning the business. The auditor visited the business where the POA introduced the auditor to Mr. Carollo. At the site visit, the auditor questioned the POA regarding business activities while in the presence of Mr. Carollo, who gave the auditor no reason to doubt the POA's authority to act. At one point, the POA did not respond to several of the auditor's telephone inquiries and the POA's receptionist indicated that the POA may not be representing Corallos. Thereafter, the auditor phoned Mr. Carollo who confirmed to the auditor that the POA represented Corallos. The audit later concluded with the issuance of the Division's notice of assessment related to final audit determination from which Corallos appealed.

Corallos claims that the consent forms signed by its POA to waive or extend the SOL for assessment past the date that the statute would expire were invalid because Corallos did not delegate that authority to its POA and therefore any reliance the Division placed on the POA form was unreasonable. Corallos also contends that there are deficiencies in the POA document: plaintiff's name is misspelled; the dates for which the POA is appointed are not specified; there is no title or date in the blanks next to Mr. Carollo's name; and the POA form states that it authorizes the POA to "executive" rather than "execute" consents extending the SOL. Furthermore, Corallos relies on the auditor's unsuccessful attempts to contact the POA as evidence that the POA could not have been reasonably relied upon.

The Court concluded that the consent forms to extend the SOL executed by Corallos's POA were valid waivers of the SOL because Mr. Carollo signed the POA form that expressly authorized the POA to consent to any extension of time to make assessments. The Court also determined that the Division reasonably relied on the POA document despite the defects in the document claimed by Corallos. Furthermore, the Court concluded that even if the Division should have required that the POA document be dated and the dates of the years at audit filled in, that the POA had apparent authority to waive the SOL because Mr. Carollo's actions would make one believe that the POA had authority to act.

At issue is whether New Jersey may constitutionally subject a foreign corporation to the corporation business tax (CBT) where the foreign corporation, pursuant to a license agreement, derives royalty income from a corporation that operates a retail business in New Jersey and has no physical presence (real or personal property or personnel) in New Jersey.

The Tax Court previously held that subjecting plaintiff (Lanco) to the CBT would violate the Commerce Clause of the United States Constitution because Lanco did not have a physical presence in New Jersey. The Appellate Division disagreed and reversed the judgment of the Tax Court.¹

The Appellate Division opined that the physical presence requirement that was needed to satisfy the Commerce Clause in the context of the sales and use tax arena in the United States Supreme Court decision in *Quill*², as established by *National Bellas Hess*³, was not applicable to taxes other than sales and use taxes. The Appellate Division quoted from Quill where it stated that “[w]e have not, in our review of other types of taxes, articulated the same physical-presence requirement that Bellas Hess established for sales and use taxes.” Turning to the issue of taxability in the income tax area, the Appellate Division held that the CBT may be constitutionally applied to impose tax on Lanco’s income derived from licensing fees attributable to New Jersey. In reaching its decision, the Appellate Division found persuasive the reasoning in *Geoffrey*⁴, *A&F Trademark*⁵, and *The Gap*⁶, as well as *Roadway Express*⁷, which stated that “the CBT statute is clearly intended to reach foreign corporations engaged in business activities to the full extent that is constitutionally permissible.”

Lanco has filed a Notice of Petition for Certification and a Notice of Appeal with the New Jersey Supreme Court.

Garbage Removal – Blue Diamond Disposal, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided June 30, 2005; Tax Court No. 005008-2004.

Plaintiff Blue Diamond Disposal, Inc., (BDD) is a solid waste hauler. At issue is whether BDD’s One Shot Deal, as coined by BDD, is subject to tax under the Sales and Use Tax Act. A One Shot Deal is where BDD places an empty dumpster or similar container at a customer’s location for the customer to fill with unwanted personal property. When the customer is finished with the container, BDD returns and hauls it to a disposal site.

BDD claimed that the One Shot Deal is the transportation of property, which is exempt from taxation under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.11. On the other hand, the Division argued that the One Shot Deal is subject to taxation under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3 where sales tax is imposed upon maintaining and servicing real property excluding garbage removal performed on a regular contractual basis for a term not less than 30 days.

The Court found that transportation was only incidental to the primary service of garbage removal. The One Shot Deal was a trash removal service and the Court opined that it made no difference who owned the container or what container the garbage was in. The Court determined that BDD’s service was similar to an example of trash removal in N.J.A.C. 18:24-13.2 where a private company picks up garbage at a house. Therefore, the Court upheld the Division's assessment concluding that receipts from the One Shot Deal are subject to sales tax under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3.

Adequate Books and Records – Max Dufner, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided June 24, 2005; Tax Court No. 004367-2004.

Plaintiff Max Dufner, Inc., (MDI) sold sandwiches and other foods as well as beverages. An audit of MDI revealed that MDI did not maintain purchase journals, sales records, or exemption certificates to support its reported sales or nontaxable sales. Therefore, the Division estimated and assessed additional sales tax.

MDI claims that the majority of its sales were tax-exempt wholesale sales to lunch truck vendors and/or were exempt because the sales were food that was not ready to be eaten. The Court ruled that the burden is on MDI to prove that taxes were reported correctly noting that the mere appearance of qualification for exemption is not sufficient to even partially prevail. MDI did not retain cash register tapes and admitted that it did not keep books or journals indicating the amount of sales and which sales were exempt. MDI's method of determining sales was based upon the amount of bank deposits that were deposited into its bank account. The Court found that no records were kept showing which sales qualified for tax exemption and indicated that it had no way of knowing whether receipts from any day were entirely deposited.

Concluding that MDI presented no credible evidence to show that the audit was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, the Court determined that it was reasonable for the Division to estimate MDI's tax liability and upheld the Division's assessment. □

Streamlined Sales and Use Tax

I am pleased to report that New Jersey's Sales and Use Tax Act was recently amended (P.L. 2005, c.126, enacted July 2, 2005) to conform our law to the requirements of the Streamlined Sales and Use Tax Agreement (SSUTA). For over five years, New Jersey has participated in the Streamlined Sales and Use Tax Project, which is a multi-state effort to simplify and modernize the collection and administration of sales and use taxes, and which developed the SSUTA.

The adoption of the Streamlined Sales and Use Tax Agreement Legislation will mean significant changes in New Jersey's tax policy and administration. The uniform product definitions, which are a key feature of the SSUTA, will mean changes in the taxability of specific items in New Jersey. For example, while "candy" remains subject to sales tax, anything that doesn't meet the new, standard definition of "candy" will be exempt. In addition, the treatment of leasing, direct mail processing, and deductions for bad debts will be affected. However, I believe that in the long run, the simplifications and uniformity provided by the new "streamlined" system will lessen the burden of complying with New Jersey's sales tax laws for both sellers and purchasers.

The new streamlined sales tax provisions take effect October 1, 2005. Information about many of the coming changes has already been posted on our Web site at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/streamchanges.shtml. Please check this page frequently; we will be updating the information on an ongoing basis. A list of links to the materials that have already been published appears on page 6 of this issue.

Budget Funds 2004 FAIR Rebates

The State Budget for fiscal year 2006 provides continued funding for the FAIR Rebate Program. Rebate amounts for tax year 2004 remain unchanged for residents who are 65 or older, blind, or disabled; however, the budget limits rebate amounts for homeowners and tenants under age 65 who are not blind or disabled.

Unlike previous years, homeowners file the single FAIR rebate application that is sent to them in the mail instead of the two separate applications (NJ SAVER and homestead rebate). Tenants continue to use the rebate application that is part of the New Jersey income tax return.

Who is Eligible

Homeowners and tenants who occupied their principal residence in New Jersey on October 1, 2004, and who paid property taxes on that dwelling either directly or through rent, are eligible for a 2004 FAIR rebate, provided that their gross income for the entire year does not exceed the income limit. The income limit is $200,000 for homeowners and $100,000 for tenants.

How to Apply

The deadline for both homeowners and tenants to file their FAIR rebate applications has been extended to October 17, 2005.

Homeowners: FAIR homeowner rebate applications were mailed in April to those homeowners whom the Division of Taxation was able to identify as 65 years of age or older or disabled on the last day of the 2004 tax year. Application packets were mailed in early July to non-senior, non-disabled homeowners. Most homeowners can file their FAIR rebate applications by phone by calling 1-877-658-2972 or online at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/

Any eligible homeowner who has not received a 2004 FAIR homeowner rebate application can call the FAIR Rebate Hotline (1-888-238-1233) or e-mail the Division to have one mailed to them.

Tenants: Applicants who are required to file a 2004 New Jersey income tax return complete their FAIR tenant rebate application (Form TR-1040) and file it with their resident income tax return (Form NJ-1040, Form NJ-1040EZ, or return filed electronically using NJ WebFile, or approved vendor software).

Tenants who are eligible for a 2004 FAIR tenant rebate and who have already filed a 2004 New Jersey income tax return have until

Applicants who are not required to file a 2004 New Jersey income tax return because their income is below the minimum filing threshold file only Form TR-1040 to apply.

Rebate Amounts

Rebate amounts differ for homeowners and tenants, and are also determined by income, amount of property taxes (or rent) paid, filing status, and whether the applicant is 65 or older or eligible to claim an exemption as blind or disabled for the tax year.

Homeowners: For tax year 2004, rebates for eligible homeowners age 65 or older or disabled range from a minimum of $500 up to a maximum of $1,200. Homeowners under age 65 and not disabled are eligible for a minimum of $300 up to a maximum of $350. In no case will a homeowner receive a rebate greater than the amount of property taxes actually paid.

Tenants: For tax year 2004, tenants age 65 or older or disabled are eligible for a minimum rebate of $150 up to a maximum of $825. Tenants under age 65 and not disabled are eligible for a rebate of $75.

Funding for 2004 Rebates

P.L. 2005, c.121, signed into law on July 2, 2005, made a supplemental appropriation of $400 million to pay for the FAIR rebates. The revenue to support this appropriation was generated by an unanticipated increase in final New Jersey gross income tax payments received this spring. Revenues from payments made in April and May were up 98% over the same period last year.

Although the exact source of this “April surprise” may not be known for some time, a number of possibilities exist. One explanation is that the millionaires’ tax, an increase in the gross income tax rate for individuals with taxable income over $500,000 which was signed into law in June 2004, left many high-income taxpayers with larger balances due in April, accounting for an estimated $450 million. Other explanations for the additional income include gains in the stock market recognized in 2004 and a first-time dividend paid by Microsoft Corporation.

This unexpected growth is not unique to New Jersey. Other states’ revenues were also up 30–50% this year during the same period. Without taking the millionaires’ tax into consideration, New Jersey’s revenue increase was in line with these figures.

Paper ST-50/ST-51 Returns Eliminated

For more than 10 years New Jersey has been encouraging taxpayers to use “paperless” filing for both their State income tax and their New Jersey business tax returns. And, we have continued to expand our Internet-based and telephone filing systems to accommodate the increasing number of taxpayers who chose to file electronically.

Electronic filing has been required for some business taxes and fees since 2002, and in January 2004, the Division of Taxation began to phase out the use of paper sales and use tax returns (Form ST-50/ST-51). Over the past 18 months we have been notifying groups of taxpayers that they were required to file their sales and use tax returns electronically either online or by phone and to make their payments by electronic check (e-check), electronic funds transfer (Automated Clearing House debit or credit), or credit card.

The phase-out of paper returns is now complete and all ST-50/ST-51 sales tax filers must file and pay electronically. The Division no longer issues Form ST-50/ST-51 coupon booklets. Information about filing sales and use tax returns is available on our Web site at:

INHERITANCE/ESTATE TAX
Brokerage Account Waiver Requirements

The New Jersey inheritance tax and estate tax statutes provide that property which belongs to or stands in the name of a resident decedent may not be transferred without the written consent of the Director of the Division of Taxation. The taxes remain a lien until paid on all the property of a decedent.

The Division has received numerous inquiries regarding the tax waiver requirements for brokerage accounts.

Sally Hayban of Hamilton (second from left), a May 2005 accounting/finance graduate of Rider University, is congratulated by members of the New Jersey Department of the Treasury’s Division of Taxation and fellow Rider alumni on receiving the Harry Scheidell Memorial Scholarship. They are (from left to right) Samantha Scheidell, Taxpayer Accounting Branch staff member (2005 graduate) and daughter of the late Mr. Scheidell; Robert K. Thompson, Director, Division of Taxation (1970 graduate); Harold E. Fox, Deputy Director (1970 graduate); and Richard W. Schrader, Assistant Director, Audit Activity (1972 graduate). Friends and colleagues of Mr. Scheidell, also a Rider alumnus and member of the Division of Taxation for more than 30 years, established the one-time scholarship in his memory for a student pursuing an accounting degree.

An inheritance/estate tax waiver is required for all brokerage accounts belonging to or standing individually or jointly in the name of a resident decedent. A tax waiver is required if the brokerage firm had an office in New Jersey regardless of where the account was opened.

Assets held in a brokerage account which are registered in street name may be bought and sold without the necessity of first obtaining a tax waiver. The assets must, of course, remain in the account and nothing may be transferred or released to the estate or beneficiaries until a tax waiver is obtained.

In those situations where an account passes to a decedent’s surviving spouse, child, stepchild, legally adopted child, issue of any child or legally adopted child, parent, grandparent, or surviving domestic partner and the taxable estate plus adjusted taxable gifts as determined under the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code in effect on December 31, 2001, does not exceed $675,000, Form L-8 may generally be used. Form L-8 is an affidavit and self-executing tax waiver which is filed directly with the brokerage firm.

The blanket waiver provisions of N.J.A.C. 18:26-11.1(c) are applicable to brokerage accounts. Up to 50% of the account balance on a decedent's date of death may be released without a tax waiver.

Questions regarding tax waivers may be forwarded to the Inheritance and Estate Tax Section of the Individual Tax Audit Branch at PO Box 249, Trenton, New Jersey 08695-0249. The Inheritance and Estate Tax Section may be reached by phone at 609-292-5033. □

Criminal Enforcement over the past several months included:

- On December 23, 2004, the Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) received confirmation that in United States District Court, Richmond, Virginia, Adib Mograbi and Laurie Patterson, a husband and wife residing in Richmond, pled guilty to a charge of conspiracy to traffic in contraband cigarettes as a result of an investigation that established that between 1999 and 2004 the couple sold cigarettes both over the counter in Virginia, knowing that these cigarettes would be shipped to various other states, and over the Internet under the names Cigoutlet.com and Affordable-cigs.com directly to consumers in other states, including New Jersey. As part of the pleas, Mograbi and Patterson agreed that the amount of New Jersey cigarette tax evaded as a result of their operation is $441,857, and they supplied the Division with the customer names and addresses, purchase dates, and amount of cigarettes which they shipped to New Jersey. This information was forwarded to Audit Services for appropriate assessment and collection.

- On January 7, 2005, criminal complaints were filed in Superior Court in Somerville, charging Rafael Rosario, 43, of West Meadow Drive, Bound Brook, New Jersey, with eight crimes arising from his operation of Café Imperial Restaurant/Bar located in Bound Brook. The charges are second-degree failure to turn over taxes, in violation of N.J.S.A. 54:52-15; second-degree failure to make required disposition of property received, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-9; second-degree theft by deception, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4a; third-degree filing false tax reports, contrary to N.J.S.A. 54:52-10; third-degree misapplication of entrusted property, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:21-15; third-degree tampering with public records, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:28-7a(1); fourth-degree deceptive business practices, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:21-7h; and fourth-degree false swearing, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:28-2a. The charges allege that Rosario consistently under-reported the amount of sales tax collected by Café Imperial for the years 2001, 2002, and 2003. The charges further allege that Rosario illegally failed to turn over to the State more than $75,000 in sales tax collected from customers for those tax years. The New Jersey Division of Taxation's Office of Criminal Investigation, the New Jersey Division of Alcoholic Beverage Control, and the New Jersey Department of Labor and Workforce Development have all joined an ongoing investigation being conducted by the Somerset County Prosecutor's Office. Rosario and Kenneth Henderson, suspended Bound Brook Police Chief, were arrested on October 19, 2004, by the Somerset County Prosecutor's Office detectives and charged with second-degree official misconduct and conspiracy to commit official misconduct. Rosario was arraigned on the complaints by the Honorable Edward M. Coleman. Judge Coleman continued the defendant on bail, previously set at $100,000 cash, after having denied Rosario's motion to reduce the original bail amount.

- On January 20, 2005, in Superior Court – Hudson County, Jersey City, Manuel Mier, 50, of Irvington, New Jersey, entered guilty pleas to three counts: failure to file motor fuels tax returns; failure to pay $95,909 in motor fuels tax in connection with 76 Tonnelle Friendly Service LTD in North Bergen, New Jersey, from 1997 to 2000; and failure to pay $181,199.30 in motor fuels tax in connection with Leticia, Inc., in Hillside, New Jersey, from 1999 to 2002. The plea agreement calls for Mier to make restitution of the total tax, $277,108.30, prior to sentencing. This prosecution is being handled by the State Office of the Attorney General.

- On January 20, 2005, OCI assisted the Division of Criminal Justice – Alcoholic Beverage Control in the execution of a search warrant at JWTA, Inc., 1641 Route 70, Cherry Hill, a food and liquor wholesaler operating without an ABC license. The Division of Criminal Justice seized 107 cartons of untaxed cigarettes and several thousand bottles of beer and wine, which were seized because of the subject's unlicensed status. Alcoholic beverage tax will be assessed on the seized products, and previously filed alcoholic beverage tax returns will be compared with business records seized.
- On February 2, 2005, in Salem, New Jersey, Jaswinder S. Dhillon, whose last known address is in Virginia Beach, Virginia, was indicted by a Salem County Grand Jury on three criminal charges as a result of an investigation which established that Dhillon, the principal of MJS Truck Plaza Inc. in Carneys Point, New Jersey, failed to file tax returns and remit motor fuels tax and sales tax he collected from customers as a trustee for the State in an amount greater than $75,000, a second-degree offense. Dhillon closed his truck stop on July 31, 2000, and failed to turn over the entrusted tax dollars he had collected for June and July 2000, the last two months of business. If convicted, Dhillon faces up to 25 years in jail and fines of up to $315,000. The matter was presented to the grand jury by the Salem County Prosecutor's Office.

- On February 18, 2005, in Secaucus, New Jersey, OCI seized approximately 4,094 cartons of untaxed cigarettes which had been flown into Newark Airport from various European countries by unidentified Internet vendors for delivery to customers. This brings the total number of cartons of cigarettes seized in this ongoing investigation to approximately 43,823. The approximate retail value of the seized cigarettes is $2,726,667.06; the averted tax loss is $1,206,008.96. These seizures were accomplished with the cooperation of the U.S. Bureau of Customs and Border Protection as a result of information developed by the U.S. Postal Inspection Service.
- On March 14, 2005, Lamine Ouattara of East Orange pled guilty to charges of theft by deception and theft of identity in Essex County. Mr. Ouattara had been indicted on April 13, 2004, based on evidence that he had filed 13 false and fraudulent New Jersey gross income tax returns wherein he claimed and received earned income tax credit refunds totaling $9,311. In addition, evidence was presented that he committed theft of identity by using social security numbers and names other than his own. He was scheduled for sentencing on May 23, 2005, after which he faced a deportation hearing. This case was opened based on a referral from the East Orange Police Department and was prosecuted by the Essex County Prosecutor's Office.

- On March 16, 2005, in Freehold, a Monmouth County Grand Jury returned an indictment of Fred Harari, 42, of West Long Branch, New Jersey, Murad Kassin, 30, of Oakhurst, New Jersey, and Michael Adjmi, 45, of Eatontown, New Jersey, who are all officers of American Dream Home Furnishings, Inc., which operated retail furniture stores in Howell and Ocean Townships. The indictment charges that between August and December 2002 the three corporate officers defrauded Citifinancial Retail Services, which provided financing for purchases made by American Dream Home Furnishings' customers, of $900,000 by accepting payment for furniture which had not been delivered, and that between January and April 2003 the corporate officers failed to file sales and use tax returns, and collected and failed to turn over sales and use tax. This case was a joint investigation between OCI and the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office, which presented the matter to the grand jury.
- On March 18, 2005, Harvey Schneider, Jr., the responsible party for Shore Transmissions, LLC, was sentenced to a five-year term of probation, ordered to make restitution to the Division in the amount of $46,271.04, and signed a civil consent judgment in favor of the Division. The sentencing stemmed from the April 2, 2003, indictment of Harvey Schneider, Jr., and Shore Transmissions, LLC, by a State Grand Jury on various third-degree charges of theft by deception, theft by failure to make required disposition of property received, misapplication of entrusted property, failure to file New Jersey sales tax returns, and failure to pay or turn over New Jersey sales tax collected. The charges arose from the operation of a transmission repair business in Point Pleasant by the corporation and Mr. Schneider. In addition to the charges associated with the tax violations, there are also charges associated with consumer fraud wherein Mr. Schneider failed to make repairs, or misrepresented work performed, and fraudulently billed customers. Because Schneider engaged in consumer fraud, this case was investigated jointly by OCI and the New Jersey Division of Consumer Affairs' Office of Consumer Protection. Subsequent to the indictment, Mr. Schneider fled New Jersey but was arrested in New York and extradited here for trial. He pled guilty to all six counts of the indictment on January 11, 2005. The case was prosecuted by the Division of Criminal Justice.

- One hundred eighty-four (184) complaints alleging tax evasion were evaluated from January through March 2005 in the Office of Criminal Investigation.

- During the same period, one hundred fourteen (114) charges were filed in court and twenty-six (26) arrests were made in thirty-six (36) cases involving violations of the Cigarette Tax Act. A total of 16,040.1 cartons of untaxed cigarettes, having a total value of $998,016.15 and including 237.5 cartons bearing counterfeit New Jersey tax revenue stamps, were seized. □

Collection and Payment — All businesses required to collect the 9-1-1 system and emergency response fee must register to do so and must file quarterly returns (Form ERF-100) for each calendar quarter even if no fees were due for that particular quarter. Returns are due on or before the 20th day of the month following the close of the calendar quarter and must be filed by phone. The Division will not accept paper returns. There is no charge for filing 9-1-1 system and emergency response fee returns by phone.

In addition to filing Form ERF-100 electronically, quarterly payments must be made electronically either by electronic check (e-check), credit card, or electronic funds transfer. E-check payments can be made during the phone call when filing Form ERF-100 through the business paperless telefiling system. Credit card payments can be made by calling 1-800-2PAYTAX toll-free or online at www.officialpayments.com after completing the telephone filing and receiving a confirmation number. Corporation Business Tax
Net Operating Loss Deduction —

Legislation enacted on June 29, 2004, (P.L. 2004, c.47), allows for a limited net operating loss (NOL) deduction for privilege periods beginning during calendar years 2004 and 2005. The deduction permits a reduction of entire net income by up to 50%. To the extent that any NOL is disallowed by reason of this limiting provision, the date on which the disallowed deduction would otherwise expire is extended by a period equal to the period of disallowance.

An NOL originating in 2002 may be carried over for use beginning in 2004, subject to the limitations referenced above. The deduction for an NOL carryover is prohibited for periods beginning in calendar years 2002 and 2003.

NJ QSSS Filing — To maintain the separate entity principle, every New Jersey Qualified Subchapter S Subsidiary (QSSS) must file Form CBT-100S and pay the minimum tax of $500 as required under N.J.S.A. 54:10A-5(e). For a taxpayer that is a member of an affiliated or controlled group pursuant to sections 1504 or 1563 of the Federal Internal Revenue Code of 1986, and whose group has total payroll of $5,000,000 or more for the privilege period, the amount of minimum tax is $2,000.

Further, N.J.A.C. 18:7-3.4(i) provides: If a taxpayer is part of a group of taxpayers in which the tax liability of the group is reflected on a single return of a member of the group, the other members of the group are also required to file returns with New Jersey. Such returns shall reflect the minimum tax.

The parent corporation (a New Jersey S corporation) must consent to taxation by New Jersey by filing a Form CBT-100S which includes the assets, liabilities, income, and expenses of the QSSS. Failure of the parent to either consent or file Form CBT-100S for a period will result in the denial of the New Jersey QSSS status and the subsidiary will be subject to taxation in New Jersey as a C corporation.

S Corporations — When a corporation elects to register as a New Jersey S corporation, in order for the election to be valid, every shareholder of the corporation must consent to the election and the jurisdictional requirements as detailed in Part II of the New Jersey S corporation election form (CBT-2553). The corporation, in turn, consents to the election and the assumption of any tax liabilities of any nonconsenting shareholders who were not initial shareholders as indicated in Part III of Form CBT-2553.

When a nonresident shareholder of an S corporation that has become a New Jersey S corporation does not consent to the election, the S corporation is required to withhold gross income tax from that shareholder's pro rata share of S corporation income. Payments made by the S corporation on the shareholder's behalf will be reported on Line 4, Part II, of Schedule NJ-K-1 which is part of Form CBT-100S. These payments must be included as estimated payments on the nonresident shareholder's New Jersey income tax return (Form NJ-1040NR or Form NJ-1041).

S Corporation Dissolution — Once a corporation has elected to register as a New Jersey S corporation and the election has been accepted, the corporation remains a New Jersey S corporation as long as it is a Federal S corporation. The filing deadline for a letter of revocation is on or before the last day of the first tax year of the election. To terminate New Jersey S corporation status after the first year, a corporation must terminate its Federal S corporation status. Therefore, an S corporation

Exempt Organizations — The Division responded to a question regarding whether hospitals that are deemed to be “exempt organizations” within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 54:32B-9(b) are required to collect the cosmetic medical procedures gross receipts tax pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:32E-1(a). (Note that while the Act itself does not specify a short title, it is being commonly referred to as the “Cosmetic Medical Procedures Gross Receipts Tax Act.”) Despite similarities (including tax rate, time for quarterly filing, and the obligation of the seller of taxable items to collect the tax from the recipient of the taxable services, goods, and occupancies), the cosmetic medical procedures gross receipts tax is entirely separate from the sales tax, and the act that imposes it is separate and distinct from the Sales and Use Tax Act.

N.J.S.A. 54:32B-9(b), which is part of the Sales and Use Tax Act, provides an exemption for nonprofit organizations organized and operated exclusively for certain purposes. This provision applies only to sales and use tax, that is, the taxes imposed under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-1 et seq., known as the “Sales and Use Tax Act.” N.J.S.A. 54:32E-1 (Cosmetic Medical Procedures Gross Receipts Tax Act), on the other hand, does not include any provision exempting specific types of providers. It also does not contain any provision incorporating by reference the exempt organization provision or any of the other exemption provisions that are part of N.J.S.A. 54:32B-1 et seq.

Hospitals that are 501(c)(3) organizations for Federal income tax purposes and which have been granted exempt organization status for sales and use tax purposes under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-9(b) are not exempt from the tax collection requirements of the Cosmetic Medical Procedures Gross Receipts Tax Act. N.J.S.A. 54:32E-1. They must, therefore, collect tax from patients on cosmetic medical procedures and related goods and occupancies that are subject to the tax imposed under this new tax law.

Multiple Taxes

Partnership Withholding and Millionaire’s Tax — The withholding for out-of-State corporate and non-corporate partners is based on distributed and undistributed taxable income. The nonresident partner withholding rate is 9% for corporate partners and 6.37% for unincorporated partners subject to the gross income tax. Withholding is based on the partner’s share of “entire net income” multiplied by the partnership’s New Jersey allocation factor computed under the corporation business tax, rather than partnership rules. The corporate partner will still be subject to the partnership corporation business tax payment provisions even when the corporate partner has nexus with New Jersey, unless the partner has a bona fide office in New Jersey consistent with N.J.S.A. 54:10A-6.

The nonresident withholding tax is set forth at N.J.S.A. 54:10A-15.11(a) which states that: “A partnership that is not a qualified investment partnership or an investment club and that is not listed on a United States national stock exchange shall, on or before the 15th day of the fourth month succeeding the close of each privilege period, remit a payment of tax. The amount of tax shall be equal to the sum of: all of the share of the entire net income of the partnership for that privilege period of all nonresident noncorporate partners, multiplied by an allocation factor determined, pursuant to section 6 of P.L. 1945, c.162 (C.54:10A-6), based on the allocation fractions of the partnership for that privilege period, and multiplied by .0637 plus all of the share of the entire net income of the partnership for that privilege period of all nonresident corporate partners, multiplied by an allocation factor determined, pursuant to section 6 of P.L. 1945, c.162 (C.54:10A-6), based on the allocation fractions of the partnership for that privilege period, and multiplied by .09.”

Therefore, as stated in N.J.S.A. 54:10A-15.11(a), the highest partnership nonresident withholding rate for individuals is 6.37%. The partnership nonresident withholding rate will remain at 6.37% unless the statute is amended to provide for a higher withholding rate.

Sales and Use Tax

Contract Occupancies — The Sales and Use Tax Act defines “occupant” as a person who, for a consideration, uses, possesses, or has the right to use or possess, any room in a hotel under any lease, concession, permit, right of access, license to use, or other agreement. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(1). A “permanent resident” is any occupant of any room or rooms in a hotel for at least 90 consecutive days. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(m).

The Division is of the opinion that when a company, such as an airline, contracts up front for a room for at least 90 days, no sales tax should be charged regardless of the fact that different employees occupy the room(s) each night. A written contract with the airline is unnecessary; in order to receive the exemption they just have to meet the 90-day continuous stay requirement. If the length of occupancy is uncertain at the outset and the room is rented on a weekly or monthly basis, then sales tax should be charged. Once the continuous occupancy reaches 90 days, the occupant can file a Claim for Refund (Form A-3730) with the Division, which can be obtained by calling our Customer Service Center at 609-292-6400 or from the Division’s Web site at www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/pdf/other_forms/sales/a3730.pdf Please note that a sales tax exemption certificate from the company is unnecessary. □

Mark-On Analysis – Luigi II Pizza Restaurant and Luigi Corsaro, et al. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided March 31, 2005; Tax Court Nos. 004439-2000 and 004440-2000.

Mr. Luigi Corsaro owned and operated Luigi’s Pizza, a restaurant that sold pizzas, subs, pasta dishes, and other dinners. Pursuant to an audit, the Division increased the corporation’s gross sales and thereby assessed corporation business tax (CBT), sales and use tax (S&U), and litter control tax against the corporation as well as individual gross income tax against Mr. Corsaro and his spouse. The Division also issued a determination that Mr. Corsaro was a responsible person and therefore liable for the sales and use tax and gross income tax withholding liabilities of the corporation. Luigi’s Pizza, Mr. Corsaro, and his spouse appealed the Division’s assessments to the Tax Court directly from the audit determination.

In the process of auditing Luigi’s Pizza, the auditor requested Luigi’s Pizza’s books and records. Although purchase records were available, Luigi’s Pizza was unable to supply guest checks, log books, register receipts, etc. Consequently, the auditor determined that there was insufficient information available to conduct an audit and reconstructed Luigi’s Pizza’s gross receipts based upon a mark-on analysis of the food and drink purchases. The auditor used the reconstructed gross receipts to adjust Luigi’s Pizza’s reported gross receipts on their CBT, S&U, and litter control tax returns. In turn, Luigi’s Pizza’s CBT income was also increased. These adjustments also resulted in the imposition of an individual gross income tax assessment against Mr. and Mrs. Corsaro.

The Court found that Luigi’s Pizza did not maintain books, records, or any information useful to the Division that would confirm or deny their allegations and testimony. Although it retained bank deposit and purchase information, Luigi’s Pizza failed to supply guest checks, register receipts, etc. The Court ruled: “Without actual books and records to support their claims, the presumption of correctness that attaches to the Director’s assessment in this case is not overcome.” Consequently, the Court upheld the Division’s assessments as well as the determination that Luigi Corsaro was a responsible person of Luigi’s Pizza.

Markup Analysis – Yilmaz, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided April 1, 2005; Tax Court No. 000240-2003.

Plaintiff (Yilmaz) operated a restaurant and bar known as the Bridgewater Pub. Pursuant to an audit, the Division increased the corporation's gross sales utilizing a markup method and thereby issued corporation business tax (CBT) and sales and use tax (S&U) assessments against the corporation. The auditor also assessed gross income tax withholding (GIT-ER). Yilmaz protested the audit assessment to the Division's Conference and Appeals Branch (CAB) where several minor adjustments were made to the markup analysis that both increased and reduced the markup but reduced the S&U and CBT assessments overall; however, the conferee also denied Yilmaz's deduction for trucking expenses claimed on the CBT returns due to Yilmaz's failure to substantiate the deduction. Yilmaz then appealed CAB's final determination to the Tax Court contending that the Division utilized unreasonable and arbitrary assumptions in the markup analysis and failed to account for its inventories.

In Court it was determined that Yilmaz did not use guest checks and did not retain cash register tapes for any portion of the audit period. Allegedly, sales information from the cash register tapes was entered each night into a spreadsheet program after the cash registers were closed by Yilmaz. Plaintiff's accountant testified that the spreadsheet program became corrupted and consequently the information it contained was not reliable. Therefore, the accountant used the bank deposit method to determine CBT sales after making adjustments for loans, intercompany transfers, and cash payouts.

After testing Yilmaz's reported cost of goods sold for one tax year to determine if they were reported correctly, the auditor opined that Yilmaz had underreported CBT purchases by a ratio of 1.0516 of audited purchases to reported CBT purchases. The difference was entirely attributable to purchases of produce and cigarettes for which Yilmaz did not retain receipts. This ratio was applied to all other years under audit and increased Yilmaz's cost of goods sold (COGS) for each year. The auditor did not account for inventories in the computation of COGS because Yilmaz neither reported CBT inventories nor did he have any inventory records.

The auditor opined that Yilmaz's books and records were insufficient to verify reported gross sales and therefore resorted to a markup method to verify reported sales. Essentially, the auditor marked up the cost of food and beverages obtained from purchase invoices based upon their selling prices to determine a markup by category. Then the auditor multiplied the category markup by the amount of category purchases to determine the total gross sales for that year and an overall markup. Using the overall markup, the auditor recomputed the S&U and CBT gross sales for each year of the four-year audit period.

While comparing payroll to sales, the auditor concluded that payroll was insufficient to support the audited sales. Therefore, the auditor applied the ratio of reported wages and salaries to reported sales to determine audit wages and salaries based upon audited sales for each year of the audit period.

At trial, Yilmaz contested the amount of the Division's allowances for happy hour sales, specials, coupons, discounts, etc.; however, Yilmaz offered no books, records, or other documentation as to the correctness of its own claimed amounts. Yilmaz also contested the Division's denial of the trucking expense on the CBT return based upon Yilmaz's accountant's testimony that he calculated the expense based upon verbal information provided by Mr. Yilmaz. Apart from testimony, Yilmaz could not produce any evidence as to the salaries and wages paid to its employees.

The Court referenced case law ruling that the burden of establishing that the Division's assessment is incorrect is on the taxpayer and that a taxpayer's naked assertions are insufficient to overcome the Division's presumption of correctness. Moreover, the Court stated that cumulative naked assertions are also insufficient to overcome the presumption even as here where the accountant's testimony corroborated Yilmaz's testimony. The Court ruled that statutes and regulations require that the taxpayers must retain records for the statute of limitations period and referred to Alpha I where the Tax Court ruled that a taxpayer who destroys records before the statute of limitations expires places itself in jeopardy for additional tax assessments.

The Court concluded that the Division is not required to establish that it used the most reasonable means to independently verify tax liabilities. The Division is permitted wide

latitude to determine the tax due from such information as may be available, including external indices. Addressing Yilmaz’s contention that the assessment’s reasonableness was not supported by Yilmaz’s lifestyle, the Court responded that it is within the Division’s discretion to determine whether it is cost-effective to perform a lifestyle investigation into the owners of every bar and restaurant that appear to have under-reported its sales and income. Furthermore, the Court ruled that the Division was not required to guess the amount of plaintiff’s inventory.

The Court affirmed the Division’s final determination holding that Yilmaz failed to overcome the Division’s presumption of correctness. In a case involving only factual issues and the Division’s methodology, such as the audit of a cash business, the presumption of correctness can only be overcome by cogent evidence that is “definite, positive, and certain in quality and quantity to overcome the presumption” focusing on the reasonableness of the underlying data and the methodology used. The Court ruled that although proof of an aberrant methodology will overcome the presumption of correctness, proof of an imperfect methodology will not overcome it.

Alternative Legal Theory –
Chemical New Jersey Holdings, Inc.
v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided December 17, 2004; Appellate Division No. A-5175-02T2.

In 1992 and 1993, plaintiff (Chemical) filed corporation business tax returns as an “investment company” on September 23, 1993, and October 13, 1994. In 1999, the Division assessed additional corporation business tax based on Chemical’s filing as a common corporation after it determined that Chemical failed to qualify as an investment company. Chemical appealed timely to the Tax Court in February 2001 on the basis that it was denied its status as an “investment company.” Approximately one year later, Chemical filed an amended complaint retracting its initial claim and alleged that its filing status should be as a “financial business corporation.” Chemical never filed returns as a “financial business corporation” for either year at issue. The Tax Court held that Chemical was not entitled to change its filing status from an “investment company” to a “financial business corporation” more than seven years after it filed its original returns because the statute of limitations had run on amending the original returns and because the business decision rule bound it to its initial filing status.

The Appellate Division found that the Tax Court properly concluded that Chemical’s choice to file as an “investment company” rather than a “financial business corporation” was a business decision; however, the Appellate Division opined that the business decision rule does not bar challenges to the assessed tax based upon these circumstances. Furthermore, the Appellate Division opined that the issue is the propriety of the Division’s assessment, not whether plaintiff may re-file or seek a refund. The Appellate Division reasoned that the Division’s denial of Chemical’s filing status as an “investment company” was the basis of the Division’s assessment and to resolve this issue Chemical’s actual corporate status needed to be established. Noting that alternative legal theories may be presented at Tax Court because it is a trial de novo, the Appellate Division reversed and remanded the case to the Tax Court.

Gain on Sale of Rental Real Estate Not Held By a Business Entity – Moroney v. Director, Division of Taxation; Denitzio v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided March 14, 2005; Appellate Division, Nos. A-3424-03T1 and A3423-03T1.

Both taxpayers sold property that was rental real estate not owned by a business entity. (See New Jersey State Tax News, Summer 2004.) In determining gain or loss in this situation, the Division assessed tax based upon its announcement in the State Tax News that depreciation would reduce the adjusted basis of the property only to the extent that annual depreciation offset annual gross income before considering any other expenses or deductions. This calculation resulted in limiting basis reductions to depreciation that resulted in tax benefits to the taxpayer. The Division's announcement was in response to the New Jersey Supreme Court's decision in Koch v. Director, Division of Taxation, 17 N.J. Tax 321 (A.D. 1997), certification granted 152 N.J. 12, 702 A.2d 351, reversed 157 N.J. 1, 722 A.2d 918, that tax could not be imposed unless there is recovery of a past tax benefit or an accession to wealth and therefore that a partner's basis in his partnership interest could not be reduced by nondeductible partnership losses.

In calculating gain (loss) from the disposition of property in the instant cases, the Tax Court ruled that basis could only be reduced by depreciation to the extent that depreciation could offset income remaining after first deducting operating expenses (actual out-of-pocket expenses as opposed to accounting expenses such as depreciation) against gross income. The Tax Court determined that although N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(c) authorized the Division to assign priority and assignment to deductions for S corporations, that otherwise there was no statutory language applicable to the sale of other types of property, such as rental property. Also, the Court found that the Division's assignment of a first priority deduction to depreciation produced a result that was both contrary to Koch and inconsistent with the Internal Revenue Code.

The Appellate Division affirmed the Tax Court's decision stating that it was satisfied that the Koch imposition of a tax on economic gain, rather than fictitious income, provided sufficient support to calculate the amount of unused depreciation by first applying actual out-of-pocket expenses to income before considering an accounting deduction such as depreciation.

Plaintiffs (Smiths) filed their 1994 joint New Jersey gross income tax return on April 15, 1995, and therein reported income from the gain on the husband's disposition of his interest in a limited partnership. On January 27, 1998, the Division issued a notice of deficiency that assessed tax on unreported 1994 partnership income from the cancellation of a mortgage on property in which the partnership held an interest. Although the Smiths challenged this issue, the Division's January 10, 2000, final determination upheld the assessment.

The Smiths filed a complaint in Tax Court on April 10, 2000, contesting the Division's final determination and, as a separate count, claimed for the first time that they were entitled to a refund on the reported income from the husband's disposition of his partnership interest due to the New Jersey Supreme Court's January 14, 1999, decision in Koch v. Director, Division of Taxation, 17 N.J. Tax 321 (A.D. 1997), certification granted 152 N.J. 12, 702 A.2d 351, reversed 157 N.J. 1, 722 A.2d 918. The Division moved to dismiss the refund claim on the grounds that the claim was untimely.

As a general rule, under N.J.S.A. 54A:9-8(a), refund claims must be filed within three years from when the return was filed or two years from when the tax was paid, whichever date is later. However, where a taxpayer is issued a notice of deficiency, N.J.S.A. 54A:9-8(e) and 9-9(b) permit a taxpayer's assertion of a claim of overpayment or refund that might otherwise be time-barred under the general statute of limitations provision of N.J.S.A. 54A:9-8(a). Specifically, 9-8(e) provides:

(e) Effect of petition to director. If a notice of deficiency for a taxable year has been mailed to the taxpayer under section 54A:9-2 and if the taxpayer files a timely petition with the director under section 54A:9-9, he may determine that the taxpayer has made an overpayment for such year (whether or not he also determines a deficiency for such year). No separate claim for credit or refund for such year shall be filed, and no credit or refund shall be allowed or made, except —

(1) As to overpayments determined by a decision of the director which has become final; and

(2) As to any amount collected in excess of an amount computed in accordance with the decision of the director which has become final; and

(3) As to any amount claimed as a result of a change or correction described in subsection (c).

The Division contends that the statute's extension of the statute of limitations concludes with the final administrative decision. The Smiths claim that the statute read in conjunction with N.J.S.A. 54:9-10(e) suspends the running of the period for filing a refund claim until the Director's decision becomes final, which is not until completion of the judicial proceedings where a complaint is filed.

Upon analyzing the statutes, the Court found the Division's position to be persuasive. The Court opined that the statutes are reasonably understood to provide an administrative review process for a deficiency assessment concerning all questions regarding the gross income tax liability for a given period, which is then subject to judicial review. Consequently, the Court determined that the plaintiffs' refund claim was untimely under the statute as the claim was not presented before the final administrative determination. The Court reasoned that the taxpayers' interpretation would create an anomaly. If the statute suspended the running of the period to file a refund claim until after judicial review proceedings concluded, then the statute of limitations would begin to run again and presumably be subject to a separate administrative determination and judicial review.

The Court noted that even under a claim of equitable recoupment or alternative legal theory that the claim for refund would have to be dismissed because both equitable recoupment and alternative legal theory require that the refund claim must arise out of the same transaction as the assessment. Here, the refund claim on Koch grounds related to the disposition of the partnership interest, which is distinct and independent from the tax assessment on unreported income from mortgage cancellation.

Therefore, the Court dismissed the count of the complaint relating to the refund claim because it was not presented to the Division before the Division's final administrative determination.

Verification of Eligibility for the Homestead Rebate – Susan Clayton v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided December 22, 2004; Tax Court No. 000914-2004.

Plaintiff (Clayton) filed a timely application for a 2002 homestead rebate as a tenant. The Division requested written verification of Clayton's status as a tenant. Clayton provided the Division with a letter, purporting to be signed by her landlord, stating that Clayton resided at the claimed residence from December 1, 2001, till July 18, 2003. The Division compared the landlord's signature on this document with the landlord's signature on the landlord's gross income tax return and determined that the signatures did not match. Therefore, the Division requested additional documentation including the rental agreement covering the 2002 calendar year. Clayton forwarded a rental agreement for the period of April 2000 to March 31, 2001, a letter from the landlord with the landlord's name handprinted, and copies of preprinted money receipts with the words indicating the landlord's name and Clayton's name.

N.J.S.A. 54:4-8.62 provides that the Division may require verification of eligibility for the rebate. The Court opined that the Division had ample reason to question the authenticity of the documents, as the landlord's signature on the rental agreement did not match the signature on the letters and the handwriting on the receipts was different than the handwriting on the documents signed by the landlord. Therefore, the Court upheld the Division's denial of

Clayton's 2002 homestead rebate, finding that the Division reasonably concluded that Clayton did not establish her entitlement to the rebate.

Food For Consumption On The Premises Where Sold – Campo Jersey, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided May 10, 2005; Tax Court No. 005483-2002.

Plaintiff (Campo), a franchisee of Mrs. Fields Cookies, sold cookies and brownies at Giants Stadium and the Brendan T. Byrne Arena pursuant to a license agreement with Harry M. Stevens Inc. of New Jersey, who held the sole concession rights to sell food and beverages at the Meadowlands Sports Complex from the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority (Authority). The subcontract between Campo and Stevens provided that Campo was a licensee, and not a lessee, and that no real or personal property was leased to Campo. Campo sold the brownies and cookies at all events, concerts, and games where admission fees were charged, unless otherwise provided by the subcontract, but otherwise did not have regular hours for conducting business.

During the years at issue and pursuant to the terms of the contract, Stevens trained, provided, and compensated the employees used in Campo's operations. Campo had a baking facility in one area containing equipment that was not permanently installed, but did not sell any products from that area. Mrs. Fields products were shipped to the Meadowlands Complex where they were stored in a freezer that is not owned by Campo. Stevens' employees removed the products from the freezer, baked the cookies and brownies, washed the baking sheets and utensils, cleaned the baking area, and transported the cookies and brownies to approximately 30 free-standing mobile carts owned by Campo. These carts were plugged into electrical outlets in order to maintain the cookies and brownies at the ambient temperature and illuminate the Mrs. Fields logo. The carts were not assigned to permanent locations and Campo was not permitted to maintain or repair the carts at the Meadowlands Complex.

Stevens' employees sold the cookies and brownies from the carts in unsealed wax bags. Customers purchased either two cookies or one brownie per bag with each bag selling for $3.50. Sales tax was not charged on these sales. At the end of the event, a Campo employee collected the receipts from Stevens' employees.

The Division assessed sales tax on the sales of cookies and brownies pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(c)(1), which imposes sales tax on receipts of all food sales for consumption on the premises where sold. Campo claimed that all food was sold for consumption off the premises because Campo had no premises according to the license agreement. Furthermore, Campo claimed that its customers did not eat the food on the carts or even next to the carts but rather ate them at other areas.

In this case of first impression, the Court determined that the issue was whether the word "premises" should be defined broadly as the total space and facilities in or on which the vendor conducts his business

(See N.J.A.C. 18:24-12.2) or whether it should be construed narrowly to require the vendor control the premises where the vendor is located, as Campo contended it does not as a licensee. The Court commenced its analysis with the query of whether the food would be taxable if the Authority, as owner or operator, sold food to patrons at the Meadowlands Sports Complex. The Court found that the Authority would be obligated to collect sales tax because the food would be sold on the Authority's premises and no exemption applies to this transaction. The Court reasoned that if control of the premises was required for taxability that vendors could decide per agreement whether a sales transaction would be taxable and that subjectivity to taxability cannot be contracted away.

After determining that the plain meaning of the word "premises" is the total space in or on which a vendor conducts his business, the Court then undertook to determine whether the plain meaning of the word comported with the legislative intent. The Court noted that N.J.S.A. 54:32B-12(b) states that there is a presumption that all receipts for property or services of any type mentioned in N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(c) are taxable. Therefore, the Court found that a reasonable interpretation of N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(c) is that it was intended to subject to tax a sale of food enhanced with a service performed for the customer. This service may be the preparation of food or making the food available at a site where the customer wishes to consume it, or both. Consequently, the Court upheld the Division's assessment. □

More Taxpayers Choosing Paperless Filing

Electronic filing — either online or by phone — is replacing the traditional paper return for many New Jersey business taxpayers as well as for individuals filing New Jersey income tax returns.

Electronic filing is faster, easier, and more secure than paper. Taxpayers have fewer chances to make mistakes, and they receive immediate confirmation that their return and payment have been submitted. The State benefits from electronic filing in reduced processing and mailing costs.

Individual Income Tax

The number of individual taxpayers choosing to file paperless income tax returns has grown exponentially since the option was first offered for tax year 1995. The number of returns filed electronically for 2004 had reached 1.7 million by the April 15 filing deadline. This represents a 48% increase over 2003, when the number of paperless returns filed first topped 1 million.

New Jersey's three user-friendly "FastFile" systems include NJ TeleFile, NJ WebFile, and NJ ELF, which enable taxpayers to submit paperless returns by phone, via the Internet, or through use of a computer software package. Filers who use NJ FastFile receive their refunds more quickly and can choose to have their refunds directly deposited into a bank account, an option which is not available when filing a paper return. For more information, visit www.njfastfile.com

Business Taxes

Paperless filing for business taxes has shown strong growth over the past year as well, in part because electronic returns and payments are now mandatory in certain cases. hotel/motel occupancy fee and municipal occupancy tax, motor vehicle tire fee, cosmetic medical procedures gross receipts tax, and 9-1-1 system and emergency response fee are required to file and pay electronically. The Division encourages all business taxpayers to file and pay electronically whenever possible, even if they are not yet required to do so.

Online filing for sales and use tax returns was introduced in 1997 for a limited number of filers. The system was gradually expanded so that now anyone filing either a monthly (Form ST-51) or quarterly (Form ST-50) sales and use tax return can file and pay online.

In December 2003 the Division began to phase out paper sales and use tax returns and notified certain taxpayers that they were required to file and pay electronically. At the same time, the Division added sales and use tax returns to the Business Paperless Telefiling System so that taxpayers would be able to file by phone as well as online. The phase-out of paper sales and use tax returns is continuing, and beginning with monthly returns for August 2005 (due September 20, 2005), all taxpayers will be required to file their ST-50/51 returns and make the related payments electronically.

In January 2004 some 20,000 businesses filed their 4th quarter sales and use tax returns either online or by phone. By April 2005 that number had increased fivefold to over 107,000.

Employers and others who withhold New Jersey gross income tax are also filing electronically with increasing frequency. The number of Form NJ-927/NJ-927-W withholding returns filed online more than doubled between January 2004 when almost 10,000 returns were filed online and April 2005 when over 27,000 online returns were filed. Plans are being made to implement mandatory paperless filing and payment for employer withholding returns, and telefiling (by phone) will also be introduced.

An overview of the paperless filing and payment methods available to business taxpayers can be found in the Division of Revenue's Guide to Electronic Filing and Payment Services.

electronically. The return is due on or before the 15th day of the fourth month following the close of each taxable year.

Additionally, partnerships that are not classified as a qualified investment partnership, an investment club, or listed on a United States national stock exchange are required to remit tax pursuant to N.J.S.A. 10A-15.11, which is based upon the nonresident partners' share of New Jersey entire net income. The nonresident partners are then credited with their proportional amount of the tax paid by the partnership. The tax is due on or before the 15th day of the fourth month succeeding the close of each privilege period.

Entities classified as partnerships for Federal income tax purposes, other than investment clubs, that have income or loss derived from New Jersey sources and that have more than two owners are subject to a filing fee. The entity shall make a payment of $150 for each owner up to a maximum of $250,000. The filing fee is due on or before the 15th day of the fourth month succeeding the close of each privilege period. An installment payment for the next year equal to 50% of the filing fee is also required at the same time. No installment payment is due in a partnership's final year.

The filing fee, installment payment, and tax are reported on the Partnership Return Voucher, Form PART-100. If you file Form PART-200-T, Partnership Tentative Return and Application for Extension of Time to File, you must still file Form PART-100 when you file Form NJ-1065.

For tax years beginning on or after January 1, 2004, if assets were placed in service on or after January 1, 2004, and the Federal 50% Special Depreciation Allowance or Section 179 expense was deducted, a New Jersey depreciation adjustment is required. The adjustment is calculated on Worksheet GIT-DEP. Worksheet GIT-DEP must be submitted with the partnership return, Form NJ-1065.

The partnership is to furnish all partners with a copy of their New Jersey Schedule NJK-1 on or before the due date of the partnership return (Form NJ-1065). Schedule NJK-1 provides each partner with information regarding that partner's share of partnership income or loss and for nonresidents, the amount of tax paid on their behalf. □

Inheritance and Estate Tax Refunds

R.S. 54:35-10 and N.J.A.C. 18:26-10.12(a) provide that all applications for a refund of inheritance taxes paid are to be made within three years from the date of payment or from the date of any final determination of a court of competent jurisdiction which establishes the fact that the decedent had no legal or equitable interest in the property on which the tax was assessed, whichever is later, but in no event shall a refund be made where such final determination occurs more than 20 years after the date of the decedent's death.

R.S. 54:38-3, N.J.A.C. 18:26-3.9(a), and N.J.A.C. 18:26-3A.12(a) provide that all applications for the refund of estate taxes claimed to have been excessively or erroneously paid must be filed with the Director within three years from the date of payment.

The inheritance and estate tax statutes and regulations provide that the date of payment or a court determination (inheritance tax) is the date that must be used in determining whether an inheritance or estate tax refund request is made in a timely manner.

Out-of-State Auto Dealers

The new motor vehicle tire fee is imposed at $1.50 per tire on sales of new tires, including those that are a component part of a vehicle sold or leased, if the transaction is subject to New Jersey sales tax. The Division's position is that an out-of-State auto dealer or leasing company registered to collect and remit the use tax on behalf of its New Jersey customers is not required to collect the New Jersey motor vehicle tire fee with respect to motor vehicles sold or leased from a location outside New Jersey. Thus, such out-of-State dealers and lessors can complete and return the Subjectivity Waiver and they will be removed from the taxpayer list. The waiver is available at www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/tirefee.shtml □

Zero Emission Vehicles

P.L. 2003, c.266 created an exemption from sales tax for sales of zero emission vehicles sold on or after May 1, 2004. "Zero emission vehicle" means a vehicle certified as a zero emission vehicle pursuant to the California Air Resources Board standards for the applicable model year. The list of qualifying vehicles is available on the Division's Web site at www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/zeroemission.shtml

Even without exemption from sales tax, the number of sales of ultra low emission (ULE) vehicles may reach 100,000 for the year 2004 as car manufacturers make "ULE" a standard or low-cost feature in an increasing number of vehicle models. Section 5 of P.L. 2003, c.266 establishes the Low Emission Vehicle Review Commission. One of the functions of the Commission is to make recommendations on any additional incentives determined to be necessary to encourage the purchase of zero emission vehicles or "advanced technology partial zero emission vehicles." □

Criminal Enforcement over the past several months included:

- As part of a cooperative enforcement effort by the Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) and the Division of Taxation's Audit Services Branch, OCI conducted inspections of cigarette retailers Watchung Liquors, Inc., in Plainfield, New Jersey, and Sufi & Gupta, Inc., a gas station in Fort Lee, New Jersey, based on information from Audit Services that the subjects had filed 2004 cigarette floor tax returns, but were not licensed to sell cigarettes. Inspections were also conducted at F&M Food Market and at Family Food Center in Camden, and at Chin's Caribbean American Store, Inc., in Irvington after auditors observed contraband cigarettes during floor tax audits. (A floor tax return is required from all cigarette wholesalers and retailers for the purpose of paying the additional tax due on cigarette inventory held on July 1, 2004, when the tax was raised from $20.50 per carton to $24 per carton.) OCI investigations resulted in the seizure of 30.9 cartons of untaxed cigarettes, including 27.2 cartons bearing counterfeit New Jersey cigarette tax stamps, and determined that several of the retailers were selling cigarettes without a current license as a result of the License Suppression Project, which ensures that no cigarette or motor fuel industry licenses can be renewed if the applicant has outstanding liabilities in any State tax. The subjects were charged in the appropriate municipal courts.

- On October 1, 2004, in Superior Court – Passaic County, Dipan P. Patel of North Bergen, New Jersey, was sentenced to four years' probation and ordered to pay a fine of $625 pursuant to his guilty plea to charges of sale of untaxed cigarettes and failing to maintain books and records with intent to evade tax. Patel had been arrested by OCI on January 14, 2004, in Totowa, New Jersey, during a joint investigation with the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives, in which Patel sold Virginia-stamped and unstamped cigarettes to an undercover operative on two separate occasions.

- On October 8, 2004, Richard J. Nardone, 46, of San Diego, California, pled guilty to charges of filing false and fraudulent New Jersey income tax returns, failure to pay New Jersey gross income tax with intent to evade, and misconduct by a corporate official. Nardone's sister, Donna M. Januik, 51, of Union County, pled guilty to filing false and fraudulent New Jersey income tax returns and failure to pay New Jersey gross income tax with intent to evade. Nardone and Januik were charged via a State Grand Jury indictment returned on February 10, 2004. At the guilty plea hearing, Nardone admitted that between January 1, 1998, and May 31, 1999, he transferred and withdrew large sums of money from his chiropractic business and from related medical treatment, diagnostic, and rehabilitation facilities he owned, operated, or controlled. Nardone and Januik were scheduled to appear on December 3 for sentencing.
- On October 15, 2004, an Appellate Court decision was rendered that is of importance to criminal tax prosecutions. The decision,

State of New Jersey v. Larry Barasch, explores and defines the burden of proof required in a criminal tax case. The defendant argued that his conviction on a charge of second-degree failure to remit taxes collected or withheld, N.J.S.A. 54:52-15, must be reversed because the jury instructions were faulty. He argued that more specific criminal intent is required, and the jury should have been advised that a crime is committed only if the defendant purposely failed to pay the taxes in order to avoid or evade his responsibilities. When dealing with a failure to collect the tax, as contrasted with the failure to remit the tax after its collection, the Legislature has provided that criminal culpability requires “the intent to evade, avoid, or otherwise not make timely payment of any tax.” The Legislature provides, however, that after the tax is collected criminal culpability requires “purposely failing to turn over the taxes to the Director in the manner and at the time prescribed by law.” Accordingly, criminal conduct occurs when the person “purposely fails to turn over the taxes to the Director in the manner and at the time prescribed.” It is not necessary for the State to prove that the failure to remit the collected or withheld tax was with the purpose to evade or avoid payment.

- On October 22, 2004, the president of a Linden, New Jersey, luxury used car dealership, Hisham Sadek, was sentenced to a five-year term of probation and ordered to make restitution in the amount of $340,200. The sentencing was the result of Mr. Sadek’s having pled guilty to charges arising from a scheme uncovered by the Office of Criminal Investigation to evade turning over $350,000 in sales tax collected from customers and filing fraudulent tax returns under the New Jersey Tax Amnesty Program indicating no liability. The dealership, Auto Village, Inc., and Mr. Sadek had failed to file New Jersey sales tax returns for the year 1994. Mr. Sadek instructed his Certified Public Accountant to take advantage of the 1996 amnesty legislation by preparing sales tax returns reporting no sales tax had been collected for the period. Our investigation revealed that the business had collected sales tax in excess of $90,000 during the amnesty period. The investigation also revealed that fraudulent sales tax returns were filed for the periods after amnesty and that sales tax in excess of $350,000 was in fact collected by Auto Village, Inc., but not turned over to the State. Although originally accepted into the Tax Amnesty Program, which would have precluded criminal prosecution for tax liabilities truthfully disclosed by the taxpayer, the corporation, Mr. Sadek, and the accountant were prosecuted after the investigation determined the returns filed under amnesty were fraudulent. Auto Village, Inc., pled guilty to purposely failing to turn over taxes (2nd degree), Hisham Sadek pled guilty to misapplication of property withheld for the benefit of the government (3rd degree), and the accountant with having participated in the scheme to evade taxes. This case was prosecuted by the State Office of the Attorney General.

- On October 27, 2004, OCI assisted the Bergen County Prosecutor’s Office in the execution of search warrants at gas stations in Upper Saddle River, Ridgewood, Wallington, and Lodi in an investigation of the use of fraudulent credit cards by the operators of these gas stations to purchase large quantities of cigarettes, which were then resold to consumers through the gas stations. OCI personnel are providing assistance in determining via stamp numbers the probable origin of cigarettes found on the premises, and in examination of business records to determine whether the records provide evidence of an illegal source of cigarettes. The investigation of possible sales tax and motor fuels tax violations is also continuing.
- On October 29, 2004, in Superior Court – Burlington County, Mt. Holly, New Jersey, Nhi L. Wiget, 47, of South El Monte, California, was sentenced to five years in State prison, and Kenny Choi, 41, of Pomona, New Jersey, was sentenced to three years in State prison, and both were ordered to pay restitution of cigarette tax and sales tax to the State in the amount of $797,946.49 as a result of their guilty pleas on March 29, 2004, to charges of failure to pay tax and possession of counterfeit cigarettes. Wiget and Choi had been arrested by Mansfield Township Police and OCI on October 15, 2003, in possession of 33,550 cartons of untaxed cigarettes with a retail value of $1,946,235.50. Investigation by OCI established that the cigarettes were determined to be counterfeit (verified by samples submitted to Lorillard Tobacco Company). At the conclusion of the sentencing hearing, Wiget and Choi were immediately remanded to the custody of the Department of Corrections to begin serving their prison terms. This case was prosecuted by the Burlington County Prosecutor's Office.

- Between November 24 and December 21, 2004, in Secaucus, New Jersey, OCI seized approximately 28,664 cartons of untaxed cigarettes which had been flown into Newark Airport from various European countries by unidentified Internet vendors for delivery to customers. The approximate value of these seizures is as follows:

Retail value $1,783,474.08

Tax loss averted:

Cigarette $687,936.00

Sales & Use 100,897.28

Total $788,833.28

These seizures were accomplished with the cooperation of the U.S. Bureau of Customs and Border Protection, as a result of information developed by the U.S. Postal Inspection Service, with critical assistance from Facilities Management. The investigation is continuing.

- On November 30, 2004, in Lodi, New Jersey, OCI executed a search warrant on a storage unit and seized 9,097 cartons of untaxed cigarettes. 8,947 cartons were counterfeit Newport cigarettes labeled in violation of the New Jersey Trademark Counterfeiting Act. 150 cartons were of a Chinese brand of cigarettes.

Retail value $566,015.34

Tax loss averted:

Cigarette $218,328.00

Sales & Use 32,021.44

Total $250,349.44

The Bergen County Prosecutor's Office assisted in obtaining and executing this search warrant.

- On November 30, 2004, in Trenton, New Jersey, a State Grand Jury indicted Michael Buonopane, 44, of Rumson, New Jersey, for failing to remit almost $5 million in taxes (consisting of $2,014,386 in sales and use tax collected from customers, $106,013.51 in State gross income tax, $653,965.41 in State unemployment and disability contributions, and $2,074,362.16 in Federal taxes withheld from the wages of employees) and for failing to file 31 corporation business tax returns in connection with the operation of Mr. Good Lube, Inc., and seven other corporations which provided retail automobile maintenance and car wash services at 20 locations in Monmouth, Ocean, Middlesex, Union, Essex, and Morris counties between 1999 and 2004. This case was a joint investigation by OCI, the New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice, and the New Jersey Department of Labor and Workforce Development, which initiated the inquiry, and was presented to the grand jury by the

New Jersey Office of the Attorney General.

- On December 7, 2004, in Superior Court – Camden County, Jeffre Levy and Cynthia Levy of Cherry Hill, New Jersey, were sentenced for tax fraud. The sentencing stems from the criminal complaint filed against the Levys which alleges that between 1994 and 2001 the couple collected sales tax from customers of their janitorial companies and withheld income tax from their employees' wages, but failed to file returns and forward the taxes to the State. A joint investigation conducted by the Camden County Prosecutor's Office and the New Jersey Division of Taxation's Office of Criminal Investigation revealed that the Levys attempted to hide the diversion of funds by operating through a succession of business entities: Executive Maintenance Company, Executive Maintenance, Inc., and Executive Maintenance Industries, Inc. The companies, all located in Cherry Hill, New Jersey, were owned by one or both of the Levys. On September 22, 2004, Jeffre and Cynthia Levy pled guilty to purposely failing to turn over taxes to the State. Jeffre Levy, 41, and Cynthia Levy, 48, admitted before Superior Court Judge David G. Eynon to keeping approximately $170,000 in sales and income tax proceeds from their janitorial companies and failing to forward the money to the State as required. The Levys attempted to evade the payment of the taxes by operating a business for a relatively short period of time before forming a successor business which would also fail to comply with the tax laws of this State. The Levys, owners of commercial cleaning businesses, will now be cleaning Camden County after being sentenced under the Sheriff's Labor Assistance Program (SLAP). Jeffrey Levy was sentenced to three years' probation and 60 days in the SLAP Program. Cynthia Levy was sentenced to two years' probation and 30 days in the SLAP Program. In addition, they both signed consent judgments requiring them to pay almost $400,000 in taxes, penalties, and interest.

- On December 20, 2004, the Office of Criminal Investigation created the TIP (Tobacco Interdiction Program) hotline, a 24-hour hotline for reporting suspected cigarette tax violations. Anyone with information regarding untaxed, smuggled, or counterfeit cigarettes or Internet sales of cigarettes is encouraged to call the TIP hotline at 609-984-1225.
- One hundred ninety-nine (199) complaints alleging tax evasion were evaluated from October through December 2004 in the Office of Criminal Investigation.
- During the same period, ninety (90) charges were filed in court and twenty-one (21) arrests were made in thirty (30) cases involving violations of the Cigarette Tax Act. A total of 37,945.1 cartons of untaxed cigarettes, having a total value of $2,360,944.12 and including 106.6 cartons bearing counterfeit New Jersey tax revenue stamps, were seized. □

Attorney Fee

Notice for 2004 Fee — The New Jersey Medical Care Access and Responsibility and Patients First Act was signed into law on June 7, 2004, as P.L. 2004, c.17. The Act provides for a comprehensive set of reforms affecting the tort liability system, health care system, and medical malpractice liability insurance carriers to ensure that health care services continue to be available and accessible to residents of the State.

The Act also establishes a fund called the "Medical Malpractice Liability Insurance Premium Assistance Fund." Revenues generated for this fund will be used for a variety of health care purposes, including providing relief towards the payment of medical malpractice liability insurance premiums to certain health care providers in this State and providing payments to hospitals as charity care subsidies.

The fund receives revenues from annual $75 fee charges to all State physicians, podiatrists, chiropractors, dentists, optometrists, and attorneys, along with an annual $3 per employee charge for all employers subject to the unemployment compensation law. The New Jersey Division of Taxation is charged with the responsibility of assessing the annual $75 fee on attorneys. The fee expires in three years. Fees will be collected for the years 2004, 2005, and 2006.

The annual $75 fee applies to all attorneys licensed to practice law in New Jersey except those attorneys:

1. Constitutionally or statutorily barred from the practice of law.
2. That can show that they do not maintain a bona fide office in New Jersey for the practice of law. A bona fide office is a place where the attorney or a responsible person acting on the attorney's behalf can be reached in person and by telephone during normal business hours to conduct law-related business.
3. Who have retired completely from the practice of law.
4. On full-time duty in the armed forces, VISTA, or the Peace Corps and not engaged in the practice of law.
5. Ineligible to practice law because they have not made their New Jersey Lawyers' Fund for Client Protection payment.
6. Newly admitted to the bar that have not practiced law for at least one year.

Corporation Business Tax

Gross Profit: Alternative Minimum Assessment (AMA) — It is possible to have an AMA of $0 if the taxpayer's gross profits and gross receipts are under the AMA thresholds. For a taxpayer using the gross profits method, if the corporation's gross profits are less than or equal to $1,000,000, the AMA based on gross profits is zero. For a taxpayer using the gross receipts method, if the corporation's gross receipts are less than or equal to $2,000,000, the AMA based on gross receipts is zero.

Corporations are not liable for the AMA if they have New Jersey gross receipts of less than $2.36 million or New Jersey gross profits of less than $1.18 million.

Gross Income Tax

Gifts-in-Kind — A gift-in-kind is typically an item or a service donated to a charitable organization. The New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act does not allow a taxpayer to deduct charitable contributions, whether those donations are made in cash or as gifts-in-kind.

The only deduction from New Jersey gross income tax for charitable contributions is for qualified conservation contributions. A qualified conservation contribution means a contribution of a qualified real property interest to a qualified organization exclusively for conservation purposes. For New Jersey income tax purposes, taxpayers are allowed a deduction against gross income for a qualified conservation contribution if qualified under the Federal I.R.C. Section 170(h).

Motor Vehicle Tire Fee

Sales to Nonresidents — The motor vehicle tire fee of $1.50 per tire is due on all sales of new tires that are subject to New Jersey sales tax. The fee is also imposed on tires sold as part of a motor vehicle.

If an out-of-State resident comes into New Jersey, purchases a tire, and takes delivery here, the fee must be collected since New Jersey sales tax would apply. For sales to customers that take delivery out of State, a New Jersey tire seller will have documentation that the tires were delivered out of State (invoice, shipping document, etc.). There is no specific exemption form for the sale of tires delivered outside of New Jersey, but such sales are not subject to sales tax or the tire fee.

Sales and Use Tax

Safe Deposit Box Repair — The rental of safe deposit boxes is subject to sales tax under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(3). The taxpayer inquired whether the purchase of locksmith services to replace keys, drill boxes, or otherwise make repairs to boxes is exempt from sales tax.

The New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act provides for the imposition of sales tax on the repair or servicing of tangible personal property "not held for sale in the regular course of business..." N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(2). Since the repairs at issue are to be performed upon the safe deposit boxes that are held in inventory and offered as rentals, there is no sales tax imposed for repair services. A properly completed Resale Certificate (Form ST-3) must be issued to claim the exemption. The purchaser checks the box at (5)(b) on the form.

Wireless Enhanced Services — The Division responded to an inquiry concerning the taxability of "wireless enhanced services." These products are peripheral-type services that wireless customers can subscribe to on either a monthly basis or a usage basis. Customers may acquire a permanent copy of a song, movie, or video game by “downloading it” onto their cell phone. The New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act defines “telecommunications” as the act or privilege of originating or receiving messages or information through the use of any kind of one-way or two-way communication, including mobile telecommunications service, and all services and equipment provided in connection therewith or by means thereof. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(cc).

The Division views wireless enhanced downloads as electronically transmitted products rather than as services. Sales tax is not imposed on goods that are delivered solely by electronic means. Therefore, it is the Division’s position that the following are not subject to sales tax when downloaded to the customer’s cellular telephone:

1. Ring tones
2. Digitized music
3. Video game downloads

On the other hand, text-messaging charges that allow users to send and receive word messages are directly related to “the act or privilege of originating or receiving messages or information”; therefore, text messaging charges are subject to tax. □

In Our Courts

Corporation Business Tax

Net Operating Losses – A.H. Robins Company, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided December 7, 2004; Supreme Court of New Jersey No. A-96 September Term 2003.

The Chapter 11 Reorganization Plan granted A.H. Robins (Robins), the surviving entity in the bankruptcy, the rights and property of the company that initially filed for bankruptcy. One of those assets was a multi-million dollar New Jersey corporation business tax (CBT) net operating loss (NOL). Therefore, Robins filed a CBT refund claim that utilized the NOL. In accordance with N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4.5, which permits NOLs to be used only by the corporation that incurs the loss, the Director denied the refund because the surviving corporation was a different corporation than the entity that incurred the loss and that was later dissolved.

The New Jersey Supreme Court unanimously affirmed the Appellate Division’s decision for substantially the reasons contained in the Appellate Division’s opinion. Previously, the Appellate Division affirmed the Tax Court’s decision upholding the Director based on the New Jersey Supreme Court’s decision in Richards Auto City, Inc. Also, the Appellate Division affirmed the Tax Court’s ruling that N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4.5 was constitutional despite its retroactivity provision.

Homestead Rebate: Good Cause – Evelyn N. Bonda v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided November 17, 2004; Tax Court No. 006258-2003.

Bonda is a 72-year-old taxpayer who has a “wide array of medical conditions: a chronic thyroid condition, bipolar disorder, hyper-somnolence, narcolepsy and signs of low-level myocardial injury.” She was on social security disability from 1989 until she turned age 65, and claimed she has no one except her elderly brother who holds power of attorney over her affairs and resides in California.

Bonda filed her 2001 New Jersey income tax return on December 22, 2002. In the process of filing her return, she alleges that she requested two extensions to file her Federal income tax return. Although she produced evidence of a first extension to August 15, 2002, she was unable to produce any documentary evidence of a second extension. On April 30, 2003, Bonda received a final determination letter denying her homestead rebate request due to an untimely filing and stating that an appeal must be sent to and received by the Tax Court within 90 days from the date of the letter. On June 12, 2003, Bonda directed a letter indicating an intention to appeal to the Division of Taxation, but not to the Tax Court. On July 18, 2003, Bonda received a letter from the Division indicating that more time would be required to process her correspondence due to the mail volume. Bonda contacted the Tax Court Management Office on September 11, 2003, and discovered that the Tax Court did not receive her papers. On September 19, 2003, Bonda was admitted into an inpatient epilepsy-monitoring program. Bonda testified that she filed with the Tax Court on September 30, 2003.

As a general rule, the homestead rebate application must be filed with the New Jersey income tax return. If a taxpayer is granted either a State or Federal income tax extension, then the rebate application is also extended. Here, Bonda undisputedly filed her rebate application on December 22, 2002, which was after the August 15, 2002, extension. As Bonda could not produce evidence of a subsequent extension, the Court ruled that the rebate application was untimely.

In the case of an untimely filing, N.J.S.A. 54:4-3.87 permits the Division to extend the time period for a reasonable period where good cause is shown. In Hovland, the Tax Court found that good cause existed where Hovland was diagnosed with cancer of the spine and continuously hospitalized with severe pain. When Hovland returned from the hospital, he completed his application and submitted it one day late. Although Hovland was married, it was found that his wife only took care of their simple financial affairs. Applying the good cause standard to the present case, the Court ruled that Bonda did not present sufficient evidence of a medical inability to timely file the application and, therefore, did not meet the good cause standard required to extend the filing deadline.

Addressing the issue of the timeliness of Bonda's appeal to the Tax Court, the Court stated that a complaint involving the homestead rebate or NJ SAVER claim must be filed within 90 days of the issuance of the Director's denial. The Court noted that on very rare occasions the Tax Court has allowed a tolling of the statute of limitations. Although it was sympathetic to taxpayer's medical conditions, the Court ruled that these circumstances do not warrant a tolling of the filing deadline. Therefore, the Court dismissed the complaint as untimely.

Derivative Exemption – Sodexho Operations, LLC v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided November 30, 2004; Appellate Division No. A-1460-03T2.

Sodexho provided management services for the food and cleaning service departments of various hospitals and other institutions that qualified as tax-exempt organizations under the Sales and Use Tax Act. As part of the management services, Sodexho purchased supplies for use in the cleaning department, various paper goods for the food service departments, and furniture and materials to renovate the cafeterias and dining rooms.

At trial, Sodexho claimed that these purchases were not subject to sales and use tax because either it acted as a procurement agent for the tax-exempt organizations and therefore is entitled to a derivative exemption, or because these purchases are for resale to the tax-exempt organizations. The Tax Court rejected both of Sodexho's arguments. The Court determined that Sodexho's agency relationship with the tax-exempt organizations was not sufficient for Sodexho to stand in the shoes of the organizations to qualify for the organizations' tax exemption had the organizations purchased the items directly. Secondly, the Court determined that the resale exemption did not apply because Sodexho's purchases were incidental to the true object of providing management services.

On appeal, the Appellate Division affirmed the Tax Court substantially for the reasons stated in the Tax Court opinion. □

NJ Tax Relief for April 2005 Storm Victims

Nine New Jersey counties that were struck by storms and flooding April 1–3, 2005, have been declared a Presidential Disaster Area. The counties are: Bergen, Essex, Gloucester, Hunterdon, Mercer, Morris, Passaic, Sussex, and Warren.

The New Jersey Division of Taxation will follow the guidelines provided by the Internal Revenue Service for special tax relief for New Jersey taxpayers in the disaster area. Any qualified taxpayer granted additional time by the IRS to file Federal tax returns or to make tax payments will receive the same treatment for New Jersey tax purposes. Affected taxpayers include businesses and individuals located in the disaster area, those whose tax records are in the disaster area, and relief workers.

Affected taxpayers have until June 20, 2005, to file New Jersey returns and submit payments for any return and/or payment, including estimated payments, that have either an original or extended due date between April 1, 2005, and June 20, 2005. To qualify for this relief, taxpayers must identify themselves by writing “Presidential Disaster Area: Storms and Floods-NJ,” on their returns and payments.

Information on Federal tax relief for those in Presidential Disaster Areas is available on the IRS Web site. Also see “Presidential Disaster Relief Areas” in the Winter 2004 issue of New Jersey State Tax News.

What's New for Tax Year 2004

There have been some important changes affecting the preparation of New Jersey income tax returns, and the preparation of applications for New Jersey's various property tax relief programs:

Income Tax

- Increased Tax on Income Over $500,000 — The New Jersey gross income tax rate on income over $500,000 has increased from 6.370% to 8.970% for tax years beginning on or after January 1, 2004.
- Domestic Partnership — Taxpayers who are members of a domestic partnership registered in New Jersey on the last day of the tax year may claim an exemption for their domestic partner only if the domestic partner does not file a New Jersey income tax return. A copy of the New Jersey Certificate of Domestic Partnership must be enclosed the first time the exemption is claimed and the taxpayer may be asked to provide additional information at a later date.
- Credit for Taxes Paid to Other Jurisdictions — The Philadelphia nonresident wage tax rate for 2004 is .038801.
- Depreciation Adjustment — New Jersey income tax law has decoupled from certain changes in Federal depreciation and expense deduction limits. A New Jersey depreciation adjustment may be required for assets placed in service on or after January 1, 2004. The New Jersey adjustments affect the determination of income in the categories net profits from business; net gains or income from disposition of property; net gains or income from rents, royalties, patents, and copyrights; income from estates or trusts; distributive share of partnership income; and net pro rata share of S corporation income. Taxpayers must complete the Gross Income Tax Depreciation Adjustment Worksheet GIT-DEP to calculate the adjustment.

- Nonresident Estimated Tax Payments on Real Estate Transactions — Nonresident individuals, estates, or trusts that sell or transfer real property in New Jersey after July 31, 2004, may be required to make estimated payments on the gain from a transfer or sale of the property as a condition of the recording of the deed.
- Use Tax — An optional Estimated Use Tax Chart is available for residents who are paying the New Jersey use tax they owe with their resident income tax return. Taxpayers who have incomplete or inaccurate receipts may use the chart to estimate the amount of use tax due on purchases costing less than $1,000 each. Taxpayers must calculate the exact amount of use tax due on purchases costing $1,000 or more each.
- E-Filing Requirement for Practitioners — Tax practitioners who prepared or filed 200 or more 2003 New Jersey income tax resident returns must now use one of the three New Jersey electronic filing methods (NJ WebFile, NJ TeleFile, and NJ ELF) to file their clients' 2004 New Jersey income tax resident returns.

Electronic Funds Transfer

- Threshold Lowered to $10,000 — Beginning July 1, 2004, taxpayers with a prior-year liability of $10,000 or more in any one tax are required to make their payments for all taxes by electronic funds transfer (EFT).

- Payment Options — Taxpayers who are required to make all their tax payments by EFT now have a choice of several payment options: Automated Clearing House (ACH) debit or credit, electronic check (e-check), or credit card.

Property Tax Relief Programs

- FAIR (Fair and Immediate Relief) Rebate Program — The NJ SAVER Rebate and Homestead Rebate Programs have been combined into the FAIR Rebate Program. The homestead rebate and NJ SAVER rebate applications have been replaced with the FAIR tenant rebate application (Form TR-1040) which can be found in the income tax return booklet, and a separate FAIR rebate application for all homeowners, which is not in the booklet.

Eligible tenants file the FAIR tenant rebate application, Form TR-1040, with the New Jersey income tax return. FAIR rebate applications are currently scheduled to be mailed to eligible homeowners at the end of April.

- Property Tax Deduction/Credit — Schedule 1-A, which replaces Schedule HR-A, must be completed by residents who: had more than one New Jersey residence during the year; owned a principal residence with more than one unit; shared ownership of their principal residence with anyone other than a spouse; or shared rent for an apartment or other rental dwelling with anyone other than a spouse. Schedule 1-A is used to calculate the amount of property taxes and/or rent to

EFT Payment Options

Businesses with a prior-year tax liability of $10,000 or more in any one tax are required to remit their payments for all taxes by electronic funds transfer (EFT).

Taxpayers who are required to pay electronically are no longer limited to the Automated Clearing House (ACH) debit or credit option. There are now two additional payment options that can be used to meet the EFT payment requirement: electronic check (e-check) and credit card.

Taxpayers must enroll with the Division of Revenue before they can pay by ACH debit or credit. This process may take several weeks. Enrollment is not required prior to making e-check or credit card payments.

The e-check and credit card payment options are not available for all business taxes. Consult the online Guide to Electronic Filing and Payment Services to learn which taxes can be paid by electronic check and credit card.

GROSS INCOME TAX Tax Rate Used on Form NJ-1080C

For tax year 2004, the New Jersey Income Tax Nonresident Composite Return (Form NJ-1080C) has been modified to permit the use of two tax rates, 6.37% and 8.97%. Recent legislation (P.L. 2004, c.40) creating a new top income tax rate of 8.97% retroactive to January 2004 provided a disincentive for nonresident individuals who had participated on a Form NJ-1080C in the past. The Division has, therefore, announced that the 6.37% gross income tax rate applies to participants with income of less than $250,000 each. The 8.97% rate applies to participants with income of $250,000 or more.

Preparers of composite returns will notice the following changes:

1. The face of the return has two columns: Column A for income of those participants reporting New Jersey income from the entity of less than $250,000; and Column B for those participants reporting income of $250,000 and over.
2. There are three supporting directories:

Schedule A — Participants with New Jersey income from the entity of less than $250,000;

Schedule B — Participants with New Jersey income from the entity of $250,000 or more; and Schedule C — Nonparticipants.

For years the composite return has been a popular choice for those nonresidents with limited New Jersey sources of income. Even with the imposition of the highest individual income tax rate, nonresident individuals participated in composite returns as a matter of convenience. Individual nonresident returns are not necessary when all the New Jersey source income is reported and taxed on a composite return. Now, with the availability of two income tax rates, eligible nonresident individuals will still find participation in the NJ-1080C to be an acceptable alternative to filing an individual nonresident return, Form NJ-1040NR. □

GROSS INCOME TAX Presidential Disaster Relief Areas

The IRS provides special tax law provisions to help taxpayers recover financially from the impact of a disaster, especially when the President declares their location to be a major disaster area. The Federal government designates Presidentially declared disaster relief areas on a county-by-county basis.

Depending on the circumstances, the IRS may postpone for up to one year certain tax filing deadlines for taxpayers that are affected by a Presidentially declared disaster relief area. The tax deadlines the IRS may postpone include those for filing income and employment tax returns, paying income and employment taxes, and making contributions to a traditional IRA or Roth IRA.

If any tax deadline is postponed, the IRS publicizes the postponement in the affected area and publishes a news release, revenue ruling, revenue procedure, notice, announcement, or other guidance in the Internal Revenue Bulletin (IRB) and on their Web site at www.irs.gov

It is the New Jersey Division of Taxation's general policy to follow the guidelines provided by the IRS for special tax relief for taxpayers in the Presidential disaster relief areas. The relief granted to affected taxpayers is limited in time to the periods during which emergencies actually occurred and/or during which relief and recovery activities were ongoing. Affected taxpayers include businesses and individuals located in the affected areas, those whose tax records are in the affected areas, and relief workers.

Qualified taxpayers may file New Jersey tax returns and submit payments for any return and/or payment, including estimated payments, that have either an original or extended due date in accordance with the special tax filing deadlines as provided by the IRS. To qualify for this relief, affected taxpayers must write in red ink "Presidential Disaster Relief Area" and the Presidential disaster relief area designation as provided by the IRS at the top, center of their New Jersey tax return when filed.

If you are not sure whether your area qualifies for tax relief, more specific information about Presidential disaster relief areas is available on the IRS Web site or you may e-mail the Division with your question at taxation@tax.state.nj.us

If you are affected by a Presidentially declared disaster area and the New Jersey Division of Taxation postpones the due date for filing your return and for paying your tax,

Criminal Enforcement

Criminal Enforcement over the past several months has included:

- On June 23, 2004, confirmation was received that a Passaic County Grand Jury had returned an indictment against Dipan P. Patel of North Bergen, New Jersey, charging him with possession and sale of untaxed cigarettes. Patel had been arrested by the Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) on January 14, 2004, in Totowa, New Jersey, during a joint investigation with the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives in which Patel sold Virginia-stamped and unstamped cigarettes to an conditions of admission into Pretrial Intervention, Kirkconnell is required to sell the business in question, and has paid restitution to the State of $99,094.07 in tax, penalty, and interest. The Elizabeth Police Department assisted in the investigation. The matter was prosecuted by the State Office of the Attorney General.

- On July 16, 2004, Bernard Davidson, a former court officer in Morris County, was sentenced to a one-year term of probation and ordered to make restitution as a result of his guilty plea to charges of filing a false and fraudulent 1998 New Jersey gross income tax return. The charge stemmed from Bernard Davidson's actions as a court officer in Morris County, his theft of official receipts in excess of $75,000, and his failure to report the illegal income on his New Jersey gross income tax return.
- On July 16, 2004, in United States District Court in Texas, Gary Dewayne Dennington, an inmate at the State Correctional Facility in Beaumont, Texas, was sentenced to a 37-month term of incarceration for a mail fraud scheme involving the filing of fraudulent tax returns. Inmate Dennington will go to Federal prison after completing his State sentence. This joint investigation with the Federal Bureau of Investigation revealed that Dennington had filed fraudulent state income tax returns in New Jersey, Missouri, and Connecticut. He did not receive refunds from New Jersey; however, his efforts did reward him with an extra 37 months of jail time.

- On July 19, 2004, in Newark Municipal Court, Miguel A. Puca of Newark, New Jersey, pled guilty to failing to file motor fuels tax returns and failing to pay $60,397 in motor fuels tax during the period April 2003 through April 2004 in connection with Puca's business, Puca & Son Fueling, which sells diesel fuel at retail to trucking companies. Puca was fined $1,500 and is subject to restitution of the tax and an additional $16,902 in civil penalty and interest. This case was opened based on a letter from the owner of a local gas station, who complained that the subject was harming legitimate businesses by evading the motor fuels tax.
- On August 3, 2004, Notices of Complaint were served upon Rite Aid of New Jersey, Wharton, New Jersey, and Resa Enterprises, Inc., Paramus, New Jersey, in cigarette retail license suspension actions by the Director of the Division of Taxation, as requested by local boards of health following the conviction of each of the licensees for two separate violations of State law which prohibits the sale of cigarettes to minors.
- On August 12, 2004, the Mercer County Prosecutor's Office confirmed that in Superior Court – Mercer County, Mohinder Braich of Freehold, New Jersey, pled guilty to a charge of failure to turn over $617,000 in motor fuels tax which he collected between 1992 and 2002 in connection with the retail sale of diesel fuel at MLB Sunshine Service Station, a gas station/truck stop which he operated in Old Bridge, New Jersey. Braich is scheduled to be sentenced October 10, 2004. This matter was investigated by OCI and prosecuted by the Mercer County Prosecutor's Office.

- On August 23, 2004, in Superior Court – Monmouth County, a hearing was held in the matter of Asif Hafeez, formerly of Millstone Township, New Jersey. Hafeez had been arrested by OCI on June 27, 2001, in possession of 319 cartons of untaxed cigarettes and 29,793 counterfeit cigarette tax stamps. Hafeez later jumped bail and fled to Canada. He was arrested as he tried to cross into the United States from Canada recently and was extradited to New Jersey and held in the Monmouth County Jail. At the August 23, 2004, hearing it was determined that Hafeez would be turned over to Pennsylvania authorities to answer a charge of violation of probation which had been imposed for an earlier violation of the Pennsylvania cigarette tax. Extradition proceedings and prosecution in this matter are being conducted by the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office.
- On September 3, 2004, the Office of Attorney General confirmed that in Superior Court – Union County, Edward Mongon of Union City, New Jersey, and Mikhael Centeno of Jersey City, New Jersey, pled guilty to racketeering, consisting of burglary, theft, receiving stolen property, fencing, money laundering, failure to file State personal income tax returns, and failure to pay State tax from 1992 to 2003, and were sentenced to 13 years and 12 years, respectively, in State prison, and that Edward Troisi of Hoboken, New Jersey, pled guilty to failure to file State personal income tax returns and pay tax for tax years 1999 through 2002, and was admitted into Pretrial Intervention, a program of supervision for nonviolent first offenders. The charges to which the above defendants pled guilty resulted from their operation of an enterprise engaging in large-scale theft of cargo from trains and trucks. Based on these guilty pleas, OCI will pursue civil assessment and collection of sales and use tax due on the disposition of tangible personal property in the amount of more than $5 million. This case was a joint investigation with the New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice – Organized Crime and Racketeering Bureau.

- On September 14, 2004, in Jersey City, OCI seized 17,100 cartons of untaxed, counterfeit-product cigarettes which had been abandoned in two self-storage units by traffickers following previous arrests and seizures by OCI at this location. It is believed the counterfeit products were manufactured in China. The value of the seized cigarettes is $1,063,962. The amount of tax loss averted is $410,400 cigarette tax and $60,192 sales and use tax, for a total of $470,592. This investigation is continuing.

- On September 17, 2004, John B. Forrest, a fugitive and one of the Division of Criminal Justice’s ten most wanted, was arrested by U.S. Customs at the border in Pharr, Texas. On September 12, 2003, in Superior Court – Middlesex County, New Brunswick, New Jersey, Forrest, of Colts Neck, New Jersey, had entered guilty pleas on behalf of himself and his corporation, Tri-State Ticket Exchange, Ltd., Old Bridge, New Jersey, to charges of theft by deception of approximately $647,000 from customers who ordered sports and entertainment events tickets that were never delivered, misapplication of $122,626.37 in sales taxes of New Jersey and eight other states which Forrest collected from his customers but failed to turn over to tax agencies, credit card fraud, failure to file New Jersey sales and use tax returns for the period January 2001 through December 2002, and failure to turn over $33,280 in New Jersey sales and use tax collected in that period. Forrest had agreed to make restitution of all of the above amounts, and never again to engage in business as a ticket seller or broker in New Jersey. Forrest was scheduled to be sentenced on January 9, 2004, but fled the country one day prior to sentencing and is believed to have lived in Brazil and Mexico during his flight. This was a joint investigation between OCI and the Division of Criminal Justice, who prosecuted the matter.

- On September 22, 2004, in Superior Court – Camden County, Jeffre and Cynthia Levy of Cherry Hill, New Jersey, pled guilty to purposely failing to turn over taxes to the State. Jeffre Levy and Cynthia Levy admitted to keeping approximately $170,000 in sales and income tax proceeds from their janitorial companies and failing to forward the money to the State as required. The money was collected between January 1, 1994, and December 31, 2001, and included State income taxes they withheld from employees and sales taxes they collected from customers of their Cherry Hill-based companies – Executive Maintenance Co., Executive Maintenance Inc., and Executive Maintenance Industries Inc. The Levys attempted to evade the payment of the taxes by operating a business for a relatively short period of time before forming a successor business which would also fail to comply with the tax laws of this State. Tax Briefs

Corporation Business Tax Credit Unions — This article replaces the tax brief that appeared in this issue when it was published on March 21, 2005.

Additional information reviewed pertaining to the Federal tax treatment of credit unions prompted the Division to reconsider its position on the tax status of credit unions in New Jersey.

Federal credit unions organized and operated in accordance with the Federal Credit Union Act, as amended, are instrumentalities of the United States and, therefore, exempt under I.R.C. section 501(c)(1). They are included in a group exemption letter that is issued to the National Credit Union Administration.

State-chartered credit unions and other mutual financial organizations may file applications for recognition of exemption from Federal income tax under I.R.C. section 501(c)(14). An organization that wishes to obtain recognition of exemption as a credit union without capital stock, organized and operated under state law for mutual purposes and without profit, must apply for the exemption by supplying facts, information, and attachments that demonstrate it meets the qualifying criteria to the Internal Revenue Service. For Federal income tax purposes, state-chartered credit unions receive nonprofit status and are thereby exempt from income tax.

In New Jersey, financial business corporations must file a Corporation Business Tax Return for Banking and Financial Corporations (Form BFC-1) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 18:7-1.16(g). Currently, credit unions organized under the laws of New Jersey are not included in the definition of a financial business corporation. N.J.A.C. 18:7-1.16(c)7.

Under the New Jersey Corporation Business Tax Act, (54:10A-1.1 et seq.), “nonprofit corporations, associations or organizations established, organized or chartered, without capital stock, under provisions of...Title 17...” are exempt from corporation business tax. N.J.S.A. 54:10A-3(e). Organizations meeting the criteria of the statutory and regulatory references above would be exempt. Credit unions organized pursuant to “The Credit Union Act of 1984,” which falls under Title 17 of the New Jersey Statutes, are eligible for exemption from New Jersey corporation business tax. It is also a matter of policy that New Jersey exempts credit unions due to their status as nonprofit corporations, associations, or organizations which are eligible for Federal exemption.

Examples Under Refund Regulation — The Division offered some clarifying examples regarding the operation of the corporation business tax refund regulation, N.J.A.C. 18:7-13.8(a). Under that rule the four-year period for filing a claim for refund commences to run from the later of the payment of the tax for the taxable year or from the filing of the final return for the taxable year. If a return is filed and payment is made before the original due date of the return, the original due date of the return is deemed the payment date.

Example: The original due date of the tax return is April 15, 1994. The due date was extended until October 15, 1994. The tax was paid in full on September 30, 1994, with the final return. A refund claim was filed on October 13, 1998. The claim is late because the refund claim was filed after the four-year period, which began on September 30, 1994, when the tax was paid.

Example: A taxpayer pays 90% of its corporation business tax liability with its tentative return (Form CBT-200-T) and requests an extension of time to file its final return. Two weeks before the extended due date for the return, taxpayer files its final return (Form CBT-100) and pays the additional 10% tax plus interest. In this situation the four-year period for filing a claim for refund is measured from the date of filing the final return (Form CBT-100). If the taxpayer files a refund claim for the full tax amount paid before four years from the date the final return was filed on extension, the claim is timely. However, a claim filed after four years from the date the final return was filed, but before four years from the extended due date, is untimely. In the case of final returns filed after the original due date, the four-year period for filing a claim for refund is measured from the date of filing the final return (Form CBT-100), not from the extended due date.

Immune Activity: Contract Carrier

— A foreign corporation whose income is immune from tax must complete Schedule N, Nexus-Immune Activity Declaration, and remit the alternative minimum assessment or the minimum tax with Form CBT-100.

Pub. L. 86-272, 15 U.S.C. §381-384(1959) restricts the power of the states to tax net income derived from sources within the state from interstate commerce if the “only business activity within such state by or on behalf of such person” is the solicitation of orders for sales of tangible personal property where the orders are sent outside of the state for approval or rejection and are filled by shipment or delivery from a point outside of the state. As long as this activity is not combined with additional activities or contacts that will subject a corporation to tax based on or measured by income, the income may be immune from New Jersey corporation business tax.

An international shipping company that excludes income from Federal taxation pursuant to I.R.C. Section 883 and is therefore not required to file Federal income tax returns may also exclude income from New Jersey corporation business tax. However, international shipping companies are required to file a corporation business tax return (Form CBT-100) and pay the minimum tax pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4(k)(9), or the alternative minimum assessment, whichever is greater. N.J.S.A. 54:10A-5.

A contract carrier providing trucking services within New Jersey is considered to be deriving receipts from sources within this State and is, therefore, subject to New Jersey corporation business tax pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:10A-2. N.J.A.C. 18:7-8.10(c)4iii provides guidance on how to allocate inland trucking receipts.

Minimum Tax and Affiliated or Controlled Groups

— Under N.J.S.A. 54:10A-5(e), any taxpayer that is a member of an affiliated group or a controlled group pursuant to sections 1504 or 1563 of the Federal Internal Revenue Code of 1986, and whose group has total payroll of $5,000,000 or more for the privilege period, is subject to a $2,000 minimum tax. Each member is subject to the minimum tax during that privilege period. See also N.J.A.C. 18:7-3.4(g).

Affiliated groups cannot elect to file on a consolidated basis for New Jersey purposes. A corporation which is included in a consolidated Federal income tax return must complete all schedules on its own separate basis without consolidation with any other corporation. Such corporation must also attach a copy of the Affiliations Schedule, Form 851, which it filed with Form 1120 for Federal income tax purposes. A schedule of payroll per member must also be submitted with the corporation business tax return.

If a taxpayer is part of a group of taxpayers in which the tax liability of the group is reflected on a single return of a member of the group, the other members of the group are also required to file New Jersey returns which shall reflect the minimum tax.

Nonprofit Corporations: Residential Homeowners' Association

— Nonprofit corporations, associations, and established organizations may be exempt from corporation

business tax in New Jersey under N.J.S.A. 54:10-3(e). In addition, other statutes may contain tax exemption provisions specifically applicable to nonprofit housing organizations as well. (e.g., N.J.S.A. 55:16-1 et seq., N.J.S.A. 40A:20-19).

Residential homeowners' associations are normally exempt from corporation business tax under N.J.S.A. 54:10A-3(e). Generally, a condominium association is exempt as long as the units are being used for residential purposes. On the other hand, the exemption does not apply to an association of unit owners if the units are used for business purposes and not for residential purposes.

In order to be considered exempt from corporation business tax, it is recommended that a nonprofit corporation obtain an exemption opinion from the Regulatory Services Branch of the Division of Taxation. In making the request, the applicant organization must submit:

1. An affidavit, signed by an officer of the corporation, indicating that the corporation is:
 - a. A nonprofit corporation that is not operated to make a profit, without regard as to whether there is profit or loss for a particular year;
 - b. Organized without capital stock;
 - c. Incorporated under the provisions of Titles 15, 15A, 16, or 17 of the Revised Statutes of New Jersey or under a special charter or under any similar general or special law of this or any other state; and

- d. Not conducted for the pecuniary profit or benefit of any private shareholder or individual;
2. A copy of the organization's Certificate of Incorporation; and
3. A copy of the organization's bylaws.

Exemption opinion requests may be directed to:

NEW JERSEY DIVISION OF TAXATION
 REGULATORY SERVICES BRANCH
 PO Box 269
 TRENTON, NEW JERSEY 08695-0269

Unless the entity's operations or activities cause it to be considered a profit-making corporation, no further corporation business tax returns or Federal returns are required to be filed with the Division of Taxation. The Division of Taxation does not require the filing of a copy of Federal Form 990. Questions regarding the exemption letter process may be directed to 609-292-5994.

A nonprofit organization properly exempted from filing corporation business tax returns may have other filing requirements with other agencies of the State of New Jersey including, for example, the following:

1. Responsibilities under the Charitable Registration and Investigation Act, N.J.S.A. 45:17A-18 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 13:48; or
2. Responsibility to file Annual Reports, N.J.S.A. 15A:4-5.

Receipts Fraction: Dock Sales Outside New Jersey — The Division responded to a question regarding "dock sales" outside New Jersey. Specifically, this inquiry related to the effect on New Jersey apportionment where the buyer, either directly or via a common carrier that the buyer engaged, picks up inventory from the seller at a site outside New Jersey and then transports the goods into New Jersey. This is the inverse of the New Jersey dock sale rule where goods are shipped to a non-New Jersey customer and possession is transferred in New Jersey resulting in receipts allocable to New Jersey. N.J.A.C. 18:7-8.8(a)1ii.

The Division stated that if a purchaser took direct receipt of the property outside New Jersey in its own vehicles or through a common carrier agent that it had engaged, such sale would be considered a non-New Jersey sale. Thus, the position of the Division is that the inverse of the fact pattern referenced in the rule cited above results in a non-New Jersey sale.

Trade Show Nexus — The nature and frequency of a foreign corporation's activities in this State are determining factors in assessing whether a corporation is "doing business" in New Jersey under N.J.A.C. 18:7-1.9(b). The number of employees in New Jersey is another determining factor.

A state's jurisdiction to impose a tax based on net income is subject to Federal statutory limitations of Pub. L. 86-272, 15 U.S.C. §§361-384(1959), which restricts the power of the states to tax net income derived from sources within the state from interstate commerce if the "only business activity within such state by or on behalf of such person" is the solicitation of orders for sales of tangible personal property where the orders are sent outside of the state for approval or rejection and are filled by shipment or delivery from a point outside of the state.

While the solicitation of business is not enough to establish nexus for New Jersey corporation business tax purposes under Pub. L. 86-272, the corporation may still be subject to a tax on its gross profits or gross receipts earned in New Jersey based on New Jersey's Alternative Minimum Assessment ("AMA"). Corporations are not liable for the AMA if they have New Jersey gross receipts of less than $2.36 million or New Jersey gross profits of less than $1.18 million. If not liable for the AMA, the taxpayer must file a return and pay the minimum tax. If liable for AMA, either the alternative minimum tax or the minimum tax of $500 ($2,000 for members of affiliated or controlled groups) must be paid, whichever is greater.

The presence of employees at trade shows in New Jersey for the purpose of soliciting or generating business establishes physical presence within the State and creates nexus and triggers tax obligations. If the trade show activities are limited solely to: (1) speech or conduct that explicitly or implicitly invites an order; and (2) activities that neither explicitly nor implicitly invite an order but that are entirely ancillary to requests for an order, and involve maintaining a display at a single location for less than two weeks during the tax year, a foreign corporation will not be subject to corporation business tax based on or measured by income. N.J.A.C. 18:7-1.9(d) and 18:7-1.9(d)3v; N.J.A.C. 18:7-1.9(d)2ix.

Gross Income Tax

Military Stipend — A taxpayer recently inquired about the gross income tax consequence of a military stipend paid by an employer to an employee.

The IRS has ruled in Rev. Rul. 69-136 that payments made by employers to former employees who are actively serving in either the Armed Forces of the United States or the National Guard are not subject to FICA, FUTA, and income tax withholding as they are not wages for services performed.

More specifically, Federal law provides that payments made by an employer to employees temporarily serving in a State National Guard that are equal to the difference between their normal wages and the amounts received from the state for their services are wages for the purpose of withholding. But where the employment relationship was terminated when the employee enlisted or was called for active military service with the U.S. government or State National Guard, the wage differential payments made by the employer are not wages subject to withholding.

Therefore, if the payments made to employees by the employer for serving in a military combat zone are not considered wages for services performed during employment with the company and they are not subject to Federal income tax withholding, they are not subject to New Jersey gross income tax withholding.

Motor Fuels Tax

Racing Gasoline — Gasoline is defined by the regulations included in the Administrative Code at N.J.A.C. 18:18-1.1: " 'Gasoline' means any liquid or gaseous substance commonly or commercially known or sold as gasoline regardless of its classification or use." Therefore, under the New Jersey Motor Fuels Tax Act, racing gasoline would be subject to the motor fuels tax. However, there is a provision that allows the taxpayer to apply for a refund when the fuel is used for a specific purpose as set forth in the Motor Fuels Tax Act at N.J.S.A. 54:39-66(i): “Any person: (1) Who shall use any fuels as herein defined for any of the following purposes: ... (i) Such highway motor vehicles as are operated exclusively on private property...”

While racing gasoline is subject to motor fuels tax, a refund claim can be filed by the user under N.J.S.A. 54:39-66(i).

Sales and Use Tax

Early Termination Fee: Wireless Service — The New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act imposes tax on telecommunications services charged to a service address in this State, including all services and equipment provided in connection therewith or by means thereof. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(f). Thus, most components of a cellular telephone bill are subject to the 6% sales tax. However, an early termination fee imposed when a customer cancels service with the carrier prior to the end of the contract term is similar to a penalty or a charge for damages, rather than for any taxable goods or services. Thus, the early termination fee imposed in this case is not subject to New Jersey sales tax.

Restocking and Cut Fees — The Division responded to a question regarding the application of the New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act to restocking and cut fees.

The vendor imposes a “restocking fee” if a customer cancels an order. A fee imposed on “restocking” is not subject to sales tax since there is no “sale” because the item is returned. The restocking fee is not considered an expense of any taxable transaction and by itself is not subject to sales tax. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a).

The vendor imposes a “cut fee” if a customer requires a special size of the goods. Cut fees are inseparable from the underlying product. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(d). Thus, if the merchandise is a taxable item, the cut fee will be subject to tax since it is part of the taxable receipt. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a). Conversely, if the underlying item is an exempt item (such as the sale of clothing), the cut fee is exempt since the underlying item is not subject to tax. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.4. □

Denial of Tax Exemption – Essex Properties Urban Renewal Associates, Inc. v. City of Newark, decided September 4, 2002; Tax Court of New Jersey.

Plaintiff (Essex Properties Urban Renewal Associates, Inc.) requested property tax exemption pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:4-3.6. Essex Properties is incorporated as a nonprofit organization in New Jersey and owns the subject property which it administers as a 24-unit apartment facility for developmentally and/or physically disabled persons. A property tax assessment of $278,700 was imposed on the subject property for tax year 2000.

In 1999 plaintiff applied for property tax exemption with the assessor of Newark. Upon the assessor’s denial of the exemption request, taxpayer appealed to the Essex County Board of Taxation. The county board of taxation affirmed the assessment without prejudice. Essex Properties appealed to Tax Court.

To qualify for exemption under N.J.S.A. 54:4-3.6, a taxpayer must satisfy the following conditions: (1) must be organized exclusively for a tax-exempt purpose; (2) property must be actually and exclusively used for the tax-exempt purpose; and (3) use and operation of the property must not be conducted for profit. Both parties stipulated to conditions (1) (organization for an exempt purpose) and (3) (non-profit operation). The sole issue before the Court is whether Essex Properties' activity qualifies as an actual and exclusive use for an exempt charitable purpose within the meaning of the statute.

The burden of proving tax-exempt status is upon the party claiming exemption. In this case, plaintiff fails to prove that its activity qualifies as an actual and exclusive use for a charitable purpose within the exempt purposes set forth under N.J.S.A. 54:4-3.6. Depending upon the specific facts and circumstances of each case, the courts have granted property tax exemption to certain charitable organizations. Plaintiff relies on Salt and Light Co., Inc. v. Mount Holly Twp., 15 NJ Tax 274 (Tax 1995), aff'd, 16 NJ Tax 40 (App. Div. 1996), cert. denied, 148 NJ 458, 690 A.2d 606 (1997) in support of its claim for tax exemption. Salt and Light provided temporary housing and counseling services to homeless persons. They operated 24 residences in Mount Holly Township, which were purchased and renovated using funds from HUD, Federal home loan grants, government grants and funds, including charitable contributions.

Two-thirds of its residents received public assistance, which included some form of government welfare, distributed directly to Salt and Light. To the extent they were able, the remaining residents paid up to 30 percent of their income as rent. Salt and Light showed that its average daily cost to support the homeless was less than it would cost the government to do so. Rental payments were below market and no individual was evicted solely because of an inability to pay. Under these facts, the Tax Court held that although Salt and Light received government subsidies, it qualified for tax exemption in its use of its facilities to provide temporary shelter and services to the homeless.

Essex Properties argues that, like Salt and Light, they are entitled to tax exemption because they are a nonprofit corporation which provides housing and counseling to low-income, developmentally and/or physically disabled persons, and thereby relieves the government from doing so. However, unlike Salt and Light, Essex Properties failed to show evidence that (1) their rents were below market; (2) individuals not eligible for aid would be admitted into the facility; (3) plaintiff evicts or does not evict tenants who are unable to pay rent left uncovered by HUD; and (4) plaintiff would admit or retain a disabled person who could pay no rent at all.

Essex Properties also argues that, in addition to housing, they provide on-site counseling and support similar to Salt and Light. While Salt and Light provided case managers who offered regular sessions, Healthcare Foundation and HUD paid for Essex Properties' social worker at no cost to plaintiff. This Court found that plaintiff's counseling service is not so unique as to warrant tax exemption. The Court also found that plaintiff's counseling and support service is incidental to plaintiff's main function of renting apartments.

As per Presbyterian Homes, 55 NJ at 286, 261 A.2d 143 "nonprofit status cannot be equated with charitableness." It is only one factor to consider when determining if property is being used for charitable purposes. Accordingly, plaintiff's IRS nonprofit charitable organization 501(c)(3) designation is not, in and of itself, enough to qualify plaintiff for property tax exemption under N.J.S.A. 54:4-3.6.

The Court stated in Salt and Light that "A truly charitable use is not necessarily vitiated by the receipt of government support on behalf of beneficiaries...so long as the charitable entity to some extent relieves a burden on government." Plaintiff fails to demonstrate that its operation of the subject property relieves the government of any burden. In Southern Jersey Family Medical Centers, Inc. v. City of Pleasantville, 351 NJ Super. 262, 798 A.2d 120 (App. Div. 2002), plaintiff's policy was to "treat anyone," and charged patients without insurance according to a sliding fee scale based on each patient's income. No person was denied service solely because of inability to pay. Southern Jersey received funds for services rendered (Medicaid payments) and funds received from Federal grants. The Court found that the facility earned the former by providing medical services to indigent patients and “receipt of these funds...does not impact upon its...exclusive operation for charitable purposes.”

Contrary to Southern Jersey, supra, plaintiff received funds from HUD to construct the subject property and continues to receive Federally subsidized rent income. These amounts are rents paid by HUD for plaintiff’s tenants, all of whom qualified for assistance. These payments are not earned for services rendered, such as healthcare or medical services, but simply rental payments. There is no evidence that plaintiff’s rental rates are below market, that plaintiff serves disabled persons who are not supported by government subsidies, or if plaintiff subsidizes tenants who are unable to pay, thus relieving the government of this burden. If a tenant was evicted for financial reasons, that person would become a public charge, and the State would be obligated to provide care.

This Court finds that plaintiff’s case is analogous to 1711 Third Avenue, Inc. v. Asbury Park, 16 NJ Tax 174 (Tax 1996). Third Avenue, a non-profit corporation, owned property which housed tenants suffering from mental illness. The property was funded in large part by HUD’s Section 811 supportive housing program. The tenants were unemployed and derived their income from social security payments. The tenants made rental payments equal to 30 percent of their income. Management provided counseling and other services to the tenants. The Court held that Third Avenue failed to offer the proper proofs to bring itself clearly within the exempting statute of N.J.S.A. 54:4-3.6.

The Court held that the following can be used as evidence in determining a plaintiff’s exemption claim: (1) financial statements of plaintiff and its managing company, (2) detailed explanation of plaintiff’s and management company’s use of revenues, including amounts paid for salaries, (3) proof that plaintiff charges below market rents, (4) explanation of financial arrangements between plaintiff and management company, (5) breakdown of plaintiff’s and management company’s sources of revenues, (6) whether plaintiff competes with for-profit entities providing housing, and (7) whether plaintiff evicts tenants who are unable to pay rent. St. Luke’s Village, Inc. v. Peapack & Gladstone Borough, 11 NJ Tax 76 (Tax 1990) held that providing affordable housing to low-income persons was not a charitable purpose where there was security for rental payments and residents were required to leave if unable to pay for operating expenses. Plaintiff was unable to demonstrate that the subject property is used for charitable purposes within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 54:4-3.6. Plaintiff failed to meet its burden of proof and bring itself clearly within the meaning of the exempting statute. Without such proof in the record, the Court can only conclude that plaintiff is subject to property tax.

Gross Income Tax Sale, Exchange, or Other Disposition of Property – Diana King v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided April 16, 2004; Tax Court No. 005337-2002.

In April 1991 plaintiff, Ms. Diana King (King), entered into a loan agreement with Amiro Fiorintino Associates, Inc. (AFA). The loan was evidenced by a revolving credit note. The principal shareholder of AFA was the guarantor of the loan. The loan was also secured pursuant to a security agreement granting King a security interest and lien in certain AFA collateral. When King recorded her security interest pursuant to the Uniform Commercial Code (UCC), King’s loan was subordinated to a bank loan. In 1992 and 1995 the loan agreement was amended. Essentially, Ventura Entertainment Group (VEG) was an additional guarantor of AFA’s obligation and the loan was secured pursuant to a security agreement that granted King a security interest in 100,000 shares of VEG.

In 1996 AFA filed Chapter 11 bankruptcy. King filed a proof of claim as a secured creditor in the amount of $568,857.35 consisting of the $450,000 principal, $106,090.65 interest, and $12,766.70 arrears. As a junior secured creditor, King consented to the sale of AFA’s assets conditioned upon her receipt of $120,000 and that she be released from claims against the debtor. King’s consent was evidenced on a bankruptcy document titled “Response of Diana King to the Debtor’s Application for an Order Approving a Purchase Agreement and Authorizing a Sale of Assets.”

Thereafter, King terminated her UCC filings and the bankruptcy proceeding was later dismissed.

On her 1996 Form NJ-1040, King reported a $330,000 loss ($450,000 less $120,000) and $32,973 of attorney fees as a $362,973 nonbusiness bad debt deduction. Thereafter, she filed an amended return reclassifying the $362,973 as a long-term capital loss, claiming that it was an investment loss on the disposition of a security. On both her NJ-1040 return and amended return, King offset this loss against other gains included under N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1c disposition of property category. However, the Division disallowed the deduction, claiming that it was a nondeductible, nonbusiness bad debt.

N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1c includes net gains, net losses, and net income derived from the sale, exchange, or other disposition of property. At issue is whether King engaged in a sale, exchange, or disposition of property. The Court found that King settled her claim for a reduced amount by giving up her right to sue on the note and that she did not sell or transfer the note evidencing the debt or any other security. Also, the Court noted that King presented no evidence that she exchanged the note. Citing Vinnick and Walsh, the Court upheld the Division's assessment.

Wrapping Supplies Exemption – Quest Diagnostics, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided September 9, 2004; Tax Court No. 005140-2002.

Plaintiff (Quest) operates a laboratory that performs and provides test results on human blood and other bodily fluids. Initially, Quest purchases vacutainers or similar devices, which are test tubes used to collect specimens, that are empty except that they contain chemical anticoagulants or clot activators. The vacutainers are shipped to Quest in sealed packages. Quest provides these vacutainers at no charge to physicians or to facilities operated by Quest. Then, Quest collects them from the physician's office when specimens are filled for testing and delivers them to the Quest laboratory. Unused vacutainers can be returned to Quest in their original packaging. Quest's competitors also provide physicians with the same or similar vacutainers and none of the vacutainers are identifiable to indicate whether they were provided by Quest or a competitor. After Quest completes testing, it destroys the used vacutainers and invoices the patient or the insurance company.

At issue is whether Quest's purchases of vacutainers qualify for an exemption from the Sales and Use Tax Act. In general, N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.15 (8.15) provides an exemption for the sales or use of wrapping supplies including cartons, nonreturnable containers, etc., and all other wrapping supplies that are used incidentally in the delivery of personal property.

The Court determined that whether the vacutainers were wrapping supplies and whether their use was incidental to the delivery of personal property must be determined based upon Quest's use of the vacutainers and not the physician's later use of collecting specimens and their return to the Quest laboratory for testing and destruction. Under the statutory definition of "use," the Court concluded that both Quest's purchase of the vacutainers and its delivery to physicians was a "use" of the product. First, the Court found that the vacutainers qualified as containers. In order to qualify for the 8.15 exemption, the statute specifically requires that containers be nonreturnable. The Court determined that Quest's sole purpose in providing vacutainers to physicians was to encourage physicians to return vacutainers containing specimens for testing purposes. Therefore, the Court held that the vacutainers were returnable containers and did not qualify for the 8.15 exemption. Additionally, the Court reasoned that as containers the vacutainers could not also qualify under the category of "all other wrapping supplies" because the statutory nonreturnable container requirement would be meaningless if a returnable container could qualify under another category.

The Court proceeded to discuss whether the vacutainers would have qualified for the "incidental to the delivery of personal property" requirement. The Court found that providing empty vacutainers, except for chemicals, to physicians was not a use that was "incidental to the delivery of personal property" because Quest did not use the vacutainers to deliver personal property. Only the physicians placed specimens, personal property, into the vacutainers for delivery to plaintiff. The Court opined that Quest's delivery of the vacutainers to the physicians was the use that determined the issue of taxability and that the physician's use of placing specimens in them and returning them to Quest is a separate, independent, second use of the container that could not be imputed to Quest. Additionally, the Court noted that the physician's use could not be attributable to Quest because Quest-purchased vacutainers may be returned to Quest or a competitor and likewise a competitor-purchased vacutainer may be returned to Quest or the competitor. Therefore, the physician's use of a Quest vacutainer may not be as a facilitator for Quest. Finally, the Court concluded that the statute refers to wrapping supplies used to deliver personal property to a third party and not to oneself. The Court found that the facts indicated that Quest used vacutainers to deliver personal property to itself regardless of whether an independent physician or Quest's facilities used the vacutainers to collect specimens and return them to Quest. □

Preparer Sentenced to Prison for Tax Fraud

A joint-agency investigation with the Division of Criminal Justice aimed at targeting tax fraud has uncovered the largest "tax refund fraud" scheme investigated in State history by the Division of Taxation. The investigation resulted in the filing of criminal charges against Rosa M. Castro, a tax preparer from Clifton, New Jersey. The charges allege that she has prepared close to 2,000 fraudulent New Jersey gross income tax returns seeking over $1,000,000 in illegal refunds.

The tax fraud investigation was initiated by the Division of Revenue which, in February of 2003, identified 21 suspicious tax returns bearing certain similarities. The investigation conducted by the Division of Taxation identified 1,978 fictitious and/or fraudulent New Jersey gross income tax returns allegedly prepared and filed by Rosa Castro for herself, family members, friends, and others using actual and fictitious names and social security numbers. Two types of fraud have been identified, including "Earned Income Tax Credit" fraud and "Refund" fraud. Undercover investigators were able to meet with Rosa Castro at her home office. During these meetings, Rosa Castro prepared false and fraudulent tax returns utilizing fictitious information on behalf of the undercover investigators.

On March 1, 2004, agents from the Division of Criminal Justice and the Division of Taxation executed a search warrant at the residence of Rosa M. Castro which resulted in the seizure of records relating to refund fraud and the preparation of false and fraudulent New Jersey gross income tax returns. Ms. Castro was charged in a complaint summons with theft by deception (second degree) and filing false and fraudulent tax returns (third degree). Bail was set at $50,000 with no 10% option.

As part of a plea agreement, Rosa Castro entered guilty pleas in Passaic County to the charges on June 30, 2004. On August 20, 2004, Ms. Castro was sentenced to five years in State prison and ordered to make restitution of $141,354. In addition, Ms. Castro, who is on Federal probation for having committed similar crimes in the 1990s, faces revocation of her Federal probation and incarceration for the balance of her Federal sentence. The investigation is continuing and additional charges may be forthcoming for others that conspired with, and/or received monies as a result of Rosa Castro's actions.

This case represents only the most visible of a number of initiatives the Division of Taxation has undertaken to combat tax refund and tax credit fraud. In addition to investigating and prosecuting preparers of fraudulent returns and the recipients of fraudulent refunds, the Division also employs a sophisticated system of internal controls to identify questionable refund applications and prevent the issuance of funds to which the applicants are not entitled, while insuring the timely payment of legitimate refunds.

This is another example of outstanding cooperation between agencies to level the playing field for New Jersey's taxpayers and to insure that the State's financial resources are protected from those seeking to personally profit by fraud at the expense of honest taxpayers. □

CORPORATION BUSINESS TAX New Jersey Throw Out

Regulation 18:7-8.7(d) details the Division's interpretation of the "throw-out" provision of the Business Tax Reform Act of 2002.

Receipts sourced to a state, a possession or a territory of the United States or the District of Columbia, or to any foreign country in which the taxpayer is not subject to a tax on or measured by profits or income or business presence or business activity shall be excluded from the denominator of the sales fraction of the allocation factor.

Recently the Division has received inquiries regarding how this provision would apply to sales sourced to states which do not impose corporate income or franchise taxes as well as to sales sourced to states where the taxpayer is protected from taxation by Pub. L. 86-272. The question becomes whether or not the taxpayer is subject to tax.

In the case of sales to a state or jurisdiction which does not impose a tax, such as Nevada, the taxpayer clearly would not be subject to a tax, so any sales sourced to that jurisdiction would be thrown out of the receipts fraction denominator.

In situations where a corporation is sourcing receipts to a state where the taxpayer is immune from income taxation due to Pub. L. 86-272, the question becomes whether the state subjects the taxpayer to tax based on business presence or business activity. These types of taxes can include net worth taxes or gross receipts taxes. Therefore, a corporation taxpayer selling into a state that imposes only a net income tax, and whose activity is limited to solicitation of sale of tangible personal property, is therefore immune from taxation and is required to “throw out” those receipts sourced to that state from the New Jersey receipts fraction denominator. However, if the same state, in addition to its corporate income tax, imposed an apportioned net worth tax, the receipts sourced to that state and subject to the net worth tax would not be “thrown out” of the New Jersey denominator. □

Criminal Enforcement over the past several months has included:

- On March 1, 2004, Hiteshkum Patel of Edison, New Jersey, was arrested by police at the Delaware Memorial Bridge, Pennsville Township, New Jersey, attempting to smuggle 239 cartons of Delaware-stamped cigarettes into New Jersey. The Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) determined that Patel owns stores in Newark, Linden, and Irvington. OCI seized 32 cartons of Delaware-stamped cigarettes and 157 untaxed tobacco products from the Newark store, 119.1 cartons of Delaware-stamped cigarettes from the Linden store, and 3 cartons of Delaware-stamped cigarettes from the Irvington store. The repeated offenses have resulted in a joint investigation with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms, and Explosives
- On March 23, 2004, confirmation was received from Superior Court – Hudson County, that John Drzymkowski of Berkeley Heights, New Jersey, was admitted into the Pretrial Intervention Program (a supervision program for first-time offenders charged with nonviolent crimes) for a term of 36 months and ordered to make restitution of $331,039.36 pursuant to his guilty plea on July 28, 2003, to one count of failing to file tax returns. The charges involve $301,000 in petroleum products gross receipts tax which Drymco, Inc., a now-defunct heating oil company collected on diesel fuel sales in 1999 and 2000. This matter was prosecuted by the State Attorney General.

- On March 24, 2004, Wifki A. Seed of West New York, New Jersey, the manager of a convenience store in Newark, was found in possession of 856 counterfeit New Jersey cigarette tax stamps along with 110 cartons of untaxed cigarettes. He was in the process of applying the counterfeit stamps to packs that appear to have had another state's stamp removed. A computer, printer, and other counterfeiting paraphernalia were seized from the subject's residence. The investigation is continuing.
- On April 7, 2004, Lan Fang Zhang and Min Liang Yu, both of New York City, were arrested by OCI while loading a van with untaxed cigarettes from a storage unit at the U-Store-It facility in Jersey City, New Jersey. The cartons consisted of counterfeit/trademark violation Newports as well as illegal Chinese and British import cigarettes. 14,757 cartons of cigarettes, two vans, three cell phones, $550 in cash, documents, and ledgers were seized. The subjects were held in the Hudson County Jail on $100,000 bail each. Taxation's Facilities Management Activity assisted in securing this large volume of contraband. The tax loss averted was $353,881.

- On April 13, 2004, a grand jury indicted Lamine Ouattara of East Orange on charges of theft by deception, impersonation, and theft of identity arising from his filing of multiple fraudulent 2002 New Jersey gross income tax returns and subsequent receipt of $9,300 in refunds. Ouattara created fictitious identities and claimed the Earned Income Tax Credit on the returns. The case is a joint investigation with the Essex County Prosecutor's Office and the East Orange Police Department.
- On April 13, 2004, OCI arrested Ming Gan Zhang of New York in possession of 2,354.4 cartons of untaxed cigarettes in a van and storage unit at U-Store-It, Jersey City, New Jersey. The cigarettes were counterfeit/trademark violation Marlboro and Newport, and Chinese imports. The van, two cell phones, and $707 were also seized. Zhang was held on $100,000 bail. The tax loss averted was $56,458.50.
- On April 20, 2004, Gary Dewayne Dennington pled guilty in United States District Court, Beaumont, Texas, to six counts of mail fraud. Dennington, a Federal prison inmate in Beaumont, prepared counterfeit W-2 forms and filed fraudulent New Jersey gross income tax returns for the years 1998, 1999, and 2002 to claim refunds, but security procedures in place blocked his receipt of the funds. This case is a joint investigation with the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Beaumont, Texas.

- On April 22, 2004, a State Grand Jury in Trenton, New Jersey, indicted Oscar Kirkconnell of Elizabeth, New Jersey, on charges of theft, misapplication and failure to pay over $88,308.44 in sales tax collected, filing fraudulent sales tax returns, and failure to maintain records from January 1, 1999, to September 30, 2002, in connection with Kirkconnell's go-go bar in Elizabeth. The Elizabeth Police Department assisted in the investigation. The matter was presented to the grand jury by the State Office of the Attorney General. This case is part of the Division of Taxation's program of progressive enforcement, utilized in cases in which taxpayers fail to comply with the Division's civil audit, enforcement, and educational outreach programs. In this case, a civil audit in 1998 resulted in a $19,000 sales tax assessment against this taxpayer, which was not satisfied until the business was seized by the Division's Compliance Activity.
- On April 22, 2004, Norman D. Levine of Manchester was indicted by a Monmouth County Grand Jury on charges of possession and sale of untaxed cigarettes. Levine was arrested by OCI in December 2003 after an investigation identified Levine as the recipient of untaxed cigarettes by way of a FedEx shipment from Virginia. Levine appeared in court in Maryland on December 12, 2003, in a case stemming from a previous arrest. Immediately after pleading guilty to a felony count of transportation/possession of contraband cigarettes, Levine was followed by agents of the Maryland Comptroller of the Treasury to Virginia and North Carolina where they observed him purchasing cigarettes again and shipping them from Virginia Beach to a New Jersey business. OCI surveillance led to the arrest of Levine after he took possession of the cigarettes and was placing them in a storage unit in Neptune Township. Levine was actively engaged in a mail-order business with his own Internet site, keeping in contact with his customers via e-mail. The storage unit was set up much like a shipping facility to support his illegal enterprise. There he categorized and stored numerous brands of cigarettes, preparing them for shipment in specially manufactured, unmarked shipping boxes. A total of 754 cartons of contraband cigarettes were seized; 457 cartons were in the delivery that had been observed, and the remainder was found in his storage unit. A combination of Delaware tax stamped, Virginia tax stamped, and unstamped cigarettes (from North Carolina) were seized along with $2,138 in cash and a 1998 Mercury. Levine was charged with transportation and sale of untaxed cigarettes and possession of more than 20,000 unstamped cigarettes, and released on $25,000 bail.

- On April 22, 2004, confirmation was received that Antonio Couso of Wayne, New Jersey, who had pled guilty to one count of possession of counterfeit stamped cigarettes in the Bergen County Superior Court, was sentenced to three years' probation, thirty days' community service, one day's jail credit, and $155 in fees and costs.
- On April 29, 2004, Jeffrey and Cynthia Levy of Cherry Hill, New Jersey, were charged with failing to pay the State almost $170,000 in sales tax collected from customers and income tax withheld from employees of several janitorial businesses the husband and wife couple operated between 1994 and 2001. A joint investigation conducted by the Camden County Prosecutor's Office and the Division of Taxation's Office of Criminal Investigation revealed that the couple attempted to hide the diversion of funds by conducting business through a succession of business entities: Executive Maintenance Company, Executive Maintenance, Inc., and Executive Maintenance Industries, Inc., all located in Cherry Hill, New Jersey.

- On May 21, 2004, Philip McKeaney of Cherry Hill, New Jersey, was sentenced to jail for seven years and ordered to pay over one million dollars in restitution as a result of pleading guilty to charges of insurance fraud and failure to pay various State taxes. McKeaney, through his insurance brokerage company, defrauded clients of over $1.6 million by failing to provide medical insurance coverage for their employees. McKeaney diverted some of the stolen funds to his data processing business, Cambria Corporation, which was found to have failed to remit New Jersey gross income tax and Department of Labor withholdings that totaled $72,343. Michael Evangelista, president of Cambria, was sentenced to five years' probation and full restitution of the tax.

- On June 8, 2004, three executives of JCA Associates, Inc., a Burlington County-based engineering firm, pled guilty to filing false and fraudulent corporation business tax returns to conceal illegal campaign contributions. As a result Mark Neisser, President, Henry Chudzinski, Director of Marketing, and William Vuokoder, CFO will all have to resign and divest themselves of any associations with JCA, its subsidiaries, or any entity that has a business relationship with the firm. The resignations and divestitures will be for terms ranging from two to five years. JCA will also pay a $100,000 fine.
- On June 8, 2004, Mitesh "Gary" Shah was arrested at his retail store in Middletown Township, New Jersey, after execution of a Shah had been on probation as a result of his prior arrest by OCI in a cigarette counterfeiting case.

- On June 18, 2004, in Superior Court – Hudson County, Ivo Perez of Paramus, New Jersey, was sentenced to five years' probation and restitution totaling $141,417 pursuant to his guilty plea to charges of failure to file sales and use tax returns and failure to pay over $72,639.80 in sales and use tax from October 1996 to December 2001 at his vehicle rental business, Metro Rental Services Inc., North Bergen, New Jersey. A plea agreement requires that Perez also file and pay delinquent sales tax, gross income tax withholding and corporation business tax returns and turn over the books and records of his businesses. This investigation was conducted in cooperation with the Division of Taxation's Field Investigations Branch and was prosecuted by the State Attorney General.
- On June 23, 2004, in Newark Municipal Court, Miguel A. Puca of Newark, New Jersey, was charged with failing to file motor fuels tax returns and failure to pay $60,397 in motor fuels tax from April 2003 to April 2004 in connection with retail sales of diesel fuel to trucking companies.

This case was based on a letter from the owner of a local gas station who complained that the subject was harming legitimate businesses by evading the motor fuels tax.

- One hundred twenty-three (123) complaints alleging tax evasion were evaluated from April through June 2004 in the Office of Criminal Investigation.
- During the same period, one hundred forty-seven (147) charges were filed in court and thirty-one (31) arrests were made in thirty (30) cases involving violations of the Cigarette Tax Act. Administration

Business Registration Requirements — N.J.S.A. 52:32-44, as amended by P.L. 2004, c.57, bars a "contracting agency" from entering into any contract with a "business organization" (denoted as a "contractor" or "subcontractor") for the providing of goods or services or to construct a construction project, unless the contracting agency has been provided with a copy of the business registration of the contractor (and any subcontractor as the case may be) by the contractor. No contractor under any contract with a contracting agency may contract with a subcontractor to carry out the terms of the contract with the agency, unless the subcontractor first provides proof of its valid business registration to the contractor.

The law defines "contracting agency" as meaning "the principal departments in the Executive Branch of the State Government, and any division, board, bureau, office, commission or other instrumentality within or created by the Legislative Branch or the Judicial Branch, or any independent State authority, commission, instrumentality or agency or any State college or university, any county college, or any local unit." "Local Unit" includes county and municipal governments, private firms providing water supply and wastewater treatment services, and incorporated nonprofit associations providing wastewater treatment services to a city of the first class.

All business organizations normally register with the State by completing and filing a Business Registration Application (Form NJ-REG) which can be found on the Division of Revenue's Web site at: www.state.nj.us/njbgs/revprnt.htm.

Individuals having no sales, business tax, or employer obligations with the State of New Jersey, but still doing business with an in-state contracting agency as defined, should still complete the Certification and Registration for Individuals Contracting With State Agencies (Form NJ-REG-A). Form NJ-REG-A is available on the Division of Revenue's Web site at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/revenue/pdf/forms/reg_a.pdf.

S Corporation Member of LLC —

If a single member of a single-member LLC is considered a corporation for Federal purposes, the member corporation will be subject to New Jersey corporation business tax. An S corporation shall be considered a C corporation for New Jersey corporation business tax purposes unless it elects New Jersey S corporation status. A C corporation is required to file a New Jersey Corporation Business Tax Return, (Form CBT-100), an annual report, and pay all applicable fees and taxes.

A Federally recognized S corporation may elect to be a New Jersey S corporation as long as it is registered as a foreign corporation authorized to do business in New Jersey. The corporation must properly complete and file a New Jersey S Corporation Election (Form CBT-2553) to request recognition as an S corporation for New Jersey corporation business tax purposes. Approved New Jersey S corporations must complete and file an S Corporation Business Tax Return, (Form CBT-100S), along with the annual report.

Despite having no income, any corporation subject to New Jersey corporation business tax must pay no less than the minimum tax when filing its corporation business tax return unless specifically exempted by law, N.J.S.A. 54:10A-5(e). The minimum tax for a corporation is $500 unless it is part of a controlled or affiliated group having $5,000,000 or more in payroll; then the minimum tax is $2,000.

Gross Income Tax

Resident Aliens — The New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act does not distinguish between aliens and citizens. Therefore, an alien working in New Jersey will be subject to New Jersey tax as either a resident or a nonresident of New Jersey.

N.J.S.A. 54A:1-2(m)(2) defines a resident taxpayer to include an individual who is not domiciled in New Jersey, but maintains a permanent place of abode in this State and spends in the aggregate more than 183 days of the tax year in New Jersey, unless such individual is in the United States Armed Forces. All income, including wages, earned by a resident taxpayer of New Jersey, even if they are an alien, is subject to New Jersey gross income tax even though such income is exempt from Federal income tax. Nonresidents are subject to tax only on income derived from sources within New Jersey.

The same would be true despite the existence of a tax treaty between the alien's country of domicile and the United States, unless such treaty specifically exempts the alien from all tax obligations rather than providing an exemption solely from Federal tax obligations.

Employer-Provided Commuter Transportation Benefits —

The Division responded to an inquiry regarding employer-provided commuter transportation benefits and whether employees can make a pretax deduction to pay for non-employer-provided section 132 transportation benefits.

The statute provides for employer-provided commuter transportation benefits and it does not allow employees to make a pretax deduction on their own accord as stated at N.J.S.A. 54A:6-23(c), which states that "the exclusion provided by subsection a. of this section shall not apply to any commuter transportation benefit unless such benefit is provided in addition to and not in lieu of any compensation otherwise payable to the employee."

Therefore, employees cannot make a pretax deduction to pay for non-employer-provided commuter transportation expenses.

Motor Fuels Tax

Tax on Stolen Motor Fuel — The Division responded to a question regarding the motor fuels tax on stolen motor fuel. The taxpayer asked if New Jersey gives any kind of tax allowance on motor fuels tax for "driveaways" in which the purchaser of the motor fuel drives away without paying.

The theft of motor fuels is treated as a sale of motor fuel as set forth at N.J.S.A. 54:39-7, which states that "... 'Sale' means and includes, in addition to its ordinary meaning, any exchange, gift, theft, or other disposition. In every case where fuels are exchanged, given, stolen or otherwise disposed of, they shall be deemed to have been sold...."

The regulations also define a theft as a sale as set forth at N.J.A.C. 18:18-1.1, which states that "... 'Sale' means, in addition to its ordinary meaning, any exchange, gift, theft, or other disposition. In every case where fuels are exchanged, given, stolen, or otherwise disposed of, they shall be deemed to have been sold...."

Therefore, since the sale of motor fuel is defined to include the theft

of motor fuel, New Jersey does not provide an allowance or percentage on a motor fuels tax return to compensate the seller for tax on stolen motor fuel.

Stolen motor fuel is treated as if it were sold for motor fuels tax purposes.

Sales and Use Tax

Canine Dental Cleaning — Professional cleaning of a dog's teeth is considered a medical-surgical procedure when performed under anesthesia. It is done in order to remove tartar from the teeth and to examine the dog's mouth for signs of gum disease, loose or broken teeth, and other oral conditions requiring further surgery, medical treatment, or monitoring. The professional cleaning under anesthesia is therefore part of the "practice of veterinary medicine, surgery and dentistry," as defined in N.J.A.C. 13:44-3.1, and as used in the regulations of the State Board of Medical Examiners governing the veterinary profession. N.J.A.C. 13:44-1.1 et seq. This service is treated the same as other veterinary diagnostic and surgical procedures. It is deemed not to fall within any of the categories of services enumerated as taxable in N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3 and is therefore exempt from sales and use tax.

Because of concerns for the groomers' safety, it is unlikely that pet groomers regularly perform nonprofessional dental cleaning services, which would be limited to lightly scrubbing a dog's teeth with a washcloth or soft brush, as pet owners might do at home. Pet groomers bathe dogs, cut their fur, clip their nails, and brush and groom their fur. If they also use dips, flea sprays, tick applications, and other pesticides as part of their grooming services, they are subject to the training and licensing requirements of the Department of Environmental Protection regarding the commercial use of pesticides. N.J.A.C. 7:30-6.3(a)8 vi. But, as service providers not schooled and trained in medicine, they would not be qualified to administer the anesthesia necessary in order to perform a professional dental cleaning service, which is not deemed to be a "grooming" service for the purposes of the Sales and Use Tax Act.

Gap Insurance — The Division responded to an inquiry concerning whether the cost for a debt cancellation contract is taxable under the Sales and Use Tax Act when it is included in the amount financed by the lessee or purchaser.

The inquirer markets a product called Guaranteed Auto Protection (GAP) coverage. This product provides protection to a consumer who finances a vehicle in the event the vehicle is totaled and the settlement amount paid by the primary insurance carrier is not enough to cover the value of the loan balance. This is often the case in the first few years of a loan, especially when the consumer has a very small down payment. This product can be marketed in two ways:

- An insurance product — the product is marketed to consumers by auto dealers or directly by an insurance company. The cost of the insurance is paid as a premium and the borrower makes claims to the insurance company itself; or
- A debt cancellation contract — the product is marketed to consumers through auto dealers on behalf of the lenders who are the insured and who enter into a contractual agreement with the borrower (for a fee) to waive any further indebtedness of the borrower in the event the vehicle is totaled. These waivers are backed up by insurance indemnification between the lenders and an insurance company.

The sale of GAP insurance by the licensed insurance company to the automobile dealer-lessor or to the creditor financial institution is viewed as an exempt insurance service transaction. Therefore, the premiums paid by the insured to the licensed insurer are not subject to sales and use tax. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(e)(4)(A).

However, if the insured automobile dealer or financial institution then contracts with a particular customer for an extra amount of money in exchange for either waiving a GAP deficiency or assigning rights under the policy to the lessee, this additional billing is not deemed to be the sale of an "insurance service." It is simply an increase in the taxable lease receipt and is therefore included in the tax base for purposes of computing the lessor's use tax liability under the lease-payment method. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(d).

Corporation Business Tax Interest-Free Loans – Metro Touch, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided Letter Opinion March 26, 2004, and Formal Opinion May 11, 2004; Tax Court No. 004359-2002.

In 1996, Ida Shapiro owned 100% of the corporate stock of plaintiff Metro Touch, Inc. Shapiro also owned 75% of the corporate stock of Perfect Host, Inc. as well as a 75% ownership interest in its successor, Perfect Host, LLC. In 1997, Shapiro’s ownership interest in Perfect Host, LLC decreased to 49.3097%.

Since January 1, 1996, Metro Touch’s balance sheet reflected non-interest-bearing loans to Perfect Host, Inc. or Perfect Host, LLC. The Division therefore imputed interest income to Metro Touch pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:10A-10 of the Corporation Business Tax Act (CBTA).

N.J.S.A. 54:10A-10a permits the Division to make adjustments to and redetermine a corporation’s income where the income is improperly or inaccurately reflected. Additionally, N.J.S.A. 54:10A-10b allows the Division to include in a corporation’s income the “fair profits” from a transaction where it is determined that the transaction was entered into at less than a fair price for the direct or indirect benefit of a shareholder. Under the regulations, N.J.A.C. 18:7-5.10(a)(5) provides that interest should be charged on loans between related parties.

Relying on guidance from Federal court decisions, the Court found that marketplace loans would not be made on an interest-free basis and as a result the loans in question were at less than a fair price and resulted in plaintiff’s income being improperly or inaccurately reflected. Furthermore, the Court determined that the Division’s imputation of interest income was not dependent on the two entities being controlled by the same person or persons because the statutory standard is whether the arrangement benefits a shareholder directly or indirectly. Therefore, the Court upheld the Division’s assessment finding it neither arbitrary nor unreasonable and a proper exercise of his discretion under the statute and regulation. The Court also noted that N.J.A.C. 18:7-5.10(b) “represents a reasonable exercise by the Director of the discretion granted to him by the Legislature.”

Metro Touch, Inc. did not appeal the Tax Court’s decision.

Real Estate Investment Trust – UNB Investment Company, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided May 12, 2004; Tax Court No. 004760-2003.

Bridgewater Mortgage Company, Inc. (BMC) is a wholly owned subsidiary of plaintiff (UNB), a New Jersey corporation. BMC qualifies as a real estate investment trust (REIT) under both Federal income tax law and the New Jersey Corporation Business Tax Act (CBTA).

In 1997, BMC paid an $11.7 million dividend to UNB, which BMC deducted on its corporation business tax (CBT) return when it computed taxable income. UNB reported the dividend as dividend income on its CBT return and then excluded the dividend pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4(k)(5), which provided for a 100% dividends-received deduction from 80% or more owned subsidiaries.

The Division acknowledged that BMC’s deduction from taxable income for dividends paid was proper as it was in accordance with the Corporate Property Investors decision, where the Court held that for New Jersey CBT purposes a REIT is permitted the same dividends-paid deduction as is permitted under Federal income tax law. However, the Division denied UNB's N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4(k)(5) dividends-received deduction as a logical consequence of the Corporate Property Investors decision. The Division recognized that Internal Revenue Code §243(a) generally permitted corporations to deduct dividends received; however, Internal Revenue Code §857(c) denied this deduction where dividends were received from REITs.

In analyzing the legislative history and case law, the Court concluded that the Division's interpretation of the CBTA was reasonable and made with sufficient statutory authority; however, the Court voided the assessment because of the Division's failure to promulgate a regulation addressing this issue pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act (APA). The Court reasoned that the denial of the deduction was consistent with the legislative intent to attract REITs into New Jersey, did not result in the double taxation of dividends, and was consistent with the entire statutory scheme. Regardless, the Court found that the statute was ambiguous, that the Division's determination was not obviously inferable from the statute, and that the Division's determination was in the nature of interpretation of law or general policy. Therefore, the Court concluded that the Division's determination constituted a rule that must be formally promulgated pursuant to the APA. The Court also rejected the argument that a regulation was not needed because under N.J.S.A. 54:10A-10 the Director is granted the authority to make adjustments to income amounts to correct distortions of income, or where income was improperly or inaccurately reflected. The Court concluded that dividends had been properly reported and deducted on UNB's CBT return, and that owning a REIT cannot be regarded as conducting business to distort income.

The Director did not appeal the Tax Court's decision.

Subjectivity – Home Impressions, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided June 7, 2004; Tax Court No. 000099-2003.

Plaintiff (Home Impressions) is a North Carolina corporation that did not own, rent, or maintain property in New Jersey. Independent sales contractors solicited orders in New Jersey from potential customers of Home Impressions' tangible products and then forwarded orders for approval to Home Impressions' principal place of business in North Carolina. Products were later shipped to the customers from Home Impressions' Virginia distribution center.

The Division determined that Home Impressions was required to file corporation business tax (CBT) returns because it was subject to the minimum flat tax. Home Impressions claimed that it did not have to file income tax returns because it was protected by Pub. L. 86-272.

The Court's analysis commenced with first determining whether the instant tax violated either the Commerce Clause or Due Process Clause of the Federal Constitution. In Quill, the United States Supreme Court ruled that the solicitation of orders satisfied the minimum contacts requirement of the Due Process Clause. Therefore, the Court opined that solicitation by Home Impressions' independent contractors was sufficient.

Addressing Commerce Clause concerns, the Court found that the standard was whether taxpayer's activities created a substantial nexus with the taxing state. Substantial nexus, in turn, requires physical presence. The Court found that the physical presence of the independent contractors in New Jersey constituted the substantial nexus required by the Commerce Clause. As stated in the United States Supreme Court decision in Scripto, the fact that independent contractors are not traditional employees is not a distinction of any constitutional significance.

As there was no constitutional impediment, the Court turned to the issue of whether the minimum flat tax conflicted with Pub. L. 86-272. In pertinent part, Pub. L. 86-272 provides that a state may not impose a net income tax on income derived within the state where the only business activity in the state is the solicitation of orders for tangible personalty, where the orders are sent outside the state for approval, and where the products are shipped into the state from a point outside the state. Home Impressions claimed that despite its label as a franchise tax, the CBT minimum flat tax is in reality based on income.

The Court ruled that Pub. L. 86-272 did not protect foreign corporations from the CBT minimum flat tax because this tax is not based on net income. The Court relied on New Jersey case law that the imposition of a reporting requirement on foreign corporations did not conflict with Pub. L. 86-272 and that Pub. L. 86-272 did not apply to the net worth portion of the CBT. It should be noted that prior to the CBT minimum flat tax, the amount of CBT liability was measured by both net worth and net income. The Court reasoned that the Director was using the activity of Home Impressions in New Jersey as a reporting requirement and not as a means of calculating the amount of minimum flat tax due.

Insurance Tax

Retaliatory Tax – Pruco Life Insurance Company v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided March 23, 2004; Tax Court No. 004058-2003.

Plaintiff (Pruco) is an Arizona corporation and a wholly owned subsidiary of the Prudential Insurance Company of America, a New Jersey insurance company. Pruco's principal office is located in Newark, New Jersey.

In 1998 and 1999, Pruco filed returns but did not report any retaliatory tax obligation to New Jersey, arguing that the N.J.S.A. 54:18A-6 cap applied to both the New Jersey tax obligation and Arizona tax obligation in the calculation of determining retaliatory tax due to New Jersey. The cap statute functions to limit New Jersey tax liability where New Jersey premiums exceed 12.5% of total worldwide premiums. If this threshold is met, then the tax is applied to 12.5% of the worldwide premiums. Although the Division acknowledged that the 12.5% cap applied, the Division assessed retaliatory tax because Pruco is a foreign corporation. In determining the amount of retaliatory tax liability, the Division calculated the tax that would be due under the tax laws of Arizona and subtracted the amount of New Jersey tax due using the 12.5% cap.

Relying on its recent decision in American Fire and Casualty Company & West American Insurance Company (See New Jersey State Tax News, Summer 2004), the Court rejected Pruco's first two arguments. First, the Court found that calculating the retaliatory tax involved a mathematical calculation comparing the actual tax obligation due in New Jersey under New Jersey law with the actual tax obligation that would be due in Arizona pursuant to Arizona law. Therefore, Pruco's arguments relating to statutory interpretation as well as the policies and purposes of the cap and retaliatory tax statutes were rejected. Secondly, the Court rejected Pruco's constitutional challenge that the Division's interpretation converted the retaliatory tax into a revenue measure rather than a regulatory measure and was an equal protection violation. As in American Fire and Casualty Company, the Court found that the application of the two statutes served a legitimate State interest and that the Legislature could have determined that the statutes as applied reasonably furthered or fulfilled that State interest.

Plaintiff also challenged the assessment, asserting that the Division was not in compliance with the Administrative Procedure Act (APA) because the Division's policy for applying the cap and retaliatory tax statutes was not embodied in any official promulgation and therefore reflected rulemaking. After weighing and analyzing the six Metromedia factors along with the Airwork Service Division decision, the Court determined that the Division's interpretation and application of the N.J.S.A. 17B:23-5 retaliatory tax statute together with the N.J.S.A. 54:18A-6 cap statute did not constitute rulemaking activities under Metromedia and therefore did not violate the APA.

Pruco Life Insurance Company has appealed the Tax Court's decision.

Local Property Tax

Exemption Status – Congregation Ahavath Torah v. City of Englewood, decided January 23, 2004; Tax Court No. 004020-1999.

Plaintiff Congregation Ahavath Torah appeals a judgment of the Bergen County Board of Taxation applicable to tax year 1999 which denied a property tax exemption for the home of the church's cantor. Plaintiff Congregation Ahavath Torah claims the building occupied by the cantor is entitled to exemption pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:4-3.6 because the "Parsonage Exemption" allows an exemption of up to two buildings "actually occupied as a parsonage by the officiating clergymen of any religious corporation of this State."

Plaintiff is a religious corporation of the State of New Jersey which owns two residential properties in Englewood. One of the properties is a parsonage for the synagogue's rabbi and is exempt without dispute. At issue is whether 157 Van Nostrand Avenue (Block 2911, Lot 20), which is used as a residence for the synagogue's cantor, has exempt status.

The full-time, permanent cantor lives in the subject property. He performs a variety of services for the congregation including: directing liturgical prayer, conducting various prayer services, assisting in the daily services, participating in weddings and funerals, and reading or chanting from the sacred texts on holidays. Members of this congregation are not allowed to perform duties of a cantor without the cantor's consent. The parties agree that the rabbi's residence is exempt under the statute. However, they disagree about whether the cantor's role is such that a residence set aside by the synagogue for the use of the cantor qualifies for exemption.

Decisions interpreting the Parsonage Exemption undertake a factual inquiry to determine whether the individual in question serves a congregation in a way that is consistent with the concept of an officiating clergy. The cases look to the character and extent of activities within the religious organization. Friends of Ahi Ezer Congregation, Inc. v. Long Branch City, 16 N.J. Tax 591 (Tax 1997), Shrine of Our Lady of Fatima v. Mantua, 12 N.J. Tax 392 (Tax 1992). The decision examined many factors to determine if an individual is an officiant within the meaning of the Parsonage Exemption, and it is clear that it is not status or title, but services performed that determine if the exemption will apply. The Appellate Division, in St. Matthew's Lutheran Church for the Deaf v. Division of Tax Appeals, 18 N.J. Super 552 (App. Div. 1952), explained that the Parsonage Exemption requires that an "officiating clergyman" when associated with "parsonage" must be a pastor installed over a parish, church, or congregation. When he is an "officiating clergyman of any religious corporation" he must be serving the needs of a reasonably localized and established congregation.

New Jersey's Parsonage Exemption recognizes that more than one individual with a congregation may be considered officiating clergy under the statute, as evidenced by the 1962 amendment to N.J.S.A. 54:4-3.6, which increased the number of exempt buildings from one to two. The allowance contemplates that two persons may each have officiating clergy duties, either simultaneously or at different times. Federal Courts have recognized that Judaism assigns ministerial functions to both rabbis and cantors. Also, the courts have qualified cantors under the Federal exemptions applicable to members of the clergy.

In this case, the criteria established in St. Matthew's and subsequent New Jersey cases supports the interpretation of the exemption statute that permits both rabbis and cantors to qualify as officiating clergy. The Court entered a judgment in favor of the plaintiff allowing the Parsonage Exemption for the residence occupied by the cantor.

Farmland Assessment – Alexandria Township v. Philip and Joan Orban and Thomas Pajak, et al., decided May 4, 2004.

The issue before the Tax Court on cross-motions for summary judgment is whether the failure to establish and file a woodland management plan pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:4-23.3(a) before January 1, two years before the year for which farmland assessment is sought, will result in the denial of farmland assessment.

N.J.S.A. 54:4-23.6 provides that, in order to qualify for farmland assessment, the land must be actively devoted to agricultural or horticultural use for "at least two successive years immediately preceding the tax year for which the valuation...is requested." For example, where an application for farmland assessment is made for the year 2003, the land must be actively devoted to agricultural or horticultural use during the entire period of the calendar years 2001 and 2002. N.J.A.C. 18:15-6.2(a)(6) defines "Devoted to agricultural or horticultural use" as "land in which trees and forest products are produced for sale and such land is in compliance with the written approved woodland management plan."

Philip and Joan Orban purchased a parcel of property in Alexandria Township. In May of 2000, the Orbans commenced work on a woodland management plan so that the property could qualify for farmland assessment. John Perry, a registered forester, was hired by Mr. Orban on December 19, 2000, to review the woodland management activities which Mr. Orban had performed since May of 2000. Mr. Perry confirmed that Mr. Orban had been complying with the woodland plan and was involved in the active management of the woodland plan.

Mr. Perry then prepared a written woodland management plan, which was filed by Mr. Orban with the Department of Environmental Protection and the assessor of Alexandria Township on May 26, 2001. During 2001, hardwood trees were sold producing an income in excess of $6,000. In 2002, additional trees were cut and sold in accordance with the woodland plan, producing an income in excess of $6,000. Timely applications for farmland assessment under the woodland management plan were filed on or before August 1, 2001, and August 1, 2002.

The assessor denied farmland assessment for the year 2003 based upon the fact that the formal woodland management plan was not filed until May of 2001. It is the position of the tax assessor that he cannot grant an application for farmland assessment unless the formal plan is filed two full calendar years before the tax year for which farmland assessment is sought.

The township contends that since the woodland management plan was not in effect for two consecutive full years prior to the year for which farmland assessment is sought, the subject property is not entitled to farmland assessment. Property owners, to the contrary, contend that "actively devoted to agricultural or horticultural use" does not require that a woodland management plan be written and filed with a municipality on or before January 1 two years preceding the year in which farmland assessment for the woodlot is sought. Owners contend that so long as their activities conformed to a woodland management plan filed after their activities commenced, they meet the standards of the statute.

On January 13, 2003, a portion of the parcel was sold to Thomas and Susan Pajak. On March 28, 2003, the Orbans and the Pajaks filed tax appeals with the Hunterdon County Board of Taxation appealing the denial of farmland assessment for the year 2003. On June 13, 2003, the County Board granted the farmland assessment on the properties. On July 28, 2003, Alexandria Township filed appeals with the Tax Court seeking to reverse the County Board's determinations granting farmland assessment for the properties. On February 11, 2004, the township filed this motion for summary judgment, and on March 3, 2004, the property owners filed a cross-motion for summary judgment

In this case, taxpayers seek farmland assessment for tax year 2003, thus N.J.S.A. 54:4-23.6 requires the land to have been actively devoted to agricultural or horticultural use for the two preceding years, 2002 and 2001. N.J.A.C. 18:15-3.1. The Court cited the cases of Mt. Hope Mining Co. v. Rockaway Twp., 8 N.J. Tax 570, 575 (Tax 1986), Clearview Estates, Inc. v. Mt. Lakes Borough, 188 N.J. Super. 99 (App. Div. 1982), and Green Pond Corp. v. Rockaway Twp., 2 N.J. Tax 273 (Tax 1981) and statutes to indicate that the use must be during the entire two full calendar years preceding the year for which farmland assessment is sought.

Amended regulations were adopted effective October 6, 1997, so that they would comply with N.J.S.A. 54:4-23.3 as amended by P.L. 1986, c.201 and P.L. 1995, c.276. Prior to 1986, the statute did not require a written woodland management plan. The 1986 amendments to the statute were intended to provide a reasonable means of eliminating the widespread practice of indiscriminate cutting of woodlands to meet the earned income requirements of farmland assessment.

Land on which trees and forest products are produced for sale is “actively devoted to agricultural or horticultural use” when it is in compliance with a written approved woodland management plan. N.J.A.C. 18:15-6.2. A woodland management plan was written by Forester John Perry and filed by the defendants on May 26, 2001. Taxpayers maintain that even though the woodland management plan was not written and filed until May 26, 2001, the activities were taking place on the land from January 1, 2001, in accordance with good forestry management and the implementation of the woodland plan that was later filed and approved. However, N.J.A.C. 18:15-6.2 requires the plan to be a “written approved management plan.” Since the plan in this case was not written or filed until May 26, 2001, the land does not meet the definition of actively devoted to agricultural or horticultural use for the full year 2001. Since it was not actively devoted to horticultural use for all of 2001, it cannot qualify for farmland assessment in 2003.

The Court held that in order to be in compliance with a plan, a plan must be drawn up, submitted, and approved prior to the activities undertaken in accordance with that plan. Accordingly, a woodland management plan must be filed by January 1 two years prior to the year for which farmland assessment as a woodlot is sought.

F.M.C. Stores v. Morris Plains, 100 N.J. 418 (1985) stands for two propositions that: (1) filing deadlines are to be strictly construed, and (2) in dealing with taxpayers, the government must turn square corners. Having an ambiguous date on which a woodland management plan can be filed complies with neither of these principles, and although the result in this case may hurt the taxpayer, it is essential in construing beneficial tax provisions that clear lines be drawn so that both taxpayer and municipality can be on adequate notice and make adequate plans for the tax base and so that taxes due can be anticipated.

The township’s motions for summary judgment are granted and taxpayer’s cross-motions are denied as moot. □

Aid to Highlands Region — P.L. 2004, c.120, enacted on August 10, 2004, and effective immediately, establishes a Highlands Municipal Property Tax Stabilization Board which will establish procedures for determining the valuation base of a qualified Highlands municipality and determine the amounts needed to compensate a municipality for the decline in vacant land value resulting from implementation of the Highlands Water Protection and Planning Act. It will use information provided by the Division of Taxation, which, in turn, will receive information from county boards of taxation based on reports they receive from municipal tax assessors.

The Act establishes a fund to be used in providing State aid to qualified Highlands municipalities.

P.L. 2004, c.139, was enacted on September 2, 2004, and will become effective March 2, 2005, except that the gross income tax deduction provision will apply to entire tax years after enactment, i.e. beginning January 1, 2005. This Act creates “health enterprise zones” (HEZ) in communities which, based on their economic status and the extent of professional health services available, have been designated as “underserved areas.” It provides that qualified primary care physicians and dentists practicing in or within 5 miles of an HEZ will be allowed to deduct from gross income the portion of their net income allocable to qualified receipts of their practice in that geographic area. The Act also allows municipalities to exempt from real property tax structures housing a primary medical or dental care practice located in a HEZ. The amount of such exemption will be available as a rebate if the medical or dental care provider is a tenant, rather than owner, of the structure.

Electronic Filing Required for Some Tax Practitioners

All practitioners (firms and individuals) who prepared 200 or more 2003 New Jersey income tax resident returns are required to use one of the three NJ FastFile options — NJ WebFile, NJ TeleFile, or NJ ELF — to file 2004 New Jersey income tax resident returns for their clients. Practitioners who filed fewer than 200 New Jersey resident returns in 2003 are not required to file electronically for the 2004 tax year, but are strongly encouraged to do so.

Electronic filing benefits everyone — taxpayers, practitioners, and State government. Faster refunds, direct deposit, postdated payments, more accurate processing, and greater security of sensitive information are just some of the advantages offered by New Jersey's electronic tax filing systems. Practitioners who file their clients' State income tax returns electronically are providing them with the best possible service.

Changes to Rebate Programs

The Homestead Property Tax Rebate Act of 2004 (P.L. 2004, c.40), signed into law June 28, 2004, folds the NJ SAVER Rebate Program for homeowners into the Homestead Rebate Program. The legislation is expected to provide property tax relief in the form of increased rebates for nearly two million New Jersey residents as part of Governor McGreevey's FAIR (Fair and Immediate Relief) plan.

Even though the programs have been combined, for tax year 2003 homeowners must file applications under both the Homestead Rebate and NJ SAVER Rebate Programs. NJ SAVER rebates will be calculated in the same manner as homestead rebates, taking into account the income of each applicant and the amount of property taxes paid. Eligible applicants will receive either the homestead rebate or the NJ SAVER rebate. (Tenants, who are not eligible for NJ SAVER rebates, file homestead rebate applications to receive their rebates.)

For 2004 and thereafter, eligible homeowners and tenants will file homestead rebate applications only.

Who is Eligible for 2003

NJ SAVER Rebate: Residents who owned, occupied, and paid property taxes on a home in New Jersey that was their principal residence on October 1, 2003, provided their gross income does not exceed $200,000.

Homestead Rebate: Homeowners and tenants who paid property taxes on their principal residence in New Jersey, either directly or through rent, and whose gross income does not exceed $200,000 (homeowners) or $100,000 (tenants).

2003 Rebate Amounts

For 2003, both the homestead rebate and the NJ SAVER rebate will be calculated the same way. Rebate amounts differ for homeowners and tenants, and are also affected by income, amount of property taxes (or rent) paid, filing status, and whether the applicant is 65 or older or eligible to claim an exemption as blind or disabled for the tax year.

Homeowners: For tax year 2003, rebates for eligible homeowners age 65 or older or disabled range from a minimum of $500 up to a maximum of $1,200. Homeowners under age 65 and not disabled are eligible for a minimum of $500 up to a maximum of $800. In no case will a homeowner receive a rebate greater than the amount of property taxes actually paid.

Tenants: For tax year 2003, tenants age 65 or older or disabled are eligible for a minimum rebate of $150 up to a maximum of $825. Tenants under age 65 and not disabled are eligible for a rebate of $150.

More information on the rebate programs is available at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/relief.shtml □

Property Tax Reimbursement

Filing Deadline Extended

The deadline for filing 2003 Property Tax Reimbursement Applications has been extended to September 8, 2004. For more information about the Property Tax Reimbursement Program, visit our Web site at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/propfrez.shtml

New Employer Withholding Rates

Recent tax legislation (Chapter 40, P.L. 2004) increases the New Jersey gross income tax rates for all taxpayers with gross income over $500,000. The increase is retroactive to January 1, 2004.

Because of the increase in tax rates, new withholding rates are required. All employers must withhold at the rate of 12% from salaries, wages, and other remuneration paid in excess of $500,000 during the remainder of 2004. This new rate takes effect immediately and must be instituted by all employers no later than September 1, 2004. On January 1, 2005, the top withholding rate is reduced to 9.9%. Withholding rates for employees with wages of $500,000 or less are unaffected.

Two sets of revised withholding tables for the percentage method of withholding are available on our Web site at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/newrates.shtml

The percentage method computation rates in Tables A through E are for weekly, biweekly, semimonthly, monthly, daily or miscellaneous, and annual pay periods. Employers who have a pay frequency other than those provided should divide the amount of tax to be withheld under the Annual Pay Period column for each rate table (but not the withholding percentage rate) by the number of pay periods in the year.

Employers who have questions about their responsibilities can call the Division's Customer Service Center at 609-292-6400 or e-mail us at taxation@tax.state.nj.us. Prerecorded tax information is available by calling our Automated Tax Information Service at 1-800-323-4400. □

Hotel Occupancy Fee, Tax Rates

As of July 1, 2004, the State occupancy fee, which was effective August 1, 2003, on the rental of rooms in a hotel, motel, or similar facility, is reduced from 7% to 5%. At the same time, the municipal occupancy tax, which is imposed only in the municipalities that have enacted a local ordinance, can increase from a rate of up to 1% to a rate of up to 3%. However, in the six municipalities that already had local taxes imposed on occupancies prior to August 1, 2003 (Atlantic City, Newark, Jersey City, Wildwood, Wildwood Crest, and North Wildwood), the rates will not change on July 1. For additional information about the rates in these municipalities, the occupancy fee and tax in general, and a list of the municipalities that have enacted an occupancy tax ordinance, see: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/hotelfeeinfo.shtml □

LOCAL PROPERTY TAX Tax Assessor Recertification

Four years have passed since the commencement of the Continuing Education Program for all certificate holders. The end of the first five-year cycle is June 30, 2005. All assessors and holders whose certificates were issued prior to July 1, 2000, will have July 1, 2000, as the beginning date of their five-year cycle and June 30, 2005, as their end date. Assessors and holders whose five-year cycle ends next year on June 30, 2005, must file their Form CEU-1 by May 31, 2005. If application is made within six months of the expiration of the certificate, the application may be made in the same manner as renewal, but an additional late fee of $50 applies. The additional six months are provided to submit required paperwork to the Division of Taxation and may not be used to earn CEU credits for the foregoing period.

To file for assessor certification renewal you must include:

1. Completed Form CEU-1 (Assessor Certification Renewal Application)
2. All CEU-3 Forms (Uniform Request for Continuing Education Credit)
3. $50 application fee

As a reminder, certificate holders who are in their first five-year cycle must show proof of earning at least 50 Continuing Education credit hours. The course credit hour minimum is as follows: 20 credit hours in Property Tax Administration and 20 credit hours in Real Property Appraisal. The additional 10 credit hours needed may be fulfilled by any combination of Appraisal or Administration and are considered electives. Any number of credit hours received over the required 50 cannot be carried into the next cycle.

The next five-year group to be recertified passed the C.T.A. (certified tax assessor) exam on September 23, 2000, and were issued certificates dated January 1, 2001. Their renewal deadline will be November 30, 2005, or 30 days prior to their five-year expiration date of December 31, 2005.

After their initial five-year cycle, certificate holders will enter into a three-year cycle in which they will complete 12 credit hours in Property Tax Administration, 12 credit hours in Real Property Appraisal and 6 added credit hours in either concentration.

Certified assessors are reminded to access up-to-date continuing education information on the Internet. The Web site address is: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/lpt/recert.shtml

Also, it is important that any address and/or name changes be reported to the Policy and Planning Section at 609-292-7813. If you have questions concerning assessor recertification, please contact Danielle Morris, Policy and Planning, at 609-943-4399. □

INHERITANCE AND ESTATE TAX Affidavit Requesting Tax Waiver

Form L-9 is an affidavit executed by an executor, administrator, or joint tenant requesting the issuance of a tax waiver for real property located in New Jersey which was held by a resident decedent. The waiver releases the tax lien and allows the estate to sell the property.

Form L-9 may not be used if any of the following conditions exist:

1. Any asset valued at $500 or more passes to a beneficiary other than the decedent's parents, grandparents, spouse, children, legally adopted children, children's issue, adopted children's issue, or stepchildren.
2. Where a trust agreement exists or is created under the terms of the decedent's will. In the event that all other conditions for the use of Form L-9 are met and there is no possibility that any portion of the trust assets will pass other than to a Class "A" beneficiary, the Division will give consideration to the issuance of a real estate tax waiver.
3. The relationship of a mutually acknowledged child is claimed to exist.
4. Where the decedent's date of death is after December 31, 2001, and his/her gross estate for Federal estate tax purposes under the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code in effect on December 31, 2001, exceeds $675,000.
5. In any instance where there is an inheritance or estate tax or the possibility of a tax.

6. In any instance where an inheritance or an estate tax return must be filed.

Common errors to avoid when filing Form L-9 include:

1. Using an older version of the form. The form was revised in April 2003. The revision was made necessary due to the changes made in the New Jersey estate tax effective on January 1, 2002.
2. Failure to answer all the questions.
3. Failure to submit a copy of the Letters Testamentary or Letters of Administration, the decedent's will and codicils thereto, and any trust agreement.
4. Failure to submit a copy of the decedent's last full-year Federal income tax return.
5. Failure to submit a full description of realty, including the owner of record and the assessed and market value on the decedent's date of death.
6. Failure to list all beneficiaries, their relationship to the decedent, and their interest in the estate.
7. Failure to properly answer the questions related to the decedent's gross estate, deductions, and adjusted taxable gifts under the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code in effect on December 31, 2001. The "gross estate" is not limited to probate assets and "adjusted taxable gifts" is not the gross estate less deductions. The decedent's gross estate includes all property which was subject to the Federal estate tax in 2001 including, but not limited to, real estate wherever located, stocks, bonds, bank accounts, annuities, jointly held assets, life insurance policies, and certain transfers. Adjusted taxable gifts are lifetime taxable gifts made by the decedent other than those included in the gross estate.

The completed Form L-9 should be mailed to the Division of Taxation, Inheritance and Estate Tax, PO Box 249, Trenton, New Jersey 08695-0249. Information pertaining to the use of the form may be obtained by calling 609-292-5033. □

Criminal Enforcement over the past several months included:

- The Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) arrested Norman Levine of Manchester Township, New Jersey, after an investigation identified Levine as the recipient of untaxed cigarettes by way of a FedEx shipment from Virginia. Levine appeared in court in Maryland on December 12, 2003, in a case stemming from a previous arrest. Immediately after pleading guilty to a felony count of transportation/possession of contraband cigarettes, he was followed by agents of the Maryland Comptroller of the Treasury to Virginia and North Carolina where they observed him purchasing cigarettes again and shipping them from Virginia Beach to a New Jersey business. OCI surveillance led to the arrest of Levine after he took possession of the delivery and was placing the cigarettes in a storage unit in Neptune Township. Levine was actively engaged in a mail-order business with an Internet site. A total of 754 cartons of contraband cigarettes were seized; 457 cartons were in the delivery that had been observed, and the remainder were found in his storage unit. A combination of Delaware tax stamped, Virginia tax stamped, and unstamped cigarettes (from North Carolina) were seized, along with $2,138 in cash and a 1998 Mercury. Levine was charged with transportation and sale of untaxed cigarettes and possession of more than 20,000 unstamped cigarettes, and released on $25,000 bail.

- On December 31, 2003, a settlement agreement was reached between the Division of Taxation and Mario Capalbo t/a Garden Pinball and Vending Company of Paterson, New Jersey. The agreement stipulated that Capalbo withdraw his appeal regarding the denial of a Cigarette Wholesale Dealer's License, and will not apply for or receive a Cigarette Wholesale and/or Distributor's License in the future. Appellant agreed to a three-year suspension of his cigarette vending machine license. Finally, reactivation of the vending machine license is contingent on continued "good behavior" as it relates to compliance with the tax laws of the State and any other indictable offense.

This completes the process of denying a cigarette wholesaler's license to Capalbo on the basis of his criminal conviction for gambling and maintaining an illegal gambling resort.

- On January 5, 2004, Lamine Ouattara of East Orange, New Jersey, was arrested for filing fraudulent personal income tax returns. OCI, the East Orange Police Department, and Wachovia National Bank worked the case together. Ouattara filed 13 fraudulent returns generating $9,311 in refunds claiming the Earned Income Tax Credit with unsupported Schedule C income. Other aspects of this investigation are ongoing.
- On January 9, 2004, in Superior Court – Middlesex County, New Brunswick, New Jersey, John B. Forrest, formerly of Colts Neck, New Jersey, failed to appear for sentencing pursuant to his guilty plea of September 12, 2003, on behalf of himself and his corporation, Tri-State Ticket Exchange, Ltd., Old Bridge, New Jersey, to charges of theft by deception of approximately $647,000 from customers who ordered sports and entertainment event tickets that were never delivered; misapplication of $122,626.37 in sales taxes of New Jersey and eight other states which Forrest collected from his customers but failed to turn over to tax agencies; credit card fraud; failure to file New Jersey sales and use tax returns for the period January 2001 through December 2002; and failure to turn over $33,280 in New Jersey sales and use tax collected in that period. An arrest warrant has been issued for Forrest, and he has been listed as one of the New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice's 12 Most Wanted. This was a joint investigation between OCI and the Division of Criminal Justice, who prosecuted the matter.

- On January 14, 2004, in Totowa, New Jersey, Dipan Patel and Switu Patel of North Bergen, New Jersey, and Pritisha S. Patel of Groton, Connecticut, were arrested as a result of sales by the subjects to undercover agents of 373 cartons of untaxed cigarettes. Two vehicles used in the transportation of the contraband were seized. Bail for Dipan Patel was set at $50,000. The other two subjects were released on their own recognizance. This was a joint investigation by OCI and the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives.
- On January 16, 2004, Dennis Fetterman of Williamsburg, Virginia, was arrested by OCI based on information received from the Montville, New Jersey, Police Department for possession and transportation of untaxed cigarettes. Fetterman was involved in selling cigarettes at local businesses. After a brief joint surveillance with the Montville Police, Fetterman was followed to an auto dealership in Parsippany, New Jersey, where he was arrested and 45 cartons of Virginia-stamped cigarettes, less than 50 grams of marijuana, and $795 were seized. On March 2, 2004, in Parsippany Municipal Court, Fetterman pleaded guilty to charges of transportation of untaxed cigarettes and possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana). He was fined

$2,925, sentenced to one year's probation with mandatory drug testing and six months' loss of driver's license, and the $795 was forfeited to the State.

- On January 27, 2004, a grand jury in Morristown, New Jersey, returned an eight-count indictment of Bernard and Shirley Davidson, husband and wife. The indictment included charges of theft by various means and filing false or fraudulent tax returns, failure to pay taxes due, and false swearing. The charges stem from Bernard Davidson's position as a Court Officer in Morris County and his theft of official receipts in excess of $75,000 and the failure to report the illegal income by Bernard and Shirley Davidson on their New Jersey gross income tax returns. The investigation was conducted jointly with the Morris County Prosecutor's Office.
- On January 27, 2004, in Superior Court – Hudson County, Jersey City, New Jersey, John Drzymkowski of Berkeley Heights, New Jersey, was admitted into the Pretrial Intervention Program (a supervision program for first-time offenders charged with nonviolent offenses) for a term of 36 months, and ordered to make restitution to the State of $331,039.36 pursuant to his guilty plea on July 28, 2003, to one count of failing to file tax returns. The charges involve petroleum products gross receipts tax which Drymco, Inc., a now-defunct heating oil company of which Drzymkowski was chief operating officer, collected from its customers in connection with the sale of diesel fuel to truck stops from September 1999 to December 2000.

- On February 3, 2004, a grand jury in Ocean County charged Kathy J. Manna of Lavallette, New Jersey, with an eight-count indictment. The indictment included charges of aggravated assault, theft by extortion, theft by deception, forgery, and filing false and fraudulent New Jersey gross income tax returns for the years 1999, 2000, 2001, and 2002. Ms. Manna ran a phony investment scam wherein she stole in excess of $75,000 from seven Ocean County residents and failed to report the illegal income on her tax returns. The investigation was conducted jointly with the Ocean County Prosecutor's Office.
- On February 10, 2004, a State Grand Jury in Trenton indicted Richard J. Nardone of San Diego, California, a chiropractor who previously lived in Garwood, New Jersey, for gross income tax and corporation business tax (CBT) violations. The indictment alleges Nardone concealed approximately $400,000 in personal income in 1998 and 1999 by having six medical corporations, which he controlled, issue payroll checks to fictitious employees. With aid from his office manager, Donna Januik of Mountainside, New Jersey, who is also his sister, Nardone would have the checks cashed and the currency returned to him. In addition, it is alleged that Nardone and Januik utilized corporate accounts to pay more than $180,000 in personal expenses without reporting the funds as income. Nardone was charged with filing fraudulent New Jersey personal income tax returns for 1998 and 1999, failing to pay over a total of $67,467 tax, conspiracy, misconduct by a corporate official, and filing fraudulent CBT returns for the corporations he used. Januik was also indicted and charged with evading $1,740.77 in personal gross income tax in 1998, conspiracy, and assisting in the filing of the false CBT returns. The total amount subject to restitution to the State will include tax, penalty, and interest. This case was investigated jointly with the Division of Criminal Justice – Office of Insurance Fraud Prosecutor.
- On February 11, 2004, the Division of Taxation suspended for six months the license of K-Mart Corp. store #3523 in Paramus, New Jersey, to sell cigarettes at retail. This action is a result of enforcement of the Sales to Minors statutes by the Paramus Board of Health.
- On February 27, 2004, Rosa M. Castro, a tax preparer from Clifton, New Jersey, was charged with filing false and fraudulent tax returns and theft by deception based on the allegation that she has prepared in excess of 2,000 fraudulent New Jersey gross income tax returns, seeking almost $1,000,000 in illegal refunds in the largest tax refund fraud scheme investigated in State history. The case was opened based on a referral from the Division of Revenue. Investigation determined two types of fraud being committed: Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) fraud and excessive medical deduction refund fraud. To date, the investigation has identified 1,329 tax returns claiming refunds of $908,850.56 for the EITC, and has found more than 500 tax returns claiming in excess of $5,900,000 in bogus medical expenses, generating over $80,000 in refunds. Castro is alleged to have prepared and filed fraudulent New Jersey gross income tax returns for herself, family members, friends, and others using actual and fictitious names and social security numbers. Undercover agents met with Rosa Castro at her home office on January 23 and 27, 2004, at which time she prepared fraudulent tax returns utilizing fictitious information which would have generated refunds. On March 1, 2004, the Division of Criminal Justice and OCI raided her home office and seized her computer, financial and business records, and obtained a court order freezing her bank accounts and safety deposit box. Ms. Castro was on Federal probation for tax fraud for perpetrating a similar scheme against the Federal government.
- One hundred eighteen (118) complaints alleging tax evasion were evaluated from January through March 2004 in the Office of Criminal Investigation.
- During the same period, one hundred forty (140) charges were filed in court and thirty-eight (38) arrests were made in forty (40) cases involving violations of the Cigarette Tax Act. Items seized were: 1,452.7 cartons of untaxed cigarettes having a total value of $84,256.60, including 223.1 cartons bearing counterfeit New Jersey tax revenue stamps, and four vehicles. □

Tax Briefs

Corporation Business Tax

Allocation of Freight Revenues — Trucking companies deriving revenues from transporting freight must calculate their receipts fraction using mileage in the following manner: The taxpayer's receipts are multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is the number of miles in New Jersey and the denominator of which is the mileage in all jurisdictions. For convenience, taxpayers required to maintain mileage records in compliance with the International Fuel Tax Agreement pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:39A-24 and N.J.A.C. 13:18-3.12 shall make calculations using such records.

In addition, with regard to the property fraction, movable property such as tractors and trailers shall be allocated to this State using the same mileage fraction set forth above. Such allocated movable property shall be added to the fraction formed by the nonmovable property in New Jersey over nonmovable property everywhere to arrive at the property fraction.

With regard to the payroll fraction, wages of mobile employees such as drivers shall be allocated to New Jersey based upon mileage as set forth above. Such allocated payroll shall be added to the fraction formed by nonmobile wages everywhere to arrive at the payroll fraction. See N.J.A.C. 18:7-8.10(c)(4)(iii).

Correction: Alternative Minimum Assessment (AMA) — The rule for the selection of the computation method for the Alternative Minimum Assessment is set forth at N.J.A.C. 18:7-18.4(c) which states that: "For the first privilege period that the taxpayer pays the Alternative Minimum Assessment, the taxpayer may select a computation method for the Alternative Minimum Assessment, based on gross profits or gross receipts. Once selected, that method must be employed for that privilege period, and for the next succeeding four privilege periods."

As such, the taxpayer can defer the selection of the AMA computation method until the first privilege period that AMA is greater than the corporation's corporation business tax liability.

Accordingly, this notice supercedes the item published on page 12 in the winter 2003 issue of the New Jersey State Tax News.

Minimum Tax and Affiliated or Controlled Groups — Under N.J.S.A. 54:10A-5(e), any taxpayer that is a member of an affiliated group or a controlled group pursuant to sections 1504 or 1563 of the Federal Internal Revenue Code of 1986, and whose group has total payroll of $5,000,000 or more for the privilege period, is subject to a tax not less than $2,000. Each taxpayer member is subject to at least the minimum tax during that privilege period. See also N.J.A.C. 18:7-3.4(g).

Affiliated groups cannot elect to file on a consolidated basis for New Jersey purposes. A corporation which is included in a consolidated Federal income tax return must complete all schedules of the CBT-100 on its own separate basis and attach a copy of the Affiliations Schedule, Form 851, which it filed with Form 1120 for Federal income tax purposes. Also, a corporation which is included in a consolidated Federal income tax return must complete Lines 1 to 38 of the CBT-100 on its own separate basis without consolidation with any other corporation. A schedule of payroll per member must also be submitted with the corporation business tax return.

A key corporation must be named when an affiliated group claims the $20,000,000 threshold during a privilege period. The election is made each year that the affiliated group exceeds the threshold. The key corporation is a single member of an affiliated group that acts as a clearinghouse for adjustments to members of the group under N.J.A.C. 18:7-18.4(d).

Professional Corporation Fees — The Business Tax Reform Act established a $150 per licensed professional fee for professional corporations with more than two licensed professionals. A corporation is subject to this fee if it has New Jersey source income or New Jersey resident members. A corporation with New Jersey professionals is subject to the filing fee.

Under N.J.A.C. 18:7-19.2(b), if a professional corporation includes nonresident professionals, some of whom have physical nexus with New Jersey and some of whom do not, then an apportionment methodology for the professional corporation filing fee may be used provided that the professional corporation has an office outside of New Jersey.

The total apportioned professional corporation fee is equal to the sum of:

1. The number of resident professionals multiplied by $150; plus
2. The number of nonresident professionals with physical nexus to New Jersey multiplied by $150; plus

- 3. The number of nonresident professionals without physical nexus to New Jersey multiplied by $150, and the resulting product multiplied by the corporate allocation factor of the professional corporation.

In calculating the number of licensed professionals of the corporation, a quarterly average is used. All professionals of the corporation are counted, regardless of the nature of their relationship to the corporation. They are included whether they are shareholders, employees, or owners. The licensed professionals are listed in N.J.A.C. 18:7-19.1.

Inheritance and Estate Tax
Restricted Payment of Life Insurance Benefits — A taxpayer asked if the Division requires a 50% retention of the payment of benefits to beneficiaries by life insurance companies pending a tax waiver from the Division of Taxation.

The life insurance company is not required to retain 50% of any payments or file Form O-71 for the payment of benefits made to a decedent's surviving spouse. Also, with regard to the payments of benefits made to beneficiaries other than the decedent's surviving spouse, all sums payable (100%) under the terms of the life insurance contract may be disbursed by the life insurance company without obtaining a tax waiver from the Director of the Division of Taxation.

The life insurance company must complete and mail Form O-71 to the Director within ten days after any sums payable have been paid, and each beneficiary listed on the form should be advised that information regarding death claim payments is being supplied to the State.

The instructions to Form O-71 have been amended to reflect the above provisions.

Litter Control Fee
Wholesaler to Wholesaler Deduction — Retailers of litter-generating products must pay a fee of $2.25/100$ of 1% (.000225) on their gross receipts from sales of litter-generating products. The law imposing the fee, however, provides that "retailer" does not include "a restaurant, the principal activity of which consists of preparing... a meal or food to be eaten on the premises." The Division defines "principal activity" as more than 50% of the restaurant's food and beverage sales. The effect of the restaurant provision is to exempt primarily eat-in restaurants (including bars serving meals that are primarily for eat-in) from liability for the fee.

Wholesalers must pay a fee of $3/100$ of 1% (.0003) on their gross receipts from sales of litter-generating products. For purposes of calculating the fee, however, a wholesaler is allowed a deduction for a sale to another wholesaler. Since a primarily eat-in restaurant is not a "retailer" and not liable for the fee, a wholesaler asked whether its sales to an exempt eat-in restaurant are exempt from the fee. In other words, the wholesaler asked whether the sale to the eat-in restaurant (a non-"retailer") could be considered eligible for the wholesaler-to-wholesaler deduction or otherwise exempt from the fee.

The Division replied that the wholesaler's sales to the eat-in restaurant are not deductible as a sale from a wholesaler to a wholesaler. Although the restaurant is not a "retailer" liable for the fee, the restaurant is not included in the definition of "wholesaler." Under N.J.A.C. 18:38-1.3, for the sale to be considered a sale to a wholesaler, the sale must be to an entity that will resell to another wholesaler or to a retailer. The restaurant is not buying the product to resell to a wholesaler or another retailer. Therefore, a wholesaler is not allowed to deduct a sale of a litter-generating product to any restaurant as a sale from a wholesaler to a wholesaler.

Partnership Filing Fee
Limited Liability Company With No Income — The Division replied to an inquiry concerning whether a New Jersey LLC with no revenues, property, or wages is subject to the new $150 per partner filing fee.

Under N.J.A.C. 18:35-11.1, “Income” means income, loss, gain, or expense. If the partnership in question incurred any income, loss, gain, or expense attributable to New Jersey, the partnership will have New Jersey income. Any partnership having income derived from New Jersey sources that has more than two owners shall make a payment of a filing fee of $150 for each owner of an interest in the entity. N.J.A.C. 18:35-11.2(a). If the LLC in question is considered a partnership for New Jersey tax purposes and had no New Jersey income, loss, gain, or expense (as noted above) during the taxable year, the LLC would not be subject to the $150 per owner fee.

Sales and Use Tax

Personal Chef and Catering Services — The New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act imposes tax on “receipts from the sale of food and drink...by caterers [including]... those instances where the vendor or any person whose services are arranged for by the vendor, after the delivery of the food or drink by or on behalf of the vendor for consumption off the premises of the vendor, serves or assists in serving, cooks, heats or provides other services with respect to the food or drink.” N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(c); N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(c)(2). Catering consists of the preparation of food or drink and usually involves delivery and/or the serving of such meals in a prepared or heated state.

On the other hand, personal chef services are exempt from tax as a personal service transaction. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(e)(4)(A). Personal chef services typically involve food shopping and preparing meals for the client, packaging, and storing the meals (e.g., for a one-week period) at the client’s premises. Personal chefs may also prepare the meals off premises and deliver the food cold or frozen for future consumption, similar to the type of meals found in the frozen food section of a supermarket. The client will then heat or otherwise further prepare the meal. However, if the meals are prepared off the client’s premises, and delivered in a heated, ready-to-eat state, the prepared food will be subject to sales tax (similar to take-out food). N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(c).

“Restocking” Fee — The Division responded to an inquiry about the application of the New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act to the following set of facts:

1. Consumer buys an item for $100 and pays 6% tax.
2. Consumer returns the item and is charged a 30% restocking fee or $30.
3. The consumer expected $76, but received $74.20.
4. The business said there was a 6% tax levied on the $30 restocking fee.

A fee imposed for “restocking” is not subject to sales tax since there is no sale once an item is returned. The restocking fee is not an expense of any taxable sales transaction and, by itself, is not subject to sales tax. Thus, the consumer should have received a full refund of $70 plus the $6 sales tax paid.

Travel Agent Sales — Sales of travel services by a travel agency are considered tax-exempt professional services. N.J.S.A. 54:32B 2(e)(4) (A). Thus, the amount charged by a travel agent for a trip or vacation is neither subject to sales nor luxury tax in New Jersey, whether or not the customer is separately charged for all the various items that comprise the invoice such as hotels, meals, transportation, amusements, etc.

However, each vendor of taxable services or property in this State who sells such services or property to the travel agent is required to impose and collect, if applicable: sales tax; state occupancy fee; municipal occupancy tax; tourism promotion fees, taxes, and assessments; casino room fee; and/or luxury tax, on the receipts from that sale. In effect, the travel agent is considered the retail purchaser of such services, property, admissions, or occupancies, rather than a reseller. □

Time Period to File Complaint – James Liapakis v. Director, Division of Taxation, denied March 9, 2004; Supreme Court of New Jersey No. C-421 September Term 2003, 55,336.

The New Jersey Supreme Court denied the Division of Taxation’s petition for certification. Previously, the Appellate Division ruled that the 90-day period to file an appeal with the Tax Court commences on the date the taxpayer receives the Division of Taxation’s notice rather than on the mailed date.

Cigarette Tax Cigarette Purchases via Internet or Telephone – Gary Mosher v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided November 22, 2002; Tax Court No. 001180-2002.

After viewing vendor's advertisements that claimed cigarettes were sold "tax free," plaintiff (Mosher) purchased 52 cartons of cigarettes over the Internet and/or telephone from Smokers Advantage of Louisville, Kentucky, for his friends and his personal use. Smokers Advantage is an out-of-State, unlicensed distributor of unstamped cigarettes. Smokers Advantage did not remit sales or cigarette taxes to New Jersey, but did inform the New Jersey Division of Taxation (Division) of Mosher's purchases pursuant to the Federal Jenkins Act. In September 2000 the Division notified and assessed Mosher sales and use tax as well as cigarette tax on purchases that occurred between August 1999 and March 2000.

The Tax Court held that Mosher's purchases were subject to sales and use tax, as well as the cigarette tax ruling that the vendor's advertisements stating that the cigarettes were "tax free" did not excuse him from being chargeable with knowledge that the tax could be collected by New Jersey because New Jersey charges tax on cigarettes. Relying on case law, the Court found that the Jenkins Act, Sales and Use Tax Act, and the Cigarette Tax Act were held to be constitutional. The Court also ruled that the Jenkins Act disclosure did not violate Mosher's right of privacy because even if the right asserted was a fundamental right, the State's compelling and substantial need for this information would outweigh Mosher's privacy interest. Finally, the Court found that the assessment was subject to 5% amnesty penalty, pursuant to a law enacted in 2002, of which Mosher was previously notified.

Cigarette Purchases via Internet or Telephone – Gary Mosher v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided February 17, 2004; Appellate Division No. A-2515-02T3.

The Appellate Division affirmed the Tax Court for substantially the reasons stated by the Tax Court. Furthermore, the Court found that plaintiff's arguments were without sufficient merit to warrant a written decision.

Mosher filed a petition of certification with the New Jersey Supreme Court.

Gross Income Tax Gain on Sale of Rental Real Estate Not Held by a Business Entity – John J. and Mary T. Moroney and Thomas J. Jr. and Susan Denitzio v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided January 8, 2004; Tax Court Nos. 005582-1998 and 005564-2002.

The Moroneys acquired rental real estate for $327,399 and sold the property eight years later for $245,000. The property was not held by a business entity. In each year of ownership, the annual operating expenses, exclusive of depreciation, exceeded the annual income. In determining their gain or loss, the Moroneys calculated an $82,399 capital loss by subtracting the original purchase price from the sales price. Pursuant to an audit, the Division determined that the $104,330 of depreciation reduced the real estate's basis. Therefore, the Division calculated an N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(c) gain on this sale under the theory that the property's basis decreased to the extent that annual depreciation offset annual gross income before considering any other deductions. The Denitzios' legal issue is identical and therefore the cases were heard together, but were not consolidated.

The Tax Court commenced its analysis by reviewing Koch where the New Jersey Supreme Court held that tax could not be imposed unless there is recovery of a past tax benefit or an accession to wealth and, therefore, that a partner's basis in his partnership interest could not be reduced by nondeductible partnership losses. The Koch decision prevented the Division from taxing what the New Jersey Supreme Court described as a return of capital because the taxpayer did not receive a tax benefit for nondeductible losses. After Koch, the Division stated in the State Tax News that the Koch decision would also apply to the sale of rental real estate that is not held by a business entity. In a later State Tax News article, the Division explained that unutilized depreciation expense would adjust basis in that it would increase basis when calculating gain (loss) from the sale of rental real estate that is not held by a business entity. The Division defined unutilized depreciation as the amount that allowed or allowable depreciation exceeds gross income (gross receipts) before considering any other expenses or deductions. This calculation resulted in limiting basis reductions to depreciation that resulted in tax benefits to the taxpayer.

In calculating N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(c) gain from the disposition of property, the Court ruled that basis could only be reduced by depreciation to the extent that depreciation could offset income remaining after first deducting operating expenses (actual out-of-pocket expenses as opposed to accounting expenses such as depreciation) against gross income. The Court determined that although N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(c) authorized the Division to assign priority and assignment to deductions for S corporations, that otherwise there was no statutory language applicable to the sale of property. Also, the Court found that the Division's assignment of a first priority deduction to depreciation produced a result that was both contrary to Koch and inconsistent with the Internal Revenue Code.

Severance Payments – Donald M. Kopczynski v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided January 7, 2003; Tax Court No. 008748-1996.

Two days after his 60th birthday, plaintiff's employer notified him by letter that his employment would be terminated in two weeks. The letter outlined severance benefits that were available to him that included $31,282.02 paid under the severance payment plan in equal monthly installments in accordance with the employer's regular payroll, payment for unused vacation and personal time, and to provide medical and dental benefits for the duration of the severance or until employment was secured in exchange for plaintiff's signed general release form within 21 days. In part, the general release form stated that plaintiff specifically releases his claims and demands against the employer under numerous areas including the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967, as well as any actions that existed as of the date of the release under any tort laws.

Plaintiff consulted an attorney and signed a retainer agreement for purposes of negotiating a settlement agreement of his unspecified claims against his employer. Thereafter, the plaintiff and employer agreed to increase the $31,282.02 to a $41,500 severance, and the agreement included all the other provisions stated above. Plaintiff executed the general release form. Employer paid plaintiff $19,466 in 1993 and $21,833 in 1994 while withholding taxes for Federal and State income taxes.

Plaintiff filed 1993 and 1994 returns with the Division of Taxation (Division) where he included the severance payments as taxable income from wages, salaries, and other employee compensation. Afterwards, plaintiff filed refund claims asserting that the severance payments were actually received in exchange for plaintiff's not bringing an age discrimination lawsuit against the employer through an agreement with plaintiff's attorney. Thereafter, plaintiff filed a complaint contending that his severance payments were not taxable as damages under N.J.S.A. 54A:6-6(b).

The Tax Court determined that severance and severance-like payments are includable in gross income under N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(a) as salaries, wages, tips, fees, commissions, bonuses, or other remuneration received for services rendered unless they are excludable under N.J.S.A. 54A:6-6(b). Moreover, the Court ruled that severance payments are includable in gross income, recognizing that the services were previously rendered and that there was not concurrent consideration. The Court reached its result by relying upon guidance from Federal case law regarding taxability of severance payments as it was applied to the Internal Revenue Code.

Under N.J.S.A. 54A:6-6(b), damages received due to personal injury or sickness are excludable from gross income regardless of whether they are received by suit or agreement. As there was no prior New Jersey case law and as the statute is similar to Internal Revenue Code §104(a) (2), the Court looked to Federal cases for guidance. The Court found that the Federal Courts relied on the payer's intent in determining whether the payment was for personal injury or sickness in cases where there was either no express language or evidence as to a specific amount to compensate the person. One Federal Court noted that the withholding of taxes significantly suggests that the employer intended severance payment. Another Federal Court found that the payment was not for personal injury or sickness as it was based on a formula relating to the employer and employee relationship. In Commissioner v. Schleier, 515 U.S. 323 (1995), the United States Supreme Court stated that neither the person's reaching age 60 nor being discharged because they are 60 years old could be described as a personal injury or sickness. Furthermore, the Supreme Court ruled that neither back wages nor punitive damages for age discrimination constituted compensation for personal injury or sickness.

Plaintiff presented no evidence or testimony that he received the payments for personal injury or sickness. In fact, the employer withheld income taxes, both State and Federal. Therefore, the Court held that the payments were not excludable under N.J.S.A. 54A:6-6(b) as damages received due to personal injury or sickness.

Insurance Premiums Tax

Retaliatory Tax – American Fire and Casualty Company & West American Insurance Company v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided December 2, 2003; Tax Court No. 004714-2001.

Plaintiffs are foreign casualty insurance corporations that seek refunds of retaliatory tax assessed against each of them pursuant to N.J.S.A. 17:32-15 after they each calculated their tax liability under N.J.S.A. 54:18A-6.

Under N.J.S.A. 54:18A-6, a non-life insurance company may calculate insurance tax on 12.5% of its total premiums where its New Jersey taxable premiums are greater than 12.5% of the company's and all its affiliates' total premiums. However, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 17:32-15, retaliatory insurance tax is imposed against a foreign insurer when the foreign insurer's insurance tax and other obligations in New Jersey are less than what a foreign insurer's insurance tax and other obligations would have been in its home state if it were a New Jersey insurance company doing business there.

In the instant case, the Division permitted each taxpayer to file under the 12.5% statute, but then the Division assessed retaliatory tax on the amount of tax that each would have had to hypothetically pay to their home state on its New Jersey premiums, if it were a New Jersey insurance company doing business there, to the extent that amount exceeded the tax that they were obligated to pay to New Jersey. Plaintiffs claim that the retaliatory tax provision is unconstitutional in that it denies plaintiff equal protection because the statute functions as a preference for domestic insurers. Alternatively, plaintiffs claim that when the two statutes are read in pari materia, the Division's methodology provides an interpretation that is inconsistent with the purpose and policy considerations of both statutes.

The Court read the statutes in pari materia because they related to the same subject matter. The Court found that the purpose of N.J.S.A. 54:18A-6 was to encourage foreign and domestic insurance companies to expand their operations in New Jersey, and that the purpose of retaliatory tax statutes was to influence foreign states to reduce insurance company taxation in order to promote interstate insurance business by maintaining low taxes and other obligations on domestic insurers.

In addressing whether there was an irreconcilable conflict between the statutes, the Court found that neither the statutes, amendments, nor legislative history provided any guidance as to one statute's relationship with the other. Therefore, the Court ruled that there was an inference that the legislative intent was that neither statute should affect the interpretation of the other. The Court reasoned that the Legislature's failure to address any possible conflict was indicative that the statutes function independently and in the manner as applied by the Division.

The Court found that the United States Supreme Court previously upheld the constitutionality of retaliatory tax under the Equal Protection Clause of the United States Constitution using the rational basis test. In applying the rational basis test to the instant case, the Court ruled that the Division's methodology of calculating retaliatory tax served the legitimate purpose of influencing other states regarding taxes imposed on New Jersey insurers, and that the Legislature could have reasonably believed that the method of calculating the tax could achieve that purpose. Therefore, the Court also upheld the Division's methodology on constitutional grounds.

Omitted Added and Added Assessments – Freehold Borough v. Nestle USA, decided November 10, 2003; Tax Court, Nos. 004915-2001, 004916-2001.

Nestle USA, decided November 10, 2003; Tax Court, Nos. 004915-2001, 004916-2001.

The issue before the New Jersey Tax Court was whether the omitted added assessment of $1 for tax year 2000 and the added assessment of $1 for tax year 2001 made by the Freehold Borough assessor against a food processing/manufacturing facility owned by Nestle USA should be voided.

Nestle moved for summary judgment voiding the $1 assessments and dismissing the complaints on grounds that any increases in value attributable to improvements to the subject property should have been included in the regular assessment for the 2000 and 2001 tax years. Nestle alleges that the assessor's use of the omitted added and added assessment procedures was an attempt to manipulate and extend the time for municipal appeals seeking increased assessments on the subject property.

The assessor claims he became aware of projects undertaken by Nestle in late 1999 when he received copies of building permits for various projects at the site taken out by Nestle during 1997, 1998, and 1999. The assessor determined that some permits indicated the subject property's value might change as a consequence of the projects and an inspection would be required. Due to the assessor's lack of expertise in valuing the manufacturing property, he requested an appraiser be hired in 2000. But because of the cost involved, the Borough did not retain an appraiser until 2001. The appraiser was unable to quantify the amount of increase, but confirmed that there was a significant value increase over the current value of the subject property. Prior to the deadline for filing added assessments with the county tax board, the assessor knew that an added assessment in an unknown amount was called for as a result of the construction described in the building permits. He made an omitted added assessment and an added assessment for tax years 2000 and 2001, for $1 each respectively. Freehold appealed the assessments to the Monmouth County Board of Taxation, which affirmed them, and then appealed the Board's judgments to this Court.

Nestle contended that the assessor's method of reflecting additional value was invalid. It argued that the admittedly fictitious $1 omitted added and added assessments were improper attempts to increase erroneous valuations of the subject property as reflected in the regular assessments for tax years 2000 and 2001. It asserted that the omitted added and added assessment for 2000 and 2001 were imposed solely to extend the time for the Borough to contest the value of the improvements constructed prior to September 2001, which it should have appealed as regular assessments for those tax years as permitted by N.J.S.A. 54:3-21. Nestle asked that the assessment be voided.

The purpose of the added assessment law is to permit taxation of real property which becomes assessable during the year following the statutory October 1 assessment date. The assessor is authorized to make an added assessment "when any parcel of real property contains any building or other structure which has been erected, added to or improved after October 1 and completed between January 1 and October 1 following." The added assessment is imposed for the tax year in which the improvement is completed, and is prorated for the months remaining in the calendar year following completion of the project. The omitted assessment statute may be used where the assessor has failed to make an added assessment on an improvement through error. Omitted assessments may be imposed in the year in which the property should have been assessed or in the next succeeding year.

The Court found that both the omitted added assessment for tax year 2000 and the added assessment for 2001 were fictitious as to amount and that the years to which the assessor attributed the completion of the improvement were arbitrary. The assessor admitted he had not inspected the subject property until sometime in 2001. He knew by 1999 that building permits had been taken out by Nestle during 1997, 1998, and 1999, and candidly admitted that there might have been value added to the property by October 1, 1999. He further testified that he was unable to specify which projects resulted in the 2000 omitted added assessment and which projects resulted in the 2001 added assessment.

The courts of New Jersey have prohibited the use of omitted and added assessments to reflect a change in opinion as to the value of property on the regular assessment date. Omitted assessment procedures cannot be used to correct an assessor's valuation error. Also there was no "discovery" of undisclosed improvements here, but rather a refusal to determine the date on which known improvements were completed and their value. An assessor's original assessment is entitled to a presumption of correctness. In this case, the $1 assessments were so wide of the mark of true value and deficient in assessment methodology that no presumption of correctness could attach to them.

The Court found the assessor failed to perform his statutory duties. The assessments were made contrary to the statutory scheme for added assessments, which mandates that, after examination and inquiry by the assessor, such assessments are to be made for the tax year in which the improvements are completed or in the next succeeding year. In addition, the municipality could have timely appealed the regular assessments for 2000 and 2001 when the assessor, by requesting an appraiser, made the Borough aware that the values were inadequate. The assessments appealed from were made only with the knowledge that the improvements had been made sometime before the inspection of the subject property in 2001. The Court, therefore, concluded that the omitted added assessment for tax year 2000 and the added assessment for tax year 2001 must be voided.

Sales and Use Tax

Chemical and Catalyst Exemption – Atlantic City Linen Supply, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided February 10, 2004; Supreme Court of New Jersey No. C-646, September Term 2003, 55,533.

The New Jersey Supreme Court denied Atlantic City Linen's petition for certification. Previously, the Appellate Division upheld the Tax Court's ruling that chemicals and detergents used in Atlantic City Linen's laundering process were not exempt from sales tax as materials used in the manufacturing and refining process pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.20. The Appellate Division emphasized that A.C. Linen did not create a different end product, but instead performed a service.

February 17, 2004; Appellate Division No. A-2515-02T3.

Refunds – Jennifer Nicoletta and Tzvi Kulger v. Elrac, Inc., D/B/A Enterprise Rent-A-Car, decided February 17, 2004; Appellate Division No. A-1214-02T2.

Plaintiffs rented cars as individual consumers from the defendant. At the time of rental, plaintiffs obtained optional driver protection options on which they paid sales tax and claim that defendant knew that these transactions were not subject to sales tax. Thereafter, plaintiffs filed a complaint seeking recovery of damages for consumer fraud, unjust enrichment, negligent misrepresentation, and a refund of sales tax paid for themselves and a class of all taxpayers, as well as punitive damages and equitable relief. Initially, the Court granted a class certification and found that defendant improperly charged sales tax. Pursuant to a motion for reconsideration, the Court reversed vacating the prior certification and ruling that filing a refund application to the Division of Taxation was a superior remedy to a class action.

The Appellate Division dismissed the complaint holding that the complaint did not state a cause of action under the Consumer Fraud Act. In order to have a cause of action under the Consumer Fraud Act, there is a requirement that plaintiff prove an "ascertainable loss." The Court determined that plaintiffs' claim was for a refund of sales tax that is specifically governed by Sales and Use Tax Act N.J.S.A. 54:32B-20. Therefore, the Court found it improbable that a similar cause of action would exist under the Consumer Fraud Act, and that the governing tax statutes indicate an "unmistakable legislative intent that the Sales and Use Tax Act statute is the exclusive framework for refunds of the tax." Finally, the Court noted that unjust enrichment does not occur when a vendor collects and timely remits sales tax to the Division of Taxation. □

Electronic Funds Transfer — P.L. 2004, c.52, enacted on June 29, 2004, and effective immediately, lowers the threshold for mandatory use of electronic transfer as the means of filing State taxes to those taxpayers whose prior year liability was $10,000 or more.

Bank Account Information — P.L. 2004, c.56, enacted on June 29, 2004, and effective immediately, requires financial institutions, in response to a request by the Director of the Division of Taxation, to transmit electronically a report regarding the accounts of tax debtors.

Contractor Registration Changes — P.L. 2004, c.57, enacted on June 29, 2004, and effective immediately, but remaining inoperative until September 1, 2004, extends to local government agencies the requirement that public entities may enter into public contracts with providers of goods and services only if they have presented documentation showing that they are registered with this State for tax purposes. The act also requires that these providers of goods and services and their affiliates remit sales or use tax on tangible personal property delivered to a retail buyer in this State.

License Suspension of Tax-Noncompliant Businesses — P.L. 2004, c.58, enacted on June 29, 2004, and effective immediately, provides a mechanism whereby the Division of Taxation will receive information regarding the identity of entities (including individuals) that are holders of licenses to engage in a particular profession, trade, or business in this State, and will then examine their tax records to identify any areas of noncompliance and will give them an opportunity to contest their indebtedness or delinquency or to come into compliance. The act authorizes the Director to demand the summary suspension of a professional, occupational, or business license of an entity that already has an unsatisfied judgment for tax indebtedness, or who fails to remedy any tax indebtedness after receiving the notice provided for under this act.

Report for Study Commission on Discrimination — P.L. 2004, c.79, enacted on July 2, 2004, and applicable to studies already begun before that effective date, permits the Secretary of State to request from the Division of Taxation, and requires the Division to supply, a report containing basic information, not including tax information, regarding public employees and contractors. This information will be used by the Governor's Study Commission on Discrimination in State Employment and Contracting, solely in assessing the nature and scope of any past or present discrimination.

Cigarette Tax

Rate Increase — P.L. 2004, c.67, enacted on June 30, 2004, and effective July 1, 2004, increases the cigarette tax to $.12 per cigarette, increasing the tax on a pack by $.35.

Packaging Requirements — P.L. 2004, c.96, enacted on July 9, 2004, and effective October 1, 2004, amends the Cigarette Tax Act to prohibit the sale of cigarettes in packs of fewer than 20.

Corporation Business Tax

Decoupling — P.L. 2004, c.65, enacted on June 30, 2004, and effective immediately, affects certain expense deductions and depreciation permitted on the New Jersey CBT-100. For property placed in service on and after January 1, 2004, the law decouples the Federal ceiling from the amount permitted to be deducted as an expense for New Jersey corporation business tax purposes under IRC section 179. Returns for periods ending after December 31, 2003, are affected if property has been placed in service on or after January 1, 2004, but during the privilege period. Since the amount of the deduction under prior law was $25,000, that is the limit of the IRC section 179 deduction for New Jersey purposes. The act also makes clear that property placed in service after September 10, 2001, will not receive the bonus depreciation treatment.

Net Operating Loss Changes — P.L. 2004, c.47, enacted on June 29, 2004, and effective immediately, provides that for privilege periods beginning during calendar year 2004 and calendar year 2005, a limited net operating loss ("NOL") deduction is allowed for the privilege period. The deduction permitted may reduce entire net income by up to 50%. To the extent that any NOL is disallowed by reason of this limiting provision, the date on which the disallowed deduction would otherwise expire is extended by a period equal to the period of disallowance.

Cosmetic Medical Procedures Tax

P.L. 2004, c.53, enacted on June 29, 2004, and effective immediately, but which remains inoperative until September 1, 2004, imposes a new 6% gross receipts tax on the purchase of certain cosmetic medical procedures, which are medical procedures performed in order to improve a person's appearance, but without significantly serving to prevent or treat illness or disease or to promote proper functioning of the body. "Cosmetic medical procedures" do not include reconstructive surgery or dentistry to correct or minimize abnormal structures caused by birth defects, developmental abnormalities, trauma, infection, tumors, or disease. The tax will be collected from the patient by the cosmetic medical service provider, who will be required to remit the tax quarterly.

Environmental Taxes

Spill Compensation and Control Tax Changes — P.L. 2004, c.50, enacted on June 29, 2004, provides for tax rate increases effective immediately and retroactive to transfers occurring on and after January 1, 2004. The new tax rate for petroleum products, hazardous substances containing precious metals, elemental phosphorous, and elemental antimony or antimony trioxide for fire retardants is $.023 per barrel transferred. The new tax rate for hazardous substances other than the above listed is 1.53% of the fair market value of the substance transferred.

Air Toxics Surcharge — P.L. 2004, c.51, enacted on June 29, 2004, and effective immediately, imposes a new annual surcharge ranging from $.10 to $10 per pound of toxic substance, depending on the category of toxin, on toxic air emissions at certain kinds of facilities. A portion of the revenue from this fee will be used to improve security at nuclear power plants in the State.

Gross Income Tax

Increased Tax on High-Income Taxpayers — P.L. 2004, c.40, enacted on June 28, 2004, and effective immediately, increases the gross income tax rate for the highest-income taxpayers. It establishes an additional tier in the graduated gross income tax table for taxpayers with taxable income above $500,000, providing that the portion of income exceeding $500,000 shall be taxed at a rate of 8.97%.

Estimated Tax on Income From Sale of Real Property by Non-residents — P.L. 2004, c.55, enacted on June 29, 2004, and effective August 1, 2004, supplements the Gross Income Tax Act by requiring nonresidents who derive income from the sale of real property in this State to pay estimated gross income tax. The legislation provides that a county recording officer, at the time the deed is filed, must be presented with evidence of filing or payment of estimated tax with respect to the gain realized from the sale.

Local Property Tax

Property Tax Convention Task Force — P.L. 2004, c.85, enacted on July 7, 2004, and effective upon enactment, establishes a Property Tax Convention Task Force to study and make recommendations regarding reform of the local real property tax system and appropriates $250,000 to fund its activities.

Miscellaneous

HMO Assessment — P.L. 2004, c.49, enacted on June 29, 2004, and effective immediately, establishes an interim assessment on health maintenance organizations and mandates a comparative study of the equity of various taxes imposed on all health care insurance companies.

Mobile Telecommunications Fee

P.L. 2004, c.48, enacted on June 29, 2004, and effective immediately, applicable to billing periods ending on or after July 1, 2004, for most services, and to billing periods ending on or after August 1, 2004, for certain services, imposes a $.90 fee on periodic billing to mobile telecommunications and telephone exchange customers. The fee shall be used to fund the “911” system and certain other emergency response systems.

Motor Vehicle Tire Fee

P.L. 2004, c.46, enacted on June 29, 2004, and effective August 1, 2004, imposes a fee of $1.50 on the sale of new motor vehicle tires, including tires sold as a component part of a new motor vehicle either sold or leased in New Jersey.

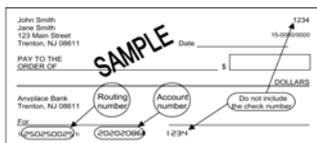

Outdoor Advertising Fee

Fee Changes — P.L. 2004, c.42, enacted on June 29, 2004, and effective immediately, provides for gradual reduction in the rate of the fee imposed on outdoor advertising signs and provides that entities that are treated as exempt organizations for sales and use tax purposes shall be exempt from the outdoor advertising fee as well. It also subjects outdoor advertising signs to real property tax.

from the director's desk

New Jersey taxpayers who invested in a variety of bond and option sales strategies, commonly called "Son of BOSS" tax shelters, as well as other Federally listed abusive tax avoidance transactions, will have until September 15, 2004, to submit a written application to resolve the tax issues.

In the late 1990s, the U.S. Treasury Department issued a notice to shut down the abusive tax shelter known as the Bond and Option Sales Strategy (BOSS), which was marketed and sold by investment bankers to tax accountants. One year later, the IRS similarly struck down a scheme with a similar design, known as "Son of BOSS."

As in the BOSS shelter, the "Son of" scheme featured a series of contrived steps to generate artificial tax losses from investments designed to offset income from other transactions. The IRS in 2000 denied taxpayers the purported losses resulting from this shelter transaction because they do not represent bona fide losses reflecting actual economic consequences as required under the tax law.

New Jersey's initiative will require taxpayers to concede 100% of the tax at issue plus interest, computed at prime rate plus 3%. Taxpayers that take advantage of this initiative will avoid all penalties, which may include the imposition of a 50% civil fraud penalty. Transaction costs such as promoter and professional fees will not be deductible.

Taxpayers wishing to participate in this initiative will be required to submit a written application, signed under penalty of perjury, no later than September 15, 2004. The application must identify in detail their participation in the abusive transactions, the entities utilized, the name(s) of the promoter(s), and all information necessary to determine the tax, interest, and penalty, if applicable.

Taxpayers who have additional questions regarding this initiative or who wish to submit an application may contact Richard W. Schrader, Assistant Director, Audit Activity at 609-292-0978.

Electronic Filing Hits Milestone

New Jersey Treasurer John E. McCormac announced that for the first time since tax year 1995, when the Division of Taxation began offering a paperless tax filing option, the number of paperless tax forms submitted has surpassed the one million mark.

The number of paperless returns filed for 2003 topped 1 million on April 13, and by the April 15 filing deadline the number had reached 1,117,878. This represents a 14.6% increase over tax year 2002, the previous single year record for paperless submissions, when 975,179 filers chose one of New Jersey's three "FastFile" options. The FastFile, user-friendly systems include NJ TeleFile, NJ WebFile, and NJ ELF, which enable taxpayers to submit paperless returns over the telephone, via the Internet, or through use of a computer software package. Based on the total number of returns the Division of Taxation had received by the filing deadline, one out of every three taxpayers has submitted forms through FastFile.

The overall increased usage of the NJ FastFile systems has enabled personnel in the Divisions of Taxation and Revenue to process returns and deliver refunds to taxpayers at an accelerated rate this spring.

"We are pleased with taxpayers' response to the paperless filing options," said Treasurer McCormac. "Our overall paperless success has been made possible though improvements to technology and computer programming. As a result, the State is reducing processing costs while also delivering efficient, user-friendly services to the citizens of our State."

NJ FastFile systems are accessible 24 hours a day, seven days a week. For more information, visit www.njfastfile.com or call our Customer Service Center at 609-292-6400. Representatives are available Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. □

Investment Clubs

On January 14, 2004, P.L. 2003, Chapter 256 was signed into law. The act took effect immediately and applies to taxable years and privilege periods beginning on and after January 1, 2002.

Chapter 256 defines an "investment club" as an entity that is classified as a partnership for Federal income tax purposes and all of its owners are individuals. All of the "investment club's" assets must be securities, cash, or cash equivalents. The market value of the total assets can not exceed, as measured on the last day of its privilege period, an amount equal to the lesser of $250,000 or $35,000 per owner of the entity. The "investment club" is not required to register itself or its membership interests with the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission.

If an entity meets the definition of an "investment club," it will be exempt from the $150 per owner annual partnership filing fee and from the requirement that a partnership make payments of New Jersey gross income tax on behalf of its nonresident owners.

The market value of the total assets, as well as the per owner amount, will increase by an inflation adjustment factor each year beginning on or after January 1, 2003. The adjusted market value of the total assets for years beginning on or after January 1, 2003, is $253,200 and the adjusted per owner amount is $35,500. Accordingly, if the investment club had three owners, the market value of the investment club's total assets cannot exceed $106,500 (3x$35,500). □

Criminal enforcement over the past several months included:

- A Linden, New Jersey, luxury used car dealer, its president, and their certified public accountant have pled guilty to charges arising from a scheme uncovered by the Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) to evade turning over $350,000 in sales tax collected from customers and filing for the New Jersey tax amnesty program indicating no liability. The dealership, Auto Village, Inc., and its president, Hisham Sadek, had failed to file New Jersey sales tax returns for the year 1994. Mr. Sadek instructed his certified public accountant to take advantage of the 1996 amnesty legislation by preparing sales tax returns reporting no sales tax had been collected for the period. Our investigation revealed that the business had collected sales tax in excess of $90,000 during the amnesty period. The investigation also revealed that fraudulent sales tax returns were filed for the periods after amnesty, and that sales tax in excess of $350,000 was, in fact, collected by Auto Village, Inc., but not turned over to the State. Although having originally received amnesty, the corporation, Mr. Sadek, and the accountant were prosecuted as a result of the investigation. Auto Village, Inc. pled guilty to purposely failing to turn over taxes (second degree), Hisham Sadek pled guilty to misapplication of property withheld for the benefit of the government (third degree), and the accountant to having participated in the scheme to evade taxes. Under the terms of plea agreements, the corporation will be faced with fines and restitution totaling more than $800,000 at the time of sentencing. Mr. Sadek will face a sentence of a four-year term of incarceration, restitution of the tax due, and possible deportation upon his release from prison. The certified public accountant faces criminal sanctions as well as civil sanctions by the Board of Accountancy for his actions. The case is being prosecuted by the State Office of the Attorney General.

- On October 6, 2003, in Superior Court – Mercer County, Trenton, New Jersey, the sentences of Robert S. Brown and William D. Black, Jr. were modified. Brown and Black are, respectively, the president and vice-president of both Employer's Management Group, Inc. and Pratt Temporaries, Inc., which are temporary employment agencies. On November 13, 2000, Brown, Black, and the corporations pled guilty to charges of failing to turn over New Jersey gross income tax withheld and failing to file New Jersey gross income tax returns in 1993–1999. Prior to sentencing, the corporations made full restitution of almost $1 million in withholding taxes. Brown and Black executed a consent judgment for penalty and interest of $318,599.52 plus accruing interest. Brown and Black were each sentenced to four years' probation. On October 6, 2003, the Mercer County Superior Court, having been advised by OCI of the amount of restitution still outstanding and that no payments have been received since July 2003, issued a court order which extends the probation of both defendants to five years. The order reflects that the outstanding amount due is in excess of $100,000.

This case is noteworthy for several reasons. First, the Division of Taxation aggressively pursues criminal prosecution of the willful failure to remit gross income tax withheld, whereas some other agencies have been seen by the business community as treating cases of this kind as solely a civil collection matter. Second, this case illustrates that OCI has and will continue to monitor and participate in the restitution, probation, and parole programs of the State to ensure that financial penalties assessed in cases of tax fraud are carried out. This is done to protect the State's revenues, to maintain criminal prosecution as a meaningful deterrent to tax evasion, and to fairly administer and enforce the State tax laws.

- On October 15, 2003, the Office of Criminal Investigation arrested Kenny Choi of Pomona, New Jersey, and Nhi Wiget of South El Monte, California, for trafficking in counterfeit cigarettes. The Mansfield Township Police stopped their truck for a commercial inspection and it was found to be filled with 22,750 cartons of the counterfeit cigarettes. The cartons were not only unstamped, but were also counterfeit trademark cigarettes. An interview with Mr. Wiget led to a commercial storage facility in Tabernacle Township, Burlington County, New Jersey, where OCI agents conducted a consent search and found 10,800 cartons of counterfeit cigarettes. OCI filed initial charges of possession of over 20,000 untaxed cigarettes, no invoices, no consumer license, and possession of over 1,000 counterfeit trademark items. Mansfield Township charged both subjects with illegal transportation and, in the case of Wiget, an additional charge of possession of narcotics paraphernalia. Cash bail was set at $250,000 for Nhi Wiget and $200,000 for Kenny Choi (later raised to $250,000). Additional charges have been filed against Wiget for the cigarettes found in Tabernacle Township, and they include failure to maintain books with intent to evade, engaging in conduct requiring registration or licensure with intent to evade, failure to file returns or reports with intent to evade, failure to pay and turn over taxes with intent to evade, and possession of over 1,000 counterfeit trademark items. The value of the seized cartons, numbering 33,550, is $2 million with the averted tax loss to the State of New Jersey being $800,000. On November 21, 2003, Wiget and Choi were subsequently indicted by the Burlington County Grand Jury. The charges included second-, third-, and fourth-degree crimes related to the unstamped and counterfeit products, as well as numerous disorderly person counts.

- On October 24, 2003, in Superior Court – Mercer County, Trenton, New Jersey, Carl F. Monto, of Toms River, New Jersey, pursuant to his guilty plea of May 27, 2003, to charges of failing to file tax returns and misapplication of $100,454 of motor fuels tax collected from January to September 1997 on the retail sale of diesel fuel at Courtesy Truck Stop, Inc., Jersey City, New Jersey, was sentenced to five years' probation and ordered to make restitution within that period of probation totaling $249,681 including tax, penalty, and interest. This case was a joint investigation by OCI and the New Jersey State Police-Organized Crime Unit, and was prosecuted by the State Office of the Attorney General.

- On October 29, 2003, a State Grand Jury handed down an indictment of Michael Evangelista, Cambria Corporation, Philip McKeane, and Clones American Corporation on charges arising from a data entry business in Pennsauken, New Jersey. They were indicted on a total of six third-degree counts, four counts of misapplication of entrusted property, one count of failure to file New Jersey employer withholding returns, and one count of failure to pay New Jersey employee wage withholding. These offenses are based on the withholding and failure to remit to the State New Jersey gross income tax from the employees of Cambria Corporation, later renamed Clones American Corporation. On November 17, 2003, corporate officer Philip McKeane, of Cherry Hill, pled guilty to two counts of misapplication of entrusted property (third degree). Under the terms of a plea agreement, Mr. McKeane will be required to serve five-year concurrent terms of imprisonment on each count. In addition, he entered into a civil consent judgment to pay the New Jersey gross income tax withholdings. Mr. McKeane is scheduled for sentencing on Friday, May 14, 2004.

- On October 30, 2003, in Superior Court – Mercer County, Trenton, New Jersey, Yefim Belotzerkovsky, a.k.a. Fred Bell, of Brooklyn, New York, and a corporation he owns, Raymond Petroleum, Inc., pled guilty to filing fraudulent motor fuels tax returns and misapplication of $87,282.78 in motor fuels tax collected from retail diesel fuel customers from July 1997 to June 1998 at a truck stop operated by the defendants in Newark, New Jersey. At the time the plea was entered, the defendants made full restitution of $155,061.27 in tax, penalty, and interest. On December 2, 2003, in Superior Court-Mercer County, Yefim Belotzerkovsky was admitted into the Pretrial Intervention Program for a term of six months, during which time he will be monitored by the Probation Services Division. Also, Belotzerkovsky and Raymond Petroleum, Inc. have waived their right to appeal the suspension, revocation, or non-renewal of the corporation's motor fuels licenses by the Division of Taxation in the event either is convicted of a criminal tax offense subsequent to October 30, 2003. This case was investigated jointly by OCI and the New Jersey State Police-Organized Crime Unit, and was prosecuted by the State Office of the Attorney General.

- On December 2, 2003, special agents arrested Jamil Bader of Elizabeth, New Jersey, at his retail store for possession of contraband cigarettes. The cigarettes were unstamped and VA stamped. Previously charged and found guilty of possession of contraband in the Elizabeth Municipal Court in November 2003, Bader was once again charged with possession of untaxed goods, no invoices, no consumer license, and failure to collect the cigarette tax. The Court set bail at $7,500 cash, no 10%.
- On December 12, 2003, three top executives at JCA Associates, Inc., a Moorestown engineering firm, pled guilty to criminal accusations of filing or preparing false or fraudulent tax returns (third degree), in violation of N.J.S.A. 54:52-10. The accusations stemmed from acts committed between 1995 and 2000 that involved the concealment of campaign contributions to public officials by characterizing them as ordinary and necessary corporate business expenses on the corporation business tax returns filed by the corporation. The corporate executives from JCA Associates, Inc. are Mark Neisser, President; Henry Chudzinski, Director of Marketing; and William Vukoder, Chief Financial Officer. As a condition of their pleas, Mr. Neisser and Mr. Chudzinski were ordered to resign their positions for two years and divest themselves of stock or ownership interests with the firm. Mr. Vukoder must resign his position for a period of five years and divest himself of all corporate interests. JCA Associates, Inc. will, under the terms of a civil settlement, pay a $100,000 civil penalty. All parties are also required to cooperate with ongoing criminal investigations being conducted by the Division of Criminal Justice.

- On December 17, 2003, Gary Dewayne Dennington, a prison inmate in Beaumont, Texas, was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury on one count of conspiracy in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 371 and six counts of mail fraud in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 1341. The charges in the indictment stem from Mr. Dennington's attempt to obtain New Jersey gross income tax refunds for the years 1998, 1999, and 2002 by filing fictitious New Jersey gross income tax returns with fictitious W-2 forms attached. If convicted of all counts, Mr. Dennington will face a criminal sentence of not more than 35 years and fines of not more than $500,000. This joint investigation with the Federal Bureau of Investigation resulted in their presentation of Mr. Dennington's acts to the Federal Grand Jury and the resulting indictment.

- Ninety-nine (99) complaints alleging tax evasion were evaluated from October through December 2003 in the Office of Criminal Investigation.
- During the same time period, one hundred and two (102) charges were filed in court on thirty-four (34) cases for violation of the Cigarette Tax Act. Of the thirty-four (34) cases, eleven (11) involved counterfeit tax stamp investigations. Further, a total of thirty-one (31) arrests were made and one (1) vehicle was seized. □

Tax Briefs

Corporation Business Tax

Extraterritorial Income Exclusion

— The Division replied to an inquiry regarding the Federal Extraterritorial Income Exclusion and whether it is an addback on New Jersey's corporation business tax return. Sub-part F income should be included on Line 28 of the CBT-100, reflecting Federal taxable income. Under the Corporation Business Tax Act's dividend exclusion provision, this amount should be excluded (on Line 33b) even though it is undistributed for that year. A copy of Federal Form 5471 should be included with the filed CBT-100 to explain the deduction. The Division follows the Federal treatment of sub-part F income as "deemed" dividend income.

Federal Renewal Community Employment Credit — For New Jersey purposes, the share of income received by the shareholder would not reflect the reduced Federal amount caused by the IRC Section 1400H Renewal Community Employment Credit. The reduced amount of wages would be used on the New Jersey CBT-100S to compute New Jersey income. N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4(k). The share of income to the shareholder should not be adjusted based upon the amount of the Federal credit because New Jersey law does not recognize this Federal credit. See AT&T v. Director, 13 N.J. Tax 534 (1993) regarding Federal credits and the Corporation Business Tax Act.

Nexus on Immune Activity — Every corporation that elects and qualifies pursuant to Section 1361 of the Internal Revenue Code and has qualified and been accepted as a New Jersey S corporation is required to file a CBT-100S for New Jersey purposes.

Foreign corporations that meet the filing requirements and whose income is immune from tax pursuant to Public Law 86-272, 15 U.S.C. §381 et seq., must obtain and complete Schedule N, Nexus-Immune Activity Declaration, and remit the minimum tax with the CBT-100S.

For additional information, Bulletin GIT-9S, Income From S Corporations, is available on the Division's Web site at www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/pdf/pubs/corp/git9s.pdf

Gross Income Tax

Tuition Reimbursement — New Jersey has no provision similar to the Federal provision regarding educational assistance plans and education reimbursement. Educational reimbursements are treated as compensation and must be included in the employee's gross income under the New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act in accordance with N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(a). However, if the tuition reimbursement payments made by the employer are for courses that are job-related, the payments are not subject to withholding and do not have to be included in the employee's gross income. To be considered job-related, the course must: maintain or improve skills required by the employer in his trade, business, or employment; meet the express requirements of the employer or meet the requirements of applicable law or regulations imposed as a condition of the retention of the employee's salary status or employment; and successful completion of the course must be required to meet the minimum requirements for employment.

IRC Section 721(a) — For Federal income tax purposes, section 721(a) provides that no gain or loss is recognized by any of its partners in the case of a contribution of property to the partnership in exchange for an interest in the partnership. The New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act at N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(c) provides that net gains or net income does not include transactions to the extent to which nonrecognition is allowed for Federal income tax purposes. Thus, for New Jersey income tax purposes, a taxpayer is not required to include gains or income from a "section 721(a)" exchange of property, to the extent of which nonrecognition is allowed for Federal income tax purposes.

Obligation to Withhold PA Income Tax — As a result of the reciprocal income tax agreement which was entered into between New Jersey and Pennsylvania, New Jersey income tax withholdings will not be required with respect to wages, salaries, and other compensation paid to Pennsylvania residents who file an Employee's Certificate of Non-Residence in New Jersey (Form NJ-165) with their employer. If such certificate is not filed, the employer must withhold tax under the New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act in the same manner as from any other employee. The Pennsylvania resident is liable for income taxes in his home state. Therefore, if a Pennsylvania resident files a Certificate of Non-Residence, the employer may withhold taxes for Pennsylvania income tax purposes and remit such taxes directly to Pennsylvania on behalf of such employee. If income tax is not withheld, the employee is requested to file estimated tax returns in Pennsylvania.

Litter Control Fee

Roll Stock Exclusion — The Division responded to an inquiry regarding the application of the litter control fee to roll stock under N.J.A.C. 18:38-3.1(b)(12). The regulations provide for 15 litter-generating product categories including “paper products and household paper.” This category includes “all items of tangible personal property made or substantially derived from paper including all paper products for home and other personal use but does not include newspapers and magazines, and does not include roll stock produced by paper product manufacturers and wood pulp, sold as such.” N.J.A.C. 18:38-3.1. Two questions were asked about the roll stock exclusion. It was noted that in neither scenario is any ink or print being applied to the paper.

When a paper distributor purchases paper as raw material (e.g., 500 sheet packages of 8.5- × 11-inch paper) and sells such paper to end users without any alteration to the paper, is such a sale by the distributor exempt from the litter control fee? Stated differently, must the seller be the manufacturer for the sale to be exempt or would the subsequent resale of the product qualify? The exclusion relating to receipts derived from the sale of “roll stock” applies only to sales made directly by the paper manufacturer. Therefore, gross receipts deriving from subsequent sales of the same product would be subject to the litter control fee. Further, the exclusion is for “roll stock,” which are large rolls that are the direct result of the paper production process. The transaction described here involves packages of cut paper. Therefore, the exclusion is not applicable to the sale regardless of the selling party.

If a paper distributor takes paper stock from its inventory and either cuts it down to a smaller size or punches holes in the paper and then sells it to its end-user customer, is such a sale exempt from the litter control fee? Again, the exclusion above relating to receipts derived from the sale of “roll stock” applies only to sales made directly by the paper manufacturer. The scenario provided refers to sales made by a distributor. Further, the “roll stock” exemption is only applicable to the sale of “roll stock” as is, not in a modified state. Therefore, the distributor’s gross receipts from the sale to an end user are subject to the litter control fee.

Outdoor Advertising Fee

Exempt Organizations — The outdoor advertising fee is imposed on the retail seller of billboard advertising space. For purposes of this legislation, the retail seller is the licensee, which is the entity authorized to sell advertising space on billboards pursuant to N.J.S.A. 17:5-5 et seq. The licensee is responsible for remitting the outdoor advertising fee on the gross amounts collected from selling advertising space on billboards.

Although this fee is imposed on the retail seller, there is nothing in the law that prohibits the retail seller from passing on this cost to the customer. If the outdoor advertising fee is separately stated on the invoice or bill provided to the customer, it should be labeled accordingly, “outdoor advertising fee,” and not as a tax. The retail seller may not in any way mislead the customer or misrepresent that the outdoor advertising fee is anything more than a reimbursement of the fee imposed on the retail seller and not a tax on the customer.

The purchase of billboard advertising space by an organization that has obtained exempt status from the New Jersey Division of Taxation is not exempt from the outdoor advertising fee imposed by Chapter 124, P.L. 2003. Since the outdoor advertising fee is not imposed directly on the exempt organization but is merely a cost passed on to the customer (exempt organization) by the licensee, the exempt organization’s exemption certificate (Form ST-5) is not valid.

Sales and Use Tax

Natural Gas and Electricity Sales — The purchase of energy used in the manufacturing process is subject to the New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act (N.J.S.A. 54:32B-1 et seq.). The

New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act does provide an exemption for sales of machinery, apparatus, or equipment for use directly and primarily in the production of tangible personal property by manufacturing, processing, assembling, or refining. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.13(a). However, effective January 1, 1998, the retail sales of gas and electricity became subject to sales and use tax in New Jersey. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(g); N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a). Natural gas and electricity are defined as “energy” which is taxed as tangible personal property. The law does not provide for any exemptions on natural gas sales to commercial and residential accounts. Since the tax is broad-based, there are no exemptions for purchases of energy for use in production, research and development, or by farmers, qualified exempt organizations (such as schools, churches, nursing homes, etc.), qualified Urban Enterprise Zone businesses, or State and local government entities. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-9(c)(3).

Sales of Whitening Products — The Division responded to an inquiry regarding the taxability of whitening gel sold to a dentist’s office. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.1 provides an exemption from the New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act for certain medical supplies and equipment. It states, in pertinent part:

Receipts from the following are exempt from the tax imposed under the Sales and Use Tax Act: sales of medicines and drugs sold pursuant to a doctor’s prescription for human use; over the counter drugs recommended and generally sold for the relief of pain, ailments, distresses or disorders of the human body....

Receipts from sales of medical equipment, durable medical equipment, and supplies, other than medicines and drugs, purchased for use in providing medical services for compensation, but not transferred to the purchaser of the service in conjunction with the performance of the service, shall be considered taxable receipts from retail sales notwithstanding the exemption from the sales and use tax provided under this section.

Since whitening gel is not customarily used to serve a medical purpose and is generally useful in the absence of illness or injury, such a product does not qualify for the exemption, even if the patient provides a prescription from a physician. Under the law, the existence of a prescription does not determine exempt status. Thus, the sale of whitening gel by a dentist’s office is subject to New Jersey sales tax as the sale of tangible personal property. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a). When purchasing whitening gel, the dentist should provide a New Jersey Resale Certificate (Form ST-3) to its vendor and not pay tax at the point of purchase. The dentist’s office would then collect and remit sales tax on the sale of the product to the patient. On the other hand, if the whitening gel is being used during the treatment of a patient by the dentist at the dentist’s office (i.e., the dentist is not reselling the product), the dentist must pay tax at the time of purchase and should not use a resale certificate. □

General

Timeliness of Protest – Harry and Susan Dashoff v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided July 30, 2003; Tax Court No. 004747-1998.

The Appellate Division remanded this case to the Tax Court for an evidentiary hearing. Previously, the Tax Court held that plaintiff failed to timely file the complaint. At issue on remand is whether the mailing of a Notice of Assessment that was never received by plaintiff triggered the statutory period to file a protest with the Division or an appeal with the Tax Court.

The Division mailed plaintiff a Notice of Assessment (“Notice”) by certified mail, return receipt requested. The Notice’s envelope indicated that unsuccessful attempts to deliver the Notice were made and that therefore the unclaimed mailing was being returned to the Division. Subsequently, the Division mailed a Certificate of Debt (“Certificate”) via certified mail to plaintiff. Plaintiff received the Certificate and thereafter filed a protest with the Division. The Division determined that the protest was untimely, as it was not received within the statutory period to file a protest from the date of the Notice.

This Court found that plaintiff chose not to claim the Notice and that the evidence was conclusive that the Notice was never received by plaintiff. The general rule is that the mailing of a properly addressed notice is presumptive evidence of receipt pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:50-6a. However, this statute creates only a rebuttable presumption of receipt, not effective receipt. Regardless, the Court ruled that the presumption of receipt does not apply to certified mail. Therefore, the Court found “that the attempted service of the Notice by certified mail failed regardless of whether the Notice was simply unclaimed or purposely refused by Dashoff.” The Court opined that had the Notice been sent by regular or ordinary mail simultaneously or subsequently that service would have been effectuated.

Gross Income Tax

Basis in Partnership Interest – Eugene and Janet Schenkman v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided November 3, 2003; Tax Court No. 000223-1998.

Plaintiff (Schenkman) was a general partner in Hoes Lane Associates between 1983 and 1991. In 1992, Schenkman, along with other partners of Hoes Lane, contributed his partnership interest in Hoes Lane to S/K Birdsall, another partnership, which then became a general partner in Hoes Lane.

Hoes Lane reported a net loss for each year that it was in existence. Schenkman was able to utilize only a portion of his allocated Hoes Lane losses to offset other partnership income for gross income tax (GIT) purposes.

In 1992, Hoes Lane petitioned for bankruptcy. Hoes Lane transferred its real property to the mortgagor in exchange for discharge of the mortgage. The parties agree that Schenkman’s amount realized from the disposition of property is gain income for GIT purposes. However, the parties disagreed as to whether Schenkman could offset his gain with his GIT basis in Hoes Lane that he subsequently transferred to S/K Birdsall upon contribution.

Schenkman claimed that his GIT basis in Hoes Lane transferred to S/K Birdsall upon contribution. The Division argued that S/K Birdsall, being an entity, is not entitled to and cannot be transferred the New Jersey adjustments to Federal basis (i.e., the Koch effect). Thus, Schenkman’s New Jersey adjusted basis in Hoes Lane (i.e., his basis in Hoes Lane unadjusted by allocated Hoes Lane losses that were not deducted for GIT purposes) before the transfer to S/K Birdsall is also his New Jersey adjusted basis in S/K Birdsall by virtue of his contribution to S/K Birdsall. Also, the Division claimed that Schenkman could obtain the Koch adjustment only when he disposed of his interest in S/K Birdsall.

The Court decided that Federal tax partnership rules were applicable, because under N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1 (c), gains and losses from the disposition of property are determined under the Federal income tax method of accounting. Internal Revenue Code (IRC) section 722 states that a contributing partner’s basis in its partnership interest will increase by the amount of the partner’s adjusted basis in the contributed property. IRC section 723 states that the partnership’s basis in contributed property is equal to the contributing partner’s basis. Upon disposition of the contributed property, any built-in gain or loss recognized is allocated to the contributing partner pursuant to IRC section 704(c)(1)(A) and Treas. Regs. section 1.704-3.

After reviewing the aforementioned IRC sections, Walsh v. Director, 10 N.J. Tax 447 (1989) and Koch v.

Director, Division of Taxation, 157 N.J. 1 (1999), the Court found that Schenkman’s GIT basis in his partnership interest in Hoes Lane transferred to and was Schenkman’s basis in S/K Birdsall. The Court also stated that Schenkman’s allocated loss on the disposition of Hoes Lane property occurs with the transaction, and not when Schenkman disposes of his partnership interest in S/K Birdsall.

Sales and Use Tax

Chemical and Catalyst Exemption

– Atlantic City Linen Supply Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided November 6, 2003; Appellate Division No. A-5146-01T1.

Plaintiff (A.C. Linen) is a commercial laundry that uses a variety of chemicals, cleaning agents, and detergents in various stages of the laundering process. A.C. Linen claims that these chemicals and detergents used in its laundering process are exempt from sales tax as materials used in the manufacturing and refining process pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.20. The Tax Court ruled that plaintiff did not qualify for this exemption because the laundry process did not result in a tangible finished product different from the material input into the process. A.C. Linen appealed that determination.

The Appellate Division affirmed the Tax Court for substantially the reasons expressed in its opinion. The Court emphasized that A.C. Linen did not create a different end product, but performed a service on the product, and that this provider of laundry services is entitled to tax exemptions that are not applicable to refining and manufacturing operations.

Floor Covering Materials – Sanford Rever v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided August 14, 2003; Tax Court No. 005566-2002.

Plaintiff entered into a contract for the construction of a new house with a contractor. The contractor referred plaintiff to a dealer to select floor covering if plaintiff desired to upgrade items contained in the contract. Plaintiff purchased flooring material and carpeting from this dealer. The invoice detailed three types of materials, the number of units purchased, the item price, and the extended price. In determining the total invoice price, the dealer calculated sales tax on the materials and then deducted a builder's credit. Dealer refused to accept plaintiff's Form ST-8, Certificate of Capital Improvement, as a basis for sales tax exemption. Therefore, plaintiff paid dealer sales tax. The floor covering was installed by an installer, not the dealer, who plaintiff alleged was a subcontractor. Plaintiff timely filed a sales tax refund claim, which was denied by the Division.

Here, the Tax Court found that the agreement between the plaintiff and the contractor required plaintiff to purchase the upgraded flooring materials himself, with an allowance towards their cost to be paid by the contractor. This allowance reflected the cost that was presumably included in the original selling price of the house. Therefore, the contractor did not purchase the upgraded materials and did not pay sales tax on plaintiff's purchase of upgraded flooring.

Plaintiff contested the refund denial claiming that the dealer should have paid sales tax when the dealer purchased the inventory it resold to plaintiff because the contractor, which plaintiff identified as the dealer, not the customer is obligated to pay the sales tax. The Tax Court determined that this transaction was the retail sale of floor covering materials from the dealer to the plaintiff and that this transaction is subject to sales tax. Although it was undisputed that the installed floor material constituted a capital improvement, the Court found that a tax exemption existed only for the installation involved in the capital improvement and not for the materials installed.

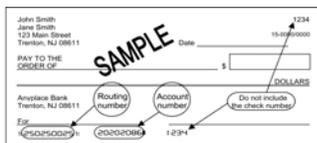

Plaintiff also argued that he contracted with the dealer for the purchase as well as the installation of flooring materials. The Court ruled that the capital improvement installation services are exempt from sales tax where the charges are stated separately on the invoice. Here the Court found that there was no evidence that installation services were contained in the invoice and noted that it was not disputed that there was no separate charge for installation.

Plaintiff filed a motion for amendment pursuant to R. 1:7-4(b) that was denied by the Court on September 26, 2003, as the Court addressed the same issues in its previous decision. □

The Division of Taxation's ongoing enforcement and prosecution efforts recently resulted in the arrest and indictment of several individuals.

- Cigarette Trafficking Operations. In January, three individuals were arrested in Totowa and 323 cartons of Virginia-stamped cigarettes were seized; in February, a Virginia man was arrested in Parsippany for possession of 45 cartons of untaxed cigarettes; and in April, 14,757 cartons of contraband cigarettes were seized during the arrest of two individuals in Jersey City.
- Tax Refund Schemes. In February, two inmates were indicted for attempting to defraud New Jersey by filing State income tax returns using fictitious wages and withholding figures on W-2 forms they created; and a California chiropractor and his sister were indicted for cheating New Jersey out of more than $117,000 in business and income taxes. In March, criminal charges were filed against a Passaic County tax preparer who filed more than 1,970 fraudulent tax returns, seeking over $708,000 in illegal refunds.

As part of our ongoing efforts to motivate people to comply with our tax laws, the Division of Taxation publicly displays a list of delinquent taxpayers on our Web site under "Largest Judgmednted Taxpayer Listings." The Web site separately lists business and individual delinquents, and distinguishes between recent and older tax debts. These postings have resulted in the collection of $7.4 million to date.

We have an obligation to enforce our tax laws to ensure that all taxpayers pay their fair share. If you are aware of any individuals or business owners who don't pay State tax, call the Division at 609-292-6400. You don't have to give your name, but please be prepared to give as much information as you can. Stop New Jersey tax cheats now!

What's New for Tax Year 2003

There have been some important changes affecting the preparation of New Jersey income tax returns and sales and use tax returns for tax year 2003:

Income Tax

- Date of Birth Replaces PIN —

The Division of Taxation no longer assigns Personal Identification Numbers (PINs) for individuals who are filing their tax returns or making payments electronically. Instead, taxpayers will use their date of birth when using NJ TeleFile or NJ WebFile or when paying their income taxes by electronic check (e-check). Taxpayers may also be asked to enter their last name. Taxpayers who use NJ ELF will still need a Federal PIN but not a New Jersey PIN.

- Forms on Web Can Be Printed and Filed — Forms NJ-1040, NJ-1040 EZ, and HR-1040 are no longer required to be submitted on original forms (i.e., those printed with red, "dropout" ink). These income tax returns can now be printed from the Division's Web site at www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/prntgit.htm and used for filing.

Forms obtained by calling NJ TaxFax (609-826-4500) from your fax machine's phone may also be used for filing.

- Nonresident

Servicepersons Filing Form

NJ-1040NR — Recent Federal legislation (Servicemembers Civil Relief Act, P.L. No. 108-189, signed into law on December 19, 2003) prohibits a state from considering military income when determining the tax rate to be imposed against other income earned in that state by a nonresident serviceperson or spouse. As a result, when completing a New Jersey nonresident return, Form NJ-1040NR, nonresident servicepersons should not report their military pay on the wages line in either Column A (Amount of gross income everywhere) or Column B (Amount from New Jersey sources) on Form NJ-1040NR.

- Retirement Income Exclusions: Phase-In Complete — The maximum amount of pension and/or other retirement income that may be excluded from New Jersey gross income was increased over a four-year period, which began in 2000. Exclusion amounts for 2003 and thereafter, which vary by filing status, are: $20,000 (married, filing joint return), $10,000 (married, filing separate return), and $15,000 (single, head of household, or qualifying widow(er)).
- New Jersey Earned Income Tax Credit: Phase-In Complete — The credit was phased in over a four-year period, which began in 2000. For tax year 2003 and thereafter, the New Jersey credit will be equal to 20% of the applicant's Federal earned income credit.
- NJ TeleFile Exemptions — Taxpayers can now use NJ TeleFile to claim the exemption for "other" dependents. Previously, TeleFile filers were limited to the exemptions for qualified dependent children and qualified dependent children attending colleges.
- Documentation MAY be Required — Some filers will be required to submit copies of W-2s before their refunds will be issued. Such taxpayers will receive instructions during their TeleFile call or WebFile session.
- Designated Contribution — In addition to the charitable funds listed on the return, taxpayers may designate a contribution to one of six other funds. The new fund added for 2003 is the New Jersey Prostate Cancer Research Fund (06).

- Credit for Taxes Paid to Other Jurisdictions — The Philadelphia nonresident wage tax rate for 2003 is .039127 from January 1 to June 30, 2003, and .038801 from July 1 to December 31, 2003.

Sales and Use Tax

- Sales and Use Tax EZ File — Some 20,000 businesses filed their 4th quarter New Jersey sales and use tax returns (Form ST-50) electronically in January 2004. Over 17,000 returns were received through the Division of Taxation's online filing program and another 3,000 returns were TeleFiled.

Businesses who are required to make their sales and use tax payments through electronic funds transfer (EFT) were notified by the Division late last year that their sales and use tax quarterly and monthly returns should be filed using either EZ File Online or EZ TeleFile beginning with the 4th quarter of 2003 return due January 20th. Eventually, electronic filing will replace paper returns for all sales and use tax filers.

Notices will be sent to all taxpayers before they are required to file electronically. Although only EFT taxpayers are now required to file electronically, any New Jersey sales and use tax filer can choose to file electronically at any time.

To EZ File Online: Visit the Division's Web site, choose File Online, and follow the directions.

To EZ File by Phone: Complete the EZ File Worksheet and call 1-877-829-2866 (toll-free anywhere) to file. □

ESTATE TAX

Life Insurance Disbursements

The New Jersey Transfer Inheritance Tax and Estate Tax regulations were readopted with changes on March 17, 2003. The changes were a result of the July 1, 2002, revisions to the New Jersey Estate Tax which apply to estates of decedents dying on or after January 1, 2002.

N.J.A.C. 18:26-11.30 and 11.31 were modified to provide that all corporations, associations, societies, and other organizations which sell life insurance or annuities in New Jersey must:

1. Give notice to the Director of all sums payable by them as the result of the death of a resident decedent by filing Form O-71 as soon as practicable after the death of a decedent, but in any event, not later than 10 days after any full or partial payment has been made; and
2. Retain 50% of all sums payable pending receipt of a tax waiver from the Director.

Form O-71 must be submitted in all cases where:

1. Payment is made as a result of the death of a resident decedent under the terms of a life insurance policy, endowment policy, or an annuity contract owned by the decedent; or
2. Payment is made as a result of the death of a resident decedent under the terms of a supplementary optional settlement or similar contract issued to effectuate the distribution of benefits originally payable to the decedent under the terms of a life insurance policy, endowment policy, or an annuity contract; or

3. A partnership, firm, or corporation is entitled to receive payment in its own right.

Both the Inheritance Tax and the Estate Tax are due and payable on a decedent's date of death. Amounts reported on Form O-71 must reflect date of death values. Accumulated dividends, post-mortem dividends, terminal dividends, and premium refunds are required to be reported on Form O-71.

Form O-71 is not required for any payment or payments made outright to a decedent's surviving spouse. If any payment or payments have or will be made to a beneficiary or beneficiaries other than the decedent's surviving spouse, Form O-71 must be submitted.

Provided that a fully completed copy of Form O-71 has been (or will be) mailed to the Director, and that each beneficiary listed on the form has been (or will be) advised that information regarding death claim payments is being supplied to the State pursuant to requirements of the New Jersey Division of Taxation, and that it is the position of the Division of Taxation that a beneficiary or beneficiaries may be personally liable for any and all inheritance and/or estate taxes until paid, all sums payable (100%) under the terms of the policy or contract may be disbursed without obtaining a tax waiver from the Director. No retention is required.

N.J.A.C. 18:26-11.31 requires that Form O-71 be mailed to the Division as soon as practicable after a decedent's death, but in any event, not later than 10 days after the date of any payment. However, completed forms may be mailed to the Division on a monthly basis. A completed form which is made part of a monthly mailing will be deemed to have been mailed in a timely manner, provided that the monthly mailing is within one month of the date on which the form would otherwise be required to be mailed.

For decedents with a date of death after December 31, 2001, Forms O-71 required to be mailed on or before November 1, 2003, will be deemed to have been mailed in a timely manner provided that they are mailed no later than July 1, 2004. If payment was made to a beneficiary or beneficiaries prior to November 1, 2003, the beneficiary or beneficiaries need not be notified.

Form O-71 and its instructions are available on the Division's Web site at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/prntinh.htm

Form O-71, its instructions, and additional information pertaining to the use of the form may be obtained

License Suppression Project

During the fall of 2002, as the Division prepared for the next cigarette and motor fuels tax license renewal period, the Audit Services Branch performed a data match which revealed a substantial number of license holders that had existing delinquent or deficient items.

Through a coordinated effort with the Division's Audit Services, Technical Support, and Compliance Branches, as well as the Division of Revenue and the Office of Information and Technology, criteria were drafted to identify those registrants that would require notification. This letter informed them that unless their delinquent and/or deficient items were addressed, their license to sell cigarettes or motor fuels would not be renewed.

There were 4,689 letters mailed in January 2003 notifying license holders that their license would not be renewed as of April 1, 2003, unless listed delinquent/deficient items were addressed. It should be noted, however, that notices were not sent to taxpayers with conference, deferred payment, bankruptcy, and audit cases that were active at the time of mailing.

After issuance, the telephone response received by Audit Services was heavy, and in many cases, taxpayers were requested to provide additional information. Matters that required an in-depth analysis were forwarded to the Compliance Branch.

A summary of the project as of January 2, 2004, is as follows:

Collections
Attributed to Project	$2,951,272
Remaining
Suppressed Taxpayers	1,463
Unsuppressed
(license issued)	3,226
Total	4,689

Based upon the above results, approximately 5,000 notices were issued in December 2003 to begin the 2004 License Suppression Project. As part of this project, field visits will be made to those taxpayers that failed to respond for the 2003 licensing period. □

CORPORATION BUSINESS TAX Bonus Depreciation

A question has been raised about the application of N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4(k)(12)(A). This portion of section 3 of New Jersey's Business Tax Reform Act was intended to decouple from the 30% bonus depreciation. As the legislative history states: "the bill disallows the deduction of the 30% 'bonus' depreciation that was allowed for certain property for federal tax purposes under the federal 'Job Creation and Worker Assistance Act of 2002,' Pub L. 107-147. The bill returns the New Jersey depreciation rules to New Jersey law as it stood before the enactment of the federal law, and gives the Director of the Division of Taxation authority to formulate rules and regulations to carry out the decoupling from federal law, including the necessary basis adjustments" [page 8, Statement to A2501, dated June 27, 2002].

The statutory section reads in pertinent part, with emphasis added, "Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (k) of section 168...and subsection (b) of section 1400L... for property acquired after September 10, 2001 and before September 11, 2004 the depreciation deduction otherwise allowed pursuant to section 167...shall be determined pursuant to the requirements and limitations of section 168...and section 280F...as if that subsection (k) and that section 1400L were not in effect."

On May 28, 2003, the Jobs and Growth Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2003, Pub L. 108-27 was approved. Section 201 of that law added a new subsection (4) to IRC

Correction

The fall 2003 issue of the State Tax News has been updated to reflect a revision to the article entitled "Billing and Enforcement Changes on the Way." The article now states that one of the conditions for not imposing the $100 late filing penalty is that the taxpayer pays the bill "within 30 days of the date on the notice." The time period was originally stated as "within 45 days."

168(k), and changed the dates in IRC 168(k)(2) by deleting September 11, 2004, and inserting January 1, 2005. The heading in IRC 1400L was amended to delete existing language and insert “BONUS DEPRECIATION PROPERTY UNDER SECTION 168(k).”

It is the Division of Taxation’s position that the New Jersey statute, P.L. 2002, c.40, section 3, froze the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 as if section 168(k) and 1400L were not in effect (for property acquired after September 10, 2001, and before September 11, 2004), and that, therefore, the Federal changes to IRC 168(k) that occurred in 2003 are not recognized at the present time for New Jersey purposes because New Jersey law requires that IRC 168(k) is ignored for privilege periods on and after January 1, 2002.

Since the 50% depreciation was created Federally in 2003 by amending IRC 168(k), for the reasons set forth in the prior paragraph, this change is ignored for New Jersey purposes, at least until September 12, 2004, at which time New Jersey law will again diverge from Federal law. (The Federal provision was extended to January 1, 2005). Accordingly, New Jersey has decoupled from the 50% bonus depreciation through the language of P.L. 2002, c.40, at least until September 12, 2004.

It should be noted that IRC section 179 depreciation was changed by section 202 of the Jobs and Growth Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2003, and it is not decoupled from New Jersey depreciation. □

Refund Claims and Lanco v. Director

On October 23, 2003, the New Jersey Tax Court ruled in favor of the taxpayer in Lanco, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation. Specifically, the Court held that because the taxpayer did not have a physical presence in the State, New Jersey could not impose its corporation business tax on the taxpayer, a foreign trademark holding company, under the United States Constitution’s Commerce Clause. That ruling is not yet final since the Division of Taxation intends to appeal the decision to the New Jersey Superior Court, Appellate Division. After the Tax Court issues a judgment, the Division has 45 days to file an appeal.

Prior to the judicial ruling becoming final, taxpayers contending that they have claims similar to Lanco may file tax refund claims to record these claims with the Division. After reviewing the refund requests, the Division will deny Lanco type refund claims because the Lanco decision is not final and could be reversed on appeal.

Taxpayers may appeal the denial of their refund claim by filing a timely protest and request for hearing with the Division of Taxation’s Conference and Appeals Branch. A hearing will be scheduled to determine whether the Lanco decision is the only issue in dispute. If it is found that other non-Lanco issues exist, a final determination letter addressing these issues will be issued.

If Conference and Appeals determines that the only issue in dispute is a Lanco issue, for administrative convenience and to limit the size of the Tax Court’s docket, a final determination letter will be issued when the highest appellate court issues a final decision in the Lanco case. If taxpayers desire final determination letters before a final judicial resolution of the Lanco decision, they should specifically advise the Conference and Appeals Branch. □

LOCAL PROPERTY TAX
PAMS Update

The Division of Taxation recently opened bid proposals to purchase a Statewide Property Assessment Management System (PAMS). The system will integrate, streamline, and standardize the business functions performed by all levels of state and local government to administer the local property tax code and share information.

PAMS is intended to be a centralized, Web-based (thin client) solution that replaces MOD IV and its peripheral systems, currently provided by various data centers across the State.

The new system will facilitate Statewide standardization by creating a centralized relational database of all real property in New Jersey and associated applications, including parcel management, computer assisted mass appraisal (CAMA), sales information and analysis, tax appeals, and tax collection. Assessors and collectors who presently use a private CAMA or collections system will be afforded the opportunity to retain their vendors at their cost, or to fully participate in PAMS with minimal expenditures.

The Property Assessment Management System will benefit taxpayers by: improving access to data, enhancing property tax equity by providing the ability to maintain assessments at market value each year, and possibly permitting one filing for property tax relief programs. The benefits for local government include: lower costs and increased revenue enhancements that can help stabilize taxes, valuation equity equaling tax equity, and better planning that can improve quality of life. The State of New Jersey will also benefit from a centralized database. PAMS will allow for instantaneous access to up-to-date parcel information used for such applications as 911/emergency planning, voter registration, citizen services, school planning, GIS (geographic information system), and environmental analysis.

The Division of Taxation anticipates that this project will take several years to fully implement. In the short term, the design calls for initial implementation in three counties (Camden, Salem, and Hunterdon). Once the system is accepted in these three counties, the remaining 18 counties will be transitioned according to a future schedule.

The PAMS project is currently in the bid evaluation process. Once the contract is awarded, the designing of the system will begin. To aid in a smooth transition, the Division of Taxation has created a conversion team that will guide the assessors in the pilot counties. The team is consulting with the assessors to determine where additional fields may be needed in PAMS. Team members are also assisting the assessors in preparing their MOD IV file for a seamless conversion. □

UNCLAIMED PROPERTY First Auction Held

Unclaimed Property's Safekeeping Unit had its very first auction at the Atlantic City Antique Show on October 18 and 19, 2003. The event exhibited a magnificent assortment of some of the finest pieces of jewelry, collectibles, and coins, which were available to buyers from around the region.

This auction represented the first of many auctions scheduled to take place in the near future for Unclaimed Property. The Safekeeping Unit is planning to utilize all available auction methods, including the very popular Internet Web site eBay, while continuing to host live auctions in varying sizes and venues. These auctions will exhibit the many valuable items currently in the possession of Unclaimed Property, which include, but are not limited to, all types of jewelry, uncirculated coins/currency, precious gems, stamps, and other fine collectibles.

The main function of Unclaimed Property's Safekeeping Unit is to collect commercially valuable, tangible personal property that has been abandoned by its owners. This type of property comes predominantly from safe deposit boxes in banking institutions. In performing its fiduciary duties for the State, the Unit first attempts to contact the rightful owners of the contents of the boxes in an attempt to reunite owners with their property. If no contact can be made, the Unit then collects, inventories, appraises, and now auctions the valuable items. The generated revenue will then be safeguarded in the Unclaimed Property Trust Fund in the names of the rightful owners until they can be located. When the rightful owners file claims with Unclaimed Property, they will receive a check for the sale price of the property, plus interest that has accrued from the time the office auctioned the property.

Unclaimed Property expects to receive a positive response from both antique enthusiasts and the general public and hopes to generate a substantial amount of revenue from the sales. □

Criminal Enforcement

- On June 24, 2003, a New Jersey State Grand Jury returned a five-count indictment charging Yefim Belotzerkovsky, a.k.a. Fred Bell, of Brooklyn, New York, and Raymond Petroleum, Inc. with theft by failure to make required disposition of property received (second degree), failure to turn over New Jersey taxes (second degree), misconduct by a corporate official (second degree), misapplication of entrusted property (second degree), and filing false and fraudulent New Jersey motor fuels tax returns (third degree). The State Grand Jury indictment identifies Belotzerkovsky as the owner and operator of Raymond Petroleum located in Newark, New Jersey. Raymond Petroleum is a retail service station selling gasoline, diesel fuel, and kerosene to motorists and truckers in the Newark area. The indictment alleges that between July 1, 1997, and July 20, 1998, Belotzerkovsky underreported 646,539 gallons of diesel fuel sold at retail, thereby evading the payment of more than $87,282 in New Jersey motor fuels excise taxes to the Division of Taxation. This was a joint investigation between the New Jersey Division of Taxation, Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) and the New Jersey State Police-Organized Crime Unit, with cooperation from the Division of Criminal Justice in obtaining search warrants. The State Attorney General's Office presented this matter to the Grand Jury.

- On July 10, 2003, a State Grand Jury indicted Edward V. Mongon of Union City, New Jersey, Mikhael Centeno of Jersey City, New Jersey, and Edward Troisi of Hoboken, New Jersey, on charges of failing to file and failure to pay New Jersey gross income tax for the period 1999 through 2002 in connection with their illegal income from the theft of property worth over $5,000,000 by an organized cargo theft ring of which the three subjects were principals. A joint investigation by the New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice and various other agencies, including OCI, resulted in the indictment, which comprised 38 counts including racketeering, conspiracy, leading an organized crime enterprise, fencing, burglary, eluding, aggravated assault, theft, weapons possession, and money laundering against 24 defendants.
- On July 28, 2003, in Superior Court – Hudson County, John Drzymkowski of Berkeley Heights, New Jersey, entered a plea of guilty to one count of failing to file returns, and Drymco, Inc. a corporation of which Mr. Drzymkowski was owner/chief administrative officer, entered a plea of guilty to one count of misapplication of entrusted funds. The charges involved $301,000 in petroleum products gross receipts tax which Drymco, Inc. collected from its customers in connection with the sale of diesel fuel to truck stops from September 1999 to December 2000. The assets of Drymco, Inc., which had been located in Kearny, New Jersey, were sold in 2002. The defendants have made partial restitution of $50,000, and at the time of his guilty plea, Mr. Drzymkowski signed a consent judgment for the outstanding tax, penalty, and interest in the amount of $331,039.36. This matter was investigated by OCI and prosecuted by the State Attorney General’s Office.

- On August 1, 2003, Donna L. Burke of Toms River, New Jersey, was sentenced to 90 days in jail based on her guilty plea to one count of misapplication of entrusted property (second degree) involving her failure to remit sales tax collected from customers. In addition, Ms. Burke was placed on five years’ probation and ordered to make restitution to the Division of Taxation in the amount of $227,242.86.

Ms. Burke, as president of Buddy Motors, Inc., a defunct used car dealership that was located in Burlington, New Jersey, collected and failed to remit $227,242.86 in sales tax. The investigation revealed that Ms. Burke acquired the business in 1976 and failed to file and report approximately $3.8 million in taxable sales involving 592 used car sales over a 2½-year period. In addition to the court-ordered restitution, Ms. Burke is personally liable for additional penalties and interest that accrue pursuant to civil statutes.

- On August 1, 2003, Richard Lugero, formerly of Millstone Township, New Jersey, was sentenced to five years in prison based on his guilty plea to failure to pay gross income tax with intent to evade, theft by deception, and theft by failing to make the required disposition (all third-degree crimes). The involved tax return years are 1993 and 1994. It was alleged that Mr. Lugero derived his income by acquiring goods and services by defrauding various creditors and businesses. Lugero was sentenced to five years in prison on each count to run concurrently and was immediately incarcerated; the judge entered a Civil Judgment for the taxes, penalties, and interest due to the Division of Taxation in the amount of $113,584. This case is the result of a joint investigation between the Office of Criminal Investigation and the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office.

- On August 15, 2003, Shravan Baile of Staten Island, New York, was sentenced based on his guilty plea to failure to turn over taxes collected involving his failure to remit sales tax collected from customers. Mr. Baile, as the president of Best Liquors of Lakewood, Inc. and Best Liquors of Lakehurst, Inc., collected and failed to remit $54,194 in sales tax at the two liquor stores he owns. Mr. Baile was fined $10,000, placed on probation for five years, and ordered to make restitution of the sales tax collected and not remitted. Just prior to sentencing, full restitution of the tax was made. This case was referred to OCI from Audit Activity, where a review determined that these two businesses may have been intentionally under-reporting the amount of sales tax collected.
- On September 5, 2003, in Superior Court – Mercer County, Mark L. Stahl of Point Pleasant Beach, New Jersey, was sentenced to five years' probation, 300 hours of community service, and fined $5,000 pursuant to his guilty plea of December 23, 2002, to two counts of misapplication of entrusted property, to wit, $110,833.24 in motor fuels tax collected and not remitted. The sentencing judge indicated he did not impose a jail term because of the defendant's claim of ill health. The defendant has made restitution of the full tax amount. The case was investigated by OCI and prosecuted by the State Attorney General's Office.
- On September 12, 2003, in Superior Court – Middlesex County, New Brunswick, New Jersey, John B. Forrest of Colts Neck, New Jersey, entered guilty pleas on behalf of himself and his corporation, Tri-State Ticket Exchange, Ltd., Old Bridge, New Jersey, to charges of theft by deception of approximately $647,000 from customers who ordered sports and entertainment events tickets that were never delivered, misapplication of $122,626.37 in sales taxes of New Jersey and eight other states which Forrest collected from his customers but failed to turn over to tax agencies, credit card fraud, failure to file New Jersey sales and use tax returns for the period January 2001 through December 2002, and failure to turn over $33,280.00 in New Jersey sales and use tax collected in that period. Forrest has agreed to make restitution of all of the above amounts and never again to engage in business as a ticket seller or broker in New Jersey. Forrest was scheduled to be sentenced in January 2004. This was a joint investigation between OCI and the Division of Criminal Justice, who prosecuted the matter.
- On September 16, 2003, in Superior Court – Bergen County, Hackensack, New Jersey, Daniel Provenzano of Upper Saddle River, New Jersey, was sentenced to ten years in State prison and ordered to make restitution to the State of $47,306.58 tax, and penalty and interest of $64,181.75, totaling $111,488.33, pursuant to his guilty plea on November 6, 2002, to charges of operating a now-defunct printing business in Fort Lee, New Jersey, as a racketeering enterprise; using violence and criminal means to extort payments from customers and suppliers of the business; and failure to file a gross income tax return for 1996 with intent to evade $47,306.58 tax on income of $827,000.00. This case was a joint investigation by OCI and the New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice-Organized Crime and Racketeering Bureau, and was prosecuted by the State Attorney General's Office.
- One hundred eleven (111) complaints alleging tax evasion were evaluated from July through September 2003 in the Office of Criminal Investigation.

Corporation Business Tax Alternative Minimum Assessment (AMA) Calculation — Parent (“P”) is a company incorporated in the state of Delaware with its principal place of business in New Jersey. P is principally engaged in the business of manufacturing and making sales of consumer products to both wholesale and retail customers throughout the United States and on a global basis. P wholly owns Subsidiary (“S”), a company incorporated in the state of Delaware with its principal place of business in New Jersey. S’s sole business activity is the financing arrangement with P described below.

P designs, manufactures, markets, and sells consumer products to retail and wholesale customers. Retail sales of P’s products are made to consumers through local and national retailers. Such retailers purchase P’s products from P. Commercial users of P’s products make purchases directly from P. Customers who purchase P’s products are given a grace period within which payment must be made to P. Such payments due from its customers are entered into P’s accounts as customer trade receivables (“Receivables”), and normally remain on P’s books until paid.

In order to resolve liquidity issues, P has entered into a financing arrangement with S. Under this arrangement, P makes sales of its Receivables to S. As stated above, Receivables arise in the normal course of P’s business and represent payments due from customers who purchase P’s products. In return for the Receivables, S compensates P with cash and one or more notes payable.

S, in turn, has entered into a financing arrangement with a third-party lender bank (“Bank”). Under this arrangement, S transfers to the Bank a beneficial interest (“Beneficial Interest”) in a fixed percentage of the total Receivables (the “Receivables Pool”), e.g., 80% of the Receivables Pool. In return, the Bank gives S a sum of money equal to the value of the Beneficial Interest in the Receivables Pool received. For example, if S held $100 in Receivables, S may transfer Beneficial Interest in $80 of the Receivables Pool to Bank, and Bank would remit $80 to S.

The Beneficial Interest transferred gives Bank only the right to receive payments on the Receivables. The Beneficial Interest in the Receivables transferred does not specify individual receivables from which payments are due. Rather, it only conveys the right to receive payment on an unspecified portion of the Receivables Pool held by S, e.g., 80% of the Receivables Pool. As such, S retains the risk and burden in the case of any default on the Receivables. Also, by taking less than 100% of the value of the Receivables Pool held by S, Bank is not at risk for any individual customer defaulting on payments. S has the responsibility for replacing any individual Receivable in the Receivables Pool that has been paid in full, or has become worthless.

It is noted that transactions such as the sale of Receivables from P to S and the transfer of the Beneficial Interest in the Receivables from S to Bank are standard business practice in the consumer products industry, as well as numerous other industries, used in order to resolve liquidity issues.

P and S file a consolidated Federal income tax return, and each files separate corporation business tax returns in New Jersey.

For Federal income tax purposes, P reports net gains and losses on the sale of Receivables to S. Receipts from the sale of the Receivables to S are not included as receipts on the Federal return.

Also, for Federal income tax purposes, S reports net gains and losses on the transfer of the Beneficial Interest in the Receivables Pool to the Bank. Receipts from the transfer of the Beneficial Interest in the Receivables to Bank are not included as receipts for Federal income tax purposes.

The specific questions raised under these facts are (1) whether for P’s calculation of gross receipts for AMA purposes, P will include only net gains on the sale of the receivables by P to S; and (2) whether for AMA purposes in S’s calculation of gross receipts, S will include receipts from the transfer of the Beneficial Interest from S to the Bank.

First, for AMA purposes, only net gains are included in calculating gross receipts from the sale of capital assets. Capital assets are property not held by the taxpayer for sale

to customers in the regular course of business. See AT&T v. Director, 194 N.J. Super. 168 (App. Div. 1984), certification denied 97 N.J. 627 (1984). In addition, since P includes in its gross receipts receipts from the sale of products to customers, to include the receipts from this transaction on a gross basis would effectively double count the receipts. Accordingly, it is the opinion of the Division that gross receipts from the sale of Receivables from P to S would not be included in the receipts calculation, but net gains, if any, would be included. (It should be noted that a factoring transaction between certain affiliates is subject to special treatment as a related party transaction under N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4.4).

Second, with regard to the payment to S by the Bank in exchange for the transfer of the Beneficial Interest in the Receivables Pool from S to the Bank, such receipts would be considered other business receipts. For Federal income tax purposes, S includes only gains or losses derived from the transfer of the Beneficial Interest in calculating its taxable income, not the gross receipts. For New Jersey purposes, the methodology used by S on its Federal tax return would be respected with regard to inclusion of only net gain with regard to payments from Bank to S for New Jersey gross receipts purposes. Accordingly, it is the opinion of the Division that for purposes of the AMA, S should not include amounts received from Bank for transfers of the Beneficial Interest in the Receivables Pool. But any gains derived from the transfer should be included in the measure of S's New Jersey gross receipts.

Making an Alternative Minimum Assessment (AMA) Election —

The Division recently reviewed the application of two statutory provisions regarding tax calculation and payment responsibilities to a particular fact pattern. Under N.J.S.A. 54:10A-5a.c., a taxpayer is required to pay the greater of the amount computed under the AMA or the CBT (corporation business tax). Under N.J.S.A. 54:10A-5, an election to pay the AMA using either the gross receipts or gross profits method is effective for the next four privilege periods.

These sections are to be applied to the below situation as follows:

For its privilege period, taxpayer calculates an AMA gross profits tax of $600, a CBT of $700, and an AMA gross receipts tax of $1,000. Taxpayer pays the CBT of $700.

By paying the CBT, taxpayer made an election to follow the gross profits method for the next four years. The choice of comparing the tax under gross profits to CBT (rather than the tax under gross receipts) actually determined the amount of tax that taxpayer was required to remit to New Jersey for the taxable year under the CBT.

Massachusetts Interest Income and New Jersey Throwout —

The Division recently responded to a question regarding the operation of the New Jersey throwout rule in the context of a Massachusetts taxpayer.

Corporation X is a manufacturing corporation for Massachusetts tax purposes. It includes its product sales, royalties, and interest income in Massachusetts net income subject to tax on its Massachusetts return. Corporation X files a New Jersey corporation business tax return according to New Jersey's statutes and rules. Corporation X properly treats the sale of product, the generation of the royalty income, and the earning of the interest income as operational income for New Jersey purposes. As a result, royalties and interest income are properly treated as apportionable income for New Jersey purposes.

The issue is whether or not, given the following facts as summarized here, Corporation X's interest income should be thrown out of its New Jersey receipts fraction denominator.

1. The interest is included in New Jersey allowable "entire net income";
2. The interest income is sourced to Massachusetts for purposes of the New Jersey receipts fraction numerator;
3. Corporation X is subject to, and files a Massachusetts corporation income tax return;
4. The interest income is included in Corporation X's Massachusetts apportionable net income; and
5. Massachusetts excludes all interest income from the denominator and the numerator of the Massachusetts receipts fraction.

This summary is based upon the following analysis:

The interest income appears above line 28 of the CBT-100 filed in New Jersey and is included in New Jersey "entire net income." As such, it is a receipt for purposes of determining New Jersey's receipts fraction. Applying N.J.A.C. 18:7-12(e), the interest income is sourced for New Jersey purposes to Massachusetts, the location of the commercial domicile of Corporation X.

Under applicable Massachusetts law, the interest income is included in the determination of net income that is subject to tax. However, taxable net income for a Massachusetts manufacturing corporation is apportioned based on its sales fraction. Under Massachusetts General Law c. 63, Sec 38(f), when determining its sales fraction, interest income is not included in either the numerator or denominator of the taxpayer's sales fraction.

The management of the assets which generate the interest income occurs exclusively at Corporation X's commercial domicile in Massachusetts. All of the management and decision making activities regarding the investment assets occur at the commercial domicile and corporate headquarters of Corporation X in Massachusetts.

It may also be noted that the applicable rule, N.J.A.C. 18:7-8.7(d), reads in pertinent part as follows: "The receipts sourced to a state, a possession or territory of the United States or the District of Columbia or to any foreign country in which the taxpayer is not subject to a tax on or measured by profits or income or business presence or business activity shall be excluded from the denominator of the sales fraction." In the situation under consideration, the taxpayer is subject to tax in Massachusetts, and the interest income is a measure of the taxes in Massachusetts.

Accordingly, under the facts presented, where the interest income is clearly subject to tax by both Massachusetts and New Jersey, and Corporation X files a tax return in both these jurisdictions, the interest income should not be thrown out of the denominator of the New Jersey receipts fraction.

Gross Income Tax

Common Pay Agent — The Division of Taxation responded to an inquiry asking if a Qualified Subchapter S Subsidiary (QSSS) may withhold New Jersey income tax under the same employer identification number as its parent company. The QSSS stated it withholds under one employer identification number for Federal income tax purposes.

The New Jersey Division of Taxation recognizes common pay agents for income tax withholding, reporting, and registration purposes. Even though there is no statute or regulation regarding common pay agents, the NJ-WT, New Jersey Gross Income Tax Instruction Booklet for Employers, Payors of Pension and Annuity Income and Payors of Gambling Winnings, provides guidance in such situations. The NJ-WT is available on the Division's Web site at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/prntempl.htm

As stated in the NJ-WT booklet, "employers with multiple divisions or locations having the same Federal Employer Identification Number must file combined withholding returns for all locations under one number."

Therefore, the QSSS may use the same employer identification number as its parent and report New Jersey income tax withholding in the same way as used for Federal income tax purposes.

However, the New Jersey Department of Labor may not recognize common pay agents for employment tax purposes. For more information, contact the New Jersey Department of Labor at 609-633-6400.

Employee Business Expenses — The Division received an inquiry asking if employee business expenses are excludable from gross income.

N.J.A.C. 18:35-1.2(b) provides that, for New Jersey gross income tax purposes, if an individual is an employee, all earnings in connection with employment are deemed to be and shall be reported by the taxpayer as wages, salaries, commissions, bonuses, and other remuneration received for services rendered, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(a).

N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(a) provides that all wages or other remuneration received for services rendered are taxable.

However, the Division provides a limited exception for certain employee business expense reimbursements reported on Form W-2. Taxpayers may only exclude these amounts from the New Jersey gross income tax return provided that:

1. The reimbursed expenses are job-related;
2. The taxpayer is required to and accounts for these expenses to the employer; and
3. The employer reimburses the taxpayer in the exact amount of the allowable expenses.

Taxpayers must enclose the following with their NJ-1040: a statement explaining that they are excluding a portion of the wages reported on the W-2 and the reasons for excluding this amount; and a photocopy of Federal Form 2106. Any reimbursement amount that exceeds the qualified excluded expenses of the employee is treated as taxable gross income for New Jersey purposes.

Outdoor Advertising Fee

Responsible Party — The outdoor advertising fee authorized by P.L. 2003, c.124 is imposed on the retail seller of billboard advertising space. For purposes of this legislation, the retail seller is the licensee, which is the entity authorized to sell advertising space on billboards pursuant to N.J.S.A. 27:5-5 et seq.

The licensee is responsible for remitting the outdoor advertising fee on the gross amounts collected from selling the advertising space on billboards. "Gross amounts" do not include fees received by an advertising agency or broker that is not related to the retail seller (licensee).

In the situation where an advertising agency or broker is involved, the advertising agency or broker will be considered an agent of the customer, and thus, not responsible for the outdoor advertising fee, unless the advertising agency or broker is itself a licensee and is directly selling billboard advertising space.

Although this fee is imposed on the retail seller, there is nothing in the law that prohibits the retail seller from passing on this cost to the customer. If the outdoor advertising fee is separately stated on the invoice or bill provided to the customer, it should be labeled accordingly, "outdoor advertising fee," and not as a tax. The retail seller may not in any way mislead the customer or misrepresent that the outdoor advertising fee is anything more than a reimbursement of the fee imposed on the retail seller and not a tax on the customer.

Type of Sign Subject to Fee — A license is required to sell or rent billboard advertising pursuant to N.J.S.A. 27:5-5 et seq. Therefore, if a license is required by the Department of Transportation to sell advertising space on a particular outdoor sign, then the gross receipts from the sale of that advertising space are subject to the 6% outdoor advertising fee. However, if a license is not required, then the gross receipts for the sale of space on that sign are not subject to the outdoor advertising fee.

Realty Transfer Fee

Conveyance From Dissolved Corporation to Shareholder — The Division replied to an inquiry concerning whether the realty transfer fee applies to a deed conveyance between a dissolved corporation and its single shareholder. Any deed that is to be recorded with the appropriate county governmental recording office is subject to the realty transfer fee (N.J.S.A. 46:15-1 et seq.). Exemptions from the fee are set forth in N.J.S.A. 46:15-10. The mere fact that the corporation is dissolved and the sole shareholder now desires to take legal title to real property owned by the corporation is not, in and of itself, reason for exemption from the fee if the shareholder desires to record the deed. The list of exemptions should be consulted to determine if any of them apply to a particular deed conveyance when the deed is to be recorded.

Sales and Use Tax

Exempt Organization Application Process — To apply for exempt status with New Jersey, a nonprofit organization must file an Application for ST-5 Exempt Organization Certificate (Form REG-1E). Form REG-1E is a combination tax registration form and application for exempt organization permit. This must be accompanied by the organization's:

- Articles of Organization (Articles of Incorporation, charter, trust agreement, or constitution) and by-laws; and
- Internal Revenue Service Determination Letter stating that the organization is exempt from Federal income tax under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code (not required from volunteer fire companies; and emergency, first aid, veterans', and parent-teacher organizations).

The application may be acquired by calling 609-292-5994, or by printing it directly from the Division of Taxation's Web site at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/pdf/other_forms/sales/reg1e.pdf

The completed application should be sent to:

NEW JERSEY DIVISION OF TAXATION
TRENTON, NEW JERSEY 08695-0269

Once approved, an organization will receive only one Exempt Organization Certificate (Form ST-5). The organization's name, address, and exempt organization number, along with the effective date and the signature of the Director of the New Jersey Division of Taxation, will appear on this certificate.

When the representative of an approved exempt organization purchases merchandise and/or services to be used exclusively by the organization, sales tax is not due, provided a copy of the organization's New Jersey Exempt Organization Certificate (Form ST-5) and payment made directly from the organization's account are furnished to the seller. Only organizations which have been granted exempt status by the New Jersey Division of Taxation may use the New Jersey

Exempt Organization Certificate to make purchases without paying New Jersey sales tax. Some examples of organizations which may have exempt status are: churches, hospitals, veterans' organizations, and fire companies. Senior citizens' clubs, political organizations, and fraternal organizations, such as the Knights of Columbus, the Elks, the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs, are not eligible for exempt status, and they may not issue New Jersey Exempt Organization Certificates. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-9. For more information on this topic, please see the Division's publication RSB-100, Starting a Nonprofit Organization in New Jersey - Questions and Answers, available at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/pdf/pubs/exemptfaq.pdf

Genealogical Research — Genealogical research provided to a customer is similar to the sale of a "customized report," which is treated as the sale of a personal service. Personal services are exempt from sales tax as long as any property that is transferred is inconsequential and not separately charged for. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(e)(4)(A). Thus, charges for providing a service resulting in a research product that is specific to the customer are not subject to sales tax.

However, the sale of research which is not customized for a particular purchaser, but rather is provided to a number of customers without substantial and material custom research modification, is the sale of tangible property which is subject to sales tax. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a). Sales of such reports that are delivered to clients in New Jersey in either hard copy, CD-ROM, or other tangible means are subject to sales tax. If the information is transmitted solely in electronic form, the transaction is one for intangible property, which is not taxable.

Therefore, a bound, written, and custom research report of genealogical research provided to a specific customer who requested the research (or the same thing transferred on CD-ROM or on video) is exempt from tax as an inconsequential element of a personal service. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(e)(4)(A).

Layaway Sales and Service Charges — Layaway payments are considered deposits on a future sale. Sales tax is not due on a deposit until actual delivery of the taxable merchandise occurs to which the deposit applies. If a sale is cancelled, there is no taxable transaction, and the deposit is not subject to sales tax.

The statute is clear that any elements of cost to the seller (with the exception of transportation costs, dealt with under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.11), are includable in the taxable receipt. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(d). Layaway service charges are fees for the expense of the seller related to the temporary storage of goods. Therefore, such charges are subject to sales tax as part of the taxable receipts. □

Time Period to File Complaint — James Liapakis v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided September 15, 2003; Appellate Division No. A-5341-00T5.

The Division's gross income tax determination letter was sent by certified mail on August 18, 2000, and received by plaintiff (Liapakis) on August 21, 2000. Liapakis filed his complaint on November 17, 2000, which was 91 days after the determination letter was mailed and 88 days after Liapakis received it. The Tax Court ruled that the complaint was untimely as it was filed beyond the 90-day time period to file a complaint because the mailing date commenced the calculation of the 90-day period. Liapakis appealed arguing that the date the letter was received should start the running of the 90 days.

In determining whether the mailed or received date commenced the running of the 90 days, the Appellate Division's analysis commenced with N.J.S.A. 54A:9-10(a), which requires that a taxpayer appeal the Director's decision within 90 days in conformity with the State Tax Uniform Procedure Law. Thereafter, there is an apparent inconsistency among the statutes. On one hand, the State Tax Uniform Procedure Law N.J.S.A. 54A:51-18 states that all matters regarding the complaint and practice in the Tax Court are prescribed by the rules of court unless otherwise specifically provided by law. Rule 8:4-2(a) states that the time period is calculated from the date of service, and Rule 1:5-4(b) provides that service is complete upon the date of acceptance of certified mail. On the other hand, State Tax Uniform Procedure Law N.J.S.A. 54:49-18a states that the time to appeal commences from the final determination date, which date is defined by N.J.S.A. 54A:9-10(e) as the mailing date.

The Court ruled in favor of Liapakis noting that ambiguities in the tax law are construed in the taxpayer's favor and relied upon its previous ruling in Township of Holmdel v. Director, Division of Taxation, 12 N.J. Tax 112 (1991), as well as Winberry v. Salisbury, 5 N.J. 240, cert. denied, 340 U.S. 877 (1950), a New Jersey Supreme Court case involving a separation of powers issue. In Holmdel, this Court previously held that N.J.S.A. 54:51A-18 itself "constitutes express legislative recognition of the judiciary's responsibility to prescribe the procedure for the calculation of the limitation period." Consequently, the Court reversed the Tax Court and held that Liapakis's complaint was timely because the date that the certified mail was received and signed for begins the calculation of the 90-day period.

The Director, Division of Taxation filed a petition of certification to the New Jersey Supreme Court.

Corporation Business Tax

Nexus and Physical Presence — Lanco, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided October 23, 2003; Tax Court No. 005329-97.

Plaintiff ("Lanco") is a Delaware corporation that owns trademarks, trade names, and service marks, but has no real or tangible property, offices, or employees in New Jersey. Lanco licenses these intangibles to Lane Bryant, Inc., an affiliated corporation, that has retail operations in New Jersey as well as in other states. Lanco and Lane Bryant, Inc. have a direct, long-term contractual relationship. For the use of these intangibles, Lane Bryant, Inc. remits royalty payments to Lanco; therefore, Lanco derives income from a New Jersey source. Although Lane Bryant, Inc. received a deduction for the royalty payments on its corporation business tax return, Lanco did not pay income or franchise tax on the royalty income to Delaware. The Division of Taxation determined that Lanco was required to file New Jersey corporation business tax returns due to the activity under the license agreement.

In general, states must comport with the Due Process and Commerce Clauses of the United States Constitution in their taxation of entities engaged in interstate commerce. The Court opined that the major issue for the instant case was whether the Commerce Clause's physical presence requirement for sales and use taxation, following Quill Corp. v. North Dakota, 504 U.S. 298 (1992), to establish nexus with the taxing state also applied to the imposition of a state income or franchise tax. After reviewing and analyzing the leading cases in the nexus arena, the Court ruled that the Commerce Clause requires physical presence in the taxing jurisdiction for the constitutional exercise of State taxing power. Therefore, in order for the taxpayer to have nexus and be subject to taxation, physical presence must be established, as it is a necessary element of Commerce Clause nexus for taxation. The Court reasoned that the differences between the income tax and use tax are not significant enough to justify a different rule regarding physical presence, and that pre-Quill cases suggest that physical presence is required.

The Court recognized that the South Carolina Court case of Geoffrey Inc. v. South Carolina Tax Commission, 437 S.E.2d 13 (S.C. 1993) found Commerce Clause nexus without physical presence and that other cases existed. However, after dissecting Geoffrey, it dismissed the holding as relying on dictum and not being supported by the authorities it cited. The Court noted that because the United State Supreme Court denied certiorari it did not address the merits of the holding, and that the ruling is only binding precedent in South Carolina. Moreover, the Court found that despite considerable activity in the nexus area, other courts were not following Geoffrey. In other cases where courts stated that physical presence was not required for nexus, this Court dismissed them as it found that the taxpayer did have physical presence in the taxing jurisdiction anyway.

The Court recognized that Lanco had no real or tangible property, offices, or employees in New Jersey, or anything else that would constitute physical presence. Therefore, the Court held Lanco was not subject to New Jersey corporation business tax in "that the state may not assert nexus, absent physical presence, against a corporation that receives income from the use of trademarks or other intangibles employed in a New Jersey business conducted by an affiliated corporation."

The Division of Taxation intends to appeal this decision to the New Jersey Superior Court, Appellate

Net Operating Loss Carryover – Macy's East, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided March 26, 2003; Tax Court Nos. 000018-98, 003989-1998, 00415-2000, 002019-2001 and 002754-2002.

Macy's East was incorporated on December 13, 1994, as an Ohio corporation. Macy's Northeast, a Delaware corporation, and Macy's South were merged into Macy's East on December 19, 1994, after conclusion of bankruptcy proceedings. Jordan Marsh, a Delaware corporation, and Abraham and Strauss, an Ohio corporation, were merged into Macy's East in 1995. Abraham and Strauss Real Estate, a Delaware corporation, was merged into Macy's East in 1998. Each entity, except Macy's South, that was merged into Macy's East had a New Jersey net operating loss carryover before the merger. However, the Division disallowed Macy's East from deducting the net operating loss carryovers of the other entities that merged into it.

The Court reviewed the legislative and regulatory background concerning net operating loss carryovers. As enacted in 1985, N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4(k)(6) permitted net operating loss carryovers. In 1986, the Division's regulation N.J.A.C. 18:7-5.13(b) permitted only the actual corporation that sustained the loss and the net operating losses of the surviving corporation of a statutory merger to be utilized in the carryover. Furthermore, the regulation disallowed a taxpayer that changed its state of incorporation or which was part of substantial tort litigation, filed a Chapter 11 reorganization petition in the Richmond, Virginia Bankruptcy Court. The reorganization plan granted Robins, the surviving entity in the bankruptcy, the rights and property of the company that initially filed for bankruptcy. One of those assets was a multi-million dollar net operating loss (NOL) for New Jersey corporation business tax purposes. New Jersey net operating loss tax law, codified in the Business Tax Reform Act as N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4.5, allows NOLs to be used only by the corporation that incurs the loss. The Director denied the refund claim because the corporation which survived under the reorganization plan is a different corporation than the entity that incurred the loss and was later dissolved. Robins sought relief in both the Virginia Bankruptcy Court and the New Jersey Tax Court. A Federal Court judge in Virginia found the New Jersey Division of Taxation to be immune from Robins' suit under the United States Constitution Eleventh Amendment. Robins did not appeal the Federal Court's decision.

Then the matter returned to the New Jersey Tax Court. The Appellate Division affirmed the Tax Court's opinion finding that N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4.5 is constitutional. The taxpayer had argued that the retroactivity provision of this statute is unconstitutional because it violates the due process clauses of the United States and New Jersey Constitutions, the New Jersey Constitution's prohibition against special legislation, and the separation of powers doctrine. The Appellate Division also affirmed the Tax Court's decision upholding the Director's denial of taxpayer's refund claim for corporation business tax based on the New Jersey Supreme Court's decision in Richards Auto City, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation.

Local Property Tax

Exemption Status – Regent Care Center, Inc. v. Hackensack City, 19 N.J. Tax 455 (2001); aff'd Appellate Division, No. A-540-01T2 (July 22, 2003).

The issue before the Superior Court, Appellate Division, on appeal from the Tax Court of New Jersey, was whether plaintiff Regent Care Center, Inc.'s increased assessment was an illegal spot assessment for tax year 1998. They also claimed that "assessment maintenance" was unconstitutional. A further claim was that if assessment maintenance was a valid practice, it should not be permitted because there were no uniform regulatory standards in place.

After a trial, the Tax Court, in a published opinion, Regent Care Center, Inc. v. Hackensack City, 19 N.J. Tax 455 (2001), upheld the increased assessment, concluding it was not a constitutionally prohibited spot assessment.

On appeal, Regent Care contends the trial court erred, asserting that because the increased assessment was not based on a change in the zoning, change in legal status, or physical change to the property, and it was one of only a small group of properties for which assessments were changed, it is a prohibited spot assessment. Regent Care further urges the practice of "assessment maintenance" be declared an unconstitutional device creating spot assessments. Finally, Regent Care argues that even if assessment maintenance is a constitutionally permissible practice, it was conducted in this case without the benefit of uniform guidelines from either the Division of Taxation or the Bergen County Board of Taxation, and therefore the resulting increase in the assessment of its property cannot be sustained.

Hackensack's last prior revaluation was in 1988, followed by a district-wide reassessment in 1993, approved by the Bergen County Board of Taxation, in which all 11,209 line items were reviewed. As of October 1, 1996, for tax year 1997, as part of an assessment maintenance plan, the assessor changed the assessment, leaving the land at $546,000, but increasing the improvement to $7,544,300, for a total of $8,090,300, which remained in place through the time of the trial in 2001. The assessor reviewed the 11,209 property record cards for the entire city, all available sales ratio data, all available "Chapter 91" income and expense information, and applicable zoning changes. In doing so, the assessor determined that about 150 commercial properties were grossly underassessed.

In order to determine the value of the nursing home, the assessor used comparable sale prices allocated on a per bed basis. He was aware of recent nursing home sales in surrounding communities in the range of $40,000 to $60,000 per bed. Regent Care's original assessment was $24,000 per bed. Regent Care did not present any evidence as to value, did not challenge the assessor's per bed valuation method, and did not contend its property was overassessed or assessed outside the corridor permitted by Chapter 123, P.L. 1973.

The Court reviewed the Van Decker Welcome Stranger principles and concluded that the assessor did not use the “sale of the subject” factor, but relied upon appropriate data (sales of nursing homes in neighboring municipalities) to determine the increased assessment. The Court noted, however, that spot assessing was not limited to the Welcome Stranger scenario. The Court found that the reassessment of Regent Care’s nursing home did not constitute arbitrary intentional discrimination. The reassessment was implemented as part of a comprehensive review of all properties in the district. All commercial and industrial properties were evaluated. Those that were not underassessed were not changed. But all were evaluated and considered. Those selected for increases were not selected arbitrarily, but based upon objective, non-sales-related evidence, and in relation to other similarly situated properties within the class.

The Appellate Court then addressed Regent Care’s declaration that the practice of “assessment maintenance” was an unconstitutional device creating spot assessments. “Assessment maintenance” refers to the practice by which an assessor changes some assessments in a year when a districtwide revaluation or reassessment is not performed. The Court declined to declare that all “assessment maintenance” is impermissible stating that such a declaration was not warranted, would be contrary to established precedent, and must be decided on a case-by-case basis.

The Appellate Court also rejected Regent Care’s contention that the absence of formal uniform guidelines pertaining to assessment maintenance renders the practice illegal. The Court noted that guidelines do exist. The Handbook for New Jersey Assessors, New Jersey Division of Taxation (1989), was cited with approval in Van Decker as a source of proper assessment maintenance. In particular, the Court cited sections of Chapter 9, which is devoted to assessment maintenance. Further, assessors are trained, tested, and certified professionals. Whether assessors fulfilled their obligations under N.J.S.A. 54:4-23 in a fair and non-discriminatory manner should be judged by their actions on a case-by-case basis.

The dominant principle of the State Constitution’s uniformity clause is to mandate equality of treatment and burden. Taxpayers must be treated in a manner comparable to other taxpayers. Although performing a districtwide revaluation or reassessment every year would be the best way of meeting that mandate, it is simply not feasible. And yet, assessors cannot be expected to do nothing in years between districtwide revaluations or reassessments. The Court noted that although “‘assessors are prohibited from arbitrarily singling out property for increased assessment,’ they nevertheless ‘have a statutory obligation to monitor all available indicia of property value and to correct inequities in tax years other than years of district-wide revaluations. N.J.S.A. 54:4-23.’” It was held that the assessor properly discharged his statutory obligation to assess all property annually at full and fair value. The increased assessment was upheld. □

In Our Legislature

Corporation Business Tax Business Employment Incentive Program — P.L. 2003, c.166 (signed into law on September 2, 2003) expands the New Jersey Business Employment Incentive Program, which is designed to promote economic development, and provides for additional funding by authorizing the Economic Development Authority to issue bonds. This act took effect immediately.

Economic Development Incentives — P.L. 2003, c.194 (signed into law on November 21, 2003) expands the economic development incentives for rehabilitation and economic recovery in certain fiscally distressed municipalities.

Chapter 194 expands both the business incentive program and the jobs creation credit program to extend eligibility for the credits allowed under each beyond corporation business tax payers to include insurance companies subject to insurance premiums taxes under P.L. 1945, c.121 (C.54:18A-1) and foreign insurance companies subject to “retaliatory” taxes.

This law also increases the maximum percentage of the rebate base allowable against either corporation business tax or the premiums or retaliatory taxes under the business incentive program from 75% to 100% in cases as to which the New Jersey Economic Development Authority finds that a particular business relocation or expansion will more effectively effectuate the purposes of the “Municipal Rehabilitation and Economic Recovery Act.”

The act took effect immediately, and applies to privilege periods and reporting periods beginning on or after June 30, 2002.

Tax Credit for Environmental Remediation Costs — P.L. 2003, c.296 (signed into law on January 14, 2004) provides a corporation business tax credit for 100% of the eligible costs of the remediation of certain contaminated sites in the State performed during privilege periods beginning on or after January 1, 2004, and before January 1, 2007. The amount of the credit cannot exceed 50% of the tax liability due and cannot reduce the tax liability to an amount below the statutory minimum tax. However, in most cases any unused tax credit not utilized because of these limitations may be carried over for the next five privilege periods.

In addition, the tax credit, when combined with the property tax exemption received under the Environmental Opportunity Zone Act, less any “in lieu of” tax payments made pursuant to that Act, or any other State, local, or Federal tax incentive or grant to remediate a site, cannot exceed 100% of the total cost of the remediation.

Only taxpayers that are not liable for the contamination of the site as “responsible parties” under the Spill Compensation and Control Act are eligible for the credit.

This act took effect immediately.

Miscellaneous

Investment Clubs — P.L. 2003, c.256 (signed into law on January 14, 2004) exempts investment clubs from the $150 per owner annual partnership filing fee and from the requirement that a partnership make payments of New Jersey gross income tax on behalf of its nonresident noncorporate partners.

The act provides that a qualified “investment club” is an entity that is classified as a partnership for Federal income tax purposes in which all of the owners are individuals; and all of the assets are securities, cash, or cash equivalents; and the market value of the total assets does not exceed an amount equal to the lesser of $250,000 or $35,000 per owner of the entity, as measured on the last day of its taxable year. Also, the partnership is not required to register itself or its membership interests with the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission.

Chapter 256 also provides for an annual inflationary adjustment for the cap on the total assets of the entity and average assets of the owners.

The act took effect immediately, and applies to taxable years and privilege periods beginning on and after January 1, 2002.

Low Emission Vehicle Program — P.L. 2003, c.266 (signed into law on January 14, 2004) requires that the Department of Environmental Protection implement the California Low Emission Vehicle program in New Jersey beginning on January 1, 2009. A provision in this act provides that receipts from sales of zero emission vehicles sold on and after May 1, 2004, are exempt from the tax imposed under the Sales and Use Tax Act.

Chapter 266 defines “zero emission vehicle” and also provides that the Commissioner of Environmental Protection shall certify to the State Treasurer the make and model of those motor vehicles that are zero emission vehicles eligible for the exemption.

The act took effect immediately.

Veterans’ Benefits — P.L. 2003, c.197 (signed into law on December 16, 2003) extends eligibility for certain veterans’ benefits to veterans who served at least 14 days in the theater of operation of Operations “Enduring Freedom” and “Iraqi Freedom.” Section 5 of the law provides that an eligible person is entitled to the annual $250 property tax deduction or a property tax exemption if the eligible person has a total and permanent service-incurred disability.

Chapter 197 also makes technical changes and updates to descriptions of what constitutes service during Operation “Restore Hope” in Somalia, and Operations “Joint Endeavor” and “Joint Guard” in the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Chapter 197 took effect immediately, but section 6 (the implementation section) remained inoperative until January 1, 2004.

Multiple Taxes

Domestic Partnership Act — P.L. 2003, c.246 (signed into law on January 12, 2004) sets forth the requirements that must be met to establish a domestic partnership.

This act provides that for transfer and inheritance tax purposes, property held jointly by qualified domestic partners that is transferred to a domestic partner will be treated as property held jointly by a spouse.

Chapter 246 also states that no tax is imposed on transfers of property to a qualified domestic partner for transfer inheritance tax purposes. In addition, the value of any pension, annuity, retirement allowance, or return of contribution payable to a domestic partner is exempt from tax.

The act provides that for gross income tax purposes, the meaning of “dependent” will include a qualified domestic partner, which will allow the taxpayer to claim an additional $1,000 personal exemption for a qualified domestic partner who does not file a separate tax return.

The act takes effect on the 180th day after enactment. The provisions of sections 47 through 56, which pertain to health service providers, will apply to policies or contracts issued or renewed on or after the effective date.

Sales and Use Tax

Cleanup of Hazardous Substances — P.L. 2003, c.224 (signed into law on January 14, 2004) amends certain provisions of the Spill Compensation and Control Act and the Brownfield and Contaminated Site Remediation Act concerning site remediation.

The amendments provide that if the redevelopment of the property is performed in phases, payments to reimburse the developer may commence prior to the completion of the redevelopment at the entire site.

This act also provides a method of computing the sales and use tax on the purchase of materials used for remediation, the construction of new structures, or the construction of new residences at the site. When an exact accounting is not available, the Director of the Division of Taxation will presume the tax equals 1% of the developer’s contract price for the remediation and improvement. An amount not to exceed 3% may be approved by the Director when clear and convincing evidence that the tax on materials is greater than 1% is presented.

This act took effect immediately.

Urban Enterprise Zones

New Zone Designated — P.L. 2003, c.285 (signed into law on January 14, 2004) designates Gloucester City in Camden County the 31st qualifying Urban Enterprise Zone based on the required population criteria. Qualified businesses in the designated Urban Enterprise Zone are permitted to collect sales tax at a reduced rate of 3% rather than at the current 6% rate. The reduced sales tax rate is applicable for a period of at least 20 years, and potentially as long as 35 years, during which the revenues collected at that reduced rate are divided between the municipality and the State under a formula that is adjusted according to a statutory schedule.

Chapter 285 takes effect on April 1, 2004. □

Tax Calendar

The following three calendars provide listings of filing and payment dates (January 1, 2004 – December 31, 2004) for businesses and individuals:

- Chronological List of Filing Deadlines — This calendar is for use by both businesses and individuals. If you are responsible for a return that is not listed in this calendar, please refer to the instructions that accompanied the return, or contact the Customer Service Center at 609-292-6400 for the appropriate filing deadline.
- Alphabetical Summary of Due Dates by Tax Type
- Payment Dates for Weekly Payers — An employer or other withholder of New Jersey gross income tax is designated a “weekly payer” if the amount of tax they withheld during the previous tax year was $20,000 or more.

from the director's desk

Haven't filed your 2003 New Jersey income tax return yet? What are you waiting for? Go paperless! Use one of the three NJ FastFile options — NJ WebFile, NJ TeleFile, or NJ ELF — and experience the simplicity of electronic filing. Not only is it secure, it's the fastest and most accurate way to file your return because once you enter your information, all the necessary calculations are done for you. In fact, last year nearly one million New Jersey taxpayers chose one of these alternative methods instead of filing a paper return.

This year we have made electronic filing even easier by eliminating the New Jersey Personal Identification Numbers (PINs). Taxpayers who use NJ ELF will still need a Federal PIN.

With NJ FastFile you also spend less time waiting for your refund because electronic returns can be processed more quickly. You can even save yourself a trip to the bank by having your refund or homestead rebate (or both) deposited directly into your bank account. Do you owe us money? You can file your return now and wait until the due date to pay.

For more information about the eligibility requirements for any of the NJ FastFile options, visit www.njfastfile.com or call 1-800-323-4400. Whether you are looking for an easier way to file your return or just want to get your refund faster, make the switch from paper to NJ FastFile. It's the way to go.

Because this is the first issue of the State Tax News to be published solely in electronic format, I'd like to point out some new features in our newsletter. The electronic version will include the same mix of articles, tax briefs, and summaries of court decisions as before, but this format allows us to include links to sources on our Web site that are being updated on an ongoing basis — giving you access to up-to-the-minute information. For example, clicking on the link at the end of the Municipal Occupancy Tax article on page 5 will take you to the most recent listing of municipalities that have adopted ordinances imposing the new tax.

Enhancements can also be found in the tax calendar. In the printed version space limitations allowed us to include filing due dates for the current calendar quarter only. Now, you can link to a listing of due dates for the entire year. And, although the online State Tax News looks the same as the paper version (even if you print it out to read later instead of online), the table of contents allows you to navigate quickly through the issue to articles that interest you.

To be notified by e-mail when future issues of the State Tax News and other Division of Taxation publications become available online, subscribe to our online information service, NJ Tax E-News, at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/listservice.htm. Subscribers to NJ Tax E-News can also receive information on New Jersey income tax, property tax relief programs, and sales tax.

The Division of Taxation would like to thank the many faithful State Tax News subscribers for their support and interest. We hope that you continue to enjoy the State Tax News in its electronic format.

Hotel/Motel Occupancy Fee

Recently enacted legislation (P.L. 2003, c.114) imposes a 7% State Occupancy Fee on the rent for every occupancy of a room in a hotel, motel, or similar facility in most New Jersey municipalities, between August 1, 2003, and June 30, 2004. For occupancies on and after July 1, 2004, the fee is reduced to 5%. A hotel/motel is a building regularly used and kept open for the lodging of guests, including bed and breakfasts, inns, etc. The State Occupancy Fee is imposed on the room rentals that are currently subject to the 6% New Jersey sales tax and is in addition to the sales tax.

Special Transitional Option

The State Occupancy Fee, as well as the Municipal Occupancy Tax, if applicable (see below), must be charged and collected on the rental of rooms on and after August 1, 2003, regardless of whether the customer contracted for, placed a deposit, or prepaid for the room prior to that date.

However, for transitional purposes only, on occupancies where the customer has contracted for, placed a deposit, or prepaid for the room at a specific room rate prior to August 1, 2003, the lodging facility may, at its option, renegotiate the customer's room rate so that the additional occupancy fee/tax is not required to be collected from the customer. If the facility opts to renegotiate the room rate, it is responsible for remit-ting the occupancy fee/tax based on the renegotiated room rate.

If a guest has only made a reservation for a room occupancy on or after August 1, 2003, without placing a deposit, the transitional option is not applicable and the occupancy fee/tax will be due on the reservation rate.

Special Rate Provisions

Since Newark, Jersey City, Atlantic City, Wildwood, Wildwood Crest, and North Wildwood already impose local taxes or fees on hotel/motel occupancies, the new State Occupancy Fee is imposed at a lower rate in those areas:

On and after July 1, 2004, when the general State Occupancy Fee rate is reduced from 7% to 5%, the State Occupancy Fee in Newark, Jersey City, Atlantic City, and the Wildwoods remains at the above rates.

Municipal Occupancy Tax

In addition, between August 1, 2003, and June 30, 2004, any New Jersey municipality, other than Newark, Jersey City, Atlantic City, Wildwood, Wildwood Crest, and North Wildwood, may adopt an ordinance which imposes a uniform municipal tax on occupancies in that municipality, which can be less than or equal to 1%. For occupancies on and after July 1, 2004, the municipal tax may be imposed at a rate less than or equal to 3%.

During 2003, once an adopted ordinance is received by the Division of Taxation, the Municipal Occupancy Tax will be effective on the first day of the first full month following 30 days after transmittal of the adopted ordinance. The Municipal Occupancy Tax will be reported and paid to the Division of Taxation in the same manner as the State Occupancy Fee.

Sample Municipal Ordinance. The New Jersey League of Municipalities has drafted a sample ordinance, which can be found at: www.njslom.org/ml070203b.html

Adopted Municipal Ordinances must be sent to: New Jersey Division of Taxation, Technical Services Activity, PO Box 255, Trenton, NJ 08695-0255.

Exemptions From the Fee/Tax

No State Occupancy Fee is imposed on the rental of a room where the purchaser, user, or consumer is a New Jersey State or Federal agency, instrumentality, or political subdivision, or the United Nations, or any other international organization of which the United States is a member.

NOTE: Other exempt organizations such as religious, educational, and charitable organizations, which may qualify for exemption from New Jersey sales and use tax on purchases are not exempt from the State Occupancy Fee or the Municipal Occupancy Tax which may be imposed by the municipalities. Exempt organizations, which by law are not required to collect sales tax on occupancies which are directly related to their organizational purposes, are also not required to collect the State Occupancy Fee or Municipal Occupancy Tax (e.g., Y.M.C.A.).

For purposes of administration, the same exemptions that exist for the State Occupancy Fee are also applicable to the Municipal Occupancy Tax. Therefore, governmental entities, as described above, are also exempt from the Municipal Occupancy Tax. Other exempt organizations are subject to both the State Occupancy Fee and the Municipal Occupancy Tax.

The occupancy fee/tax is not imposed on the charge for the rental of a room in a hotel/motel for the purpose of assembly (e.g., a meeting, seminar, wedding, etc.).

The occupancy fee/tax is not imposed on the rental of a room to a permanent resident, which is a person who rents a room or rooms for at least 90 consecutive days. As with the exemption from New Jersey sales tax, if the guest contracts up front by written contract for an occupancy in excess of 90 consecutive days, the facility is not required to bill the occupancy fee/tax. If the guest vacates prior to the 90 days, the entire period of occupancy is subject to both the sales tax and the occupancy fee/tax.

Filing and Payment

The State Occupancy Fee, as well as the Municipal Occupancy Tax, if applicable, is collected from the customer by the hotel and reported and paid to the New Jersey Division of Taxation. The first return/remittance for the State Occupancy Fee was due on September 20, 2003. A new monthly return (HM-100) will be sent to the facility, along with filing and payment instructions.

Campgrounds

The occupancy fee/tax is imposed on hotel room occupancies currently subject to the New Jersey sales tax. Campsites are treated as the rental of real property, which is not subject to New Jersey sales tax and, therefore, also not subject to the occupancy fee/tax. The rental of a trailer or a cabin that is not real property is subject to sales tax; however, it is taxable as the rental of tangible personal property, not as a hotel occupancy. Therefore, such rentals are also not subject to the occupancy fee/tax.

“Breakfast-Included” Occupancies

There are several types of lodging facilities (e.g., bed and breakfasts and hotel/motel chain facilities) which provide guests with breakfast (whether continental or full service) as part of the amount charged for the accommodation. Thus, the rent for an occupancy in such facilities includes breakfast, just as it may also include free parking, use of fitness facilities, afternoon snacks, and various other amenities, all of which are provided by the facility as part of the occupancy.

The total amount charged to the guest is currently subject to New Jersey sales tax. The law specifies that the occupancy fee/tax is based on the same amount charged for an occupancy that is currently subject to sales tax. Therefore, for “breakfast-included” occupancies, the total amount charged to the guest is also subject to the occupancy fee/tax.

Package Deals

Tour Operators. A tour operator may sell packages which include accommodations, as well as other components, such as meals, tickets, admissions, transportation, discounts, etc. When a tour operator contracts with third parties to provide all of the components of the package, the operator pays any sales tax due and includes the tax expense in the package price charged to the customer. Thus, packages are sold which include any applicable taxes and fees that were paid by the operator. The tour operator must pay the occupancy fee/tax on the purchase of accommodations in a lodging facility.

The new occupancy fee/tax is treated in the same manner as taxes, gratuities, and other fees are currently treated in a package deal; it is part of the tour operator’s expense, which is passed along to the customer as part of the package price.

Packages Sold by Lodging Facilities.

A hotel may also sell packages which include accommodations at its facility, as well as other components, such as meals, tickets, admissions, transportation, discounts, etc. The packages are generally sold including any applicable taxes and fees.

J. Robert Murphy, Deputy Director

J. Robert Murphy, former deputy director of the Division of Taxation, passed away on September 19, 2003. Mr. Murphy began his state service in 1970, after retiring from a distinguished career with the Internal Revenue Service, to undertake the restructuring of the Division. The restructuring reorganized the Division from ten separate bureaus to three major activities and created the basis of the organizational structure of the Division of Taxation as we know it today. The elimination of specialized bureaus gave the Division the opportunity to cross-train professional employees to meet peak work loads and resulted in increased productivity and great cost savings.

Mr. Murphy received a B.S. from Seton Hall University and served as a first lieutenant in the U.S. Army with an honorable discharge in September 1945. He was a lecturer and author and served on the executive boards of the National Tobacco Tax Association and the National Association of Tax Administrators. He is survived by his wife of 55 years, Veronice Short Murphy, his children, Patricia and Robert Murphy and Colleen Ker, his son-in-law, Richard Ker, and his grandchildren, Catherine, Elizabeth and Jacqueline Ker and Austin and Erin Murphy.

For purposes of computing the amount subject to the occupancy fee/tax on a package sold by the hotel, the hotel may deduct any amounts it actually pays to an unrelated third party for the various components of the package, as well as any pass-through of applicable taxes and other fees. Thus, if a hotel contracts with other businesses to provide meals and tickets to an attraction as part of a package, the occupancy fee/tax base will not include the amounts paid for meals and tickets, including applicable taxes. The balance of the package price is deemed to relate to the room occupancy and the occupancy fee/tax is due based upon that amount.

If the lodging facility itself provides meals as part of a package, and the customer has the option of the same package without meals for a lower price, the amount paid by the customer for the meals portion is not subject to the occupancy fee/tax.

Customer Billing Guidelines

The State Occupancy Fee and the Municipal Occupancy Tax are imposed directly on the customer and must be separately stated on any bill, invoice, or other document given to the customer. A vendor may not advertise that the fee/tax is not due, that it will pay the fee/tax for the customer, or that the fee/tax will be refunded to the customer.

Reference

The State Occupancy Fee and the Municipal Occupancy Tax should be referred to as the New Jersey State Occupancy Fee and the Municipal Occupancy Tax.

Inquiries

Inquiries concerning the State Occupancy Fee or Municipal

Occupancy Tax should be directed in writing to: New Jersey Division of Taxation, Regulatory Services Branch, PO Box 269, Trenton, NJ 08695-0269; or via e-mail to: taxation@tax.state.nj.us

Questions concerning the municipal ordinance should be directed to the municipality.

Allocation

The State Occupancy Fee is allocated in varying percentages to the following: the New Jersey State Council on the Arts, the New Jersey Historical Commission, the New Jersey Commerce & Economic Growth Commission, and the New Jersey Cultural Trust. The Municipal Occupancy Tax is distributed back to the municipality. □

Billing & Enforcement Changes on the Way

New Billing Procedure

Plans are underway to eliminate the issuance of Statements of Account (the first notice sent to taxpayers). Instead, the first notice will be a bill and it will show two "Amount Due" figures.

The first Amount Due will be good only through the "Pay By" date shown on the bill and will be comprised of:

- Tax
- Interest
- Late filing penalty (5% per month to 25%), and
- Amnesty penalty if applicable

Any bill not paid by the Pay By date indicated will be subject to the second Amount Due. In addition to the items listed above, the second Amount Due will include a late payment penalty of 5%.

Interest will continue to accrue on the liability until paid, and additional penalties and fees may be assessed as allowed by law.

This is not an increase in the penalties assessed, or a shortening of the time allowed for payment before the imposition of the late payment penalty. It is merely the collapsing of two separate notices (the Statement of Account and the first bill) into one notice.

Referral Cost Recovery Fee

Beginning sometime in November 2003, the Division will be imposing a Referral Cost Recovery Fee as authorized by N.J.S.A. 54:49-12.3 and N.J.A.C. 18:2-2.5(d). In cases where any State tax remains unpaid and the Division refers a taxpayer's account to an outside debt collection agency, a Referral Cost Recovery Fee in the amount of 10% of the amount referred will be assessed. This fee will be in addition to any interest or penalties imposed.

$100 Late Filing Penalty

The Division of Taxation will begin imposing the $100 per month late filing penalty as authorized by N.J.S.A. 54:49-4. The law provides that this penalty may be imposed for each month (or fraction thereof) that a return is late. It will be assessed in addition to the late filing penalty of 5% per month of the underpayment (up to 25%) and, where applicable, the 5% late payment penalty, the referral cost recovery fee, and the cost of collection fee.

The $100 per month penalty will be applicable to business tax delinquencies, including but not limited to gross income tax-employer, corporation business tax, and sales and use tax filings due after December 31, 2003.

The penalty will not be imposed if:

- The taxpayer pays the bill within 30 days of the date on the notice; and
- The taxpayer has not previously received 3 delinquency notices for any business tax return due on or after December 31, 2003.

The penalty will be imposed if:

- The delinquency is not satisfied within 45 days of the date on the notice; or
- The taxpayer previously received 3 prior delinquency notices for any business tax return on which the $100 per month penalty was imposed. □

Municipal Occupancy Tax

As authorized by P.L. 2003, c.114, the following municipalities have adopted an ordinance imposing a 1% Municipal Occupancy Tax. On and after the effective date, lodging facilities in these municipalities will collect the tax on the rental of a room in a hotel or similar facility in New Jersey, as described in the New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act, N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2. The Municipal Occupancy Tax is in addition to the State Occupancy Fee, which was effective for room occupancies on and after August 1, 2003.

New Realty Transfer Fees

New legislation (P.L. 2003, c.113) adopted June 30, 2003, and signed into law on July 1, 2003, amends the Realty Transfer Fee law (N.J.S.A. 46:15-5 et seq.) and provides for the imposition of new transfer fees on the sale of real estate. The new Realty Transfer Fee rates must be calculated on all deeds physically submitted or delivered to the county recording officer on or after Monday, July 14, 2003, regardless of the date on which the deed was executed or mailed for recording.

Rates: The Realty Transfer Fee rates on standard transactions and on new construction will be calculated as follows:

1. For each $500 of consideration or fractional part not in excess of $150,000, a supplemental fee of $.25.
2. For each $500 of consideration or fractional part in excess of $150,000, but not in excess of $200,000, a supplemental fee of $.85.
3. For each $500 of consideration or fractional part in excess of $200,000, a supplemental fee of $1.40.

Calculation: The Realty Transfer Fee should now be calculated as follows:

1. $2.00 ($1.75 + $.25)/$500 of consideration or fractional part not in excess of $150,000.
2. $3.35 ($1.75 + $.75 + $.85)/$500 of consideration or fractional part in excess of $150,000 but not in excess of $200,000.
3. $3.90 ($1.75 + $.75 + $1.40)/$500 of consideration or fractional part in excess of $200,000.

The new law does not increase the Realty Transfer Fee rates on transfers by senior citizens, blind persons, disabled persons, and on the transfer of property that is low- and moderate-income housing. The Affidavit of Consideration must still be recorded with all deeds claiming a partial exemption from the Realty Transfer Fee. However, deeds transferring new construction will no longer be required to file an Affidavit of Consideration. Transfers of new construction should now include a cover letter stating that the property is new construction or the deed should clearly indicate on the first page that the property is new construction to ensure the proper distribution of funds.

Proceeds of the supplemental fees collected by the county recording officer will be accounted for and remitted to the County Treasurer, who will retain $.25 of the supplemental fee for each $500 of consideration for the purposes set forth in the new law. The balance will be remitted to the State Treasurer on the tenth day of each month following the month of collection. □

NJ & IRS Partner to Combat Tax Abuse

Tax officials from New Jersey and seven other jurisdictions (California, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, New York, Virginia, and the District of Columbia) joined Internal Revenue Service (IRS) Commissioner Mark W. Everson in Washington, D.C. recently to announce the establishment of a new, nationwide partnership to combat abusive tax avoidance. Under agreements with individual states, the IRS will share information about abusive tax avoidance schemes and those taxpayers who engage in such transactions.

Forty states (including New Jersey) and the District of Columbia have already signed the Abusive Tax Avoidance Transactions (ATAT) memorandum of understanding with the IRS, and more states are expected to sign the agreement in the future. Under the partnership, the IRS will then exchange information with participating states about abusive tax avoidance leads. The states and the IRS will share information about any resulting tax adjustments, thus avoiding duplication and reducing the need for taxpayer examinations by both a state and the IRS.

“This is just one more example of the IRS and the New Jersey Division of Taxation working together to ensure that all taxpayers pay their fair share and that the costs of good tax enforcement are borne by those who are truly noncompliant. It further highlights the fact that taxpayers that use high-priced tax preparers are held to the same standard as all others,” said Robert K. Thompson, Director, Division of Taxation.

Earlier this year the Division announced that New Jersey taxpayers participating in the Internal Revenue Service’s Offshore Voluntary Compliance Initiative for those using illegal tax shelters could avoid State prosecution if they amend their New Jersey income tax returns and remit to the State by October 15, 2003, all taxes, penalties, and interest due. Those interested in taking advantage of the Offshore Voluntary Compliance Initiative and correcting unreported income tax liabilities to New Jersey should write to:

CIGARETTE TAX
Notice to Licensees

The following is the text of a bulletin regarding changes in the New Jersey cigarette tax that was recently sent to all cigarette distributors, wholesalers, and retailers:

Recently, Governor James E. McGreevey signed legislation raising the excise tax on cigarettes from $1.50 to $2.05 per pack effective July 1, 2003, an increase of 55 cents per pack of 20. The new tax rate applies to all New Jersey tax stamps, floor stock, and to all cigarettes in the possession of any licensed distributor, wholesaler, or retailer licensed by the State of New Jersey on July 1.

On June 30, 2003, at midnight, every pack of cigarettes held for sale by New Jersey licensees bearing an excise tax stamp is subject to the additional tax. In order to account for the additional tax, you must complete an inventory of all affixed and unaffixed excise tax stamps and remit the tax using the Cigarette Floor Tax Return. Please read the form carefully and complete it before moving or selling any cigarettes on July 1, 2003. This report and the additional tax due can be filed any time after July 1, but must be submitted no later than September 1, 2003, to the New Jersey Division of Revenue, Floor Tax Unit, PO Box 250, Trenton, NJ 08646-0250.

The Director’s office may elect to do a physical inventory at selected distributor, wholesaler, and/or retailer locations on or about July 1.

All cigarettes stamped on or after July 1, 2003, must be stamped with either an old stamp that has been inventoried and listed on the Floor Tax Return, or a new stamp to evidence payment of the increased tax. The new stamps will be available for

Current Amnesty Programs

Several states, as well as New York City, are conducting tax amnesty programs. During the designated amnesty periods, taxpayers have a chance to pay back taxes with reduced (or eliminated) penalty and/or interest. purchase at the new rate when available.

Cigarette distributors need to be aware that they will need to proportionally increase their surety bond if they wish to continue to have the ability to purchase the same quantity of stamps on credit. Failure to do so will necessitate stamp purchases by cash for any purchase order in excess of a distributor's credit limit.

For those retail dealers who have multiple locations, you may file a consolidated Floor Tax Return in the same manner as you do for sales and use tax. You must complete the reverse side of the Floor Tax Return listing the cigarette tax license number, location, and quantity of cigarettes on hand being reported for each location.

Should you have any questions regarding the above, please contact Henry Ryan, Cigarette Tax, at 609-984-4108. We ask for your usual cooperation to help make this a smooth transition." □

Outdoor Advertising Fee

On July 1, 2003, P.L. 2003, c.124 imposed a fee of 6% on the gross amounts collected by a retail seller of billboard advertising space. For purposes of this legislation, the retail seller is the licensee, which is the entity authorized to sell advertising space on billboards pursuant to N.J.S.A. 27:5-5 et seq.

Licensees are responsible for remitting the Outdoor Advertising Fee on the gross amounts collected from selling advertising space on billboards. "Gross amounts" do not include fees received by an advertising agency or broker that is not related to the retail seller (licensee).

In the situation where an advertising agency or broker is involved, the advertising agency or broker will be considered an agent of the customer and thus not responsible for the Outdoor Advertising Fee, unless the advertising agency or broker is itself a licensee and is directly selling billboard advertising space.

Although this fee is imposed on the retail seller, there is nothing in the law that prohibits the retail seller from passing on this cost to the customer. If the Outdoor Advertising Fee is separately stated on the invoice or bill provided to the customer, it should be labeled accordingly, "Outdoor Advertising Fee," and not as a tax. The retail seller may not in any way mislead the customer or misrepresent that the Outdoor Advertising Fee is anything more than a reimbursement of the fee imposed on the retail seller and not a tax on the customer.

A license is required to sell or rent billboard advertising pursuant to N.J.S.A. 27:5-5 et seq. Therefore, if a license is required by the Department of Transportation to sell advertising space on a particular outdoor sign, then the gross receipts from the sale of advertising space on such sign are subject to the 6% Outdoor Advertising Fee. However, if a license is not required, then the gross receipts for the sale of space on that sign are not subject to the Outdoor Advertising Fee.

The fees will be reported and paid on a quarterly basis on the New Jersey Outdoor Advertising Fee Return (Form OA-100). The first return was due October 15, 2003, for the period July 1, 2003, to September 30, 2003. ENFORCEMENT

Tax Fraud Results in Prison Sentence

John Tredy, the former controller of a Bergen County tire and automobile repair business, has been sentenced by Superior Court Judge Joseph Conte to a four-year prison term for stealing more than $1.2 million in State sales and employee withholding taxes. Because the criminal sentence does not resolve any tax debt, liability, or restitution owed to the New Jersey Division of Taxation, the Division has obtained a judgment against Tredy and will pursue any tax liabilities, penalties, and interest via separate civil proceedings.

State Attorney General Peter C. Harvey, who announced Tredy's sentencing, stated that the Division of Criminal Justice—Special Prosecutions Bureau, along with the Division of Taxation, share the goal of "investigating, prosecuting, and convicting tax cheats who steal from the State of New Jersey." He also stated that tax fraud cases will be fully prosecuted, and that unpaid taxes will be recovered and paid to the State treasury.

State Treasurer John E. McCormac added, "There is a new resolve to combat the criminal evasion of taxes. We are confident that our joint efforts will result in the improved recovery of taxes due and a higher rate of voluntary compliance."

Tredy was indicted by a State Grand Jury on October 23, 2002. The indictment identified Tredy as the former controller of the T.&S. Tire Service Corporation (doing business as Bergen Tire) with retail shops in Carlstadt and Wayne. Bergen Tire is privately owned with administrative offices located in Saddle Brook. The investigation determined that the owners had entrusted Tredy with complete financial control of the company, and had no knowledge about the alleged theft of tax revenues. They discharged Tredy from the controller position once the allegations came to light. Tredy plead guilty to second-degree charges of theft by deception and misapplication of entrusted property.

The indictment charged that between June 1994 and August 2000 Tredy collected and failed to turn over to the State a total of $1,060,000 in collected sales taxes and $101,000 in employee withholding taxes. During this period, Bergen Tire paid no State sales or employee withholding taxes even though the funds were collected. From December 1999 through August 2000 Tredy engaged in other acts of theft, including a scheme in which he allegedly obtained more than $300,000 by double-billing scores of Bergen Tire customers by utilizing credit card numbers to double-bill credit companies for services purchased from the retail stores.

The joint investigation by the Division of Criminal Justice—Special Prosecutions Bureau and the Division of Taxation determined that Tredy, to avoid detection of his failure to remit tax payments, enlisted the cooperation of Kevin Dolan, a tax investigator with the Division of Taxation. Dolan was charged with, and plead guilty to, receiving nearly $10,000 in gifts from Tredy (a third-degree charge of gifts to a public servant). Dolan was sentenced to two years' probation and was forever barred from holding government employment.

Criminal Justice Director Vaughn L. McKoy said, "We are watching and we are acting. We are watching government programs, elected officials, and corrupt businesspersons who would misuse their office or government relationships for personal gain and greed. This investigation and prosecution was aggressively pursued by the Division of Criminal Justice—Special Prosecutions Bureau and the Division of Taxation."

The investigation was coordinated by Deputy Attorney General William Porter (Division of Criminal Justice—Special Prosecutions Bureau) and conducted by Detective Myles Cappiello and Detective Gerald Nachurski (New Jersey State

CORPORATION BUSINESS TAX Regular Place of Business

As part of the Business Tax Reform Act (BTRA) of 2002, a “throwout” receipts factor apportionment rule was adopted for corporation business tax purposes. Under a “throwout” system, receipts which are sourced to taxing jurisdictions where the taxpayer does not file and pay a franchise or income tax type of tax would be excluded from New Jersey’s receipts fraction denominator. The adoption of this “throwout” provision has not eliminated the requirement that in order for a corporation to allocate (apportion) business activity away from New Jersey, it must maintain a “regular place of business” outside of New Jersey.

A “regular place of business” is defined as any bona fide office (other than statutory office), factory, warehouse, or other space of the taxpayer which is regularly maintained, occupied, and used by the taxpayer in carrying on its business and in which one or more regular employees are in attendance.

In order to satisfy the maintenance requirement, the taxpayer must be directly responsible for the expenses incurred for that regular place of business. The location must be either owned or rented in its own name and not through a related person or entity. This requirement has been reviewed by several court cases. In Hoeganaes Corp. v. Director, Division of Taxation, 145 N.J. Super. 352 (App. Div. 1976) the Court held that an out-of-State employee’s home did not constitute a “regular place of business.” In Rocappi, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, 182 N.J. Super. 163, N.J. Tax 311 (Tax 1981) the Court held that a salesman’s use of an out-of-State office maintained by its parent corporation did not qualify, and in Shelter Development Corp. v. Director, Division of Taxation, 6 N.J. Tax 547 (Tax 1984) that an out-of-State office leased by a taxpayer’s parent company and used by the taxpayer did not constitute a “regular place of business.”

A regular employee is one who is in attendance during normal business hours performing duties on behalf of the taxpayer that are of a significant nature. The employee must be under the direction and control of the taxpayer. The courts have reviewed this requirement as well. In three related cases, River Systems, Inc., Rubachem International, Ltd., and Rubachem, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, 19 N.J. Tax 599 (Tax 2001) (which was affirmed by the Appellate Division of the Superior Court on March 14, 2003) the Court ruled that employees who are on the payroll of other companies or are employed in an employee leasing arrangement are not regular employees of the taxpayer and do not satisfy the requirement that a regular employee occupy and use the out-of-State office during normal working hours.

When a corporation has nexus and is paying corporate taxes to other taxing jurisdiction(s) but does not maintain a regular place of business outside of New Jersey, it is entitled to relief from double taxation. Regulation 18:7-8.3 allows a taxpayer who is not entitled to allocate (apportion) to take a credit against its New Jersey corporation business tax liability for taxes paid to another jurisdiction on income taxed by both that jurisdiction and New Jersey. □

GROSS INCOME TAX

Assignment of NJ Lottery Winnings

The New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act at N.J.S.A. at 54A:6-11 provides that gross income shall not include lottery winnings from the New Jersey lottery. Likewise, if a New Jersey lottery winner sells the right to collect the winnings, the proceeds from the sale are also exempt from New Jersey income tax. McCauley v. Director, Division of Taxation, No. 005061-98 (Tax Court, November 20, 2001).

In McCauley, plaintiff won a New Jersey Pick-6 State lottery prize that was payable in 20 installments from 1987 to 2006. After receiving seven payments, plaintiff assigned the next five installments to a corporation in exchange for $200,000. Pursuant to the State Lottery statutes, the agreement was conditioned upon a judicial order indicating that the State acknowledged and permitted the assignment and would direct the payments to the assignee. The order was granted. Thereafter, plaintiff received the $200,000, but did not report the income on his 1994 New Jersey gross income tax return. The Director determined that the $200,000 was includable in gross income as a gain from the disposition of property under N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1c. The Tax Court disagreed, holding that proceeds from the assignment of State lottery winnings are exempt from New Jersey gross income tax.

The Court found it “difficult to articulate a basis for providing an exemption for lottery prizes, but not for proceeds from the assignment of lottery prizes.” The Court relied on the following in support of its decision in McCauley: (1) in enacting N.J.S.A. 54A:6-11, which exempts New Jersey lottery winnings from New Jersey gross income tax, the Legislature’s interest was to encourage lottery ticket sales by allowing this exemption to benefit lottery prize winners. (2) In encouraging other particular investments (i.e., dispositions of government obligations that generate tax-free income) the statute exempted both the interest and the gain on disposition of such obligations. (3) There would be no double exemption for lottery winnings in an assignment because the character of the income is different in the hands of the assignee here (a corporation that is not subject to gross income tax). (4) Only the state of Oregon had addressed this issue and held that the exemption extends to the proceeds of an assignment. (Since January 1, 1998, Oregon has taxed winnings from the Oregon Lottery that exceed $600 per winning ticket.) □

Criminal Enforcement

Criminal Enforcement over the past several months included:

- Dr. Samuel Evenstein, a chiropractor from Edison, New Jersey, entered the State of New Jersey's Pretrial Intervention (PTI) Program for first-time offenders. Dr. Evenstein had previously entered a guilty plea to a three-count accusation of failure to pay New Jersey gross income tax, a crime of the third degree. The case arose from the failure of Dr. Evenstein to report in excess of $800,000 of taxable income for the years 1997, 1998, and 1999 and his failure to pay New Jersey gross income tax on the unreported income. As a condition of successfully completing the Pretrial Intervention Program, Dr. Evenstein will have to make full restitution of the unpaid New Jersey gross income tax together with the statutory penalties and interest that have accrued. This case was a joint investigation by the Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) and the New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice-Office of the Insurance Fraud Prosecutor.
- On March 31, 2003, Carmello Mami, Richard Mami, and Arthur Rose entered guilty pleas to various third-degree charges that included promoting prostitution, conspiracy, money laundering, and the failure to pay New Jersey gross income tax and corporation business tax. Carmello Mami and Richard Mami were the operators of a health club known as Eve's Garden of Eden in Red Bank, New Jersey, and Arthur Rose was their accountant and business associate. The subjects were indicted on October 1, 2002, and the matter was scheduled for trial in May of this year. A total of 95 witnesses from around the country were scheduled to testify at the trial. As a result of the plea agreements reached with the defendants, all personal and corporate tax liabilities will be satisfied, and Arthur Rose will lose his Certified Public Accountant status. On May 9, 2003, Carmello Mami and Richard Mami were sentenced to a three-year period of probation. On May 16, 2003, Arthur Rose was sentenced to a two-year period of probation and all parties were ordered to make restitution of all personal and corporate tax liabilities. This investigation was initiated in 1999 by the Red Bank Police Department based on allegations of prostitution at the health club. The investigation expanded to include the Bayshore Narcotics Task Force, the Middletown Police Department, the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office, and the Division of Taxation.

- On April 1, 2003, John R. and Kathleen A. Bukowiec, husband and wife from Howell, New Jersey, were indicted by a State Grand Jury on various third-degree charges of Medicaid fraud, theft by deception, and filing false and fraudulent New Jersey gross income tax returns.

The indictment alleges that the Bukowiecs misrepresented their earnings on applications for Medicaid benefits and New Jersey gross income tax returns. In addition, it is alleged that they fraudulently received unemployment benefits and failed to report weekly "off-the-books" earnings of $700 per week received from Michael Stavitski, a Monmouth County pharmacist currently under indictment for submitting $1.3 million in fraudulent billings to the Medicaid program.

- On April 2, 2003, Harvey Schneider, Jr. and Shore Transmissions, L.L.C. were indicted by a State Grand Jury on various third-degree charges of theft by deception, theft by failure to make required disposition of property received, misapplication of entrusted property, failure to file New Jersey sales tax returns, and failure to pay or turn over New Jersey sales tax collected. The charges stem from the operation of a transmission repair business in Point Pleasant, New Jersey, by the corporation and Mr. Schneider, the responsible corporate officer. In addition to the charges associated with the tax violations, there are also charges associated with consumer fraud wherein Mr. Schneider failed to make repairs, or misrepresented work performed, and fraudulently billed customers.

- On April 22, 2003, Jia Feng Wang of Los Angeles, California, was found in possession of 22,500 cartons of suspected counterfeit brands of Philip Morris cigarettes. The brands were Marlboro and Marlboro Lights. Hamilton Township (Atlantic County) Police Department observed a large Ryder truck operating in and around the Hamilton Township Mall. Upon investigation, the vehicle was found to contain the above cigarettes. The Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) confirmed the products were counterfeit. The subject was charged by OCI with possession of 1,000 or more items bearing a counterfeit mark (second-degree crime), transportation of untaxed cigarettes, and other related charges. The street value is approximately $1,141,200. The subject was held on $100,000 bail and on a Department of Homeland Security/Immigration and Customs Enforcement retainer. OCI, in cooperation with the Federal government, is continuing the interstate transportation investigation.

- OCI played an integral role in a Multi-State/Federal Task Force that was created to deter smuggling of contraband cigarettes from Virginia to the Northeast states. The Task Force operated under the auspices of the US Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Virginia. This successful operation resulted in the arrest of twelve individuals for trafficking in contraband cigarettes. This investigation began with an advertisement in a local Arabic language newspaper offering the sale of cigarettes and with New York State operating the undercover sting in Virginia. New Jersey personnel participated in surveillance and arrested a trafficker as part of the operation. That one arrest resulted in 2,520 cartons of contraband cigarettes being seized, as well as information leading to a tax stamp counterfeiting operation.
- On May 27, 2003, Donna L. Burke of Toms River, New Jersey, plead guilty to one count of misapplication of entrusted

Mr. Monto collected and failed to remit the tax on the retail sale of diesel fuel from January to September 1997 at a truck stop which Monto, as responsible person of Courtesy Truck Stop, Inc., operated in Jersey City, New Jersey. Mr. Monto faces a maximum of 15 years' imprisonment and $107,500 in fines when he is sentenced. Sentencing was scheduled for September 2003. On the basis of a joint investigation between the Office of Criminal Investigation and the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office, Mr. Lugero had been indicted by a Monmouth County Grand Jury on counts of failing to file income tax returns, filing false and fraudulent returns, theft by illegal retention, and theft by deception. It was alleged that Mr. Lugero derived his income by acquiring goods and services by defrauding various creditors and businesses. Sentencing was scheduled for August 2003.

Tax Briefs

Gross Income Tax

New Jersey/Pennsylvania Income Tax Withholding — Pennsylvania residents who receive wage compensation from New Jersey sources are not subject to New Jersey income tax on those earnings. Under the State of New Jersey and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania Reciprocal Personal Income Tax Agreement, a New Jersey employer is not permitted to withhold New Jersey income tax from wages paid to its Pennsylvania resident employees who file Form NJ-165, Employee's Certificate of Non-Residence in New Jersey, with their employer. The reverse holds true for Pennsylvania employers with New Jersey resident employees. However, withholding Pennsylvania Personal Income Tax from a Pennsylvania resident's salary is left to the discretion of the New Jersey employer once the employee has filed a Certificate of Non-Residence in New Jersey.

Sales and Use Tax

Exempt Organizations and Hotel Charges — The Division replied to a sales and use tax inquiry regarding whether an organization that has been granted sales tax exemption in New Jersey is required to pay sales tax on charges for food, meeting rooms, hotel rooms, AV (audio-visual) equipment, etc., made by a hotel to members of the organization.

An exempt organization is exempt from paying sales tax on the above expenses at a hotel, so long as the organization issues the hotel a valid ST-5 Exempt Organization Certificate and payment is made directly with organizational funds. N.J.A.C.

18:24-9.12(a)(3). The sales tax exemption does not apply when payment is made with personal funds (cash, personal check, credit card, etc.) of an organization member even though he or she may be reimbursed later by the exempt organization.

A hotel would be correct in charging organization members sales tax where the organization required its members to pay for the room and apply for reimbursement. In order for the exemption to apply, payment must be made with organizational funds at the point of purchase.

Finally, note that rentals of real property for purposes of assembly are not subject to sales tax. Thus, charges for occupying a meeting room are exempt from tax. If the charge for the meeting room is billed with the charge for a taxable item or service and the amount is stated as one lump sum, the entire amount is subject to sales tax.

Sales of Advertising Material — The Division responded to an inquiry regarding the sales or use tax that applies where advertising material (brochures) is purchased from an out-of-State vendor. The items were shipped to the taxpayer's office in New Jersey, and then sent to a direct-mail house in New Jersey for distribution across the country. The ultimate users across the country received the items free of charge.

Advertising or promotional tangible personal property mailed or otherwise sent without charge to recipient individuals or companies and any related direct-mail processing services delivered in New Jersey are subject to sales tax. However, the New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act exempts from tax the portion of tangible personal property distributed to out-of-State recipients and the portion of receipts for processing services in connection with distribution to out-of-State recipients. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.39.

This exemption applies "to receipts from charges for the printing or production of advertising and promotional materials whether prepared in, or shipped into New Jersey after preparation and stored for subsequent shipment to out-of-State customers." N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.39. Thus, the total cost of the brochures can be allocated based on in-State versus out-of-State delivery, with tax due on the in-State portion.

The exemption also applies "to receipts from charges for all processing services for distribution to out-of-State recipients, including but not limited to the following: preparing and maintaining mailing lists, addressing, separating, folding, inserting, sorting and packaging advertising or promotional material and transporting to the point of shipment by mail service or other carrier." N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.39.

Where the purchaser of advertising or promotional material takes delivery of such property in this State, he may issue the vendor an Exempt Use Certificate (Form ST-4) in lieu of paying sales tax. The purchaser is then liable for use tax on that portion of the advertising or promotional material delivered to recipients in New Jersey or otherwise used or consumed by him in New Jersey. Tax also applies where the purchaser has advertising material delivered to addresses in New Jersey from a location outside the State. Delivery to addresses in New Jersey is considered a use by the purchaser in this State.

The purchaser of direct-mail services may issue an Exempt Use Certificate (Form ST-4) to the vendor in lieu of sales tax on that portion of both the property which the vendor will deliver to recipients outside New Jersey and the related processing service. The vendor must collect sales tax on the portion of the advertising or promotional material delivered to recipients in New Jersey, and also collect sales tax on the direct-mail service charge that relates to in-State delivery of the material.

In conclusion, the portion of the brochures distributed to New Jersey recipients and the portion of receipts for processing services in connection with distribution to New Jersey recipients are subject to sales tax. Therefore, the taxpayer is responsible for sales or use tax on the charge for the brochures delivered to New Jersey, including the corresponding direct-mail services. □

Administration

Responsible Person — David Lee v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided May 15, 2003; Appellate Division No. A-3784-01T2.

The Appellate Division upheld the Tax Court's determination that plaintiff (Lee) was liable as the responsible person for sales and use taxes of the corporation Exterior Power Sweeping (EPS) for substantially the reasons and conclusions expressed by the Tax Court below.

Lee was the owner, president, and sole officer of EPS until the termination of the business. EPS ceased business operations in September 1989, and was dissolved in 1991. In 1991, the Division assessed sales and use tax against the corporation for the period October 1, 1983, to June 30, 1989. Sales and use tax returns were not filed with the Division for that period, nor were they filed thereafter. EPS protested the assessment and the Division issued a Final Determination in 1993. EPS filed a complaint with Tax Court that vacated the assessment in 1997. The Division appealed, and the Appellate Division reversed the Tax Court on April 30, 1999. On May 21, 1999, the Division issued a Notice of Finding of Responsible Person Status to Mr. Lee for the sales and use tax liabilities of EPS.

Lee did not really dispute that he was a responsible person of EPS; however, he claimed that the responsible person notice was inequitable and barred by either laches, or estoppel, or both. The Tax Court would not set aside the assessment on the basis of laches or estoppel. The Tax Court found that Lee was chargeable with knowledge of the statutes and his admitted actual knowledge renders less forceful his equitable arguments. Lee did not demonstrate detrimental reliance on any action or inaction of the Division, and failed to demonstrate that the Division deferred sending the responsible person notice to him so that interest would accrue. Furthermore, the Tax Court noted that there is a general reluctance of the courts to grant estoppel against a public official entity.

Lee also claimed that the May 21, 1999, responsible person notice was untimely due to the three-year statute of limitation period. Although no returns were ever filed, he alleged that the providing of information to the Division during the audit was a de facto filing of those returns. The Tax Court rejected the theory of de facto filing. However, the Tax Court stated that even if it accepted de facto filing, the statute did not limit the time period to collect taxes from a responsible person that were determined to be due within three years of the alleged de facto filing date.

Corporation Business Tax Change of Filing Status – Chemical New Jersey Holdings, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided April 25, 2003; Tax Court No. 000213-2001.

In 1992 and 1993, plaintiff (Chemical) filed corporation business tax returns as an investment company. In 1999, the Division assessed additional tax after it determined that Chemical failed to qualify as an investment company. After receiving its Final Determination, Chemical timely appealed to the Tax Court in February 2001 on the basis that it was denied its status as an investment company. Approximately one year later, Chemical filed an amended complaint retracting its initial claim and alleged that its filing status should be as a financial business corporation. Chemical never filed returns as a financial business corporation for either year at issue.

In its previous September 2002 bench decision, the Court decided that (1) the Division's assessment was timely, (2) the doctrine of equitable recoupment was inapplicable because the case did not involve an effort to set off or credit previous tax payments against the assessment, and (3) Chemical could not obtain a refund as the time period for refund claims had expired before Chemical alleged its status as a financial business corporation.

The Court was left to decide the sole issue of whether Chemical could change its filing status by asserting that it was a financial business corporation more than seven years after it filed its return as an investment company. After determining that it had jurisdiction to decide whether the assessment could be challenged on those grounds, the Court noted that the issue was analogous to a local property tax appeal where the claim for farmland assessment is different than the claim contained in the application for farmland assessment. In those cases, the Tax Court consistently held that an applicant is bound by the application unless there was a timely amendment. The Court stated that the rationale was that the initial filing was regarded as establishing the basis for government examination and that the government was limited to a statutory period to analyze, inspect, and investigate the taxpayer's filing. Therefore, the Court held that Chemical could not circumvent the statutory requirement that it file timely amended returns as a financial business corporation within the statutory period for refunds by claiming that it was entitled to a different filing status in the Tax Court appeal. The Court noted that plaintiffs could assert alternative legal theories subject to the considerations of due process and unfair prejudice; however, the Court determined that a change in filing status was not simply an alternative legal theory because filing status controlled the entire taxing process.

Recoupment of Erroneous Refund – Lenox, Incorporated v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided December 4, 2002; Tax Court No. 007049-98 and 007050-98.

On July 8, 1992, the Division issued plaintiff a refund check based upon refund claims and a Form IRA-100 report of IRS changes, neither of which was timely filed as determined by the Tax Court. (See Lenox, Incorporated v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided April 20, 2001; Tax Court No. 007049-98 and 007050-98, summarized in the spring 2003 issue of New Jersey State Tax News, Vol. 32, No. 1, page 12.)

In December 1996, the Division issued plaintiff a Notice of Erroneous Refund requesting that the refund be returned due to the untimely filing of the refund claims and the Form IRA-100 report of changes made by the IRS. Plaintiff refused to return the refund claiming that the Division has neither statutory nor inherent authority to recover the refund; the refund recovery is equivalent to a tax assessment that would be barred by the statute of limitations; due to the four and one-half years between the date of payment of the refund and the request for its return that the recovery is barred by laches or estoppel; and that by issuing the refund the Division waived defenses to the timeliness of the refund claims.

The Tax Court relied on Playmate Toys where the Appellate Division held that the Division had inherent authority to recoup erroneous refunds. In affirming the Appellate Division's decision, the NJ Supreme Court added that the Division's powers were not "boundless" and that here the Division's recovery was similar to the correction of a clerical error rather than an error in judgment.

After reviewing other court cases, the Tax Court defined the term "error in judgment" as used in Playmate Toys to "refer only to an erroneous final determination of the merits of a taxpayer's liability for tax, resulting from a mistaken interpretation of substantive law or a misunderstanding of the facts relating to the determination." Therefore, the Court ruled that the Division's error as to the timeliness of plaintiff's filing the IRA-100 and refund claim was a clerical error. Consequently, the Court held that plaintiff must return the erroneous refund with interest from the date plaintiff received the Notice of Erroneous Refund. The Court reasoned that the term "clerical error" should be broadly construed so that the Division may protect the public fisc and promote public interest.

S Corporations and Charitable Contributions – Myron and Elaine Adler v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided March 24, 2003; Tax Court No. 002025-2001.

Plaintiffs (Adlers) were shareholders of Myron Corporation, which was organized for tax purposes as an S corporation. In 1994 and 1995, Myron Corporation made charitable contributions to qualified charitable organizations. The Division determined that the charitable contribution deductions for purposes of determining Myron Corporation's corporation business tax liability were proper. However, the Division disallowed the deductions of Myron Corporation's charitable contributions in calculating the Adlers' share of S corporation income for gross income tax liability purposes.

The Tax Court ruled that the statute's express language permitted the Adlers to deduct Myron's charitable contributions in determining their share of S corporation income. The Court found that N.J.S.A. 54A:5-10 provided that a shareholder's share of S corporation income for gross income tax purposes was to be calculated in accordance with I.R.C. 1366. In turn, I.R.C. 1366 stated that deductions pursuant to I.R.C. 702(a)(4) are included in determining an S corporation shareholder's Federal income tax liability. Finally, I.R.C. 702(a)(4) permitted partners to deduct qualified charitable contributions in determining their distributive share of partnership income. Even though I.R.C. 702(a)(4) stated partners, it was found to be applicable to S corporation shareholders because of the specific I.R.C. 1366 reference.

Derivative Exemption – Sodexho Operations, LLC v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided August 13, 2003; Tax Court No. 001793-2001.

Sodexho contracted to provide management services for the food and cleaning service departments of various hospitals and other institutions that qualified as tax-exempt organizations for sales and use tax purposes. As part of the management services, Sodexho purchased supplies for use in the cleaning department; various paper goods such as plates, cups, napkins, straws, and utensils for the food service department; and furniture and materials to renovate the cafeteria and coffee shops. Sodexho claims that these purchases are not subject to sales and use tax because it acted as an agent for the tax-exempt organizations, and therefore is entitled to a derivative exemption. Alternatively, Sodexho argues that all the purchases are exempt as a purchase for resale to the tax-exempt organizations, and that the furniture and material purchases are exempt because Sodexho should be considered a contractor.

In addressing the issue of derivative exemption, the Court reviewed the New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act and case law. The Court found that there was no express statutory authorization to permit Sodexho to use the exempt organizations' sales and use tax exemption, nor did New Jersey case law exist regarding this issue. After discussing both state and Federal case law, the Court determined that United States Supreme Court decisions dealing with the extension of sovereign immunity to government contractors were applicable to resolving Sodexho's claim of derivative exemption. The Court decided that in order for Sodexho to be entitled to the exempt organizations' tax exemption, Sodexho must meet the Supreme Court standard as stated in United States v. New Mexico that Sodexho and the exempt organization "cannot realistically be viewed as separate entities, at least insofar as the activity being taxed is concerned." The Court determined that although an agency relationship existed between Sodexho and the exempt organizations, the evidence indicated that Sodexho retained substantial elements of discretion and control while performing its management services, and that it operated an independent business in pursuit of its own profit-making purposes and objectives. Consequently, the Court held that Sodexho could not use the exempt organizations' tax exemption, as it could be viewed as a separate entity. The Court noted that even though the ultimate burden of the tax would fall upon the tax-exempt organizations, that fact does not affect its decision.

Turning to the alternative argument that Sodexho's purchases are exempt as the purchases were for purposes of resale to the exempt organizations, the Court stated that N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(e)(1) excludes from tax a sale for resale of tangible personalty "either as such or as converted into or as a component part of a product produced for sale by the purchaser." In addressing the issue of whether tangible personalty or services were sold to the exempt organizations "as such," the Court found that it needed to determine what was the true or real object sought by the buyer, and whether the tangible personalty was a critical element of the transaction. The Court opined that the true object of the agreements between the parties was for Sodexho's expertise in providing management services, and that the purchase of tangible personalty was merely incidental to providing these management services, such as training the tax-exempt organizations' employees and determining appropriate inventory levels, as well as convenience for the tax-exempt organizations. The Court concluded that the purchases could not be exempt as converted into or as a component part of a product produced by Sodexho for sale to the tax-exempt organizations because Sodexho did not produce a product. The Court stated that the fact that Sodexho was reimbursed by the tax-exempt organizations for the cost of most of the items was not determinative to the issue of whether there was a resale. Finally, the Court found that language contained in the agreements between the parties contradicted that there was a sale to the tax-exempt organizations where the agreement stated that the inventory shall remain the property of Sodexho, Sodexho would absorb the cost, and after a time period the tax-exempt organizations would not have to pay for the materials.

Finally, the Court addressed Sodexho's claim that the furniture and material purchases are exempt because it should be considered a contractor. The Court ruled that Sodexho was not a contractor as it did not produce evidence that qualified itself for the statutory definition of contractor. Furthermore, the Court determined that the true object of these purchases was for Sodexho to earn its management fees, and for the tax-exempt organizations not to terminate the agreements.

Exemption for Production Equipment and the Catalyst Exemption – Atlantic City Linen Supply, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided April 26, 2002; Tax Court No. 001617-2001.

Plaintiff (Atlantic City) operates a commercial laundry. Employees sort the soiled laundry by hand and process it in loads of approximately 125 pounds into a continuous batch washer, which is a computer-controlled machine. This machine is approximately 60 feet long and 10 feet high. It is capable of performing 75 different chemical processes with various chemicals that break the surface tension of the water, allowing the water to suspend and flush away soil from the fabric, break up soil trapped in the fabric, dissolve organic oils and fatty acids, and produce soaps that enable the removal of items from linen causing the items to be dissolved in the surrounding water, and oxidizing organic compounds, and neutralizing any remaining chemicals. Different types of laundry are processed using different concentrations of chemicals, varying water temperatures, and different timing of passage through the continuous batch washer. After the washing process, the laundry is pressed dry at approximately 360 degrees Fahrenheit by other special high-capacity machinery. Finally, the laundry is folded, bundled, weighed, and returned to the customer. Atlantic City serves 12 casinos as well as other customers.

Atlantic City alleged its purchases of equipment as well as parts therefor are exempt from sales and use tax under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.13, which provides an exemption for, inter alia, equipment and machinery for use or consumption directly and primarily in the production of tangible personal property by processing. The Court found that the equipment at issue satisfied the statutory requirements that it be equipment or machinery used directly and primarily in processing. However, the Court stated that there is also a requirement that the equipment produce tangible personal property, which issue is discussed below.

Atlantic City also sought exemption from sales and use tax on its purchases of chemicals pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.20, which grants an exemption for chemicals and catalysts that induce or cause a refining or chemical process where the chemicals are an integral or essential part of the processing operation, but are not a component part of the finished product. The Court determined that Atlantic City did use chemicals that were used to induce or cause a chemical or refining process. However, the Court stated that the statute also required that there be a finished product.

The Court ruled that the statutory and regulatory requirements of producing tangible personalty and a finished product both contemplate the creation of a new product or a substantial change in form, composition, or character, or a change resulting in the transformation of property into a different or substantially more usable product, but that it did not include the furnishing of a service. Here, the Court ruled that Atlantic City's equipment is used to perform the operation of transforming dirty, soiled, stained laundry into clean, pressed, and folded laundry. Although this cleaned laundry was found to be more usable, the Court reasoned that this was not the kind of transformation either the legislation or the regulations intended. Furthermore, the Court found that no product, within the statutory meaning, was the result of this process. The Court concluded that the predominant use of Atlantic City's equipment was in connection with the performance of a service, not the production of a product. Therefore, Atlantic City was denied a sales and use tax exemption on both its purchases of equipment and chemicals. □

Cigarette Tax

Rate Increases — P.L. 2003, c.115 (signed into law on July 1, 2003) increases the cigarette tax from $.075 to $.1025 per cigarette (from $1.50 to $2.05 per pack of 20). It also specifies that an additional amount of the cigarette tax revenue is to be appropriated for health programs each year. This act took effect immediately.

Miscellaneous

Nursing Home Assessment — P.L. 2003, c.105 (signed into law on July 1, 2003), known as the Nursing Home Quality of Care Improvement Fund Act, imposes an assessment payable by nursing homes to the Division of Taxation in order to attract Federal matching funds to improve nursing home services. The aggregate amount of this assessment paid by all nursing homes combined shall not exceed 6% of the annual revenues received by all of the nursing homes (in accordance with Federal regulations).

This act took effect July 1, 2003; however, implementation of the assessment will not commence until 30 days after Federal approval of any necessary amendments in the State's plan for distribution of the proceeds of the Nursing Home Quality of Care Improvement Fund established under the act.

Hospital Debts — P.L. 2003, c.112 (signed into law on July 1, 2003) creates a Hospital Care Payment Commission to which hospitals may assign their claims for unpaid patient accounts. One of the ways the debts can be collected is through use of the existing SOIL (Set-Off of Individual Liability) program, which offsets certain debts against income tax and certain other tax rebates, refunds, and benefits that would otherwise be due to the debtor. The funds collected will be deposited in the newly created New Jersey Hospital Care Payment Fund, and then paid 50% to each participating hospital and 50% to the State after administration expenses are paid. This law took effect on July 31, 2003.

Hotel/Motel Occupancy Fee — P.L. 2003, c.114 (signed into law on July 1, 2003) imposes a 7% State occupancy fee on the rental of a room in a hotel, motel, or similar facility in most New Jersey municipalities between August 1, 2003, and June 30, 2004. For occupancies on and after July 1, 2004, the fee is reduced to 5%. It also authorizes most New Jersey municipalities to impose a uniform municipal tax on occupancies in that municipality. Between August 1, 2003, and June 30, 2004, the optional municipal tax can be less than or equal to 1%. For occupancies on and after July 1, 2004, the municipal tax may be imposed at a rate of less than or equal to 3%. The legislation makes special rate provisions for those municipalities that already impose local taxes or fees on hotel/motel occupancies. This law took effect immediately.

Casino Taxes and Fees — P.L. 2003, c.116 (signed into law on July 1, 2003) imposes on casino licensees a 4.25% tax on the value of rooms, food, beverages, and entertainment that are provided at no cost or reduced price. It also imposes an 8% tax on casino service industry multi-casino progressive slot machine revenue. In addition, Chapter 116 imposes, for State fiscal years 2004 through 2006, a 7.5% tax on the adjusted net income of casino licensees in calendar year 2002. It also imposes a fee of $3.00 per day on each casino hotel room that is occupied by a guest and increases the minimum casino parking fee in Atlantic City to $3.00 per day. This law took effect immediately.

Outdoor Advertising Fee — P.L. 2003, c.124 (signed into law on July 2, 2003) imposes a 6% fee on the gross amount collected by retail sellers for billboard advertising space in New Jersey. The fee is imposed directly on the retail seller of the advertising space and must be reported and paid on a quarterly basis. This act took effect immediately and applies to billboard advertising fees collected for any period on or after July 1, 2003, through June 30, 2004.

Realty Transfer Fee

Supplemental Fee — P.L. 2003, c.113, (signed into law on July 1, 2003) imposes a new, graduated, supplemental fee on transfers of realty that is payable by the grantor to the county in which the deed is recorded. The new law does not increase the realty transfer fee rates on transfers by senior citizens, blind or disabled persons, and on the transfer of property that is low- and moderate-income housing. This act took effect on July 14, 2003.

Sales and Use Tax

Rentals Between Closely Related Entities Exempt — P.L. 2003, c.136 (signed into law on August 1, 2003) provides that receipts from the rental of tangible personal property on which sales tax was paid or use tax obligations have been satisfied between related persons not engaged in the regular trade or business of renting that property to other persons are exempt from sales and use

tax. For this purpose, “related persons” means persons that are 80% or more owned by each other, or by the same third party. This law took effect immediately but will remain inoperative until November 1, 2003.

Concession Stand Sales in Veterans’ Homes Exempt — P.L. 2003, c.165 (signed into law on August 31, 2003) exempts from sales and use tax retail sales made at concession stands (canteens) that are located in State-owned and operated residential veterans’ homes. This act took effect immediately, and applies to sales made on or after December 1, 2003. □

Realty Transfer Fee

P.L. 2003, c.113, which takes effect on July 14, 2003, imposes a new, graduated supplemental fee on transfers of realty. The fee is payable by the grantor to the county in which the deed is recorded. The new rates are as follows:

- $2.00 for every $500 of consideration not in excess of $150,000;
- $3.35 for every $500 of consideration in excess of $150,000 but not in excess of $200,000;
- $3.90 for every $500 of consideration in excess of $200,000.

The new law does not increase the Realty Transfer Fee rates on transfers by senior citizens, blind or disabled persons, or on the transfer of property that is low and moderate income housing.

that already impose local taxes or fees on hotel/motel occupancies:

- In Atlantic City, where there is currently a combined rate of sales and luxury taxes of 12%, the occupancy fee will be 1%.
- In the Wildwoods, where there is currently a combined rate of sales and local taxes of 9.85%, the occupancy fee will be 3.15%.
- In Newark and Jersey City, where a 6% local hotel tax is currently collected in addition to the 6% sales tax, the occupancy fee will be 1%.

The law authorizes all other municipalities to adopt an ordinance to impose a local tax of up to 1%. The earliest possible effective date for the local tax is September 1, 2003. For fiscal year 2005 and thereafter, when the State occupancy tax is reduced from 7% to 5%, the local tax may be imposed at a rate up to 3%.

Casino Taxes and Fees

on casino licensees on the value of rooms, food, beverages, and entertainment that they give away free or at a reduced price as a “complimentary.” For those “complimentaries” provided at a reduced price, the 4.25% tax is calculated on the value of the room, food, beverage, or entertainment, reduced by any consideration paid by the customer. This tax, payable by the casino licensee, is in addition to any tax due under the Sales and Use Tax Act on receipts from the sale of food, beverages, room occupancies, and entertainment.

In addition, P.L. 2003, c.116 increases the Atlantic City casino hotel parking fee from $2.00 to $3.00, imposes a $3.00 per day fee on each hotel room occupied by a guest in a casino hotel, an 8% gross revenue tax on companies that administer and service multi-progressive casino slot machine systems, and a 7.5% tax on the adjusted net income of casino licensees.

Billboard Advertising Fee

P.L. 2003, c.124 imposes a 6% fee on the gross amount collected by retail sellers for billboard advertising space.

Tax Relief for 9/11 Victims

Governor James E. McGreevey signed legislation, P.L. 2003, c.9, on January 27, 2003, that exempts from New Jersey gross income tax the income of those victims who died as a result of the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks at the World Trade Center and the Pentagon or who were killed when United Airlines Flight 93 crashed in Somerset County, Pennsylvania.

The legislation applies to the tax year 2000 and all later years up to and including the year of death. Generally, the two years for which tax will be forgiven will be 2000 and 2001. Only decedents with a New Jersey gross income tax liability for the qualified years are eligible for income tax relief. Any gross income tax liability eligible for forgiveness that is owed but not paid will be forgiven and payment will be waived. Any gross income tax eligible for forgiveness that is already paid will be refunded.

A claim for refund must be filed within four (4) years after the taxable year in which the victim died. For example, if a calendar year taxpayer died on September 11, 2001, the claim for tax forgiveness must be filed on or before December 31, 2005.

A claim for tax forgiveness must be submitted on Form NJ-0911, "Gross Income Tax Forgiveness for Victims of the September 11, 2001 Terrorist Attacks," and must include proof of death, IRS Form 1310, or a copy of a court certificate showing appointment as personal representative of the decedent.

The Division of Taxation will make every effort to expedite claims for tax forgiveness. For additional information or assistance, call the Division of Taxation at 609-292-2163 or e-mail us at nj.taxation@treas.state.nj.us To obtain Form NJ-0911, call 609-292-2163 or visit the Division's Web site at <http://www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/taxprnt.shtml> □

GROSS INCOME TAX 9/11 Disaster Relief Payments

The September 11th Victim Compensation Fund of 2001 was enacted by the Federal government to provide compensation to any individual who was physically injured and to the families and beneficiaries of any individual who was killed as a result of the terrorist-related aircraft crashes of September 11, 2001. The Victims of Terrorism Tax Relief Act of 2001 provides qualified disaster relief payments to individuals for certain qualified expenses occurring in connection with the terrorist attack such as personal, family, living, or funeral expenses incurred or expenses incurred for the repair or rehabilitation of a personal residence.

For Federal income tax purposes, payments from the September 11th Victim Compensation Fund and qualified disaster relief payments are not considered taxable income of the recipient. More specifically, these payments are not included in taxable income unless the payment is for insurance or other reimbursements for expenses, or income replacement payments, such as payments of lost wages or lost business income.

For New Jersey income tax purposes, qualified disaster relief payments are excludable from income to the extent they are excluded from Federal income tax. Any payments that are taxable for Federal income tax purposes, such as payments for wages or lost business income, are taxable for New Jersey purposes in the appropriate category of income.

Overview of Estate Tax Revisions

The New Jersey estate tax was revised on July 1, 2002, and made to apply retroactively to decedents dying after December 31, 2001. Prior to its revision, the New Jersey estate tax was a "sponge" or "pickup" tax whose sole purpose was to absorb any credit for state inheritance, estate, succession, or legacy taxes available in the Federal estate tax proceeding. The revised New Jersey estate tax is decoupled from the Federal estate tax.

The New Jersey estate tax is now imposed upon the transfer of the estate of every resident decedent which would have been subject to a Federal estate tax under the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code in effect on December 31, 2001. The tax is, at the election of the person or corporation liable for its payment, either the maximum credit for state inheritance, estate, succession, or legacy taxes allowable under the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code in effect on December 31, 2001, or an amount determined pursuant to the Simplified Tax System prescribed by the Director, Division of Taxation.

Numerous inquiries related to the revised New Jersey estate tax and its filing requirements have been received by the Division.

The following summarizes the filing requirements and important provisions of the revised estate tax:

1. The person or corporation responsible for payment of the tax may choose the Form 706 method or the Simplified Tax System (Alternative) method of filing the New Jersey estate tax return. The Form 706 method is based upon the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code in effect on December 31, 2001 (2001 Federal estate tax return). The Simplified Tax System method is based upon the method which has been prescribed by the Director.

2. A New Jersey estate tax return must be filed if the decedent's gross estate, as determined in accordance with the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code in effect on December 31, 2001, exceeds $675,000. It must be filed within nine months of the decedent's death (nine months plus 30 days if the Form 706 method is used). Additionally, a copy of any Federal estate tax return filed or required to be filed with the Federal government must be submitted within 30 days of the date it is filed with the Internal Revenue Service, and a copy of any communication received from the Federal government must be submitted to the Division within 30 days of its receipt from the Internal Revenue Service.

3. The New Jersey estate tax is due on the decedent's date of death and must be paid within nine months. Any tax not paid within nine months bears interest at the rate of ten percent (10%) per annum from the expiration of nine months until paid. The Director may extend the time for the filing of the return, but not for the payment of the tax. Payments are first credited in satisfaction of accrued interest.

4. The Form 706 method requires that the Form IT-Estate be prepared and filed along with a 2001 Federal Form 706 completed in accordance with the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code in effect on December 31, 2001. The New Jersey estate tax is based upon the Federal credit for state inheritance, estate, succession, or legacy taxes as it existed on December 31, 2001, and not as it existed on the decedent's date of death.

If a Federal estate tax return has been or will be filed, or is required to be filed with the Internal Revenue Service, any election made by a taxpayer to treat an asset in a particular manner for Federal estate tax purposes must also be made for New Jersey estate tax purposes. A taxpayer may not make one election for Federal purposes and another for State purposes.

5. The Director has prescribed a Simplified Tax System (Alternative) method pursuant to the provisions of the revised statute. This method may only be used in those situations where a Federal estate tax return has not, and will not be filed, nor is a tax return required to be filed with the Internal Revenue Service. The Simplified Tax System is not intended for use in all estates.

The Simplified Tax System requires that a Form IT-Estate be prepared and filed along with a New Jersey Inheritance Tax Return (Form IT-R) completed in accordance with the provisions of the inheritance tax statute in effect on December 31, 2001.

The taxable value of the estate using the Simplified Tax System (Alternative) method is the net estate as determined and reflected on the New Jersey Inheritance Tax Return (Form IT-R) filed and adjusted to reflect:

- Real and tangible personal property located outside of New Jersey; plus
- The proceeds of life insurance on the decedent's life owned by the decedent (or transferred within three (3) years of his/her death) paid to any beneficiary other than the estate, executor, or administrator; plus
- All transfers made by the decedent within three (3) years of death not included in the net estate as determined and reflected on the New Jersey inheritance tax return; less
- Property passing outright to the decedent's surviving spouse. This deduction does not include QTIP (Qualified Terminable Interest Property) or similar property. QTIP property is property that passes from the decedent and in which the surviving spouse has a qualifying income interest for life. The surviving spouse has a qualifying income interest for life if he/she is entitled to all of the income from the property payable annually or at more frequent intervals, or has a usufruct interest in the property (right to enjoy the property) for life, and during the surviving spouse's lifetime no person has a power to appoint any part of the property to any person other than the surviving spouse. Additionally, the surviving spouse must be a citizen of the United States on the decedent's date of death.

If QTIP property or the surviving spouse's citizenship is a significant factor, consideration should be given to the use of the Form 706 method of filing; less

- Property passing for charitable purposes.
6. The New Jersey estate tax may be reduced by estate, inheritance, succession, or legacy taxes actually paid to any state or territory of the United States or the District of Columbia including inheritance taxes actually paid to this State.

Unlike the prior New Jersey estate tax, the revised estate tax limits the reduction for taxes paid to other jurisdictions to the proportion of the tax otherwise due as the portion of the property taxable in both New Jersey and the foreign jurisdiction bears to the entire estate taxable (gross estate) for New Jersey purposes.

$$\frac{\text{Property Taxed by NJ and Other Jurisdiction}}{\text{Entire NJ Estate Subject to Tax (Gross Estate)}} \times \frac{\text{NJ Estate Tax Otherwise Due}}{\text{NJ Estate Tax Otherwise Due}} = \text{Allowable Reduction}$$

7. Unlike the prior New Jersey estate tax, the revised estate tax is a lien on all the property of a decedent. Additionally, the statute provides that the decedent's property may not be transferred without the written consent of the Director (commonly known as a "waiver"). The tax waiver form has been modified to release both the inheritance and the estate tax lien and permit the transfer of the property listed thereon for both inheritance and the estate tax purposes. Generally, regulations which previously pertained only to inheritance tax waivers have been amended to apply also to es-state tax waivers. For example, an estate tax waiver is not required for any property which is not subject to the estate tax, nor for any property held as a tenancy by the entirety in the estate of the first spouse to die. Additionally, the blanket waiver rule may be used for estate tax purposes to secure one half (1/2) the funds on deposit on a decedent's date of death in a banking institution.

8. Inheritance and estate tax waivers are now required for life insurance policies, annuity contracts, endowment policies, and supplementary contracts issued to effectuate the distribution of the benefits payable thereunder.

9. Waiver requirements are set forth in the recently adopted inheritance and estate tax regulations beginning at N.J.A.C. 18:26-11.1. Form L-8 may not be used if the taxable estate plus adjusted taxable gifts as determined in accordance with the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code in effect on December 31, 2001, exceeds $675,000. Form L-9 may not be used if the gross estate as determined in accordance with the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code in effect on December 31, 2001, exceeds $675,000. In situations where the taxable estate plus adjusted taxable gifts exceeds $675,000, Form L-4 may be used to request the issuance of waivers prior to the filing of the New Jersey estate tax return, completion of the review of the return filed by the Division, and payment of the tax. When reviewing a request for the early issuance of waivers, the Division will withhold waivers and/or require a payment on account or other security sufficient to insure the payment of the tax and interest for

Inheritance Tax Deductions

N.J.S.A. 54:34-5 provides that the inheritance tax is to be computed on the clear market value of property transferred and that in determining the clear market value only certain deductions are permitted. N.J.S.A. 54:34-5(c) provides that the ordinary expenses of administration including the ordinary fees allowed executors and administrators are allowable deductions. N.J.A.C. 18:26-7.1 provides that no deductions are allowable against any property which is exempt or not subject to the inheritance tax.

The Division's long-standing administrative construction of N.J.S.A. 54:34-5(c) has been that administrator or executor commissions are allowable on the fair market value of real property owned by a decedent less any outstanding mortgage balance. The Division reasoned that as a mortgage is deductible from the corpus of an estate the mortgage amount is exempt property against which deductions are not allowed under N.J.A.C. 18:26-7.1.

However, in the case of Estate of Lillian Becker v. Director, Division of Taxation, No. 4875-2001, decided December 17, 2002, the Tax Court determined that the allowable deduction for an administrator's commission for New Jersey inheritance tax purposes must be calculated as a percentage of the gross fair market value of the real property owned by the decedent, not the value of the property less the outstanding mortgage payable at the time the administrator sold the property. The Court found that the statute and regulations indicated that all allowable deductions should be made from the gross value of any property so long as the property as a whole was not exempt or otherwise not subject to the inheritance tax. Therefore, the Division will no longer require the exclusion of an outstanding mortgage in determining the base amount from which an administrator's fees will be calculated.

On March 24, 2003, Governor McGreevey signed Public Law 2003, chapter 33, which permits fiduciaries to employ and compensate accountants from fiduciary funds for services rendered to an estate. Fees incurred in the preparation of accountings do not reduce the commissions due a fiduciary so long as the accountings are not a usual, customary, or routine service provided by the fiduciary in light of the nature and skills of the fiduciary. Factors considered in evaluating the actions of a fiduciary include the size and complexity of the fiduciary fund, the length of time for which an accounting is rendered, and the increased risk and responsibilities imposed on fiduciaries as a result of revisions to laws affecting fiduciaries.

The Division's long-standing policy regarding the allowance of accounting fees as an inheritance tax deduc-tion complies with the recently enacted legislation. The reasonable and ordinary fees of Certified Public Accountants and Public Accountants are allowed for the preparation of an inheritance tax return and for other professional services rendered to the executor or administrator of an estate. Accounting fees incurred for services of a nature that could have been performed by the executor or administrator are not allowed as a deduction. □

Shorter Wait Time for New Protests

The Conference and Appeals Branch has implemented procedures designed to increase responsiveness to taxpayers' requests for conferences and final determinations. Taxpayers who are appealing decisions made by the Division of Taxation now have a shorter wait time for conferences and receive decisions faster once the conference is held. This is a result of new and improved administrative procedures and a decrease in the number of cases pending because of those settled during the recent Tax Amnesty.

In-Depth Review of Incoming Protests. An intensive review of the incoming protests is now undertaken and more comprehensive information is requested from the taxpayer at that time. This helps both the taxpayer and the conferee assigned to the case to be better prepared for the conference, and the review and discussion process may even eliminate the need for an in-person conference.

Perfecting Protests. Where issues are black and white, and the taxpayer has adequately documented

their protest, every attempt is made to resolve matters quickly, often by way of a telephone conference.

Expedited Conferences. When a protest has received a full review and/or the protest has been perfected, there may still remain a need to have an in-person conference. “Conferences on demand” (taxpayer initiated) or “conferences on short notice” (Division initiated) provide a taxpayer who is ready to meet, or has no additional proofs to present, with an opportunity to be heard. Decisions in these types of situations are typically issued within days of the conference.

These procedures reduce the wait times for taxpayers and allow conferees to focus on cases with more complex legal, auditing, and accounting issues. □

Business Tax Reform Changes

The New Jersey Division of Taxation is modifying its administrative practice with respect to implementation of the Business Tax Reform Act (P.L. 2002, c.40) in three instances. These may be found in rules proposed in the New Jersey Register, April 7, 2003, at N.J.A.C. 18:7-5.18(a)(1), N.J.A.C. 18:7-17.6, and N.J.A.C. 18:7-8.7. The changes are retroactive and apply to taxpayers with privilege periods beginning on and after January 1, 2002. It is anticipated that, upon adoption of these rules, the changes made will be reflected in the adoption notice as changes not detrimental to the public.

First, a lower threshold is being introduced for a taxpayer to qualify for an interest expense deduction. An exception to the interest deduction addback, N.J.A.C. 18:7-5.18(a)(1), is being revised to reflect that a related party need not actually pay a tax to a jurisdiction in a single entity state in order for the exception to apply. The related member must simply include the interest income in the calculation of its income subject to tax for the exception to apply. If the interest paid is subject to a tax regardless of whether a tax is actually paid by the entity receiving the income, then the payor of the interest may qualify for the exception and be eligible to deduct its interest expense.

Similarly, and consistent with the principle, N.J.A.C. 18:7-8.7 will be revised to reflect the Division’s position regarding the throw-out rule. Where a corporate taxpayer that is subject to tax but pays no tax to a tax jurisdiction, the numerator of that tax jurisdiction’s receipts fraction would not be subject to New Jersey’s throw-out provision (unless it is as a result of that state’s throw-back provision). The only requirement is that the taxpayer must actually be subject to tax in that taxing state’s jurisdiction and file a return. The throw-out rule applies to single entity taxing jurisdictions as well as postapportionment combination states. The rule also permits the throwout of receipts to preapportionment combination states. Receipts from preapportionment combination states are still required to be thrown out from the denominator of the New Jersey receipts fraction.

Finally, N.J.A.C. 18:7-17.6 will be liberalized to permit partnerships with New Jersey sourced income to make estimated payments on behalf of nonresident, non-corporate partners that elect to participate in the partnership’s composite return. This revision will allow nonresident, noncorporate partners participating in a composite return to avoid the economic effects of payment of estimated tax while having taxes remitted on the partnership level for the same period. Under the new methodology, if a composite return is filed and the estimated payments associated with it are made on a timely, quarterly basis, then the partnership itself will not be responsible for remitting a tax at the close of the tax period with its Form NJ-1065 with respect to the New Jersey sourced income of those foreign, noncorporate partners participating in the partnership’s composite return whose estimates were paid quarterly. □

Credit for Camden Homebuyers

P.L. 2002, c.43, as amended by P.L. 2002, c.108, created a nonrefundable gross income tax credit of up to $5,000 for individuals or married couples who purchase and occupy, or plan to occupy within one year, residential property in Camden City. The taxpayer must occupy the property, within one year of purchase, as the taxpayer’s principal residence. The law establishing the credit defines residential property as land, a dwelling house, or a condominium unit. A taxpayer is disqualified from eligibility if the taxpayer, or his or her current spouse, if any, has previously owned residential property and occupied it as a principal residence.

The credit is available for any qualifying purchase made after July 1,

2002. A qualifying taxpayer may be eligible for the credit for the year of purchase and for the next four years if the taxpayer continues to occupy the property as the taxpayer's principal residence. A taxpayer must repay any tax credits if he or she fails to occupy the property within one year of purchase or if the taxpayer ceases to occupy the property as the principal residence within ten years of purchasing or first occupying the property, whichever is later.

To receive the credit, qualifying taxpayers must complete the Municipal Rehabilitation and Economic Recovery Tax Credit Application. The Division of Taxation will be mailing the application form to purchasers of Camden property who may qualify for the credit. □

Mergers and Tax Clearance

If the surviving or resulting business of a merger is not a registered or authorized domestic or foreign business entity, a Tax Clearance Certificate for each participating corporation must be obtained and attached to the merger filing submitted to the Business Services Bureau in the Division of Revenue.

Each corporation participating in such a merger obtains a Tax Clearance Certificate from the Division of Taxation for a $25 fee using forms A-5052-TC, Estimated Summary Tax Return, and A-5088-TC, Application for Tax Clearance. The surviving unauthorized foreign corporation receives a "nonassessment" Tax Clearance Certificate. □

Vendors Can Pay Tax for Customers

Recently enacted legislation (P.L. 2003, c.42) authorizes most New Jersey retail vendors to advertise that the vendor will pay the 6% New Jersey sales tax for the customer in particular transactions. This is a change from prior law, which prohibited vendors from advertising in this way. Sellers of natural gas, electricity, and utility services are not authorized to advertise in such a manner.

In order to take advantage of the new law, the vendor must meet the following conditions:

1. The advertisement must indicate that the vendor is paying the tax for the customer and cannot imply that the sale is not subject to tax;
2. If the customer receives a sales receipt, invoice, or other written statement of the transaction, it must indicate that the 6% New Jersey sales tax is being paid by the vendor; and
3. The vendor must pay the tax as trustee for the State and is liable for the tax in the same manner as if it were collected from the customer.

The tax is to be reported and remitted as "sales tax," not as "use tax" because the vendor is assuming the obligation to pay the sales tax for the customer. All sales where the vendor pays the tax under these conditions must be included in the vendor's gross receipts and the tax must be remitted accordingly. □

Criminal Enforcement over the past several months included:

- On April 4, 2003, in Superior Court – Monmouth County, Larry E. Barasch of Marlboro, who is the former owner and president of the now-defunct Great Feeling Spas, Inc., a spa and hot tub retailer that operated in Marlboro from 1994 to 2002, was found guilty by a jury, at the conclusion of a four-week trial, of theft of $187,742.46 in sales tax which Barasch had collected from his retail customers in 2001 and failed to remit to the State. Barasch had also been charged with theft from his customers of $395,000 in deposits paid for goods which were never delivered, but he was found not guilty of the second charge. On July 10, 2003, Barasch was ordered to make restitution of the tax to the State, and was sentenced to five years imprisonment. The sentencing judge denied the request of Barasch's attorney that Barasch be freed on bail pending appeal, and the defendant was immediately turned over to the State Department of Corrections for transportation to a prison facility. The verdict and sentence clearly illustrate that retail vendors act in a fiduciary capacity on behalf of the State in the collection of and accounting for sales tax from customers, and that this tax money cannot be diverted to fund business expenses. New Jersey law specifically provides that it is a crime to fail to file a return or pay over a tax with the intent to not make timely payment of that tax. At sentencing, the judge noted that with respect to the sales tax funds, Barasch "...didn't pay them when they were due and owing, and didn't pay them in the proper form." This investigation was conducted jointly with the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office, with significant assistance from Taxation's Field Investigation Branch, Jersey Shore Regional Office. The Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office represented the State at trial.

- On January 6, 2003, Shravan Baile of Staten Island, New York, entered a guilty plea on behalf of Best Liquors of Lakewood, Inc. to one (1) count of an indictment relating to the failure to turn over sales tax as required by law. Mr. Baile, Best Liquors of Lakewood, Inc., and Best Liquors of Lakehurst, Inc. had been indicted by a State Grand Jury on eight (8) counts relating to his failure to turn over $54,194 in sales tax collected during the years 1997 and 1998. The investigation determined that Best Liquors of Lakewood collected and failed to remit $29,093 in sales tax monies, and Best Liquors of Lakehurst collected and failed to remit $25,101 in sales tax monies. Under the terms of the plea agreement, Mr. Baile will make full restitution of the sales tax collected and not remitted on or before sentencing. This case was referred to the Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) from Audit Activity and was jointly investigated with the New Jersey State Police Alcoholic Beverage Control Enforcement Unit and was prosecuted by the State Attorney General's Office.

- On January 8, 2003, in Belvidere, New Jersey, Arminder Singh, whose last known address was in Hasbrouck Heights, New Jersey, was indicted by a Warren County Grand Jury on three (3) second-degree counts, i.e., collecting and failing to turn over more than $75,000 tax, misapplication of entrusted property, and failure to make required disposition of property received, resulting from his collecting and failing to remit over $75,000 in motor fuels tax on the retail sale of diesel fuel at a truckstop he operated in White Township, New Jersey, under the names HP Oil, Inc. and Rockaway Fuel Corp. from September 2000 to June 2001. He was also indicted on ten (10) third-degree counts of writing bad checks to his fuel suppliers. Mr. Singh is currently a fugitive whose whereabouts is unknown. This case was investigated by the Office of Criminal Investigation and presented to the Grand Jury by the Warren County Prosecutor's Office.

- OCI has completed a three-year investigation of the tax preparation firm run by George Halpern and his son, Todd. The investigation was opened as a result of information received from Taxation's Audit and Compliance Activities, whose personnel had documented a pattern of incompetent and possibly illegal actions by the Halperns in their preparation of tax returns for their clients and in their dealings on behalf of their clients with the Division of Taxation. Our investigation resulted in guilty pleas by both George and Todd Halpern in 2000 to charges of filing fraudulent tax returns. Both defendants were sentenced to probation and prohibited from operating an accounting or tax preparation business. Continued investigation, however, revealed that both defendants continued to engage in the preparation of tax returns in violation of the court's orders. Subsequently, in 2001 George Halpern was sentenced to 364 days in jail and Todd Halpern to a 90-day jail term. The Halperns entered into the work release program. OCI investigation determined that they continued to engage in the tax preparation business while on work release. The court then revoked their work release and they were remanded to jail full time. Further investigation determined that Todd Halpern had not only been improperly servicing and representing his clients, he also engaged in systematic theft from his clients on a large scale. On September 6, 2002, Todd Halpern entered a plea of guilty to a charge of theft by misapplication of $367,261 in New Jersey sales tax payments, which had been entrusted to him by 70 small businesses who had been clients of Halpern's tax preparation business. Halpern also pled guilty to theft in excess of $45,000 in personal income tax estimated payments. Halpern made full restitution payments in excess of $400,000. Halpern was sentenced to five years imprisonment for the above offenses. This case was prosecuted by the State Attorney General's Office.

- One hundred thirty-seven (137) complaints alleging tax evasion were evaluated from January through March 2003 in the Office of Criminal Investigation.
- During the same period, sixty-three (63) charges were filed in court on twenty-three (23) cases for violation of the Cigarette Tax Act. Of the twenty-three cases, four (4) cases involved counterfeit tax stamp investigations and nineteen (19) arrests were made. □

Corporation Business Tax

Alternative Minimum Assessment

— Corporations subject to the corporation business tax are required to compute the alternative minimum assessment and pay the greater of the CBT or the AMA.

The method of computation for the alternative minimum assessment is left to the discretion of the taxpayer. A taxpayer shall, for the first privilege period for which it is required to compute the alternative minimum assessment, elect the gross profits method or the gross receipts method. This computation method must then be used by the taxpayer for the computation of the alternative minimum assessment for that privilege period and for the next succeeding four privilege periods.

The taxpayer may change its election at any time after the initial five privilege periods. However, when a taxpayer elects to change the method of computation of the alternative minimum assessment, the new method must be used for the privilege period for which the change is effective and for the next succeeding four privilege periods.

Employee Purchases Under Commuter Choice Program

— In regard to commuter transportation benefits provided under N.J.S.A. 54A:6-23, the Division responded to an inquiry regarding whether the TRIP (Transportation Reimbursement Incentive Program) spending account that allows employees to set aside pretax dollars for the cost of qualified public transportation and parking expenses is subject to tax under the New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act.

The requirements of employer-provided commuter transportation benefits that can be excluded from New Jersey gross income tax are set forth in N.J.S.A. 54A:6-23. However, the exclusion is provided in addition to, and not in lieu of, any compensation otherwise payable to the employee. The New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act only provides an exclusion for employer-provided commuter transportation benefits. Commuter transportation expenses are not excluded from income when purchased by the employee.

Because the TRIP plan is provided by the employees for their own benefit, contributions are subject to New Jersey gross income tax. Income received as compensation for commuting to work will not be taxed

as long as the employer provides the funds and the compensation is within the limits of N.J.S.A. 54:A-6.23.

Hedge Fund Partner Withholding

— A taxpayer inquired about the responsibilities of hedge fund partnerships under P.L. 2002, c.40, the New Jersey Business Tax Reform Act of 2002.

Under the New Jersey Business Tax Reform Act of 2002, partnerships meeting “hedge fund” status under N.J.S.A. 54A:5-8(c) are not required to remit tax payments on the intangible income of nonresident, noncorporate partners if the nonresident, noncorporate partners of hedge funds are not required to include any gains or losses resulting from trading activities in their income.

Also, as provided under the Act, the $150 per partner filing fee assessed on partnerships with more than two partners and having income or loss derived from New Jersey sources is applicable to all New Jersey hedge fund partnerships if they are classified as partnerships for Federal income tax purposes.

Partnership Guaranteed Payments

— The Division responded to an inquiry regarding the treatment of a Maryland resident who is a guaranteed-income partner of a New Jersey partnership. It was stated that the partnership has its main office in New Jersey, but it also has offices in New York, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Maryland. The taxpayer, who is a resident of Maryland and a guaranteed-income partner of the partnership, does not perform any services for the partnership in New Jersey, or any other state, other than Maryland.

Guaranteed payments must be reported as distributive share of partnership income, with the exception of guaranteed payments received by a retired partner who receives such payments as a result of a period of service to the partnership pursuant to a retirement agreement or pension plan. N.J.A.C. 18:35-1.3(c)(2). Where the partnership’s activity is carried on within and outside New Jersey, the taxpayer’s distribution is subject to allocation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 18:35-1.3(c)(3)(iii), which states that: “Where a partnership’s activity is carried on both within and outside New Jersey, the portion of the partnership’s income, gains, expenses or losses attributable to sources within New Jersey shall, except as provided in (c)3iv below, be determined by use of the New Jersey Business Allocation Schedule (Form NJ-1040-NR-A), as prepared by the partnership. Failure to provide such schedule may result in allocation of all income to New Jersey.”

Litter Control Fee

Principal Activity Test for Restaurant Sales

— The Division received an inquiry regarding the recently enacted litter control fee from an operator of concession stands at ballparks, stadiums, and concert halls in New Jersey. The Division responded that the litter control fee is imposed on the gross receipts from wholesale sales and retail sales of litter-generating products sold within or into New Jersey by each person engaged in business in the State as a manufacturer, wholesaler, distributor, or retailer of such litter-generating products. “Retailer” means every person engaged in the business of exchanging goods for cash or barter or any consideration on the presumption that the purchaser of such goods has acquired the same for ultimate consumption or use. “Retailer” includes the owner or operator of a take-out or drive-through restaurant, the principal activity of which consists of selling any meal or food prepared and ready to be eaten for consumption off the premises of the restaurant. “Retailer” does not include (1) the owner or operator of a restaurant with less than ten percent (10%) in annual retail sales of meals or food prepared and ready to be eaten for consumption off the premises of the restaurant; or (2) the owner or operator of a restaurant, the principal activity of which consists of preparing for consumption within the restaurant a meal or food to be eaten on the premises. “Principal Activity” means more than fifty percent (50%) of the restaurant’s food and beverage sales.

The business operates concession stands at ballparks, stadiums, and convention or concert halls. It was stated that these establishments are not open to the general public, but rather open to event ticket holders only. As food and beverages are prepared and served on premises, these establishments are deemed to be restaurants for purposes of the litter control fee. As such, the percentage of gross receipts derived from eat-in versus take-out food sales must be examined to determine whether these restaurants are “retailers” as described above. The location and nature of the restaurants require consumption to take place within the facilities in which they are situated. This is determined to be “on-premises” consumption for litter control fee purposes. Since the businesses’ sales of food and beverages are more than 50% for on-premises consumption, the restaurants are excluded as “retailers” and not subject to the fee for that calendar year.

Seller of Service Not Paper Products — An inquiry was received as to whether a “broker of printed forms for various printing plants” is subject to the litter control fee. The litter control fee is imposed on the gross receipts derived from wholesale and retail sales of litter-generating products sold within or into New Jersey by each person engaged in business in the State as a manufacturer, wholesaler, distributor, or retailer of such litter-generating products. Litter-generating products include all “paper products.”

If this business acts only as a broker, never taking title to the printed materials, it has no gross receipts from the sale of litter-generating products. Rather, it collects only a fee or commission on the service of brokering the deal. Therefore, the business is not subject to the fee. If, however, the business possesses any ownership rights to the paper products and cannot be viewed strictly as a broker, but as seller of tangible property, the business would be subject to the fee.

For further information, please see the Division’s Web site for the Litter Control Fee Guidelines at www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation and click on “Tax Topics,” or contact Regulatory Services at 609-292-5994.

Sales and Use Tax

Construction Site Cleaning Services — The Division responded to a letter regarding the taxability of construction site cleaning services. Construction site cleaning services were described as the cleaning of newly constructed homes or the cleaning of homes under construction, but between construction phases (e.g., after sheetrock has been installed but before the flooring is installed).

“Maintaining, servicing or repairing real property...” is subject to sales tax pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(4). As the construction site cleaning services described above fall within the scope of the above-stated provision, they are taxable. Taxable services purchased by a contractor are subject to tax unless they are performed exclusively in the fulfillment of a contract with an exempt organization. N.J.A.C. 18:24-5.5.

Although new construction generally qualifies for sales tax exemption under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(2)(v) as it results in a capital improvement, the capital improvement exemption does not reach those services performed for the construction trade that are merely related to the installation of property that becomes an improvement to real property. Taxable services which are performed for a construction contractor in connection with a capital improvement, but which would not alone result in a capital improvement, are subject to tax upon purchase by the contractor. N.J.A.C. 18:24-5.5.

Therefore, the use of a Resale Certificate (Form ST-3) by a developer or ground contractor is not appropriate in these situations. The construction site cleaning service provider must collect sales tax from the contractor purchasing its services.

Marketing Survey Reports — Whether or not the sale of a market research report is subject to tax depends on whether the research is syndicated or customized. Syndicated research is generally based on information that is received from two primary sources: point-of-sale data from retailers, and information in consumer surveys compiled by the marketing company. Essentially, all of the clients receive the same report. The reports contain no information that is specific to particular clients and are available for purchase by any subscriber. Many, but not all, of a marketing company's clients may receive individualized consulting services. These services are not separately stated but are included in the client's bill for the syndicated research.

Customized research involves the individualized analysis of the point-of-sale and panelist data or specific research studies. These reports are only provided to a requesting client, and the marketing company is generally prohibited from disclosing the results to any other clients. Most clients also receive individualized consulting services which are not separately stated but included in the client's bill for customized research.

In New Jersey, the sale of a customized report is treated as the sale of a professional service which is not subject to tax. Such a service involves the production of a report containing information specific to a particular taxpayer. However, the sale of a report which is not customized for a particular purchaser, but rather is provided to a number of customers without any modification, such as a syndicated report, is treated as the sale of tangible property which is taxable under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a). When such reports are delivered to a customer in New Jersey either in hard copy, CD-ROM, or by other tangible means, the transaction is subject to sales tax. If the information is transmitted solely in electronic form, the transaction is for intangible property which is not taxable under New Jersey law.

Medical Testing — The Division responded to an inquiry regarding the application of the New Jersey

Sales and Use Tax Act to a business which performs medical testing services for doctors. The inquirer stated that the taxpayer "brings the equipment to a doctor's office with a technician. The technician performs the test with the doctor present. There is a fee paid by the doctor for the use of the machine and technician."

On these facts, it does not appear that this is a true rental transaction because the doctor does not have possession or control of the equipment. Under the Sales and Use Tax Act, a "rental" is defined as a short-term transaction with an original contract term of no more than 28 days. The fee paid by the doctor in this instance is exempt from tax as a professional testing service. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(e)(4)(A). The business that performs the test must pay tax on the purchase of the test equipment since the business is considered the end user of the property.

Telecommunications Sourcing Act — The New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act was recently amended to bring existing provisions on mobile telecommunications services into compliance with the Federal "Mobile Telecommunications Sourcing Act," 4 U.S.C. §124 (Public Law 106-252), referred to as MTSA. The amendments to the Sales and Use Tax Act became effective for customer bills issued after August 1, 2002. The MTSA enacted a uniform method for sourcing mobile telecommunications services for sales tax purposes.

The new legislation changes the way mobile telecommunications services are taxed by sourcing all calls to a place of primary use, regardless of origination or termination of the service or the intrastate character of the call. The new method assumes that all wireless calls are made at the customer's residential or business street address, whichever is the place of primary use, and allows taxing jurisdictions to tax all the calls charged to that place of primary use. No other state can tax the mobile calls, even if the call originates or terminates in that state.

Thus, if the caller resides in New Jersey, all cellular calls, regardless of where they are made or where the person called is located, will be subject to 6% New Jersey sales tax.

Universal Service Assessment — Effective January 1, 1998, the Federal Communications Commission imposed the Universal Assessment on telecommunications carriers in order to fund the Government's Universal Service Program, which subsidized telecommunications services to low-income and rural communities as well as schools, libraries, and healthcare facilities. The telecommunications company passes this cost on to its customers as part of the monthly bill for service.

The New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Regulations provide that excise taxes which are imposed on vendors, such as the Universal Service Assessment, are included in the receipt on which sales tax is computed. N.J.A.C. 18:24-1.4(b). Since telecommunications services, including cellular, are subject to New Jersey sales tax, the Universal Service Assessment is also subject to State sales tax. □

Corporation Business Tax

Regular Place of Business – River Systems, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation; Rubachem International, LTD. v. Director, Division of Taxation; and Rubachem, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided March 14, 2003; Appellate Division No. A-2741-01T3.

The Appellate Division affirmed the Tax Court's holding for the Division for substantially the reasons in the Tax Court opinion that was summarized in the New Jersey State Tax News, Volume 31, Numbers 2/3, Summer/Fall 2002, page 31. Previously, the Tax Court held that taxpayers did not maintain a regular place of business outside New Jersey because the New York business office and employees belonged to a separate, related company.

Local Property Tax

Exemption Status – City of Long Branch v. Ohel Yaacob Congregation, decided January 21, 2003; Tax Court No. 002643-2001.

Plaintiff City of Long Branch appeals a judgment of the Monmouth County Board of Taxation applicable to tax year 2001 which exempts property used to house visiting rabbis and other clergy and also to store books and furniture. Defendant Ohel Yaacob Congregation claims that the property is entitled to exemption pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:4-3.6 because it is a parsonage or, alternatively, because it is a building actually used in the work of an association or corporation organized exclusively for religious purposes.

The Congregation first claims that the subject property is a parsonage and exempt under N.J.S.A. 54:4-3.6, which states that the property eligible for exemption includes "the buildings, not exceeding two, actually occupied as a parsonage by the officiating clergymen of any religious corporation of this State...." The subject property was purchased for the purpose of housing visiting clergy. While the Congregation ordinarily consists of 60 to 80 families, the summer influx of an additional 400 to 500 families requires that additional clergy serve the synagogue. The Court found that visiting clergy did not fit within the definition of "officiating clergyman," which has been defined as "a settled or incumbent pastor or minister, that is, a pastor installed over a parish, church or congregation." The Court also found that the property was not used as a parsonage meaning a residence or home and not just a hotel room or other temporary housing. Therefore, the property was not eligible for exemption as a parsonage.

This leads to the issue of whether or not a parsonage is the only type of residential property owned by a religious organization which is eligible for exemption, or does the specific exemption for parsonages preclude qualification for exemption of other categories of residential property used for religious purposes? There is no evidence that the Legislature ever intended for parsonages to be included in the general category of property used for religious purposes. Parsonages have always been treated separately and as a historical matter have not been regarded as property used for religious purposes. The Court found that although a residential property not amounting to a parsonage may be exempt as used for religious purposes, a residence principally used as a parsonage is not eligible for the same exemption and is limited to the express provisions for parsonages.

The Court, citing City of Long Branch v. Monmouth Medical Center, 138 N.J. Super. 524 (App. Div. 1976), aff'd, 73 N.J. 179 (1977), applied a test of "reasonable necessity": the exemption claimant must demonstrate a compelling need for the services performed by the resident of the property for which exemption is claimed and also that those services are integral with the exemption functions of the entity. The Court found that the subject building used for the housing of the visiting clergy is necessary for the proper and efficient operation of the Congregation during summer months and is not a mere convenience. Furthermore, the visiting clergy make it possible to accommodate the enlarged membership during the summer, and it is that membership which provides much of the financial support for the year-round operation of the Congregation.

Finally, the Congregation claims exemption because the property was used for storage of religious books and furniture. The Court, citing Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Newark v. East Orange City, 17 N.J. Tax 298, 313-315 (Tax 1998), aff'd, 18 N.J. Tax 649 (App. Div. 2000), concluded that "the storage of documents and artifacts of a religious nature or related to the operation of the church should be deemed a religious purpose consistent with the exemption granted by the statute."

Because the Court found that the housing of visiting clergy was a use of the subject property for religious purposes, and because the use of an otherwise qualified property for the storage of books and personal property used in the operation of the religious organization is consistent with the exemption of property used for religious purposes, the Court affirmed the judgment of the Monmouth County Board of Taxation, citing that the subject property was actually and exclusively used for religious purposes.

Note: N.J.S.A. 54:4-3.6 was amended by P.L. 2001, c.18, to delete the word "exclusively," from the religious property exemption when referring to use.

Property Tax Relief Programs
NJ SAVER Rebate: Untimely Filing – David Curzie v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided December 9, 2002; Tax Court No. 005346-2002.

Plaintiff received the 2000 NJ SAVER rebate application but thought it pertained to his income taxes and therefore placed it with his other income tax documentation. After relatives mentioned that he should be receiving his rebate soon, plaintiff became concerned. Plaintiff alleges that he called the Division and was told to file the application regardless of its timeliness. Thereafter, plaintiff filed the 2000 application on January 25, 2002.

The Tax Court affirmed the Division's denial of plaintiff's rebate for failure to timely file after finding that the rebate application was due on or before October 22, 2001. Turning to plaintiff's argument that rather than being denied the entire rebate he should either be fined or at least entitled to a partial rebate, the Tax Court denied this request explaining that the rebate was all or nothing as there were no relief provisions for untimely filers.

NJ SAVER Rebate: Untimely Filing – Adam Ress v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided December 9, 2002; Tax Court No. 005242-2002.

Plaintiff received his 1999 and 2000 NJ SAVER rebate applications but thought they pertained to his income taxes and therefore kept them with other income tax documentation that would later be provided to his tax preparer. The tax preparer of his 2000 income tax return apparently did not consider the application. Plaintiff hired a new tax preparer for his 2001 income tax return who saw the 1999 and 2000 applications and inquired as to whether plaintiff filed for the rebates. Thereafter, plaintiff filed his 1999 and 2000 NJ SAVER rebate applications on January 10, 2002.

Finding that the 2000 rebate application was due on or before October 22, 2001, the Tax Court affirmed the Division's denial of plaintiff's 2000 rebate for failure to file timely. Also, the Tax Court found the 1999 rebate application to be untimely filed as it was due August 31, 2000.

NJ SAVER Rebate: Untimely Filing – Gail Zeyack v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided December 9, 2002; Tax Court No. 005345-2002.

Plaintiff filed her 2000 NJ SAVER rebate application on December 26, 2001, which was past the October 22, 2001, deadline. Plaintiff testified that the application was filed late because she had a very bad year causing her to be depressed and overwhelmed. Plaintiff's father suffered a stroke, lost his speech, and then passed away in January 2000. As the only child, she administered her father's funeral arrangements. Plaintiff had to take care of her mother, who had rheumatoid arthritis and could not be left alone. Plaintiff was not working due to disability and received disability payments from February 11, 2000, to July 28, 2000. Plaintiff lost her job, suffered from and was treated for back pain, took medication for pain and for depression, and was in the process of being divorced. Plaintiff's doctor provided a letter requesting that plaintiff be allowed to file the application late because she was unable to file timely due to a medical condition.

The Court pointed out that the rebate application was due on or before October 22, 2001, and that the information plaintiff provided pertained to the calendar year 2000, not to 2001. Plaintiff then testified that her mother was in and out of the hospital six times in 2001, her mother was given six months to live, and that her mother died in May 2001. As to her divorce proceedings, plaintiff testified that a guardian had to be appointed for her in July 2001. Defendant noted that plaintiff filed her income tax returns timely for tax years 2000 and 2001; however, plaintiff stated that was due to her husband's help because they were filing jointly.

Although the Court sympathized with plaintiff's medical conditions as well as the events occurring in plaintiff's life and accepted that plaintiff had an illness, the Court stressed that plaintiff did not prove

why she was unable to file the application timely. The Court noted that plaintiff filed her income tax returns timely and took care of her day-to-day business. The Court found that the physician's note was general and insufficient, it did not state the time period she was sick or the extent of her disability, and did not state why she was unable to file the application. Consequently, the Court ruled that plaintiff provided no evidence that showed that she was physically or mentally unable to file the application in a timely manner. Also, the Court referred to the case of Hovland where the Tax Court held that plaintiff had good cause to file the 1982 homestead rebate late because plaintiff was diagnosed with spinal cancer in November 1982, hospitalized until early January 1983, bedridden until January 18, 1983, and filed his rebate application within a reasonable time on January 21, 1983, four days after the January 17, 1983, deadline.

Regular Place of Business — Lucisano Brothers, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided January 24, 2003; Appellate Division No. A-6466-00T5.

The Appellate Division affirmed the Tax Court's holding for the Division, which principally relied on the reasoning of Stephen Little Trucking that was summarized in the New Jersey State Tax News, Volume 30, Number 4, Winter 2001, page 19, stating that the statutory analysis was well-founded and the achieved result was substantially correct.

Lucisano is a Pennsylvania building supply company that sold and delivered building materials to New Jersey contractors and subcontractors without collecting sales tax because it argued that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(w) it was not a person required to collect sales tax. The Tax Court reasoned that N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(w) must be read in harmony with the simultaneously adopted provisions contained in N.J.S.A. 54:32B-12(b) that place the obligation to collect tax from the contractor on the vendor unless the contractor obtained a direct pay permit. The Appellate Division also gave deference to the regulations that interpret the statutes to reach the same result. □

In Our Legislature

Sales and Use Tax

Payments of Sales Tax by Vendors — P.L. 2003, c.42 (signed into law on April 14, 2003) permits certain vendors of goods and services to advertise that they will pay New Jersey sales tax for their customers. The legislation requires that the advertisement must indicate that the vendor will pay the tax for the customer and it will not indicate or imply that the sale or charge is exempt from taxation. Any sales slip, invoice, receipt, or statement given to the customer must state that the tax will be paid by the vendor; and the vendor must pay the amount of tax due as trustee for and on account of the State. Vendors must remit the tax due on the retail sales or service receipts to the State in the same manner as tax collected from a customer. This act took effect immediately.

Legislation Not Previously Reported:

Public Utility Taxes

Energy Tax Receipts Property Tax Relief Fund Distribution Date Changed — P.L. 2002, c.3 (signed into law on March 18, 2002) extends by 15 days (from on or before June 30 to on or before July 15) the time for distribution of a portion of the State aid paid from the Energy Tax Receipts Property Tax Relief Fund to municipalities operating on a calendar year basis for funds distributed after January 1, 2002. This act took effect immediately.

Miscellaneous

Brownfield and Contaminated Site Redevelopment Reimbursement Program — P.L. 2002, c.87 (signed into law on October 22, 2002) amends the Brownfield and Contaminated Site Remediation Act to expand the redevelopment reimbursement program under which the State and a redeveloper may enter into an agreement to reimburse the developer of a brownfield site for up to 75 percent of the costs of remediating the site. Reimbursement payments are made from revenues derived from new State taxes generated from the redevelopment of the site. Chapter 87 broadens the category of redevelopers eligible for participation in the program to include developers of residential property, allowing them to receive reimbursement upon completion of the construction of one or more new residences. It also expands the list of taxes that may be considered in estimating the amount of new State revenue to be derived from the redevelopment project. This act took effect immediately. □

ST-50/ST-51 Filing Going Paperless

The Division of Taxation will be moving to a totally paperless filing and payment system for New Jersey sales and use tax over the next year. Filing Sales and Use Tax Returns (Form ST-50) and Monthly Remittances (Form ST-51) will become faster, easier, and more accurate. We also expect paperless filing and payment to reduce processing errors and costs.

In addition to the Sales and Use Tax Internet Filing we already offer, we will soon be providing a Sales and Use Tax telephone filing service. The transition to paperless filing will take place in phases so that vendors will be able to try our Internet and "telefile" systems before paper returns are eliminated.

In the coming months, the Division of Taxation will be sending information about the new paperless filing requirements to all vendors who are registered to collect and remit New Jersey sales and use tax. If you haven't already used Internet filing, just log on to our Web site at www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/online.shtml, fill out a sales and use tax return, hit "Submit" and the return is filed. Payments can also be made online.

And, while you are on our Web site, we invite you to join our e-mail subscription service, NJ Tax E-News (www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/listservice.shtml), to receive sales and use tax filing news and information via e-mail.

Deductibility of Keoghs: Reck v. Director

On December 19, 2002, the Supreme Court of New Jersey rendered its opinion in the matter of Reck v. Director, Division of Taxation. It upheld the Division's long-standing position that payments made by partnerships to Keogh plans are not deductible in determining a partner's distributive share of partnership income for gross income tax purposes.

The Supreme Court stated that the judgment was affirmed substantially for the reasons set forth in the Appellate Division's opinion reported at 345 N.J. Super. 443 (2001) which overturned the Tax Court's opinion in Reck v. Director, Division of Taxation, 18 N.J. Tax 598 (Tax 2000).

The Appellate Division in its opinion stated that only payments made by a partnership that qualify under section 401(k) of the Internal Revenue Code are deductible in determining a partner's distributive share of partnership income. Keogh plans are not within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 54A:6-21, contributions to certain employee trusts, which provides that "Gross income shall not include amounts contributed by an employer on behalf of and at the election of an employee to a trust which is part of a qualified cash or deferred arrangement which meets the requirements of section 401(k) of the 1954 Internal Revenue Code, as amended."

Litter Control Fee

The Clean Communities and Recycling Grant Act was recently signed into law in New Jersey as P.L. 2002, c.128. This Act imposes a litter control fee on manufacturers, wholesalers, distributors, and retailers on their sales of litter-generating products within or into New Jersey. The litter control fee is essentially identical to the litter control tax which was imposed in New Jersey from 1986 through 2000 under N.J.S.A. 13:1E-99.1. The litter control tax terminated on December 31, 2000. There was no tax or fee on the gross receipts from sales of litter-generating products for the 2001 calendar year. The litter control fee is similar to the expired litter control tax and is imposed annually on the previous calendar year's gross receipts from sales of litter-generating products. It is due and payable on March 15th of each year. The fee rates and litter-generating product categories remain the same. Revenues from the litter control fee furnish support to the Clean Communities Program for litter pickup and removal, and provide recycling grants to New Jersey counties and municipalities.

Unlike the prior litter control tax, the new litter control fee exempts:

1. All retailers with less than $500,000 in annual retail sales of litter-generating products (the prior tax had a $250,000 retail sales exclusion);
2. Restaurants if more than 50% of their food and beverage sales are for on-premises consumption (but continues to include restaurants with 50% or more of sales of food and beverages for off-premises consumption); and
3. Paper product sales of roll stock produced by paper product manufacturers and wood pulp.

The new litter control fee applies retroactively to the year beginning January 1, 2002. Thus, the 2002 return will include the gross receipts from all sales of litter-generating products back to that date. The return and fee payment were due on or before March 15, 2003. Litter control fee returns and instructions were sent to all businesses that were eligible for the litter control tax.

Inquiries regarding the litter control fee should be directed to the Regulatory Services Branch at 609-292-5994, by e-mail at taxation@tax.state.nj.us, or in writing at New Jersey Division of Taxation, Regulatory Services Branch, PO Box 269, Trenton, NJ 08695-0269. □

Estate Tax Filing Requirements

The Division has received numerous inquiries regarding waiver and filing requirements under the estate tax legislation passed in July 2002 (P.L. 2002, c.31).

The revised statute applies to estates of resident decedents dying on or after January 1, 2002, and provides that the tax shall remain a lien on all property of the decedent until paid. No property owned by the decedent on his date of death may be transferred without the written consent of the Director.

Excluded from the waiver requirement are items such as bank accounts in institutions not conducting business in New Jersey, stocks of foreign or alien corporations, real property not located in New Jersey, non-New Jersey bonds, cars and personal effects, wages, and mortgages. The new estate tax lien and waiver requirements are similar to the existing lien and waiver requirements under the New Jersey inheritance tax statutes.

If an estate is not subject to New Jersey estate tax and meets the lien and waiver requirements under New

Sidney Glaser, Director

Sidney Glaser, former Director of the Division of Taxation, died on February 8, 2003, at the age of 91. Mr. Glaser, who headed the Division at the time the State income tax was enacted, began his career with the Division of Taxation in 1946 as a legal analyst. He was named Acting Director in 1969 and served as Director from 1971 until he retired in 1983.

Current Taxation Director Robert K. Thompson remembered Sidney Glaser as "the yardstick by which each of us that occupies the Director's chair measures our careers."

His extensive knowledge of taxation issues was key to his success. "He was a walking encyclopedia of State taxes," said former State Treasurer James DiEleuterio.

Mr. Glaser was also known for his honesty. "I remember a time in the early '70s when he and Martha had just come home from vacationing (I think China)," recalled Director Thompson. "First day back to work he asked for an ST-18. Hardly any of us knew what an ST-18 was, but half the building was looking for a copy of this form. We finally got one to our Director who simply wanted to report and pay the use tax on items they purchased outside the country and brought back to New Jersey. Probably the first ST-18 we ever processed."

Mr. Glaser earned his bachelor's degree at City College of New York, and a law degree from New York University Law School in 1936. □

Criminal Enforcement

Criminal Enforcement over the past several months included:

- On September 27, 2002, Brenda Grungo was sentenced to four years in State prison for violation of a term of five years' probation which was imposed on May 17, 2000, pursuant to her guilty plea regarding a scheme to evade the payment of $158,000 in petroleum products gross receipts tax in the case known as "Operation Boilermaker," a joint investigation between the Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) and the Division of Criminal Justice.
- On October 11, 2002, an officer of a wholesale motor fuel distributor was sentenced to three years' probation pursuant to a guilty plea on April 15, 2002, to one (1) count of failure to turn over $168,402.44 petroleum products gross receipts tax collected. This was a joint investigation between OCI and the New Jersey State Police-Organized Crime Unit, with substantial assistance from the Audit Services Branch-Excise Tax Group, and was prosecuted by the State Attorney General's Office.

- On November 4, 2002, Stephen George Lang of Pennsville plead guilty to two (2) felony counts, including one (1) count of attempting to evade State of Delaware personal income taxes and one (1) count of filing false statements with the Delaware Division of Revenue. He was sentenced to two years' probation and ordered to make full restitution. Mr. Lang, a New Jersey resident who formerly worked at Dupont in Wilmington, Delaware, had a long history of protesting against the constitutional authority of New Jersey and Delaware tax laws. This investigation involved the States of New Jersey and Delaware working together to develop a prosecution strategy to reduce duplication of effort while accomplishing a mutually beneficial result.

Mr. Provenzano was charged with operating a now-defunct printing business as a racketeering enterprise in Fort Lee, New Jersey, using violence and criminal means to extort payments from the customers and suppliers of the business. This case was a joint investigation by OCI and the New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice-Organized Crime and Racketeering Bureau, and was prosecuted by the State Attorney General's Office.
- On November 20, 2002, confirmation was received that in Superior Court, Morris County, Truyen T. Mr. Vo was also ordered to pay to the Division of Taxation restitution of tax in the amount of $26,048.00, to wit, gross income tax due on unreported, illegal income derived from promoting gambling in 1995 through 1998. Corporation Business Tax

New Jersey Economic Development Authority Grants — The Division responded to a question regarding the taxability of Business Employment Incentive Program (BEIP) grants made under N.J.S.A. 34:1B-124 et seq. The grant is calculated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 34:1B-129.

First, if a BEIP grant is made to a C corporation, the grant is deemed a contribution to capital under provisions of IRC 118 and 362(c) which taken together are tantamount to a tax deferral. Under IRC 362(c) a corporation must reduce the basis of property acquired as a contribution to capital to zero. If a BEIP grant is paid in cash, the basis of the property acquired with such money during the 12-month period beginning on the day the cash is received shall be reduced by the amount of such grant. The governmental grant is intended to produce indirect benefits to the general population.

Second, if the grant is received by a conduit-type entity like a partnership or subchapter S corporation, the grant is to be "apportioned among the persons to whom the income or profit of the partnership, subchapter S corporation, or other entity is distributed, in the same proportions as those in which the income or profit is distributed." The BEIP grant is considered to be a "prize and award" and, as such, is taxable under the Gross Income Tax Act. N.J.S.A. 54A:5-11.

Domestic Security Fee

Leases — The new Domestic Security Fee legislation provides for the imposition of a $2-per-day fee on motor vehicle rental companies. The fee is applicable to motor vehicles rented without a driver under rental agreements for a period up to and including 28 days. The rental fee is due from the rental company whether the renter or any third party pays for the rental or reimburses the rental company for the fee.

For purposes of this legislation, "lease agreement" means any agreement for a stated term of more than 28 days (usually six months or longer) that requires the party leasing from a rental company to pay for State motor vehicle registration, maintain the vehicle for ordinary wear and tear at his own expense, and purchase liability and casualty insurance for the vehicle.

If a company is simply leasing motor vehicles and the lease agreements entered into contain a stated term of more than 28 days, the company would not be responsible for the domestic security fee.

Property Tax Relief Programs

NJ SAVER Rebate for Trust Beneficiary —

The NJ SAVER rebate is designed to afford tax relief to owners of real property who occupy that property as their principal residence and pay real estate taxes on that property. In order to be eligible for the rebate for tax year 2002, the applicant must have owned and occupied the home as his/her principal residence as of 12:01 a.m., October 1, 2002, and have paid property taxes on the property for that year.

In the case of a trust that owns a home, however, a beneficiary of the trust having the right to and residing in the home on October 1, 2002, as of 12:01 a.m., is eligible for the rebate. To apply for the rebate, the trustee or beneficiary must file a paper application and attach a legal document (such as the deceased's will, deed, and/or trust agreement) that established the beneficiary's right to occupy the home. In no case does a trust itself qualify for the rebate.

Videotaped Depositions —

Videographers who produce videotapes for legal uses must charge sales tax on the videotapes produced. The Division takes the position that since the main object of the transaction is the videotape, then the transaction must be taxable as the sale of tangible personal property under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3.

For sales tax purposes, a law firm is not treated as the reseller of certain goods and services, although the law firm does often charge its clients for goods and services that would be taxable if purchased at retail. A law firm is not required to collect sales tax on items that the law firm charges its clients for in conjunction with the professional legal services. The law firm is treated as the retail purchaser of such services as copying or faxing, and must pay sales tax on those services rather than collect tax from their clients. This same analysis is used in purchasing a videotaped deposition or "Day in the Life" videotape.

A videotape production company may use a Resale Certificate (Form ST-3) when purchasing blank tapes, but must collect sales tax on the sale of the videotape regardless of how billed. Separately stated charges for a video playback service at hearings, depositions, trials, etc. are not subject to sales tax.

Executive Search Firm and Related Services — The following was in reply to a question regarding the sales tax treatment of executive search firm services under the New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act. It was stated that executive search firms perform three categories of services. Executive search fees are charged to place a candidate in a new employment position. Additionally, testing and assessment fees are charged for the testing of candidates to see if they are suitable for a particular position, or to determine an individual's strengths and weaknesses. Moreover, these types of firms charge fees for other consulting services.

Under the New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act, services are exempt from sales tax unless they are specifically enumerated and taxed by the Act itself. Executive search fees, testing and assessment fees, and other consulting fees are not specifically enumerated under the provisions of the New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act. Therefore, executive search fees, testing and assessment fees, and other consulting fees are exempt from sales tax.

Beds and Pillows for Medical Purposes — Although frequently used for therapeutic or rehabilitative purposes, beds and pillows specifically designed to provide back and neck support are also commonly used to enhance the comfort of people who do not have any illness or injury. Therefore, such items do not qualify for exemption as durable medical equipment under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.1.

However, in some cases, such equipment might qualify for exemption if specifically designed for a medical purpose and not generally useful to a person who does not have an illness, injury, or disability. Even if the beds and pillows are customarily and primarily used to serve a medical purpose, the exemption does not apply when such items are sold to medical service providers who use them to provide services for their patients. For example, if a doctor, physical therapist, nursing home, or hospital purchases the specifically designed beds and pillows and they are used by the patients within medical facilities and not transferred to the patient for home use, there is no exemption. On the other hand, if the items are sold to the patients for home use, the exemption applies.

Storage of Biological Components

— The Division received an inquiry concerning the service of stem cell preservation which includes a charge for storing the cells for an indefinite period. The New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act imposes tax on the storage of tangible personal property. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(3).

Due to the nature of the property, the Division has determined that human stem cells, as well as other human body parts, are not considered to be "tangible personal property" for purposes of the New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act. Thus, the storage of stem cells and similar human biological components is not subject to tax.

Tennis Clothing — The New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act provides an exemption for clothing and footwear for human use, except fur garments.

The relevant regulation clarifies that clothing and footwear worn in connection with sporting activities that are not adaptable to regular daily use are subject to tax. N.J.A.C. 18:24-6.4. For example, fishing waders, golf shoes, protective masks, skin diving suits, and ski boots would not be appropriate everyday attire and are therefore subject to tax. See Ski Haus, Inc. v. Taxation Division Director, 5 N.J. Tax 26 (1982). However, articles of clothing which may be worn for general use are entitled to the clothing exemption. Since a tennis outfit would be adaptable to general use, it is exempt from sales tax as clothing.

Noncarbonated Beverage Fruit Drinks — Prepared food and beverages sold for immediate consumption by drive-through restaurants, food service and hot dog carts, and other mobile service facilities are subject to New Jersey sales tax. Mobile vending operators engaged in the sale of food and drink for consumption either on or off the premises are required to collect sales tax. N.J.A.C. 18:24-12.3(b). Therefore, prepared noncarbonated fruit drinks, such as “smoothies,” sold for immediate consumption by a mobile concession are subject to New Jersey sales tax.

Trash Removal/Shredding Service

— The Division received an inquiry from a trash removal and shredding service. The trash removal/shredding service is performed on a regular contractual basis for a term of 30 days or more. The operation consists of picking up, physically removing contained waste from the premises, shredding, and disposing of waste.

Trash removal services “performed on a regular contractual basis for a term not less than 30 days” are not subject to sales tax. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(4). Removal “includes only the operation of picking up and physically removing contained waste from the premises, and does not include activities related to maintaining or servicing property or any processing of the waste product.” N.J.A.C. 18:24-13.2(b). Shredding is considered the processing of tangible personal property and is not considered part of the trash removal service. A shredding service is subject to sales tax pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(1).

In this case, the charges for the trash removal service are not subject to sales tax as long as separately stated on the invoice. However, if the charges for trash removal and shredding are not separately identified, then sales tax must be charged on the entire bill. □

Administration

Time Period to Protest, Request a Revision, or File Refund Claim – Dennis Boggi Enterprises, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided January 3, 2003; Tax Court No. 003859-2002.

After conducting an audit, the Division issued its notice of assessment related to final audit determination on January 22, 2001, for the sales and use tax period beginning January 1993 and ending December 1999. Although plaintiff claimed that its accountant filed a protest on January 31, 2001, the Division had no record of this protest being received and plaintiff’s accountant’s mailing records indicated that the notice was mailed on February 6, 2001. The Division acknowledged that it received a protest letter dated May 17, 2001, that stated that the accountant intended to protest the assessment and inquired as to why a hearing date was not yet set. On September 3, 2001, plaintiff executed an installment payment agreement that was later terminated because plaintiff did not comply with it. On November 26, 2001, plaintiff filed a claim for revision of the audit assessment that was denied on April 29, 2002, because the paperwork did not represent a claim for refund. Plaintiff appealed that denial claiming that there are three methods to protest an assessment: (1) appeal it; (2) pay the tax and file a refund claim; and (3) request a revision of the assessment.

Pursuant to the statutes, a taxpayer is permitted to either apply to the Division for a hearing or appeal to Tax Court within 90 days after the date of the determination notice to challenge the assessment. The Court found that although plaintiff’s accountant’s mailing records indicated that the protest was mailed on February 6, 2001, there was no reliable, corroborated evidence of this fact. On the other hand, the Division submitted an affidavit that no protest was received within the statutory period. Therefore, the Court ruled that the May 17, 2001, letter was the initial protest and that this date was beyond the statutory time to request a hearing.

Plaintiff’s claim that it is entitled to a refund or revision is governed by N.J.S.A. 54:32B-20(b), which states that a person is not entitled to a revision, refund, or credit where either the person had the opportunity for a hearing or had a hearing unless the person meets the requirements of N.J.S.A. 54:49-14 as follows: (1) the assessment was neither protested nor appealed; (2) the assessment was paid in full within one year of the expiration of the period to protest; (3) the refund claim is filed within 450 days of the expiration of the period to protest; and (4) the amount of the refund claim does not exceed the assessment paid. The Court found that because plaintiff never paid the tax assessment it would not be entitled to file for a refund claim. The Court ruled that a claim for revision is effectively either a claim for refund or an untimely protest of the audit assessment and that plaintiff is not entitled to an additional opportunity to appeal where plaintiff has not paid the tax and previously had an opportunity to appeal the audit assessment. It was also noted by the Court that N.J.S.A. 54:49-14 applies only to returns filed on or after January 1, 1999.

Calculation of 90-Day Time Period to File Complaint – Somnuk Suecharon t/a Sammy's Bagel & Deli v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided November 4, 2002; Tax Court No. 002857-2001.

On February 15, 2002, the Division issued by certified mail its Final Determination to plaintiff which stated that plaintiff had 90 days from the date of the Final Determination to appeal to the Tax Court in accordance with N.J.S.A. 54:51A-13 et seq. Plaintiff alleges that the Division informed its accountant, pursuant to the accountant's telephone call, that plaintiff must file on or before May 17, 2002. Plaintiff forwarded its complaint on May 16, 2002, and it was filed with the Tax Court on its May 17, 2002, received date, 91 days after the date of the Final Determination. The Division moved to dismiss the complaint as being untimely filed.

The Court found that there was no merit in plaintiff's argument that the Division was estopped from disputing the timeliness of the appeal because a representative of the Division allegedly advised plaintiff's accountant that the filing deadline was May 17, 2002. Furthermore, the Court stated that plaintiff is charged with knowledge of the law.

The Court ruled that the calculation of the 90-day period is pursuant to the rules of court. One of the rules of court permits three days to be added to the period to file the complaint when service of the notice is made by ordinary mail. Finding that there were good reasons to apply the same rule to notices sent by certified mail in order to secure a just determination, the Court held that the complaint was timely filed. The Tax Court acknowledged that its determination in this case is inconsistent with another Tax Court case, Heico, where the Court determined that the rules of court did not apply to this issue. (See New Jersey State Tax News, Volume 31, Numbers 2/3, Summer/Fall 2002, page 27.)

The Director, Division of Taxation, has filed an interlocutory appeal with the Superior Court, Appellate Division.

Corporation Business Tax Receipts Earned in New Jersey – Mayer & Schweitzer v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided September 18, 2002; Tax Court No. 001800-2000.

Plaintiff is a New Jersey corporation that purchased securities with its capital for its own inventory that is held in a trust account with a trust company in New York. Plaintiff is engaged in the business of selling those securities for profit and did not charge commission on the sales. The plaintiff operated offices in New Jersey, Florida, Illinois, and Colorado. The New Jersey offices housed traders, sales, administration, operations, systems, and compliance personnel. The Florida and Illinois offices contained traders, sales, and service personnel, and the Colorado office operated with sales and service personnel. The traders were not limited in geographic scope and therefore dealt with customers in the 22 states where plaintiff was registered or licensed and other states where license or registration was not required. However, the majority of the securities were purchased and sold from the New Jersey office. Most customer orders were electronically executed and processed through the New Jersey office where the data processing system was located. After a sale was consummated, the trust company electronically transferred the stock from plaintiff's account into the customers' accounts throughout the United States, but physical transfer of the securities was rare. Title passed to the purchaser in the state in which the purchaser was located. Plaintiff's customers were mainly other broker dealers and institutional customers who needed the securities to perform transactions for their own customers.

The New Jersey Corporation Business Tax (CBT) allowed multi-state businesses to apportion income among states in which they conduct business in determining the amount of tax owed to New Jersey. On its 1992-1995 CBT returns, plaintiff calculated its New Jersey receipts, for purposes of the numerator of the N.J.S.A. 54:10A-6(B) receipts fraction, by including the trading profits from trades performed by its New Jersey employees. Plaintiff filed amended returns that included only sales to customers located within New Jersey in the New Jersey receipts calculation and therefore resulted in refunds due plaintiff. The Division denied the refunds by not accepting the basis for amending the returns.

In deciding whether the receipts were attributable to New Jersey, the Court looked to N.J.A.C. 18:7-8.12, which essentially stated that intangible income is included in New Jersey receipts where the taxable situs of the intangible asset is in New Jersey. The taxable situs of an intangible is defined as the commercial domicile of the owner unless the intangible has been integrated with business carried on in another state. The Court noted that the Legislature had not defined the term "integrated with" so that its parameters needed to be determined on a case-by-case basis.

The Court held that plaintiff's sales are allocated to the state of the customer's location. The Court determined that plaintiff was carrying out its business throughout the United States and that its business involved the exploitation of out-of-State markets. Therefore, the security sales were ruled to be "integrated with" business carried on in other states. The Court reasoned that its decision is consistent with the statute and regulation, principles of fairly apportioning income to states in which the corporation does business, as well as prescribed by the current N.J.S.A. 54:10A-6(B) as it was amended in 2002.

Timeliness of Refund Claim – Lenox, Incorporated v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided

April 20, 2001; Tax Court Nos. 007049-98 and 007050-98.

Plaintiff filed timely Federal income tax returns and New Jersey Corporation Business Tax (CBT) returns for fiscal years ending (FYE) April 30, 1985, 1986, and 1987.

On January 17, 1989, plaintiff filed amended Federal returns (Form 1120X) with the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) to claim abandonment losses for FYE April 30, 1985 and 1986. On March 1, 1989, plaintiff forwarded copies of these 1120X forms to the Division. The Division completed their audit on July 21, 1989, and allowed the full amount of abandonment losses. The IRS completed its audit of the FYE April 30, 1984, and 1985 returns in July 1990 and issued a revenue agent's report (RAR) on July 27, 1990. The IRS recommended the full amount of the claimed FYE April 30, 1985, abandonment loss and further stated that plaintiff was also entitled to an additional loss due to adjustments from the reallocation of basis. Plaintiff consented to the RAR. By letter dated October 26, 1990, the IRS advised plaintiff that it accepted the FYE April 30, 1984, and 1985 returns with the July 27, 1990, RAR adjustments. Plaintiff claimed that it received this letter on October 31, 1990.

On July 30, 1990, plaintiff filed a second 1120X form for FYE April 30, 1986, and initial forms for FYE April 30, 1987, and 1988 with the IRS. These amended returns incorporated the adjustments from the July 27, 1990, RAR because they flowed through to these following years. The IRS revenue agent accepted these adjustments with some changes and the IRS accepted this report on November 19, 1992.

On January 23, 1991, plaintiff sent the Division certified mail that contained the CBT Form IRA-100, which reports IRS changes to Federal taxable income, for FYE April 30, 1984 and 1985, worksheets reflecting the calculation of "corrected taxable income" for FYE April 30, 1986 and 1987, and amended CBT returns for FYE April 30, 1988 and 1989. The Division received the certified mail on January 25, 1991.

In 1992, the Division refunded to plaintiff amounts attributable to FYE April 30, 1985, 1986, and 1987. In 1996, the Division issued plaintiff a Notice of Erroneous Refund requesting that the refund be returned due to the untimely filing of the refund claims and reports of changes made by the IRS.

In determining whether CBT refund claims were timely filed for periods prior to July 1, 1993, the applicable statute and regulations differentiated between refund claims and refund claims pursuant to IRS changes. In general, N.J.S.A. 54:49-14 restricted refund claims to a two-year statute of limitation period commencing from the date of payment of the original or additional assessed tax. An exception to the general rule involved a refund due to IRS changes. In this situation, N.J.A.C. 18:7-13.8(d) stated that the refund claim's two-year limitation period commenced on the date the IRA-100 was timely filed with the Division. In order for the IRA-100 to be timely filed, N.J.S.A. 54:10A-13 required that the IRA-100 be received by the Division within ninety days after the IRS final determination of change or correction.

The Court determined that plaintiff's claimed abandonment losses for FYE April 30, 1985 and 1986, were not IRS changes to the extent the losses were allowed in connection with an audit by the Division. As plaintiff forwarded copies of the 1120X forms to the Division on March 1, 1989, these refund claims were held to be subject to and barred by the N.J.S.A. 54:49-14 two-year statute of limitation period to file a refund claim.

The Court decided that the revenue agent's finding of the additional loss for FYE April 30, 1985, due to reallocation of basis was an IRS change. Turning to the claimed losses for the FYE April 30, 1986 and 1987, the Court found that these losses were the flow-through effects of the July 27, 1990, RAR relating to the FYE April 30, 1985, amended return. Therefore, the Court determined that the FYE April 30, 1986 and 1987, losses were IRS changes because the July 27, 1990, RAR did not directly change the tax liability for those years.

Both plaintiff and defendant agreed that the IRS final determination, for purposes of N.J.S.A. 54:10A-13, referred to the IRS October 26, 1990, letter. However, the parties disagreed as to when the 90-day period commenced for purposes of filing the IRA-100. The Court ruled that the date of the IRS final determination letter commenced the 90-day period reasoning that if date of taxpayer receipt controlled then evidence of receipt would be solely based upon the plaintiff's testimony. The Court noted that the IRS was not required to send the final determination by certified or registered mail. Finding that the IRS final determination was dated October 26, 1990, the Court calculated the 90th day as January 24, 1991. Although plaintiff mailed the IRA-100 on January 23, 1991, the Division did not receive the IRA-100 until January 25, 1991. Consequently, the Court held that the IRA-100 was filed one day late and therefore plaintiff was not able to file a refund claim pursuant to N.J.A.C. 18:7-13.8(d). In refusing to exercise equitable powers, the Court noted, among other things, that plaintiff could have delivered the IRA-100 by hand or overnight service and thereby timely filed the form. As to upholding the regulation's condition that the timely filing of the IRA-100 was required to extend the statute of limitation period, the Court noted that this issue had previously been decided in Sharps, Pixley, Inc. and that the regulation had not since been changed by the Legislature.

Keogh Plan Contributions – John and Barbara Reck v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided December 19, 2002; Supreme Court of New Jersey No. A-93 September Term 2001.

Plaintiff husband is a partner in an accounting firm. Contributions on each partner's behalf were made by the partnership to a qualified Internal Revenue Code (IRC) 401(a) Keogh plan. In calculating his distributive share of partnership income for the 1992 and 1993 tax years, plaintiff deducted those contributions. The Division of Taxation denied those deductions on the basis that only 401(k) Keogh Plan contributions were deductible per statute.

In a 5–2 decision, the majority of the New Jersey Supreme Court upheld the Appellate Division's ruling that the partnership's pension plan contributions are deductible only under a 401(k) plan substantially for the reasons expressed in the Appellate Division's opinion. The Appellate Division found that although N.J.S.A. 54A:6-21 stated that gross income does not include employer contributions on behalf of its employees to a 401(k) plan, it does not address 401(a) plans. Hence, the Appellate Division reasoned that 401(a) contributions are not deductible even though the contributions are not expressly prohibited as deductions by statute.

The minority of the New Jersey Supreme Court dissent would have upheld the Tax Court's reasoning that the partnership's contributions on behalf of partners to the Keogh Plan are deductible in calculating the partner's distributive share of partnership income because the contributions constitute ordinary and necessary deductible business expenses pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1b, which defines net profits from business.

Partnership's Discharge of Indebtedness Income – Michael and Patricia Scully and James Scully v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided January 13, 2003; Appellate Division Nos. A-1816-01T3 and A-2360-01T3.

The Appellate Division affirmed the Tax Court's holding for plaintiff for substantially the reasons in the Tax Court opinion that was summarized in the New Jersey State Tax News, Volume 31, Number 1, Spring 2002, page 15, and is reprinted below for the reader's convenience.

Plaintiffs Michael Scully and James Scully each own a

48.5% limited partnership interest and a 1% general partnership interest in Port-O-Call Associates, a New Jersey limited partnership (the "Partnership"). Additionally, each owns 50% of the corporate stock of a Pennsylvania corporation that owns a 1% general partnership interest in the Partnership.

The Partnership purchased a hotel with a $7 million mortgage. Subsequently, the mortgagee became insolvent and the mortgage was assigned to a corporation that acted as the receiver. Thereafter, the receiver sold the mortgage loan to Optimum Mortgage Investment Company for approximately $2 million less than the note's principal balance. Optimum's mortgage purchase was financed by the plaintiffs pursuant to an agreement that paid Optimum a fee and obligated Optimum to assign the mortgage to plaintiffs. Thereafter, plaintiffs assigned the mortgage to the Partnership.

The Partnership's Federal income tax return reported the current principal balance of the note as a capital contribution and the $2 million difference between the previous and current principal balance of the mortgage as debt-forgiveness income. The Partnership's Pennsylvania information return reported the same capital contribution but reported the $2 million difference as "Net profits from business... apportioned to Pennsylvania."

The Director determined that the Partnership realized discharge of indebtedness income in the amount of approximately $2 million, the difference between the prior mortgage principal balance and the amount of the mortgage principal when the plaintiffs contributed the loan to the Partnership which thereby discharged the mortgage debt. The Director contended that this amount is attributable to plaintiffs as discharge of indebtedness income that occurred "within a business entity" under N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(k) and (b).

The issue before the Court was whether partners are subject to gross income tax on discharge of indebtedness income realized by the Partnership. Relying on Smith v. Director the Court determined that a partnership's discharge of indebtedness income must arise in the ordinary course of partnership business operations to be includable in the partner's gross income. Otherwise the discharge of indebtedness income would retain its character, and as such, discharge of indebtedness, is not a category of income subject to gross income tax.

Holding for plaintiffs, the Court decided that the transaction generating the income was the discharge of the loan not the plaintiffs' contribution of the mortgage loan to the Partnership. The Court found that neither the discharge of the loan nor the financing of the hotel was part of the Partnership's ordinary business for purposes of N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(b). The Court noted that there were very few, if any, circumstances where discharge of indebtedness income would be includable in a partner's distributive share of partnership income under N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(k) because it is unlikely that a partnership would receive discharge of indebtedness from third parties as a regular part of its business operations.

Partnership's Discharge of Indebtedness Income – Richard and Sharon Miller v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided January 14, 2003; Appellate Division No. A-2287-01T3.

The Appellate Division affirmed the Tax Court's holding for plaintiff for substantially the reasons in the Tax Court opinion that was summarized in the New Jersey State Tax News, Volume 31, Number 1, Spring 2002, page 15, and is reprinted below for the reader's convenience.

Plaintiff Richard Miller is a partner of a New Jersey general partnership (the "Partnership"). The Partnership's only asset is one piece of real estate encumbered by a mortgage that is owned as real estate investment. This real estate is leased to a law firm some of whose partners are partners in the Partnership. When the real estate's value dropped significantly below the principal balance of the mortgage loan, the mortgagee reduced the principal balance upon the Partnership's request for a reduction.

The Partnership reported the reduction in the principal balance as other income on its Federal income tax return but did not report it on the Partnership's New Jersey tax return. Plaintiff's Federal Schedule K-1 reported his proportionate share of the mortgage reduction as other income but did not report it on either plaintiff's Schedule NJK-1 or New Jersey gross income tax return. The Director determined that the mortgage reduction resulted in forgiveness of indebtedness income to the Partnership and thereby was includable in the partner's distributive share of partnership income.

The Court applied its legal analysis in Scully, above, to the facts of this case. The Court noted that there were three differences between the cases most notably that in the instant case there was no question that the Partnership received discharge of indebtedness income and that here the real estate is owned as an investment as opposed to as a hotel and restaurant. As in Scully, the Court stated that discharge of indebtedness income "is taxable to a partner only if attributable to a partnership's ordinary business operations."

The Court ruled that the plaintiff was not subject to the gross income tax on the Partnership's discharge of indebtedness income because the income relating to the mortgage loan is not includable in the Partnership's net profits from business. The transaction involving the mortgage loan is in the nature of a capital transaction, not an ordinary business operation. Moreover, the Court added that even if the loan transaction constituted part of the partnership's ordinary business operations, the income-generating event is the reduction in principal balance, which is not part of the partnership's ordinary business operations.

NJ SAVER Rebate: Eligible Resident – Joel Cooper v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided December 6, 2002; Appellate Division No. A-2074-01T2.

Plaintiff is the sole shareholder of a corporation that has the sole purpose of holding title to plaintiff's primary residence. Plaintiff resides in this residence and filed for an NJ SAVER rebate. Although the Division denied his NJ SAVER rebate because title to the property was held by a corporation, the Tax Court reversed and ruled that in this case the sole shareholder of a corporation should be treated the same way as a partner of a partnership, who is entitled to a rebate to the extent of his partnership interest. See New Jersey State Tax News, Volume 31, Numbers 2/3, Summer/Fall 2002, page 33.

The Appellate Division reversed, holding that plaintiff was not entitled to the rebate because the corporation held title to the property. The Appellate Division reasoned (1) that the statute was clear and unambiguous on its face as it included ownership through partnerships but not through corporations on the list of eligible legal entities, (2) that there was nothing in the legislative history indicating that the Legislature intended to treat partnerships and corporations alike, and (3) because there is a legal distinction between a corporation and its shareholders. □

New Jersey taxpayers participating in the Internal Revenue Service's (IRS) Offshore Voluntary Compliance Initiative for those using illegal tax shelters will avoid State prosecution if they amend their New Jersey income tax returns and remit to the State by October 15, 2003, all taxes, penalties, and interest due.

The IRS has implemented several programs designed to investigate illegal tax shelter arrangements and those who promote them. The Offshore Voluntary Compliance Initiative targets individuals who deposit income into offshore bank accounts and later use credit cards issued by the banks accepting such deposits in order to reclaim the untaxed funds. Recently, the IRS obtained a large volume of offshore credit card records and has begun identifying individuals making use of these illegal tax shelters. The IRS is offering anyone engaged in such activity the opportunity to avoid Federal civil fraud penalties and criminal prosecution by voluntarily correcting their tax returns and disclosing information related to their offshore financial accounts prior to April 15, 2003. Participants in this program must also pay any taxes, penalties, or interest owed.

In conjunction with the efforts of the Internal Revenue Service, New Jersey will grant special consideration to individuals who participate in the Offshore Voluntary Compliance Initiative. This presents an opportunity for taxpayers to avoid criminal prosecution as well as penalties for fraud, and to establish a clean slate with the State.

Those interested in taking advantage of the Offshore Voluntary Compliance Initiative and correcting unreported income tax liabilities to New Jersey should contact the Division of Taxation at 609-292-2163 or by mail at Division of Taxation, Individual Tax Audit Branch, P.O. Box 288, Trenton, NJ 08695-0288.

Reck v. Director

The New Jersey Supreme Court has affirmed the Appellate Division ruling reported at 345 N.J. Super. 443 (2001) which held that partnership contributions to an I.R.C. section 401(a) Keogh Plan on behalf of partners are not deductible under the New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act.

What's New for Tax Year 2002

There have been some important changes affecting the preparation of New Jersey income tax returns and property tax reimbursement applications for tax year 2002:

- NJ WebFile — New Jersey residents who are claiming a credit for taxes paid to another jurisdiction will now be able to use NJ WebFile to file their New Jersey returns since these taxpayers are no longer required to submit copies of their out-of-State income tax return(s) when they file. New Jersey is one of the first states to permit taxpayers claiming this credit to file electronically.

Qualified residents who want to use their computers to file a gross income tax return and/or homestead rebate application can visit www.njfastfile.com and link to the Division's secure Internet site to prepare their New Jersey forms free of charge. (Note: NJ PC File software is no longer available for the preparation of New Jersey income tax returns.)

- Proof of Age Now Required in Addition to Proof of Disability — Proof of age or total and permanent disability must be submitted the first time a taxpayer (or spouse) indicates on the tax return or homestead rebate application that the taxpayer (or spouse) is 65 years of age or older or blind or disabled. The Division of Taxation has always required taxpayers to submit proof of total and permanent disability the first time they claim this status, but this is the first year proof of age is required. Taxpayers who for the first time this year indicate they are 65 or older or blind or disabled can still file electronically using NJ WebFile, but they may be asked to submit proof of age or disability at a later date.

- New Jersey Earned Income Tax Credit — For 2002, the amount of the New Jersey Earned Income Tax Credit has increased to 17.5% of the applicant's Federal earned income credit.
- Retirement Income Exclusions — The maximum amounts of pension and/or other retirement income that may be excluded from New Jersey gross income have increased for 2002.

The exclusion amounts, which vary by filing status, are: $17,500 (married, filing joint return), $8,750 (married, filing separate return), and $13,125 (single, head of household, or qualifying widow(er)).

- Credit for Taxes Paid to Other Jurisdictions — New Jersey no longer requires taxpayers who are claiming a credit for taxes paid to another jurisdiction on Schedule A to enclose copies of the tax return(s) they filed with the other jurisdiction(s). Copies of any returns filed with another jurisdiction should be retained in the event the New Jersey return is audited.

- Taxable Interest Income Documentation — New Jersey taxpayers must enclose a copy of Federal Schedule B (Form 1040) or Schedule 1 (Form 1040A) with Form NJ-1040 or Form NJ-1040EZ only when taxable interest income exceeds $1,500. (This year the IRS increased from $400 to $1,500 the threshold for filing a separate schedule to report Federal interest or dividend income.)

- Designated Contribution — In addition to the charitable funds listed on the return, taxpayers may designate a contribution to one of five other funds. The two new funds added for 2002 are: New Jersey AIDS Services Fund (04) and Literacy Volunteers of America – New Jersey Fund (05).

- Property Tax Relief Programs

Homestead Rebate: The maximum rebate amount for tax year 2002 is $790 for eligible homeowners and tenants who are 65 years of age or older or disabled. (The maximum amount increases each year to reflect changes in the cost of living.)

Property Tax Reimbursement: Income Limits. Residents applying for reimbursements for tax year 2002 must have total annual income less than:

2001: $38,475 if single, or $47,177 (combined income) if married, and

2002: $39,475 if single, or $48,404 (combined income) if married

Proof of Age or Disability Required. Those filing reimbursement applications for the first time must now submit proof that they are either age 65 or older, or receiving Federal Social Security disability benefits.

New Look for Applications. The eligibility requirements for the Property Tax Reimbursement Program have not changed, but the forms have been revised so that applicants can determine more easily whether or not they have met all the qualifications for the reimbursement. Applicants must now state specifically for each of the eligibility requirements (age/disability, residency, ownership, and income) that they have met that particular requirement. An applicant who does not meet all the requirements is not eligible for a reimbursement. Applicants must also indicate (a) whether or not they own their home (or share mobile home site fees) with someone other than a spouse, and (b) whether or not their home has more than one dwelling unit. □

Partnership Fee

Prepayment of Filing Fee Not Required With “Final Return” (Form NJ-1065) — Under the Business Tax Reform Act (P.L. 2002, c.40), effective for tax years beginning on or after January 1, 2002, each entity classified as a partnership for Federal income tax purposes that has any income or losses derived from New Jersey sources and that has more than two owners is required to pay a $150 filing fee for each owner of an interest in the entity, up to a maximum of $250,000. Each partnership required to pay a filing fee must also make an installment payment (prepayment) of its filing fee for the succeeding return period. The prepayment is 50% of the filing fee amount required to be paid with the return being filed. Both the filing fee for the tax year and the installment payment are due on or before the 15th day of the fourth month following the close of the return period.

Exception: A partnership that indicates it is filing a “Final Return” (Form NJ-1065) is not required to make the 50% installment payment (prepayment) of the partnership filing fee for the next year. In this case the partnership is required to pay only the filing fee for the year of the final return. For example: When a partnership that is required to pay the filing fee for its five partners indicates it is submitting a “Final Return” (Form NJ-1065) for 2002, it must pay a $750 partnership filing fee for 2002, but it does not have to make the $375 installment payment for 2003 that would otherwise be required.

Fee Waived for Small Investment Clubs — Assessment of the $150 per owner fee will be waived for members of investment clubs that have less than $60,000 in combined capital assets. New Jersey Treasurer John McCormac has directed the Division of Taxation to draft regulations exempting the small investment clubs from the fee. The Division will waive the fee where appropriate as if the regulation were already in effect. For more information on the Business Tax Reform Act, see the Summer/Fall issue of the New Jersey State Tax News, page 3, or visit the Division of Taxation Web site at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/cbtfq.shtml □

Property Transfers

R.S. 54:38-6 provides that for decedents dying after December 31, 2001, the New Jersey estate tax is a lien on all property of a decedent as of his or her date of death and that no property owned by a decedent as of his or her date of death may be transferred without the written consent of the Director (commonly known as a “waiver”), or pursuant to such rules as the Director may prescribe.

Forms L-4 (Preliminary Report to Secure Consents to Transfer), L-8 (Affidavit & Self-Executing Waiver), and L-9 (Resident Decedent Affidavit Requesting Real Property Tax Waiver) have been revised. The forms are now used for both the inheritance tax and the estate tax.

The tax waiver form has been revised. One waiver is now issued by the Division which releases both the inheritance tax and the estate tax lien and which permits the transfer of property for both inheritance and the estate tax purposes.

Pending the approval of pertinent regulations, the following policy has been adopted by the Director:

- Nonresident Decedents
Estate tax waivers are not required in the estates of nonresident decedents. Inheritance tax waivers are required for real property located in New Jersey.
- Real Property Held as Tenants by the Entirety
Real property held by a husband and wife and tenants by the entirety must be transferred without an estate tax waiver in the estate of the spouse dying first.
- Transfers to Savings Accounts Without an Estate Tax Waiver
 1. Funds of a decedent on deposit in a checking account in any bank may be transferred to an interest-bearing account in the same bank in the name of the decedent or his estate without obtaining an estate tax waiver.
 2. Funds of a decedent on deposit in an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) or Keogh retirement plan account may be transferred to another account in the same

- Transfers From One Fiduciary to Another

- Transfer From Joint Fiduciaries to Successors

Bonds or stock of a New Jersey corporation or a national bank located in New Jersey, or any money deposited in any trust company, bank, or other institution in the names of two or more fiduciaries as executors, administrators, trustees, or guardians may, upon the death of one or more of such fiduciaries, be transferred without an estate tax waiver to, or on the order of, the surviving fiduciary or fiduciaries.

- Transfer of Partnership Interest

The written consent of the Director is not required for the transfer of real or personal property, tangible or intangible, owned by a bona fide partnership in which a decedent had an interest.

- Transfer of Assets Held by a Nonresident Custodian

An estate tax waiver is not required in order to transfer any assets held by a nonresident custodian on behalf of a resident or nonresident decedent.

- Transfer of Tangible or Intangible Personal Property

1. A waiver is not required in order to transfer all other tangible or intangible personal property, including but not limited to:

- d) Payment under pension, profit-sharing, bonus plans, or stock purchase plans.

LOCAL PROPERTY TAX

Farmland Acreage

A study summarizing data from farmland assessment applications (FA-1) has recently been completed. The report shows that the total acreage devoted to agricultural or horticultural use in 2002 was 1,111,538 acres for the entire State.

The numbers for tax year 2002 reflect a decrease of 38,435 acres from tax year 2001. Since 1983, the year in which the highest acreage, 1,271,882 acres, qualified for farmland assessment, the amount of qualified acreage has declined 12.6% or a total of 160,345 acres.

23.13% of New Jersey's land mass is approved under the Farmland Assessment Act. Hudson County remains the only county without farmland. Essex and Union each report less than 500 acres devoted to agricultural or horticultural use and Bergen County has less than 1,000 acres. Conversely, Salem with 54.96% has the greatest proportion of its land qualified under the Act. Other counties with large percentages of qualified farmland are: Hunterdon, 49.02%; Warren, 48.96%; Gloucester, 33.98%; Sussex, 32.97%; and Mercer, 25.86%.

Copies of the 2002 report have been distributed to the County Tax Board Administrators. Anyone seeking specific information on qualified farmland acreage or wishing to obtain a copy of the report may do so by calling 609-292-7974. □

LOCAL PROPERTY TAXCategory 07, Nonusable Sales

The Handbook for New Jersey Assessors instructs assessors how to deem real estate transactions usable or nonusable for purposes of the Table of Equalized Valuations. It appears that the guideline for using the nonusable 07 category necessitates a bit of attention and clarity. The Local Property section of the Division of Taxation seeks to lend assistance to municipal assessors on how to use this code more accurately and effectively.

The nonusable 07 category represents the sale of a property that has been substantially improved after its assessment, but prior to the date of the current sale. In order to properly utilize this category, it is imperative that assessors state on the SR1-A and SR-6 forms the exact dates of all improvements, the cost of improvements, the building permit number, and the specific actions that have been taken to improve the property. It is important to note that improvements made to the property must considerably enhance the value of the property in order to support a nonusable 07 claim. This category does not refer to "normal dressing-up maintenance and repair," such as painting, cleaning carpets, or fixing appliances. It refers specifically to substantial improvements made to real property. The addition of a bathroom, vinyl siding, a deck, or an enclosed porch are the types of improvements that satisfy the usage of this category. Physical renovations to properties in disrepair also fall within the scope of this code.

Because of the subjective nature of the word "substantial," property sales must be observed at the individual level. Therefore, assessors have been given the authority to exercise educated discretion when using this category. Still, it must be understood that the word "substantial" represents a measurement that absolutely compels one to believe that the improvement is considerable enough to deem the real estate transaction nonusable for purposes of the sales ratio study.

Criminal Enforcement

Criminal Enforcement over the past several months included:

- On June 25, 2002, in Essex County Superior Court, Marcus Solomon of Newark, New Jersey, forfeited to the State $99,019.60 as part of an agreement to resolve charges of health care claims fraud, Medicaid fraud, misconduct by a corporate official, theft by deception, and filing a false or fraudulent 1999 New Jersey gross income tax return. All of the aforementioned charges, contained in an indictment returned on April 5, 2002, are in connection with the operation of his medical transport business, Solomon's Invalid Coach, Inc. The tax liability arising from the fraudulent 1999 return will be satisfied from the forfeited funds. This was a joint investigation by the Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) and the New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice-Office of the Insurance Fraud Prosecutor.
- On July 12, 2002, Jeffrey Biggiani, trading as A-AAACE Mechanical, Inc., was sentenced for crimes arising from the collection and failure to file and remit sales tax. Three (3) counts were second degree offenses and a fourth count was a third degree offense. Mr. Biggiani was sentenced to four (4) years probation, fined, and ordered to pay restitution of $81,344 to be remitted to the State within six months of sentencing. A-AAACE Mechanical, Inc. was ordered to pay fines totaling $1,155 to be remitted to the Law Enforcement Fund.

- On July 16, 2002, Thanh C. Voung was found guilty in Belleville Municipal Court of one (1) count of possession of untaxed goods (486 cartons of cigarettes) and one (1) count of failure to maintain records. The subject was sentenced to thirty (30) days in Essex County Jail and was fined. The Judge noted that Mr. Voung was a career criminal offender and warranted incarceration. The subject has prior convictions for distribution of cocaine, shoplifting, and theft.
- On August 9, 2002, in Newark Municipal Court, Antonio M. Gomes entered a plea of guilty on behalf of his corporation, A&A Gomes Construction Corp., to a disorderly person charge of failing to obtain the required Motor Fuels Tax Seller-User of Special Fuels License in connection with the corporation's operation of a diesel fuel bulk storage tank in Newark, and was fined. The subject was brought into compliance as he exhibited to the Court proof that he has now obtained the required license. This complaint was based on a referral from the Motor Fuels section of Audit Services.
- On August 13, 2002, Frank Valentino of Toms River, New Jersey, waived his right to prosecution by indictment and trial by jury and pled guilty to accusations that he failed to pay or turn over collected sales tax and that he falsified or tampered with records in an attempt to

deceive the State of New Jersey. This criminal tax case originated as a referral from Taxation's Field Audit Branch relating to Mr. Valentino's business: Frankie's Auto Body, Inc., of Edison, New Jersey. During the course of a civil field audit, a Taxation auditor requested Frankie's Auto Body, Inc.'s corporate president, Mr. Valentino, to supply documentation in support of his body shop's nontaxable sales. Upon receipt of the requested documentation, the auditor attempted to confirm the validity of these documents. The information she received suggested that the documents supplied by Mr. Valentino had been altered. Based on this, an OCI criminal tax investigation was initiated which ultimately lead to the guilty pleas. The OCI investigation determined that between January 1, 1995, and December 31, 2000, Mr. Valentino, on behalf of Frankie's Auto Body, Inc., acted with intent to defraud the State of New Jersey in that he collected sales tax which he failed to turn over to the State in an attempt to evade, avoid, or otherwise not make timely payment. It was also determined that he provided false records with the purpose to injure the State of New Jersey. Mr. Valentino provided documents from certain tax-exempt entities, including the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Government Services Administration and the Middlesex County ARC, in order to lessen the sales tax obligation of his business, knowing that the documents had been altered to contain false information. This case was prosecuted by the New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice.

- On August 15, 2002, Mohamed Chowdhury of Hackensack, New Jersey, was found in possession of 4.1 cartons of untaxed cigarettes when officers of the Hackensack Police Department entered the residence to execute a warrant for the arrest of Mr. Chowdhury's daughter for burglary and theft. OCI determined, through investigation, that the cigarettes were obtained via a mail order/Internet site: A&B Smoke Shop of Irving, New York. Subsequently, tax charges were filed against Mr. Chowdhury and he pled guilty to possession of contraband cigarettes and was fined.

- On August 16, 2002, a State Grand Jury indicted Carl F. Monto of Toms River, New Jersey, on charges that, as responsible person of Courtesy Truck Stop, Inc., a now defunct truck-stop in Jersey City, he collected and failed to remit $100,454 in motor fuels tax on the retail sale of diesel fuel from January to September 1997. This was a joint investigation by the Office of Criminal Investigation and the New Jersey State Police-Organized Crime Unit. This matter was presented to the grand jury by the Division of Criminal Justice, who also assisted in obtaining search warrants during the course of the investigation.

- On August 28, 2002, a State Grand Jury indicted Drymco, Inc., and responsible corporate officer John Drzymkowski, of Berkeley Heights, New Jersey, on charges that the corporation and Mr. Drzymkowski collected and failed to remit in excess of $300,000 in petroleum products gross receipts tax on the sale, at wholesale, of diesel fuel from September 1999 to December 2000. This matter was presented to the grand jury by the Division of Criminal Justice.
- On September 6, 2002, in Superior Court, Hudson County, Todd Halpern of Livingston, New Jersey, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of theft by misapplication of $367,261.51 in New Jersey sales tax payments, years 1999 to 2001, which had been entrusted to him by clients of his tax preparation business. At the same time, Mr. Halpern also entered pleas of guilty to one (1) count of theft by obtaining by deception a bank loan in the amount of $210,178.57, and one (1) count of theft by converting to his own use $46,051 in Federal and State personal income tax estimated payments and/or refunds of a client. At the time of his plea, Mr. Halpern was on probation after having served a 90-day jail sentence for filing a fraudulent 1997 NJ personal income tax return. This case was investigated by the Office of Criminal Investigation with assistance from Taxation's Compliance and Audit Activities, and was prosecuted by the State Attorney General's Office.

- One hundred twenty-six (126) complaints alleging tax evasion were evaluated from July through September 2002 in the Office of Criminal Investigation.

During the same time period, forty-five (45) charges were filed in court on fourteen (14) cases for violation of the Cigarette Tax Act. All fourteen (14) court cases involved contraband cigarettes. □

Rental of Ice Cream Trucks — The Division has been asked whether the Domestic Security Fee applies to the rental of ice cream trucks. The law requires that a motor vehicle rental company pay a fee of $2.00 to the Division of Taxation for each day of a passenger motor vehicle rental, up to 28 days in duration. A rental agreement by its terms exceeding 28 days in duration would only require payment of 28 days worth of the fee. "Rental company" has been defined as "any individual, business, or other entity or person engaged in the business of renting motor vehicles."

To the extent that a rental company enters into agreements with individuals to rent them ice cream trucks, the company would be liable for payment of the $2.00 per day fee.

Rental of Utility Trailers — The Division answered an inquiry concerning whether a rental company that rents out utility trailers as opposed to trailers connected to a tractor, must pay the fee. The law defines "rental motor vehicle" as "a passenger automobile, truck or semitrailer that is rented without a driver and used in the transportation of persons or property other than commercial freight."

The Division of Taxation has adopted the same definition of the term "semitrailer" as set forth in administrative regulations governing sales and use tax procedures for implementation of the domestic security fee. That definition states that a "semitrailer" "means every Utility trailers fall within this definition.

Setoff — The Division responded to an inquiry regarding the setoff of a 2001 homestead rebate.

N.J.S.A. 54A:9-8.1 of the New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act provides for the setoff of a homestead rebate against indebtedness to any agency or institution of State Government. The setoff authority also applies to gross income tax refunds, the earned income tax credit, and the NJ SAVER rebate. Under N.J.A.C. 18:35-10.5 the debtor must contact the claimant State agency regarding resolution of the proposed setoff. The setoff notice sent by the Division of Revenue to the debtor identifies that agency and gives the debtor contact information. No actual set-off will occur until the Division of Revenue receives a certification from the claimant agency that the debt is final. N.J.A.C. 18:35-10.9. At that time the debtor will be notified in writing of the setoff and receive an accounting of the action. N.J.A.C. 18:35-10.10.

Finally, N.J.S.A. 54A:9-8.2 allows an apportionment of any setoff in the case of a debtor filing a joint income tax return or rebate application. In accordance with N.J.A.C. 18:35-10.7 a nondebtor who is a joint recipient of a rebate or refund has standing to establish that fact. If the claimant agency finds that an apportionment should be made with respect to a joint entitlement, it will be presumed that each party is entitled to one-half of the rebate or refund.

Withholding on Employee Stock Purchase Plans — IRS Notice 2001-72 states that an employer has no Federal income tax withholding obligation when an individual exercises an incentive stock option (ISO) or an option granted under an employee stock purchase plan (ESPP) since no income is recognized at the time of the exercise. The notice explains the reason for this rule is that to satisfy the income tax withholding deposit requirements on a timely basis would be burdensome to former employers and the former employees may not have sufficient cash compensation from which to fund the withholding. The employee is still subject to the Federal income tax on this compensation at the time of the sale of the stock.

Stock options are taxable for New Jersey gross income tax purposes under N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(c). N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(c) requires that stock options be reported as compensation in the same manner and in the same period as prescribed for Federal purposes. Additionally, the taxpayer’s accounting method must be the same for New Jersey gross income tax purposes as it is for Federal purposes. N.J.S.A. 54A:8-3(c).

Taxpayers having no New Jersey income tax withholding and who can reasonably expect their tax liability to be greater than $400 must pay the income tax as they earn or receive income throughout the year by estimated tax payments.

Sales and Use Tax

Delaware Retail Gross Receipts Tax — A taxpayer’s sales and use tax liability in New Jersey is not reduced by the amount of gross receipts tax paid to Delaware on a purchase made in that state. Credit is only available for sales tax properly paid to the state in which the items were manufactured, purchased, or shipped. For sales tax purposes, reciprocity means that New Jersey will allow a credit up to the amount paid to the other state provided such other state allows a similar credit for sales tax paid to this State. See N.J.S.A. 54:32B-11(6). If the state of purchase has a sales tax rate equal to or greater than New Jersey’s 6% tax rate, the taxpayer would not owe any use tax. If the state in which a purchase is made has a lower rate than New Jersey, use tax is due for the difference between the rate paid and 6%. Generally, if tax was legally due and paid to another state and that state has reciprocity with New Jersey, credit can be taken. See N.J.S.A. 54:32B-11(6). Since Delaware does not impose a retail sales tax, there is no reciprocity with New Jersey for sales tax purposes.

Sales of Limousines — The New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act was recently amended to provide an exemption for the purchase, rental, or lease of a limousine to a person licensed by the New Jersey Division of Motor Vehicles to operate a limousine service. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.52. A licensee must obtain a certificate of compliance from the municipality where the licensee resides. N.J.S.A. 48:16-17. The sales and use tax exemption also applies to charges for repair services to limousines, including replacement parts.

A “limousine” is defined as (1) a motor vehicle registered under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 39:3-19.5, or registered as a limousine under the laws of another state; and (2) used exclusively in the business of carrying passengers for hire to provide prearranged passenger transportation at a premium fare on a dedicated, nonscheduled, charter basis, that is not conducted on a regular route and with a seating capacity of no more than 14 passengers, excluding the driver. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.52.

Vehicles such as taxicabs, hotel or airport shuttles, buses used solely to transport children or teachers to and from school, and vehicles owned and operated by a business for its own purposes are not considered limousines. In order to document the applicability of the exemption for the purchase of the limousine, the customer must provide a copy of their license to operate a limousine service and the vehicle must be registered as a limousine at the time of closing the sale transaction. An Exempt Use Certificate (ST-4) must also be provided to the motor vehicle dealer.

Out-of-State Disposal of Excess Advertising and Promotional Material — Recently, the Division was asked to consider the use tax implications of a specific factual situation concerning direct-mail processing services and the use of advertising and promotional material under the following circumstances:

Company A is a New Jersey-based entity engaged in direct-mail processing services. Company A enters into a contract to provide direct-mail processing services for Company B, its client. Company B purchases advertising and promotional material from out-of-State printers who have no nexus with New Jersey. The printers deliver the material directly to a New Jersey warehouse that Company A owns. Pursuant to the contract, Company A processes the advertising and promotional material that is intended for distribution to both out-of-State and in-State recipients from its New Jersey warehouse. Due to various uncertainties, the amount of advertising and promotional material that is held in the New Jersey warehouse exceeds the amount that was initially intended for distribution. The excess advertising and promotional material will not be distributed at all, but will instead be disposed of as scrap.

The sale of advertising material is subject to tax as tangible personal property under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a). However, the Sales and Use Tax Act provides an exemption for advertising or promotional material which is ultimately distributed to out-of-State recipients. N.J.S.A.

54:32B-8.39. Taking into consideration the exemption for advertising material distributed out-of-State, the Division made the following determination with respect to the disposal of advertising material: When advertising or promotional material is no longer held or intended for distribution to either in-State or out-of-State recipients, but is instead removed from a New Jersey storage facility and taken outside of the State for disposal as scrap or waste, use tax will not be imposed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:32B-6. This treatment is consistent with the statutory intention to exempt such advertising and promotional material when delivered outside New Jersey. □

Gross Income Tax Partnership Versus Rental Income – Joseph DiBianca, et al, v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided October 26, 2001; Tax Court No. 004391-00.

On its 1996 New Jersey gross income tax return, plaintiff reported $27,179 as net income from rents by netting a loss from residential real property reported on the Federal income tax return, Schedule E, with net rental income passed through from four partnerships as reported on the K-1 and NJK-1. The Director asserted a deficiency on the basis that the Schedule E $12,411 loss from residential realty (N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1d) could not offset plaintiff's $39,590 distributive share of partnership income (N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1k) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54A:5-2, which prohibits the netting of intercategory income and losses.

Plaintiff relied upon the regulations. The Court reviewed the regulations and found that partnerships were required to determine their net profits from business in the same manner as an individual taxpayer would. As to rental income, the regulations state that where rental income is not received in the ordinary course of the conduct of a trade or business, the income shall be reported under subsection 5-1d. Conversely, to be included in a taxpayer's net profits from business, rental income must be received in the ordinary course of the conduct of a trade or business of leasing property. Moreover, the regulations provide that a taxpayer is not deemed to be engaged in the conduct of a trade or business of leasing property unless substantial services are rendered in connection with the leasing properties.

Opining that the concept of ordinary business operations was relevant in construing the regulations, the Court relied on the New Jersey Supreme Court's opinion in Smith. There the Court determined that it was the Legislature's intent that the category "net profits from business" include income that would be categorized separately where it was not earned in the ordinary course of business; otherwise, the category net profits from business would virtually become a nullity. However, Smith stated that if the dividend and gain income represented income from passive partnership investments, then the income would have been reportable under their respective separate categories of income. After reviewing the categories of expenses reported on the partnerships' Federal Form 8825 such as floral supplies, maintenance and cleaning, commissions, insurance, legal and other professional fees, repairs, taxes, utilities, landscaping, snow removal, lawn care, and elevator maintenance, the Court ruled that the partnerships were actively operating the properties.

Turning to what constitutes a substantial service, the Court found that the regulations do not define the term. However, the regulations do state that the activity of net leasing a property does not constitute the conduct of a trade or business unless taxpayer is in the trade or business of dealing with such property and the property constitutes inventory or stock in trade of the partner. The Court determined that this language was incorporated as a result of the Appellate Division's ruling in Newark Building Associates where it was determined that the partnership's passive activities of filing documents required by law, accepting net rents, depositing the rents in its bank account, making payments to the mortgagee, and distributing the net proceeds to the partners was a net lease situation and did not constitute a business under the Unincorporated Business Tax Act. There the Appellate Division described the partnership activities as merely serving to maintain its existence as a partnership because the accounting, legal, and other partnership supervisory acts were performed by its attorneys for a stated annual fee plus disbursement for accounting fees.

Applying Newark Building Associates to the instant case, the Court ruled that the items of partnership expenses indicated a level of activity and services significantly in excess of those performed there. Applying Smith to the regulations, the Court held that the partnerships were involved in the active ordinary business operations of the buildings and that those operations constituted substantial services. The Court noted that it was the ordinary business operations of the partnerships to own and provide the necessary services to operate the buildings even though services constituted less than 35 hours per week. The Court stated that the focus was on whether the partnership, not the partner, is involved in the ordinary business operations. Therefore, the Court upheld the Division's assessment.

Plaintiff alternatively argued that the Division's remedy is against the partnership because they issued the NJK-1, not against the partner who compiled or filed returns in accordance with the NJK-1. The Court ruled that although the partners' NJK-1 forms were issued by the partnerships, this did not insulate the partners from tax liability even though tax return instructions state that income should be reported in accordance with the NJK-1. The Court ruled that the partner is responsible for proper and accurate reporting. The Court reasoned that otherwise partners could control their gross income tax liability by controlling the information reported in the NJK-1s that are thereafter issued to themselves.

Reporting of S Corporation's Sale of Assets and Subsequent Liquidation – George K. Miller, Jr., and Debra Miller v. Director, New Jersey Division of Taxation, decided June 17, 2002; Appellate Division No. A-658-01T2.

Miller was the principal shareholder of a Federal and New Jersey subchapter S corporation. In 1996, the corporation sold virtually all of its assets to an unrelated corporation for about $5 million. Later, in that same tax year, the corporation paid a liquidating dividend to Miller that consisted primarily of the proceeds of the sale.

For New Jersey tax reporting purposes, Miller calculated his income by deducting his Federal basis in the stock from the Federal calculated amount of the liquidated dividend, the property distribution from the stock sale. Miller reported this amount as a gain under N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1c after netting it with other personal capital transactions, mostly losses.

The Division first computed the corporation's gain on its sale of assets as Miller's pro rata share of subchapter S income pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1p. Consequently, this amount of gain was also added to Miller's basis in his corporate stock. Secondly, the liquidating payment was considered to be a sale of subchapter S stock in accordance with subsection 5-1c. This resulted in a loss primarily due to the increase in basis from the asset sale. As each of the above transactions resulted in separate categories of income and loss, the Division did not net the income derived from subsection 5-1p with the subsection 5-1c loss in accordance with N.J.S.A. 54A:5-2, which taxes income on a category-by-category basis and prohibits the netting of income and losses.

The Tax Court ruled for Miller. Although the Appellate Division concurred with the Tax Court's rejection of the Division's interpretation of the Gross Income Tax Act, it reversed and remanded the case because it disagreed with the Tax Court's solution. The Appellate Division found that the Division's methodology was supported by the Gross Income Tax Act's literal language, but that the result is to tax the return of capital, which is inconsistent with the legislative intent of subsection 5-1c and the New Jersey Supreme Court's opinion in Koch. However, the Appellate Division also disagreed with the Tax Court's determination that subsection 5-1p did not include S corporation income outside of the ordinary trade or business and disagreed with the Tax Court, allowing Miller to deduct his Federal basis, rather than his New Jersey adjusted basis, to determine the amount of gain. The Appellate Division reasoned that if the Legislature had anticipated the facts in Miller, then it believed the Legislature would have provided that the two transactions be treated as a sale of stock to a third party with gain or loss being calculated under subsection 5-1c.

Reporting of S Corporation's Sale of Assets and Subsequent Liquidation – Joel and Judith Mandelbaum v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided May 17, 2002; Tax Court No. 004227-2000.

Mandelbaum was a shareholder of Dalcomp, a Federal and New Jersey subchapter S corporation. In 1995, he and all the other shareholders sold all of their stock to Thompson Municipal Services. Later in that year, Thompson and the former Dalcomp shareholders filed an Internal Revenue Code section 338(h)(10) election, essentially a deemed sale of assets followed by a deemed liquidating distribution, with the Internal Revenue Service. On his 1995 gross income tax return, Mandelbaum reported the transaction as gain or income from the disposition of property after subtracting his stock basis. Mandelbaum later amended his 1995 gross income tax return, reporting the transaction as his net pro rata share of S corporation income after subtracting the cost of his stock. Also, Mandelbaum elected the installment method of reporting the income.

The Division disallowed the deduction for the stock basis from his S corporation income, disallowed the use of the installment method, and decided that the amount of his S corporation income was his proportionate stock ownership share of the corporation's net gain from the deemed sale of assets. The Division determined that the deemed liquidation resulted in an N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1c loss to Mandelbaum and that the loss could not be netted with the N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1p S corporation income due to the nonnetting of intercategory income and losses rule under N.J.S.A. 54A:5-2.

The Court ruled that the I.R.C. 338(h)(10) election is not applicable to a New Jersey S corporation because there is no statute, interpretative regulation, or other formal promulgation interpreting or referring to the Gross Income Tax Act with respect to I.R.C. 338(h)(10) elections. The Court reasoned that a New Jersey taxpayer reading the Gross Income Tax Act provisions and the regulations thereunder would not be on notice that an I.R.C. 338(h)(10) election subjected him to any tax liability under the Gross Income Tax Act. The Court also refused to impute the Corporation Business Tax Act and regulations thereunder referring to the 338(h)(10) election to an S corporation shareholder as the acts are not in par materia. Due to the Division's inability to use I.R.C. 338(h)(10), the Court held that the transaction must be treated as a sale of stock and that the net gain, proceeds of the sale less adjusted basis, be taxed as a disposition of property under subsection 5-1c.

Alternatively, the Court stated that even if the Gross Income Tax Act applied to the I.R.C. 338(h)(10) election, the stock's basis would be deductible in determining gain or loss under subsection 5-1c in accordance with the Tax Court's previous holding in Miller. Finally, the Court ruled that the installment method of reporting is applicable to subsection 5-1c income.

Litter Control Tax

Litter-Generating Products –
Feesers, Inc. t/a Feesers Foods v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided June 20, 2002; Tax Court No. 004185-2001.

Feesers is a Pennsylvania wholesale food distributor that sells food products in New Jersey to various institutions including nursing homes, hospitals, and universities. Most of the food products are sold in "large, institutional type," disposable packages and containers. These products include salad dressing, barbecue sauce, muffin, cake, and brownie mixes, shortening, ice cream, flour, beans, chili, salsa, cereal, and pasta. Feesers alleged that the food is prepared at the facility and consumed on premises by residents or invitees and is not intended for resale.

The Division assessed Feesers litter control tax on its New Jersey sales pursuant to the Clean Communities and Recycling Act. Although Feesers concedes that its food products meet the definition of one of the items enumerated in the statute as being subject to tax as a litter-generating product, Feesers claims that its food products are exempt from the litter control tax because its food products are prepared for on-premises consumption and the tax is not intended to target institutional food type packages and containers as they are not the types of products "that would...be found on public highways."

The Court stated that the litter tax is levied on the litter-generating products of manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers of litter-generating products. The Court found that the Tax Court had previously ruled that litter-generating products that satisfy any one of the following three tests are subject to tax: (1) goods that are produced, distributed, or purchased in disposable containers, packages, or wrappings; or (2) goods that are commonly discarded in public places even though they are not usually sold in packages, containers, or wrappings; or (3) goods that are unsightly or unsanitary in nature, commonly thrown, dropped, discarded, placed, or deposited by a person on either public property or on private property that is not owned by the person. (See United Jersey Bank).

The Court ruled that Feesers' products clearly satisfied the first test; therefore, it was irrelevant whether the products would be commonly discarded in public places such as the public highway pursuant to the second test because the tests are in the disjunctive. As to whether the litter-generating products were exempt because they were sold for on-premises consumption, the Court found that it was unnecessary to decide whether there is an exemption for retailers that sell food for on-premises consumption because the retailer's transactions with its customers could not be imputed to Feesers' sales to the retailer. Finally, the Court looked at the exemptions to the litter control tax and found that Feesers did not qualify for an exemption.

Local Property Tax

Exemption Status – Center For Molecular Medicine and Immunology v. Township of Belleville, decided May 2, 2001; Tax Court No. 000767-1998; 000580-99.

The question before the New Jersey Tax Court was property tax exempt status for the years 1998 and 1999 for the Center for Molecular Medicine and Immunology, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit entity that conducts cancer research. The disputed property, renamed the Garden State Cancer Center (GSCC), was previously exempt from local property taxes as a county-owned geriatric facility under N.J.S.A. 54:4-3.3 until 1997 when it was transferred from the county to the Essex County Improvement Authority and from the ECIA to the taxpayer. The taxpayer then began a five-phase plan to rehabilitate the deteriorated building.

The first issue was property ownership, county vs. taxpayer (GSCC) and whether exemption should be permitted under N.J.S.A. 54:4-3.3 or N.J.S.A. 54:4-3.6. The two statutes are mutually exclusive. Within the deeds were two sets of reverter clauses that would transfer the property back to the county "by vesting the county with a fee simple absolute interest after a term of 25 years." The taxpayer's present interest was non-freehold and likened to a leasehold with no ownership rights. Because the deeds only granted the taxpayer an interest for a term of 25 years, the taxpayer was essentially leasing the facility and the county retains ownership. Thus, the Court found that the GSCC was owned by the county and subject to exemption under N.J.S.A. 54:4-3.3.

Another issue requires the plaintiff to prove that the use of the property was for a public purpose which was to be carried out within a reasonable period of time. Public purpose is defined by the courts as "an activity which serves to benefit the community as a whole and which at the same time is directly related to functions of government." N.J.S.A. 52:9U-2 states that the New Jersey Legislature deems cancer research a sufficient public purpose. Being that the taxpayer's primary function was cancer research and has received Federal funding for this research, the GSCC was clearly used for public purposes. The Court also maintained that the broadly defined police power granted to local governments enables them to regulate for the health and safety of the persons within their borders. This is a public purpose.

The remaining issue concerned that portion of the GSCC that was not currently being used. Under N.J.S.A. 54:4-3.3, the property must be wholly taxed or wholly exempt. A five-phase plan was incorporated to complete work on these sections in a reasonable amount of time and these sections were scheduled for public use so that the entire property was deemed intended for public purpose.

For reasons stated, the taxpayer qualifies for property tax exemption under N.J.S.A. 54:4-3.3 for the tax years 1998 through 1999. No analysis under N.J.S.A. 54:4-3.6 is required.

Sales & Use Tax

Prototypes of Point-of-Purchase Displays – Urso & Brown, Inc., Predecessor to Al Gar/The Display Connection, Inc. v. Director, New Jersey Division of Taxation, decided July 8, 2002; Appellate Division No. A-3356-00T2.

As reported in the Summer 2001 State Tax News, the Tax Court previously held that Urso & Brown's prototype purchases of point-of-purchase displays, merchandising models used by vendors to market goods to consumers, were subject to either sales tax under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(1) or use tax per N.J.S.A. 54:32B-6(C) because the displays constituted tangible personal property upon which fabrication services were performed. The Tax Court ruled that the purchases did not qualify for the (1) N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(e)(4)(A) exclusion as professional or personal services, (2) N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.14 research and development exemption, or (3) N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.14 exemption as being used directly and primarily in production.

The Appellate Division affirmed the Tax Court without discussion of the above issues in a written opinion because it ruled that Urso & Brown's arguments lacked merit. □

Gross Income Tax

Exemption from New Jersey Gross Income Tax — P.L. 2003, c.9 (signed into law on January 27, 2003) exempts from New Jersey gross income tax the income of victims who died in the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks against the United States.

This act took effect immediately and applies to taxable years ending before, on, or after September 11, 2001.

Litter Control Fee

Clean Communities and Recycling Grant Act — P.L. 2002, c.128 (signed into law on December 20, 2002) imposes a litter control fee on the gross receipts from sales of litter-generating products within or into New Jersey by manufacturers, wholesalers, distributors, and retailers of such products. The act also revises the Clean Communities Program and makes recycling grants available to counties and municipalities.

The litter control fee replaces the former litter control tax, which expired on December 31, 2000. The rates at which the new user fee is imposed and the categories of litter-generating products to which the fee applies are the same as the rates and litter-generating product categories that were subject to the prior litter control tax. However, Chapter 128 exempts retailers with less than $500,000 in annual retail sales of litter-generating products from the fee (the prior tax had a $250,000 retailer sales exclusion).

The new litter control fee exempts restaurants if more than 50% of their food and beverage sales are for on-premises consumption (restaurants with 50% or more of sales of food and beverages for off-premises consumption are subject to the litter control fee). Also exempt are paper product sales of roll stock produced by paper product manufacturers and wood pulp.

The litter control fee for each calendar year is due on or before March 15th of the following year. The fee applies retroactively to the year beginning January 1, 2002. There was no tax or fee due on the gross receipts from sales of litter-generating products for calendar year 2001.

Miscellaneous

Camden Revitalization — P.L. 2002, c.108 (signed into law on December 4, 2002) amends and clarifies the "Municipal Rehabilitation and Economic Recovery Act" (P.L. 2002, c.43) to ensure an accurate expression of legislative intent. Chapter 43 is currently the subject of litigation contending that it is improper.

As a result, the Legislature has imposed certain criteria limiting the application of Chapter 43 to municipalities that have been or may be subject to oversight by both a financial review board and the Local Finance Board, and which receive at least 55 percent of their budgets from State appropriations, now or in the future.

Chapter 108 clarifies and reaffirms that other similarly situated municipalities may meet the criteria of a qualified municipality. It also establishes a process for determining appropriations and allocations of monies to municipalities other than Camden that meet the definition of a qualified municipality. Chapter 108 took effect immediately and is retroactive to June 30, 2002. □

If you haven't filed your 2002 New Jersey income tax return yet, say "Goodbye" to paper and file electronically this year. Whether it's NJ TeleFile, NJ WebFile, or NJ ELF, filing this way is fast, secure, and less "taxing" than completing a paper return. Just ask one of the more than 750,000 taxpayers who used one of these alternative filing methods last year.

There is less chance of error when you file electronically because the programs take you through the return line by line, prompt you for information, and perform the necessary calculations for you. You'll get your refund faster, too, when you use one of the three NJ FastFile options because electronic returns can be processed more quickly. And, you can make the entire process paper-free by choosing to have your income tax refund or homestead rebate (or both) deposited directly into your bank account. You won't have to wait for a check to arrive in the mail and you'll have access to your money that much faster. Owe us money? You can file your return now, and pay what you owe by electronic check or credit card — you have until the due date to pay.

For more information about the eligibility requirements for any of the NJ FastFile options, visit www.njfastfile.com or call 1-800-323-4400. So file by phone or by computer, or ask your tax preparer about filing electronically — you'll get your New Jersey income tax refund faster.

Amnesty Program A Huge Success

The Division of Taxation received $276.9 million in net revenue from the 2002 Tax Amnesty Program that began April 15 and ended on June 10, 2002.

Governor James E. McGreevey implemented the Amnesty program to help offset the projected $2.9 billion budget deficit for the 2002 fiscal year, which ended June 30. The success of the amnesty program helped to address continuing fiscal difficulties experienced by the State, precipitated by significant shortfalls in projected tax revenue collections late in the fiscal year .

Amnesty Administrator, Stephen Sylvester, reported that 101,534 payments were made during the 57-day Amnesty period. He said 32% of the amount collected was from sales and use tax, 38% from corporate tax liabilities, 22% from gross income tax, and the remainder from the 27 other taxes administered by the Division.

During the Amnesty period, the Amnesty hotline received approximately 155,000 phone calls and the Amnesty Web site recorded 78,620 hits.

Under Amnesty the State waived penalties and interest charges on tax liabilities incurred between January 1, 1996, and December 31, 2001 — individuals and businesses were allowed to pay only what they owed in back taxes. Those who failed to settle their delinquent State taxes during Amnesty now face the reinstatement of the original penalties and interest, plus new penalties, charges, and fees which could increase a base tax bill by 45% or more.

“The Amnesty also reduced our backlog of delinquent and deficient taxpayers and allows our audit and investigative teams to concentrate their efforts on the truly hard-core tax evaders,” added Taxation Director Robert K. Thompson. □

New Laws Generate Revenue

Several important measures were recently enacted by the New Jersey Legislature and signed into law. Salient provisions of the new legislation are summarized below.

Business Tax Reform Act — P.L. 2002, c.40 (signed into law on July 2, 2002) reforms New Jersey’s system of taxation of corporations and other business entities. See Why CBT Changes Were Needed on page 5 and Business Tax Reform Summary on page 3.

Cigarette Tax — P.L. 2002, c.33 (signed into law on July 1, 2002) increases the cigarette tax from $0.04 to $0.075 per cigarette (from $.80 to $1.50 per pack); and directs that certain amounts from cigarette tax revenues be used to support health care programs and antismoking initiatives. The rate increases are effective July 1, 2002.

Estate Tax — P.L. 2002, c.31 (signed into law on July 1, 2002) preserves the New Jersey estate tax notwithstanding the phase-out of the Federal credit upon which the tax is based. See Estate Tax Changes on page 9.

Fees and Penalties — P.L. 2002, c.34 (signed into law on July 1, 2002) establishes, increases, and modifies fees and penalties imposed by and on behalf of the State and collected by the State Treasurer.

Commercial Recording Fees. The legislation increases certain commercial recording filing fees for corporations and other business entities. Some of the increased filing fees are:

- Certificate of Incorporation – $125
- Certificate of Merger or Consolidation – $75
- Certificate of Limited Partnership – $125
- Limited Liability Company Certificate of Formation – $125
- Certificate of Authority to Conduct Business in this State – $125
- Amendment to Certificate of Incorporation – $75
- Annual Report – $50
- Certificate of Cancellation of Shares – $75
- Termination of Alternate Name – $75

- Certificate of Dissolution – $75
- Application for Withdrawal – $75
- Change of Address of Registered Office or Change of Registered Agent, or both – $25
- Reinstatement of Charter – $75

Domestic Security Fee. Motor vehicle rental companies are required to pay a $2 fee for each day (or part of a day) that a motor vehicle (passenger automobile, truck, semitrailer) is rented in New Jersey under a rental agreement of not more than 28 days. The fee applies to rental agreements entered into on or after August 1, 2002. The fee must be separately stated in the rental agreement and is not subject to New Jersey sales and use tax.

The fees due are to be reported quarterly on Form DSF-100 and paid by the last day of the month next following the close of the calendar quarter. Form DSF-100 is to be filed online or by telephone, and payments are to be made by e-check, credit card, or electronic funds transfer. Paper returns may be used until the electronic filing options become available.

For more information on the Domestic Security Fee, visit the Division of Taxation Web site at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/domestic.shtml

Penalty for Stopped or Returned Checks. The legislation gives the Director of the Division of Taxation the authority to charge a $50 fee for any check that is returned due to insufficient funds or stop payment order when the check was issued for payment of any State tax or related penalty.

In addition, the legislation addresses fees and penalties administered by other divisions of the State (e.g., Law Division of the Superior Court, Chancery Division of the Superior Court, Department of Agriculture).

Miscellaneous

Camden Revitalization — P.L. 2002, c.43 establishes the “Municipal Rehabilitation and Economic Recovery Act” which attempts to rehabilitate a qualified municipality, namely the City of Camden, and restore its economic vitality, which is necessary for long-term recovery. It provides a pilot program for a limited period of time during which considerable sums of State money will be invested in the qualified municipality with appropriate State supervision by a chief operating officer who is accountable to both city elected officials and the State. The legislation contains a number of tax-related benefits for residents of a qualified municipality and businesses located there.

Unclaimed Property — P.L. 2002, c.35 (signed into law on July 1, 2002) makes several modifications to the Unclaimed Property Act bringing New Jersey’s law into line with those of most other states and with unclaimed property practice nationally. See Unclaimed Property Act Modified on page 8. □

Business Tax Reform Summary

The Business Tax Reform Act (P.L. 2002, c.40) is intended to reform New Jersey’s system of taxation of corporations and other business entities through revision of the corporation business tax and other changes of law. Changes to the present corporation business tax (CBT) include: technical changes aimed at large corporations, the addition of an alternative minimum assessment, tracking changes affecting flow-through entities, and the addition of several new tax advantages to small businesses.

Technical Changes

These provisions address various ways in which corporations reduce or avoid tax on income by restoring equity between the corporations that can use these methods and those that cannot, or do not. The Act also makes a number of changes to the tax base in order to make taxation of corporations more equitable.

Disallowance of the deduction of intangible expenses paid to a related party — The Act limits the ability of a taxpayer to deduct royalties and other intangible expenses and costs and related interest when paid to affiliates. The Act continues to allow such deductions in areas that are established as “non-tax avoidance” situations. The Director of the Division of Taxation has the discretion to allow the deduction on a case-by-case basis; however, as the disallowance of the deduction is the general rule, this has the effect of requiring the taxpayer to secure prior approval for the deduction before departing from the general rule.

Disallowance of the deduction of interest paid to a related third party — The Act restricts deductibility of inter-affiliate interest expenses, but continues to allow such deductions in areas that are established as “non-tax avoidance” situations. Exceptions to the general rule are allowed to prevent duplicate taxation, to avoid unreasonable disallowance of the deduction, to protect income tax treaties between the United States and related entities in a foreign nation, and to allow for situations where debt is “pushed down” from a corporate parent to a subsidiary but involves a regular, market-rate loan from an outside lender.

Establishing a limited throwout rule — This rule applies to corporations with sales earned in other jurisdictions that are not taxed there. The Act requires corporations to “throw out” from the denominator of the sales fraction receipts from sales into such destination states. In order to prevent this change from creating an exceptionally large tax burden on an affiliated group of companies, the additional liability for a group is limited to $5 million, and may be spread proportionately among the affiliates.

Extending the reach of the CBT to constitutional limits — The Act extends the reach of the New Jersey CBT to a corporation that derives any income from New Jersey sources. This change extends the reach of the CBT to the full extent permitted under the United States Constitution and Federal statutes.

Nonoperational income fully taxed — The Act requires that, if the principal place from which the trade or business of the taxpayer is directed or managed is in this State, 100 percent of “nonoperational income” be assigned here, to the extent permitted under the Constitution and the statutes of the United States.

Disallowance of the deduction for income taxes paid to foreign nations — The Act disallows a deduction for taxes paid to foreign nations.

Clarification of the research and development expense deduction — The Act disallows the deduction of certain research and development expenses that are used to claim the New Jersey research and development credit but are not used to claim a Federal research and development credit.

Tax on investment company income increased — The Act raises the proportion of an investment company’s net income subject to tax from 25% to 40%.

Savings institutions tax eliminated — The Act repeals the Savings Institution Tax Act and subjects savings banks, building and loan associations, and savings and loan associations to the corporation business tax.

Disallowance of the deduction for dividends received from another corporation — The Act disallows the deduction for dividends received from a corporation in which the taxpayer has less than a 50% ownership interest.

Codification of the net operating loss rule — The Act codifies the

New Jersey regulations governing the use of net operating losses with the goal of foreclosing further challenges to them.

Alternative Minimum Assessment (AMA)

The Act creates an alternative minimum assessment (i.e., a tax on either gross profits or gross receipts, at the election of the taxpayer) to measure a company’s economic activity in New Jersey in situations where the traditional “taxable income” formula is not a fair measure.

S corporations, professional corporations, investment companies, pass-through entities, and corporations operating as cooperatives under Federal requirements will be exempt from the AMA. Corporations subject to the CBT will be required to compute the AMA and pay the greater of the CBT or the AMA.

Pass-Through Entities

Pass-through entity return processing fee — For pass-through entities that have income from New Jersey sources and more than two members, the Act establishes an annual $150 per owner filing fee, capped at $250,000 per entity per year. The Act establishes a similar filing fee of $150 per licensed professional for professional corporations with more than two licensed professionals, also capped at $250,000 per corporation per year.

Pass-through entity payment on behalf of owners — Pass-through entities, other than those listed on a United States national stock exchange, must make a payment on the share of the income of each nonresident owner (corporation, partnership, individual, trust, or estate) at a 9% rate for corporate owners and a 6.37% rate for individual owners. The payment is credited to separate accounts for each owner, and may be credited against their respective tax liabilities.

Revenue Measures

Two-year net operating loss suspension — The Act suspends the application of net operating loss deductions for tax years 2002 and 2003. The usual seven-year carry-forward is extended for two years.

Subchapter S corporation phase-out freeze — The Act resets the tax rate on S corporations to the 2001 tax year levels through tax year 2005, and then resumes the phase-out thereafter.

Acceleration of fourth quarter payments for substantial taxpayers — The Act accelerates the fourth quarter estimated tax payment into the second quarter for taxpayers with gross receipts of $50 million or more. The accelerated schedule would remain in effect for these taxpayers for privilege periods beginning in 2002 and thereafter.

Decoupling from Federal “bonus” depreciation — The Act disallows, for corporate income tax purposes, the deduction of the 30% “bonus” depreciation that was allowed for certain property for Federal tax purposes under the Federal “Job Creation and Worker Assistance Act of 2002,” Pub L. 107-147.

Increased minimum tax — The Act increases the annual minimum tax from $210 to $500 for tax year 2002 and thereafter for the majority of corporations. However, members of an affiliated or controlled group with total payroll of $5 million or more shall be subject to a minimum tax of $2,000 per year.

Small Business Provisions
CBT tax rate reduction for small business — The Act reduces the tax rate from 7.5 percent to 6.5 percent for businesses with less than $50,000 of net taxable income.

Enhanced new jobs investment tax credit — The Act doubles the value of the new jobs factor under the New Jobs Investment Tax Credit.

Administrative Provisions
Disclosure of inter-affiliate transactions — The Act allows the Director to require the disclosure of inter-affiliate transactions, costs, and expenses, including transactions with related businesses that are not themselves CBT taxpayers, including, but not limited to, management fees, rents, and charges for other services. Disclosure is required only upon request of the Director and the taxpayer has 90 days to comply.

Net operating loss suspension hold-harmless — The Act forbids the imposition of any penalty for the underpayment of an estimated payment that is due to the two-year suspension of the application of net operating loss carryforwards.

Fourth Quarter 2002 25% estimated payment — For the fourth quarter estimated payment for the 2002 tax year, and only that payment, the Act suspends the usual forgiveness provisions that apply to estimated tax payments and requires the fourth quarter payment to be 25% of the total liability for 2002, calculated under the provisions of the Act.

Air Carriers

Air carrier AMA credit — The Act allows an air carrier that contributes more than 25% of the total amortization for capital improvement projects at Newark International Airport paid through rates and charges to take a credit of 50% of its amortization payment for the privilege period against its calculation of AMA, so long as the credit does not reduce the AMA to less than the CBT statutory minimum.

Study Commission

The Act creates a nine-member, bipartisan Corporation Business Tax Study Commission to study reforms adopted under the Act and examine other aspects of New Jersey corporation business tax.

Excess Revenue Fund

The Act creates a restricted reserve fund known as the Corporation Business Tax Excess Revenue Fund, into which amounts in excess of the annual target for corporation business tax revenues will be deposited. Balances in the fund will be available for appropriation in Fiscal Year 2004 and Fiscal Year 2005 to assist in covering shortfalls in corporation business tax collections from the target amount for the fiscal year. □

Why CBT Changes Were Needed

In a News release issued July 2, 2002, State Treasurer John E. McCormac listed reasons for the changes enacted in the Business Tax Reform Act (P.L. 2002, c.40).

- Of approximately 200,000 active corporations in New Jersey, 77 percent pay only the minimum corporate tax of $200. This is not because these companies are unprofitable, it is because corporations use loopholes to drive down their profits on paper, regardless of whether they are reporting record profits to their shareholders.
- Thirty of New Jersey’s 50 largest employers paid only $200 in corporate taxes last year. A closer examination of ten of these corporations revealed that although $13.3 billion in profits had been reported to shareholders, after using loopholes and accounting gimmicks not one of the companies had profits to report on its New Jersey tax return, and none of the companies paid more than the $200 minimum corporate tax. That $200 is less tax than the amount paid by a single parent who earns $25,000 a year and has one child.

- In 1999, $1.2 billion of the $1.6 billion raised in corporate taxes was paid by less than one percent of the businesses. Only 31 companies paid more than $5 million in corporate taxes that year. These companies contributed one-third of the total corporate tax receipts, while the 77 percent of corporations that paid the minimum $200 tax contributed just two percent of total tax payments.
- Corporation business tax (CBT) collections in New Jersey and elsewhere don't reflect corporate profit-taking. Over a recent five-year period of significant economic prosperity (1995-2000), the amount of corporate income reported to the Federal government grew by twice the rate reported to state governments over the same period of time. State corporate tax collections grew by three percent and Federal corporate tax collections grew by six percent, while Federal and state tax levels remained essentially stable.
- Corporate taxes are eroding in New Jersey and nationally. The Congressional Budget Office and the Joint Committee on Taxation report that corporate taxes will plummet to only 1.3 percent of gross domestic product this year, the lowest since fiscal year 1983 when corporate taxes bottomed out at 1.1 percent of GDP on the heels of the huge corporate tax reductions enacted in 1981.

- In 1982, New Jersey CBT collections accounted for more than 15 percent of all revenue collected, exceeded only by the gross income tax and the sales tax. The percentage share of total revenue derived from the CBT has declined steadily in the last decade, from 10 percent in fiscal year 1990 to 6.6 percent in fiscal year 2001. It is estimated that receipts from the CBT will provide only about 5 percent of total State revenue in fiscal year 2002. Conversely, since 1982, revenue from the gross income tax has increased by 500 percent and sales tax has increased by 370 percent.
- The continuing shift in this balance means that there is increased reliance in state budgeting on working families (through the income tax) and on consumers (through the sales tax). □

Streamlined Sales Tax Project Update

As reported in the Fall 2000 issue of the New Jersey State Tax News, the State of New Jersey has been actively involved with the Streamlined Sales Tax Project. The goal of the Project is to design, test, and implement a new sales and use tax system for the 21st century. The Project is a joint effort by state governments, with input from local governments and the private sector, to simplify and modernize current sales and use tax systems.

There are 45 states with sales taxes, 40 of which are currently involved in the Project. Thirty-four states (including New Jersey) plus the District of Columbia are voting participants in the Project. In order for a state to be a voting participant, its legislature must have enacted enabling legislation or its governor must have issued an executive order or a similar authorization. The remaining six states are nonvoting participants because they do not have the formal commitment of their state executive or legislative branches.

On December 22, 2000, state representatives to the Project voted to approve a Uniform Sales and Use Tax Administration Act and Streamlined Sales and Use Tax Agreement. The approval of the Act and Agreement establishes the basis for states to enact legislation to provide the benefits of simplification to vendors in their state.

New Jersey joined the 26 states and the District of Columbia (the "Implementing States") that have enacted at least the Uniform Sales and Use Tax Administration Act when P.L. 2001, c.411, was signed January 8, 2002. Thirty-three states plus the District of Columbia had introduced the Act or both the Act and the Streamlined Sales and Use Tax Agreement as of April 1, 2002.

The Project's short-term goal is to have all the significant proposals regarding simplification, uniformity, etc. in legislative form in time to be acted on by all the state legislatures within the next year. The long-term goal is to have 20-25 states with the uniform provisions in place by the time the current extension of the Internet Tax Freedom Act expires in late 2003. It is hoped that Congress would view this as proof of significant simplification and take the necessary steps to require most remote vendors selling into states that have adopted the simplified system to collect the sales tax on sales in those states.

The Streamlined Sales Tax System the participants are working to develop focuses on improving sales and use tax administration systems for both "Main Street" and remote sellers for all types of commerce. The key features of the system include:

- 1. Uniform definitions within tax bases. Legislatures still choose what is taxable and exempt but will use the common definitions for key items in the tax base.
- 2. Simplified exemption administration. Sellers are relieved of the "good faith" requirements that exist in current law and will not be liable for uncollected tax. Purchasers will be responsible for incorrect exemptions claimed.
- 3. Rate simplification. States will be responsible for the administration of all state and local taxes and the distribution of local taxes to the local governments. State and local governments will use common tax bases and accept responsibility for notice of rate and boundary changes.
- 4. Uniform sourcing rules. The states will have uniform sourcing rules for all property and services.
- 5. Uniform audit procedures. Sellers who participate in one of the certified Streamlined Sales Tax System technology models will either not be audited or will have a limited scope audit, depending on the technology model used.

Participation in the system by both vendors and states is voluntary. Also, registration by vendors in the Streamlined Sales Tax System does not infer nexus for business activity or income tax purposes.

The system will provide sellers the opportunity to use one of three technology models. However, some sellers may choose to continue to use their current systems and still enjoy the benefits of simplification. A seller may select one of the following technology models for remitting sales tax:

- Model 1 – Certified Service Provider performs all of the seller's sales tax functions, other than the seller's obligation to remit tax due on its own purchases.
- Model 2 – Certified Automated System calculates the amount of tax due on a transaction and seller retains responsibility for remitting tax.
- Model 3 – Certification of proprietary sales tax software systems used by certain large sellers.

The Project will continue to incorporate additional elements into the system, which may include additional uniform definitions, a uniform tax return, and revisions to the technology models based upon information gained through the testing of tax collection software. Up-to-date information about the Project can be found at:

Two Versions of 2002 CBT Returns

The Division of Taxation will issue two versions of the 2002 corporation business tax returns, Forms CBT-100 and CBT-100S. Separate versions are needed because of changes contained in the Business Tax Reform Act, P.L. 2002, c.40 (approved July 2, 2002) which affect taxpayers with accounting periods beginning on or after January 1, 2002.

One version of the CBT-100 and CBT-100S returns is to be used by taxpayers with accounting periods beginning before January 1, 2002. This version is already available in printed form (call the automated Forms Request System at 1-800-323-4400 or 609-826-4400) and on our Web site:

www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/

The second version of Forms CBT-100 and CBT-100S (for tax periods beginning on or after January 1, 2002) has required extensive changes due to the complexity of the Business Tax Reform legislation. We expect this version of the 2002 returns to be available in early 2003.

When filing New Jersey corporation business tax (CBT) returns, it is important to use the form for the correct year. The return year of the CBT-100 or CBT-100S a corporation files is determined by the close of its fiscal or calendar accounting period. The 2002 New Jersey corporation business tax returns should only be used for tax periods ending July 31, 2002, through June 30, 2003. The accounting year for New Jersey

purposes is the same period the taxpayer uses for Federal purposes, and the ending month for Federal and New Jersey purposes must be the same. However, the return year a corporation uses for New Jersey and Federal purposes may differ. (For example, a return for a taxable year ending August 31, 2002, may be filed on a 2001 Federal Form 1120, while a 2002 Form CBT-100 or CBT-100S must be used for that period.)

In addition to choosing the CBT return for the correct year, when filing for tax year 2002 be sure to choose the appropriate version of Form CBT-100 or CBT-100S. A corporation whose taxable year began before January 1, 2002, will use one version of the forms, while a corporation whose year began on or after January 1, 2002, will use a different version, one which reflects the changes enacted in P.L. 2002, c.40. All CBT returns are due on the 15th day of the fourth month following the end of the accounting period. For example, if a corporation's accounting period ends October 31, 2002, the return due date is February 18, 2003. (When a filing due date falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or State holiday, the return is due the next business day.)

For information on the correct corporation business tax return form to use and return filing dates, contact the Division's Customer Service Center at 609-292-6400.

Unclaimed Property Act Modified

P.L. 2002, c.35, which modifies the Uniform Unclaimed Property Act, was signed into law by the Governor on July 1, 2002.

This statute reduces the dormancy period for most types of property from ten years or five years to three years. The shorter abandonment periods will result in more property being reunited with the rightful owners, greater protection for the owners of the property, and increased benefit to all the residents of the State of New Jersey through increased revenues resulting from the program. These changes will ease the record retention burden for most companies. Also, records requested during audits will more frequently fall within the record retention requirements for tax records.

The Act clarifies and expands the types of property covered under the Statute. Several types of property already being reported and remitted to the State will now be more clearly covered under the Unclaimed Property Act such as shares of stock in dividend reinvestment plans, mutual fund shares, credit balances, customer overpayments, security deposits, and refunds. In addition, the scope of the Act extends to the following types of property:

- Property distributable to policyholders by an insurance company pursuant to its demutualization.
- Non-dividend-paying securities based on the return of a second mailing to the owner.
- Underlying registered debt of a business association resulting from periodic interest payments that have not been negotiated even if this occurs before maturity.

- Undistributed proceeds of a class action.
- Nontraditional individual retirement accounts (i.e. Roth and Education IRAs).

The law clarifies the definition of "holder" as the "original obligor indebted to another on an obligation." This follows the definition espoused in a case recently decided by the New Jersey Supreme Court.

The Act clarifies the burden of proof issue where the obligation on a negotiable instrument is disputed. A record of the issuance of a check, draft, or similar instrument is prima facie evidence of an obligation. The administrator's burden of proof as to the existence and amount of the property and its abandonment is satisfied by showing issuance of the instrument and passage of the requisite period of abandonment. Payment, satisfaction, discharge, and want of consideration are affirmative defenses that are to be established by the holder.

The Act also specifically prohibits the charging of "escheat fees" by financial organizations or business associations against property being transferred to the State. Any other charges are limited to what would not be considered "unconscionable."

The Act also clarifies the issue concerning State records of escheated property. Only the name and address of the apparent owner is considered public information.

unclaimed property - from page 8

Other information, such as account balances and numbers, is to be considered confidential and not subject to public release. This allows for the continuation of the confidentiality of personal financial information by the administrator as successor "trustee." □

Estate Tax Changes

On July 1, 2002, Governor McGreevey signed into law legislation amending certain provisions of the New Jersey estate tax imposed under N.J.S.A. 54:38-1 et seq. The amendment applies to the estates of resident decedents dying on or after January 1, 2002.

Prior to enactment of the amendment, the New Jersey estate tax was based upon the credit allowable in the Federal estate tax proceeding for inheritance and other legacy taxes imposed by any state, territory, or the District of Columbia. Under changes made to the Federal estate tax law in 2001, New Jersey's estate tax would have been phased out over a three-year period beginning in 2002. The amendment signed by the Governor preserves the tax as it existed prior to 2002.

The amended statute provides for a New Jersey estate tax payable by the estate of resident decedents who die after December 31, 2001. At the election of the person or corporation liable for the payment of the tax, the tax is either:

1. The maximum credit for state death taxes that would have been allowable had the decedent died on December 31, 2001, or
2. An amount determined pursuant to a simplified tax system as may be prescribed by the Director of the Division of Taxation.

The tax liability is reduced by estate, inheritance, succession, or legacy taxes actually paid to any state or territory of the United States or the District of Columbia.

The revised statute provides that the tax shall remain a lien on all property of a decedent until paid and that no property owned by a decedent on his date of death may be transferred without the written consent of the Director.

The Division is in the process of developing the necessary rules, regulations, policies, procedures, and forms. Information pertaining to the estate tax may be obtained by contacting the Inheritance and Estate Tax Section at 609-292-5033/5035 during normal business hours or by mail at NJ Division of Taxation, Inheritance and Estate Tax, PO Box 249, Trenton, NJ 08695-0249. Additional information, forms, and returns will be posted to the Division's Web site as they become available. □

Depreciation Allowance

The new Federal Special Depreciation Allowance that was created under the Federal Job Creation and Worker Assistance Act provides an additional first-year depreciation deduction equal to 30% of the adjusted basis of "qualified property" placed into service after September 10, 2001, and before September 11, 2004. Taxpayers may "elect out" and not claim the Special Depreciation Allowance.

The Gross Income Tax Act at 54A:8-3(c) states in part that "a taxpayer's accounting method under this act shall be the same as his accounting method for Federal income tax purposes." A taxpayer's method of accounting for Federal income tax purposes not only determines when income is recognized and reported but also the method used to compute taxable income.

Property that qualifies for the Federal Special Depreciation Allowance for Federal tax purposes also qualifies for New Jersey gross income tax purposes. However, taxpayers must make the same election for New Jersey gross income tax purposes as for Federal tax purposes. Taxpayers who take the Special Depreciation Allowance for Federal tax purposes must also take it for New Jersey gross income tax purposes. If they "elect out" of the Special Depreciation Allowance for Federal tax purposes, they cannot take it for New Jersey gross income tax purposes.

For purposes of the corporation business tax, N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4(k) provides that "the amount of a taxpayer's entire net income shall be deemed prima facie to be equal in amount to the taxable income, before net operating loss deduction and special deductions, which the taxpayer is required to report...to the United States Treasury Department for the purpose of computing its federal income tax...." This provision requires that taxpayers that are subject to the corporation business tax must also make the same election for corporation business tax purposes as for Federal tax purposes.

The Business Tax Reform Act, P.L. 2002, c.40 (signed into law on July 2, 2002) makes numerous amendments to the New Jersey

corporation business tax. In particular, the new law disallows the use of Federal bonus depreciation for privilege periods starting on or after January 1, 2002. As a result, a taxpayer is required to uncouple the Federal and State depreciation claimed as a deduction in arriving at entire net income for such privilege periods. If a taxpayer claims the 30% bonus depreciation Federally in an earlier privilege period when the property is placed in service, the taxpayer shall continue to do so and remains "coupled" to the Federal method.

Information regarding the uncoupling required of bonus depreciation claimed on the Federal Form 1120 will be provided in the corporation business tax return instruction booklets, Forms CBT-100-P and CBT-100S-P. □

Tax Amnesty in Connecticut

From September 1 through November 30, 2002, Connecticut Tax Commissioner Gene Gavin and the Connecticut Department of Revenue Services (DRS) will conduct a Tax Amnesty Program, an extremely beneficial opportunity for businesses and individuals — residents and nonresidents — to pay back taxes and reduced interest owed to the State of Connecticut. During the three-month Amnesty program, taxpayers with state tax delinquencies for any period ending on or before March 31, 2002, will be able to pay their tax debt without fear of penalty or criminal prosecution. Taxpayers may also be eligible for a 25 percent reduction in the interest they owe.

"Even in these tough economic times, individuals and businesses are still responsible for paying their fair share of taxes to the State of Connecticut," Commissioner Gavin said. "We don't want to penalize or prosecute people, who — for whatever reason — have not met their state tax obligations. We hope that delinquent taxpayers will take advantage of this amnesty to pay their debt to the state before we take action."

The 2002 Connecticut Tax Amnesty Program applies to virtually all state taxes administered by DRS, including income tax, corporation business tax, and sales and use taxes. It is available to anyone who owes back taxes, whether they intentionally or unintentionally failed to pay their taxes. For those who were unaware of their tax liabilities, Amnesty will provide information to correct past delinquencies and avoid future filing problems. For those who intentionally avoided taxes, Amnesty offers a last chance to come forward and clean the slate.

"If everyone paid the taxes they owe, the state would be in a better position to fund the programs that improve the quality of life in Connecticut, and prevent in these difficult times, the need to possibly increase taxes on everyone," Commissioner Gavin said.

Once Amnesty is complete, DRS will undertake a very aggressive enforcement of the tax laws to collect the money owed to Connecticut. Commissioner Gavin will mobilize his experienced and extensive team of auditors who are now armed with the latest computer technologies and techniques to locate tax delinquents and determine how much they owe.

"I urge anyone who owes Connecticut taxes for taxable periods ending on or before March 31, 2002, to apply for the Connecticut Tax Amnesty Program between September 1 and November 30, 2002," Commissioner Gavin said. "Our Amnesty slogan sums up the seriousness of our commitment to collecting back taxes owed to the state: Either Way, You Will Pay! After Amnesty, you will definitely pay more!"

Tax Amnesty in Missouri, Kentucky

The state of Missouri instituted a three-month Tax Amnesty Program which began August 1, 2002. The program offers qualified taxpayers the opportunity to pay delinquent taxes without having to pay interest or penalties. Amnesty is limited to taxes administered by the Missouri Department of Revenue that were due on or before December 31, 2001. Full payment of amounts due must be received on or before October 31, 2002. To find out more about eligibility requirements and to obtain an amnesty application, visit the Missouri Department of Revenue's Web site at: www.dor.state.mo.us/tax/ or call 573-751-7200

Kentucky's Tax Amnesty Program also began August 1, 2002, but ends on September 30, 2002. The two-month amnesty includes all state taxes directly administered by the Kentucky Revenue Cabinet. Property taxes levied against real estate, motor vehicles, and motor boats and payable to local officials are not included. The program applies to back taxes incurred on or after December 1, 1987, and prior to December 1, 2001. Amnesty not only waives all penalties and fees but all interest charges as well. Virtually all taxpayers are eligible to participate in the program.

GROSS INCOME TAX Credit for S Corp Shareholders

The Division has recently received several inquiries regarding whether shareholders in an S corporation can claim a credit on their New Jersey gross income tax return for the taxes paid to another state or city by the S corporation.

An article published in the Spring 2000 issue of the State Tax News entitled "New York City UBT/Philadelphia BPT" stated that a credit for taxes paid under the New York City Unincorporated Business Tax law would be allowed and that a credit would also be extended to unincorporated businesses subject to the net income portion of the Philadelphia Business Privilege Tax. The article does not extend a credit to incorporated businesses that are subject to these taxes.

The Gross Income Tax Act at 54A:4-1. Resident credit for tax of another state, provides that:

"A resident taxpayer shall be allowed a credit against the tax otherwise due under this act for the amount of any income or wage tax imposed for the taxable year by another state of the United States or political subdivision of such state, or by the District of Columbia, with respect to income which is also subject to tax under this act, except as provided by subsections (c) and (d) of this section."

Subsection (c) limits the credit a taxpayer/shareholder can claim by disallowing a credit against any S corporation income allocated to this State, while subsection (d) disallows a credit for the amount of any tax paid or accrued for the taxable year that is paid by a person other than the taxpayer, whether or not the taxpayer may be liable. The term person as used in subsection (d) encompasses the S corporation as the entity subject to and paying the tax.

Based on the foregoing, the Division has determined that N.J.S.A. 54A:4-1(c) and (d) preclude shareholders of an S corporation from claiming a credit for taxes paid to other jurisdictions, such as the net profits tax paid to the City of Philadelphia, on their personal gross income tax return for taxes paid to other states and/or their municipalities by the S corporation. □

GROSS INCOME TAX Treatment of 457 Plan Distributions

Currently, distributions of deferred payments from a 457 plan are treated as wages in the same way as for Federal income tax purposes. As opposed to the Federal treatment that defers tax on contributions to these plans, New Jersey taxes amounts in excess of contributions when received for income tax purposes that are reported in the "State wages" figure on Form W-2. Since New Jersey has previously taxed the wage compensation, the only amount received by the taxpayer subject to tax as a distribution is the earnings and gain.

However, under the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001 (EGTRRA) the Federal reporting document for 457 plan distributions has recently changed from an IRS Form W-2 to an IRS Form 1099-R in 2002. Whereas Form W-2 is for reporting wage income, Form 1099-R is used for distributions from pensions, annuities, and retirement plans. The modification to the 457 plan for reporting distributions would now reclassify the income from the 457 plan as pensions and annuities in the same manner as that of an IRA, 401(k), 414(h), and 403(b) plan for Federal purposes.

Under the Gross Income Tax Act, New Jersey has a separate category of income for compensation and wages under N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(a) as distinguished from pension payments under N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(j). Compensation and wages are usually determined to be taxable under the Gross Income Tax Act using the Federal definition as verified on the W-2.

For that reason, taxpayers should report only the amounts provided on their W-2 as wages and compensation, and the income from the 457 plan as pensions and annuities on their New Jersey income tax return. □

INHERITANCE/ESTATE TAX Filing Extension

The Division of Taxation has instituted a new, formalized procedure for requesting an extension of time to file a New Jersey inheritance tax return and/or a New Jersey estate tax return. A form has been developed and the regulations have been amended to reflect the new procedure. N.J.A.C. 18:26-3.7 and 9.1.

In the past, taxpayers or their legal representatives would submit a letter to the Division requesting an extension of time to file a return. Although the procedure worked fairly well, there were no guidelines in place setting forth the information required by the Division or the extension periods which would be considered. The newly implemented procedure overcomes these deficiencies. It facilitates both the request for and the approval of extension requests.

Requests for an extension of time to file an inheritance tax return and/or an estate tax return are made by submitting Form IT-EXT (Application for Extension of Time to File a Return). A single form may be used to request an extension of time to file both the inheritance and the estate tax returns. The completed form, along with any required attachments, should be mailed to:

STATE OF NEW JERSEY
DIVISION OF TAXATION
INDIVIDUAL TAX AUDIT BRANCH
INHERITANCE AND ESTATE TAX
PO BOX 249
TRENTON NJ 08695-0249

Inheritance tax returns are required to be filed within eight months following the death of a decedent. An extension of time to file the tax return may be requested for a period up to four months beyond the original due date. If it is not possible to file the tax return within the four-month extension period, the estate representative may request an additional two-month extension, for a total of six months. Extensions beyond six months are granted only in cases where exceptional circumstances exist.

Estate tax returns are required to be filed within nine months following the death of a decedent. An extension of time to file the tax return may be requested for a period up to that allowed by the Internal Revenue Service for the filing of the Federal estate tax return. A copy of the request made to the Internal Revenue Service must be attached to the Form IT-EXT application. Additionally, if the Federal extension is not automatic, a copy of the Federal approval must be attached. Any extension granted for the filing of the New Jersey estate tax return expires upon the filing of the Federal estate tax return.

The newly implemented procedure applies only to the time within which an inheritance and/or estate tax return may be filed. An extension of time to file in no way extends the time to pay. Both the inheritance tax and the estate tax are due on a decedent's date of death. The inheritance tax must be paid within the eight-month period and the estate tax within the nine-month period following the date of death. Interest accrues at 10% per annum on any inheritance tax not paid within the eight-month period and on any estate tax not paid within the nine-month period. □

Charges for Storing Advertising Material

In general, sales tax is due on the purchase of tangible personal property such as advertising and promotional material. However, the law provides an exemption for the purchase of advertising and promotional material that is ultimately delivered to recipients outside of New Jersey. The exemption is available even if the advertiser

takes delivery of the material and stores it in New Jersey prior to shipment out of State.

The direct-mail processing services that relate to such material are also exempt from sales tax. Processing services include addressing, separating, folding, inserting, sorting, and packaging the advertising and promotional material. However, processing services do not include separate charges for the storage of the material prior to either processing or delivery. The Division takes the position that since storage of goods, other than inventory, is a service that is specifically taxed under the law, storage charges are not included in the exemption for direct-mail processing services performed on material that will be delivered out of State. Therefore, a New Jersey company must pay sales tax on charges for storing advertising or promotional material, regardless of where the material will be subsequently delivered. □

No Property Taxes Due — No Rebate

In 1992, the New Jersey Tax Court held that in order to be eligible for the homestead rebate, the applicant's property must be subject to local property taxes, and that property taxes must be paid, either directly, or indirectly through rent. See RULAC v. Director, 12 NJ Tax 642 (1992). As part of that decision, the Tax Court noted that "...payments in lieu of taxes are made to 'compensate municipalities for the impact upon local government costs of local services to State property...' N.J.S.A. 54:4-2.2b." The Court concluded that payments in lieu of taxes are different from local property taxes, and therefore, the payment of the former was not enough to satisfy the eligibility requirements for the homestead rebate.

The NJ SAVER and Homestead Rebate Act defines a homestead, in part, as "a dwelling house and the land on which that dwelling house is located which constitutes the place of the claimant's domicile and is owned and used by the claimant as the claimant's principal residence." N.J.S.A. 54:4-8.58. The Act also codified the Tax Court's decision in RULAC, by defining property tax as "payments to a municipality based upon an assessment made by the municipality upon real property on an ad valorem basis on land, improvements or both, but shall not include payments made in lieu of taxes." (Emphasis added).

Each year the Division of Taxation receives numerous inquiries from homeowners and tenants who believe that they pay property taxes, but whose NJ SAVER and homestead rebates have been denied because the amounts paid are not considered property taxes as defined by the Act.

Ineligible Homeowners

Some condominium and townhouse owners make Payment-in-Lieu-of-Tax (P.I.L.O.T) payments to their local municipalities rather than property tax payments. Under abatement agreements entered into by their municipalities and which affect their properties, the homeowners pay land taxes and service charges but no taxes are assessed on the buildings for a specified period. Consequently, P.I.L.O.T. payments are not considered property taxes for NJ SAVER or homestead rebate purposes.

Homeowners making P.I.L.O.T. payments may receive tax bills for the land tax portion of the payment and a second bill clearly marked "PILOT Service Charge" or simply "P.I.L.O.T." In addition, their notices of property tax assessment indicate an assessment was made for the land but no assessment was made for the building.

In addition, homeowners who are completely exempt from paying property taxes on their principal residence are not eligible for the NJ SAVER or homestead rebates. This can include certain disabled veterans and their unmarried, surviving spouses who may claim a 100% exemption from local property taxes under certain conditions. However, if any portion of the dwelling is rented to a tenant and property taxes are paid by the disabled veteran owner on the rented portion, the tenant may be eligible for a homestead rebate, but the property owner is not eligible.

Ineligible Tenants

Tenants living in dwellings which are not subject to local property taxes are not eligible for the homestead rebate. This includes tenants living in tax-exempt housing or other dwellings owned by State, County, Municipal, or Federal government; students living in on-campus apartments at State colleges and universities; and tenants living in dwellings owned by religious, charitable, or other nonprofit organizations (including on-campus apartments at private nonprofit colleges and universities) if the property is exempt from local property taxes. These tenants are not eligible even if payments in lieu of taxes are made by the buildings' owners.

Tenants living in privately owned apartment complexes where the owners make payments in lieu of taxes are also not eligible for the rebate.

Some tenants live in buildings that are subject to property taxes but part of their rent is subsidized. Those tenants are eligible for rebates if they meet the other qualifications. For rebate purposes, their rent is the actual amount paid out-of-pocket.

Questions regarding abatement agreements, in lieu of property tax payments, or exemptions from property taxes should be directed to the local tax collector or, for tenants, to their landlord.

For more information on qualifying for a homestead rebate, request Tax Topic Bulletin HR-2, Homestead Rebate Guidelines. Publications are available on the Division of Taxation's Web site at www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/ or by calling the Forms Request System at 1-800-323-4400 (Touch-tone phones within New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Delaware) or 609-826-4400 (anywhere). □ quired). Those who register at the door will be required to pay a $100 fee. In order to qualify for the lower remittances, payment must be received no later than one week before the scheduled seminar. There will be no refunds, however, you can reschedule for another location. The locations, dates, and registration form appear on the next page. □

Small Business Workshops

The format of the Small Business Workshops for the fall 2002 season has been modified. These seminars will now be half-day sessions conducted by Division of Taxation personnel and will cover only topics related to State taxes.

The workshops will concentrate on business registration, the tax consequences of differing forms of business, sales and use tax, employer responsibilities, and estimating State personal income taxes for the self-employed. Several shorter "update" seminars have also been scheduled to keep more experienced business owners and their representatives current on changing tax laws and procedures.

The majority of sponsoring agencies for the seminars continue to be the Small Business Development Centers. Strategically located throughout New Jersey, most often within State and county colleges, these centers play host to a plethora of free and low-cost group seminars. They also provide one-on-one support to small businesses, helping them meet the many challenges they face.

LOCAL PROPERTY TAXPAMS Update

The Division of Taxation is currently working on the RFP (Request for Proposal) for the new Property Assessment and Management System (PAMS). The new system will replace the State's current MOD IV batch system and individual vendor municipal applications with a fully integrated Web transaction system, which will perform the same tasks, but provide additional functionality and incorporate new technologies.

An RFI (Request for Information) was issued in September of 2000, to acquire a comprehensive system for local property assessment and tax administration. Subsequently, the Division worked with the Assessors' Association, County Boards of Taxation, Department of Community Affairs, and the New Jersey State League of Municipalities to formulate the requirements of the new system. There were 17 committees, which were comprised of representatives from the groups listed above. There were three types of committees:

NJ TaxTalk Service Updated

The Division of Taxation recently updated the TaxTalk portion of its Automated Tax Information System (ATIS) by assigning each TaxTalk topic a unique 3-digit identification code. The Division hopes that this enhancement will make TaxTalk easier and more convenient than ever to use. TaxTalk is the portion of ATIS that provides prerecorded information to callers on a variety of New Jersey tax topics and affords them the opportunity to request written information on certain topics.

TaxTalk is available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Select the 3-digit topic number you want to hear. Then call our Automated Tax Information System from a Touch-tone phone at 1-800-323-4400 within New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland or 1-609-826-4400 anywhere. We recommend that you have paper and pencil available to take notes.

Informal Appeal Form SR-6

Just as the SR-1A Form communicates assessment-sales data for possible inclusion in the sales ratio program, the SR-6 Form is designed as a communication tool to aid the assessor in requesting changes to the sales data which appear on various grantor listings. It also serves to provide a means for the Local Property Branch to respond to those requests. Because changes requested can range from simple corrections of minor errors to changes in a sale's usability, it is considered an informal appeal.

For a sale to be correctly identified, the information regarding it must be entered in the top portion of the SR-6 Form in the appropriate spaces, as it appears on the grantor listing, along with the changes requested. All existing data elements must be shown on the form as well as the changes requested. Thorough and concise explanations of the requested changes and the reasons for the changes are mandatory. Accurate completion of Form SR-6 is vital.

In cases where a sale's usability is to be changed to nonusable, merely citing a nonusable code number is not sufficient basis for a change. Assessors can ensure that sales they believe to be nonusable under category 7 are correctly verified by setting forth proper and thorough data on the SR-6. This data includes the nature of the improvement, the approximate cost, the time in which the improvement was made, and the source of the information. When requesting nonusable category 6, "sales of property conveying only a portion of the assessed unit, usually referred to as apportionments," a copy of the deed and subdivision approval should accompany the SR-6 request.

When a sale is not deemed to be a transaction between a willing buyer and a willing seller and is not specified in the enumerated categories on the list as set forth in nonusable category 26 (commonly referred to as the "catchall" category), the assessor should indicate with a detailed explanation the reason for the exclusion of the sale. One such instance would be the sale of real property whose assessed value is considered to be under "The Freeze Act." Accompanying the SR-6 request should be a copy of the appropriate county tax board or tax court judgment.

Supporting information for each of the nonusable categories must conform to that cited in Exhibit X-9 in the Handbook for New Jersey

Assessors. Supporting documentation, including (but not limited to) the names and phone numbers of individuals able to independently verify the relevant facts of the sale, will enhance the likelihood of expeditious processing of the SR-6. Either an assessor or his representative must sign each submitted SR-6.

It should also be noted that an SR-6 submitted with little or no substantiating information will be automatically rejected. An accurate Table of Equalized Valuations requires correct data at every step of the process. Assessors are requested to submit Form SR-6 when a sale first appears on a listing rather than waiting for the end of the sampling period. By following these few simple steps, the assessor can achieve maximum benefit from the SR-6 informal appeal process and avoid the great expenditure of time and effort and the legal costs of a more formal appeal. □

Criminal Enforcement over the past several months included:

- On January 31, 2002, a State Grand Jury handed down an indictment of Buddy Motors, Inc. and Donna L. Burke as President of the corporation on charges arising from the operation of a now-defunct used car business in Burlington, New Jersey. The six-count indictment charges the defendants with failing to file sales tax returns and the failure to turn over sales tax collected. Two of the counts, theft by failure to make required disposition of property received and misapplication of entrusted property, are 2nd degree offenses based on the collection of $227,242.86 in sales tax and the failure to remit the monies to the Division of Taxation. Donna L. Burke, of Toms River, faces a presumptive seven-year period of incarceration if convicted of a 2nd degree offense.
- On February 4, 2002, Christopher Grungo, Burlington, New Jersey, was remanded to the custody of the New Jersey Department of Corrections. Mr. Grungo previously pled guilty to a 2nd degree count of racketeering based on count 3 of the indictment, misapplication of entrusted property - $798,184.88 (Federal Motor Fuels Excise Tax) and count 4, misapplication of entrusted property - $158,842.76 (New Jersey Petroleum Products Gross Receipts Tax). Mr. Grungo was also ordered to make restitution to the State of New Jersey and the Federal Government. Mr. Grungo, owner and President of the defunct Noble Oil Co., Vincentown, New Jersey, arranged for the purchase of tax-free #2 home heating oil from two Pennsylvania companies. A third company transported the oil directly to gas stations and truck stops throughout the State of New Jersey as #2 diesel fuel oil. Mr. Grungo utilized the "Daisy Chain" tax evasion scheme to evade almost $1,000,000 in State and Federal motor fuels taxes on approximately 3.9 million gallons of diesel fuel in approximately six months. This prosecution was the result of a joint investigation by the Division of Criminal Justice-Environmental Crimes Unit and the Office of Criminal Investigation.
- On February 20, 2002, Asif Hafeez was found guilty in Canadian Provincial Court for violation of their Export/Import Act relative to the exportation of pseudoephedrine from Canada to the U.S.A. After his conviction, Mr. Hafeez was then arrested by Immigration Canada and is still in custody in Thunder Bay, Ontario, Canada. Mr. Hafeez is awaiting extradition to New Jersey based on cigarette tax related indictments.
- On March 5, 2002, U.S. Customs seized 100 cartons of unstamped Winston cigarettes (U.S. manufacture) at Newark International Airport. The cigarettes were inbound from Panama and consigned to a Pennsylvania resident. U.S. Customs contacted the subject who declined to take possession. The Office of Criminal Investigation took possession of the contraband, and the Pennsylvania Department of Revenue liaison was notified for their investigation.
- On March 13, 2002, the Monmouth County Grand Jury indicted Larry Barasch, owner of Great Feeling Spas, Inc. of Marlboro, New Jersey, for tax evasion. Mr. Barasch was charged with two 2nd degree crimes for failure to turn over taxes collected and theft by failure to make required disposition. It is alleged that over $600,000 was stolen from customers by accepting deposits and not fulfilling orders and that $255,401 in sales tax was collected over the period of January 1998 through December 2001 and not turned over to the Division of Taxation.
- On March 15, 2002, Mr. Pushpinder Singh Cheema, Sayreville, New Jersey, entered guilty pleas on behalf of his corporation, Saddle River Dot Com, Inc., for failure to obtain a New Jersey gasoline license and failure to obtain a New Jersey retail dealer's cigarette license and was fined. On March 26, 2002, Mr. Cheema entered guilty pleas on behalf of another of his corporations, Speedway, Inc., for failure to obtain a New Jersey gasoline license, failure to obtain a New Jersey retail dealer's cigarette license, and failure to withhold New Jersey gross income tax from the wages of employees. This corporation, too, was fined.
- On March 18, 2002, Antonio J. Couso of Wayne, New Jersey,

was arrested by the Office of Criminal Investigation, with the assistance of the Maywood Police Department, while in the process of delivering thirty-two (32) cartons of cigarettes bearing counterfeit New Jersey revenue stamps to a gas station in Maywood, Bergen County. Mr. Couso was charged with a 3rd degree possession of counterfeit stamped cigarettes, 4th degree sale of untaxed cigarettes, disorderly persons charge of transporting untaxed cigarettes, and related 3rd degree and disorderly persons offenses. The counterfeit stamped cigarettes, Mr. Couso's 1997 Plymouth minivan, and $6,765.27 in U.S. currency were seized. To date, 384.2 cartons of counterfeit stamped cigarettes have been seized from retailers identified as customers of Mr. Couso. The continuing investigation was initiated based on information developed by the Maywood Police Department.

- On March 18, 2002, a Federal Grand Jury in the Eastern District of Virginia indicted Abdelnase A. Saramah of North Bergen, New Jersey, on one (1) count of conspiracy and one (1) count of trafficking in contraband cigarettes. As a result of a joint investigation with the New Jersey State Police, the Office of Criminal Investigation arrested Mr. Saramah in Secaucus, New Jersey, in possession of 304 cartons of Virginia and New York stamped cigarettes. Interview of the subject at the time of the arrest disclosed a long-term activity in cigarette trafficking. This investigation was referred to the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Virginia under the Federal Contraband Cigarette Trafficking Act. This Federal indictment is the result of Taxation's participation in a Joint Federal and State Task Force to combat the smuggling of cigarettes from lower taxed southern states to higher taxed northern states.

- On March 19, 2002, Keith Edwards, trading as Omacee's of Passaic, New Jersey, was found guilty of possession of untaxed goods, no invoices, and no consumer license after his arrest by the Office of Criminal Investigation for receiving a shipment of unstamped/untaxed cigarettes from a New York-based Indian reservation cigarette supplier. The Court imposed a total of $3,465 in fines, fees, and costs.
- On March 27, 2002, An Zhong Jiang of Camden, New Jersey, was found in possession of 289.5 cartons of Virginia stamped cigarettes. The Office of Criminal Investigation has charged Mr. Jiang with possession of untaxed goods, no invoices, no consumer license, and transportation of contraband cigarettes.
- On April 3, 2002, in Trenton, New Jersey, the State Grand Jury returned a six-count indictment against Marcus and Jennifer Solomon, charging one (1) count of filing a fraudulent 1999 New Jersey gross income tax return in which payroll expenses were knowingly overstated for their medical transportation business. In addition, the indictment charged health care claims fraud, Medicaid fraud, misconduct by a corporate official, and theft by deception of unemployment benefits. On June 25, 2002, the Solomons pled guilty to charges that they defrauded the Medicaid Program, the State Division of Taxation, and the New Jersey Department of Labor out of over $60,000 in Medicaid monies as part of a scheme designed to overcharge the Medicaid Program by submitting fraudulent claims for transporting Medicaid patients. The scheme included inflating the amount of mileage charges and billing Medicaid for services not rendered. This case was a joint investigation between the Office of Criminal Investigation and the New Jersey Office of Insurance Fraud Prosecutor.

- On April 5, 2002, in Superior Court, Union County, Elizabeth, New Jersey, Naum Raichel of Brooklyn, New York, was sentenced to two years probation and ordered to make restitution of $85,085.49 pursuant to his guilty plea of December 7, 2001, to a charge of failing to turn over motor fuels tax which he had collected between January 1997 and September 1998 in the operation of Gas R Us, Inc., a retail truckstop he owned in Elizabeth. This case is part of a joint investigation by OCI and the New Jersey State Police Organized Crime Unit, and was prosecuted by the State Attorney General's Office.
- On April 15, 2002, an officer of a wholesale motor fuels distributor entered a plea of guilty to failing to turn over petroleum products gross receipts tax

- (PGRT) collected, part of a total tax liability of $168,402.44. This is another case that is part of a joint investigation between OCI and the New Jersey State Police Organized Crime Unit. Substantial assistance was also received from the Audit Services Branch, Excise Tax Group. This case was prosecuted by the State Attorney General's Office.
- On April 26, 2002, Carol P. Nesbitt of Pennsauken, New Jersey, pled guilty to one (1) count of failure to file tax returns and failure to pay or turn over taxes. In addition, she pled guilty to counts involving theft by deception, forgery, and contempt. The guilty plea arose from a joint investigation with the Camden County Prosecutor's Office wherein it was determined that Ms. Nesbitt committed Medicare fraud, failed to file tax returns for a small business she owned, and failed to turn over sales tax collected from customers of the business. On June 14, 2002, Ms. Nesbitt was sentenced in Camden County to a total of 15 years incarceration. She will serve the sentences concurrently and be incarcerated for a period of four (4) years.
 - On April 29, 2002, Paula D. Jones of Bridgeton, New Jersey, pled guilty to one (1) count of theft by deception and one (1) count of falsifying records. The guilty plea arose from a joint investigation with the Cumberland County Prosecutor's Office wherein it was determined that Ms. Jones had filed fifty-six (56) fraudulent New Jersey homestead rebate applications and had received $15,318.40 in fraudulent rebates. On June 21, 2002, Ms. Jones was sentenced in Cumberland County to a five-year term of probation and restitution in the amount $15,318.40.
 - On May 16, 2002, the indictment by a State Grand Jury of Elvin Castillo, Elizabeth, New Jersey, was unsealed. Tax charges in the indictment are: one (1) count of filing a fraudulent 1997 New Jersey gross income tax return; three (3) counts of failure to file New Jersey gross income tax returns for the years 1998, 1999, and 2000; and four (4) counts of failure to pay over income taxes for the years 1997, 1998, 1999, and 2000. The investigation had determined that Mr. Castillo received funds totaling $488,892 through an insurance fraud scam over the years identified above. It was determined that these funds were never reported for New Jersey personal income tax purposes. Mr. Castillo was also indicted on various theft charges. This case was a joint investigation between the Office of Criminal Investigation and the State Division of Criminal Justice.
 - On May 16, 2002, Shravan Baile, the president of Best Liquors of Lakewood Inc., and Best Liquors of Lakehurst, Inc., together with the corporate entities, were indicted by a State Grand Jury on charges relating to the operation of two liquor stores. Mr. Baile and the corporations were indicted on a total of eight (8) counts involving theft by failure to make required disposition of property (two counts), misapplication of entrusted property (two counts) and failure to turn over sales tax (four counts). The charges arose from the failure of Mr. Baile and the corporations to turn over sales tax collected from the customers of the two liquor stores during the years 1997, 1998, and 1999. This case was referred to the Office of Criminal Investigation from the Division's Audit Activity liquor audit project regarding cash businesses. This case was presented to the Grand Jury by the State Division of Criminal Justice.
 - On May 20, 2002, Robert Berry, the owner of Transworld Transmission of New Providence, New Jersey, pled guilty to accusations of one (1) count of failure to file sales tax returns for the period of July 1997 through March 2000, and one (1) count of failure to pay over sales taxes that were collected but not remitted over the same period. The Office of Criminal Investigation has coordinated facets of this case with the California Board of Equalization Enforcement.

Corporation Business Tax

Certification of Inactivity with Form CBT-100 — The following advice was given in response to an inquiry concerning which corporations are eligible to file Schedule I, Certification of Inactivity, with Form CBT-100 corporation business tax return.

If a corporation is active for any part of the period covered by the return, all schedules and questions must be answered, unless permission to omit or substitute is indicated on the return form. Inactive corporations that during the period covered by the return did not conduct any business and did not have any income, receipts, or expenses, and did not own any assets, need only complete and submit the first page of the return, along with Schedule I, Certification of Inactivity. This certification applies to all business activities of the corporation, not just the corporation's activities in New Jersey. Therefore, a corporation authorized to do business in this State which has not operated in New Jersey during the taxable year is still required to file a New Jersey corporation business tax return if it had business activities in other states during the year in question.

LLC Electing Disregarded Entity Status — New Jersey filing requirements for a limited liability company (LLC) electing “disregarded entity status” depend on Federal tax treatment. The organization is treated the same for State purposes as it is for Federal purposes. N.J.S.A. 42:2B-69(b). If the single member of the LLC is considered a corporation for Federal purposes, the member corporation will be subject to New Jersey corporation business tax. Corporations are required to file a Form CBT-100 return. If the member is not recognized as a corporation for Federal purposes, income from the LLC will be reported as gross income on Form NJ-1040.

Taxability of BEIP Grants — A corporate taxpayer inquired as to the taxability of grants made under the Business Employment Incentive Program Act, N.J.S.A. 34:1B-124 et seq. The grant is calculated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 34:1B-129. The Division responded as follows:

First, if a grant is made to a C corporation, the grant is deemed a contribution to capital under provisions of the IRC 118 and IRC 362(c) which taken together are tantamount to a tax deferral. Under IRC 362(c) a corporation must reduce to zero the basis of property acquired as a contribution to capital. If a grant is in money, then property acquired with such money during the 12-month period beginning on the day the contribution is received shall be reduced by the amount of such contribution. The governmental grant is intended to produce indirect benefits to the general population.

Second, if the grant is received by a conduit-type entity like a partnership or Subchapter S corporation, the grant is to be “apportioned among the persons to whom the income or profit of the partnership, Subchapter S corporation, or other entity is distributed, in the same proportions as those in which the income or profit is distributed.” See definition of “business” in N.J.S.A. 34:1B-125. Under the Gross Income Tax Act, prizes and awards are taxable. N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1.1 except as provided in N.J.S.A. 54A:6-8 (scholarship and fellowship grants) and N.J.S.A. 54A:6-11 (winnings from the NJ lottery).

Gross Income Tax “Catch-up” Contributions to Retirement Plans — The Division responded to a question as to whether the New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act will include “catch-up” provisions enacted in the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001 (EGTRRA). The Federal legislation contains provisions to increase the limits on amounts that employees can contribute to 401(k), 403(b), SEP, SIMPLE, and 457 plans.

In regard to 401(k) “catch-up” contributions, any “catch-up” contributions are exempt from New Jersey income tax in the same amount as for Federal purposes. N.J.S.A. 54A: 6-21.

However, in regard to 403(b), SEP, SIMPLE, and 457 plans, the “catch-up” contributions are taxable because the New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act taxes contributions to these plans. The Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001, thus, will have no effect on these taxable contributions and these contributions will remain taxable.

Foreign Sponsored 529 Plans — The Division responded to a question regarding whether withdrawals from a New Hampshire sponsored 529 plan will be subject to New Jersey tax. For New Jersey gross income tax purposes, a qualified state tuition program is defined as one established under section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code. Presently, N.J.S.A. 54A:6-25 allows the earnings accumulating in a qualified state tuition program account to be deferred from New Jersey gross income. Upon distribution, any amounts that are used for higher education expenses (as defined under section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code) are then excluded from the taxpayer’s income. Therefore, if the other state’s plan is a qualified state tuition program as established under section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code, the earnings and any earnings withdrawn that are used for higher education expenses can be excluded from the taxpayer’s income.

IRA Yearly Maximum Contribution — The New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act does not contain any provisions similar to those in the Internal Revenue Code which permit an individual to deduct contributions to an IRA. Contributions to an IRA are subject to New Jersey income tax in the year they are made. When a withdrawal is made from an IRA account, the amount contributed is not taxable since the contributions were taxed at the time they were made.

Under the New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act, the only individual retirement plan to which contributions may be excluded from gross income is the 401(k) plan. N.J.S.A. 54A:6-21. Therefore, contributions to an IRA remain taxable and the new Federal law that raises the contribution limit to $3,000 does not apply.

Military Withholding, Forms DD-2058-1 and 2058-2 — Service personnel who meet the conditions for nonresident status in New Jersey must file Form DD-2058-1, State Income Tax Exemption Test Certificate, with their payroll or finance officer to stop New Jersey income tax from being withheld from military pay. Form DD-2058-1 is a U.S. Government form that is used as a basis for not withholding New Jersey income tax from military pay. This certificate should not be filed with the New Jersey Division of Taxation.

Form DD-2058-2 may be used by Native American servicemen and women claiming exemption from state income tax withholding on their service pay. The form requires an identification of the tribe to which the individual belongs and the name of the reservation or location in Indian Country claimed as the primary residence of the individual.

Litter Control Tax

Subjectivity of Photocopy Businesses — A taxpayer in the business of selling paper photocopies at retail to various businesses, primarily law firms, inquired about their subjectivity to the litter control tax for the years prior to 2001. The litter control tax terminated on December 31, 2000.

The Division replied that the Clean Communities and Recycling Act levied a litter control tax on all manufacturers, wholesalers, distributors, and retailers engaged in business in New Jersey. The tax is imposed on the gross receipts from sales of litter-generating products within the State. N.J.S.A. 13:1E-99.1a. Litter-generating products are defined in the Act at N.J.S.A. 13:1E-94e to include the following fifteen categories of products: (1) beer and other malt beverages, (2) cigarettes and tobacco products, (3) cleaning agents and toiletries, (4) distilled spirits, (5) food for human or pet consumption, (6) glass containers sold as such, (7) groceries, (8) metal containers sold as such, (9) motor vehicle tires, (10) newsprint and magazine paper stock, (11) nondrug drugstore sundry products, (12) paper products and household paper, (13) plastic or fiber containers made of synthetic material and sold as such, (14) soft drinks and carbonated waters, and (15) wine.

The “paper products” category is very broad and includes all items of tangible personal property made or substantially derived from paper. This category of litter-generating products would include all types of paper office supplies, stationery, business forms and photocopy paper. N.J.A.C. 18:38-3.1(b)12.

For years prior to 2001, all retail sellers of photocopy paper in New Jersey would be subject to the litter control tax if they meet any of the three conditions stated in N.J.A.C. 18:38-3.1(a). The first condition is that the litter-generating product is “produced, distributed or purchased in disposable containers, packages or wrapping...” It is the Division’s position that the taxpayer is distributing (selling) litter-generating products (paper photocopies) in disposable containers or packages.

Division of Taxation auditors verified by inspection that the taxpayer distributes the paper photocopies in cardboard boxes with lids, smaller cardboard boxes with folding flaps taped shut, and occasionally in boxes provided by the customer. No returnable, reusable containers are used. This constitutes a distribution of paper products “in disposable containers, packages or wrappings” thereby meeting the first condition of a sale of litter-generating products.

Based on the above, the taxpayer was subject to the New Jersey litter control tax for years prior to 2001.

Sales and Use Tax

Cable Television Programming Tapes or Discs — N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.18 exempts sales of tangible “visual or sound transcriptions” produced for use in “theaters and radio and television broadcasting stations or networks,” but not for advertising purposes. Although technically, cable transmission is not a “broadcast,” the Division construes this provision so as to exempt the sale of films, tapes, and CDs for use in cable television programming for subscriber viewing as well. To support the claimed exemption, the customer who is purchasing the tapes for use in cable television programming must execute a properly completed Form ST-4 (Exempt Use Certificate), citing N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.18 as the statutory basis for the exemption.

Nexus — Whether a person is required to collect sales and use tax in New Jersey depends on whether there is nexus with the State. “Nexus” is defined as some definite link, some minimum connection, between the state and the corporation it seeks to tax. Physical presence, beyond some de minimis level, triggers an obligation to collect sales and use tax. A business may also “volunteer” to collect tax if it has no contact with New Jersey or the existence of nexus is in doubt.

If a person has a place of business in New Jersey, has employees working in this State, or owns any business property here, such as a warehouse or showroom, there is a physical presence in New Jersey and the business must register and collect New Jersey sales tax on all taxable transactions. The term “employee” includes all salespersons, consultants, customer representatives, service or repair technicians, instructors, and delivery persons as well as independent representatives or solicitors.

The proper procedure to register with the State of New Jersey is to file a Business Registration application (Form NJ-REG) with the State. The application and filing instructions are available from the Division of Revenue’s Web site at: www.state.nj.us/njbgs/

Recalibration Services for Manufacturing Equipment — A recalibration service is a service for maintaining or servicing tangible personal property and is therefore taxable. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(2). The New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act provides an exemption for sales of machinery, apparatus, or equipment for use directly and primarily in the production of tangible personal property by manufacturing, processing, assembling, or refining. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.13(a). However, this exemption does not apply to services to such production equipment. The recalibration service is subject to New Jersey sales or use tax even if the equipment being calibrated was exempt at the time of purchase pursuant to the manufacturing exemption. □

Administration

Calculation of 90-Day Time Period to File Complaint – Heico Corporation v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided April 24, 2002; Tax Court No. 002638-2001.

The Division’s final determination regarding sales and use tax and corporate business tax assessments was dated and sent by certified mail on April 2, 2001, to the plaintiff and plaintiff’s representative. Return receipts indicate that the final determinations were received on April 9 and April 4, 2001, respectively. The final determination stated that taxpayer had 90 days from the date of the letter to appeal the Division’s decision to the Tax Court.

Certified mail receipts indicate that plaintiff mailed items to the Tax Court on June 30, 2001. Plaintiff’s complaint was stamped received by the Tax Court on July 3, 2001 at 2:39 p.m.

The Court found that the 90th day from the April 2, 2001, date of the final determination was July 1, 2001. However, July 1, 2001, was a Sunday. Therefore, the filing date was extended to July 2, 2001.

As filing occurs upon the Tax Court’s receipt of the complaint, the complaint was considered filed on July 3, 2001, one day late.

In its historical review of the legislation, rules of court, and case law concerning the calculation of the 90-day period to appeal final determinations, the Court acknowledged that in previous cases the rules of court were applied to determine whether the complaint was filed timely. More specifically, R. 8:42-2(a) and R. 1:5-4(b) essentially started calculating the 90-day period from receipt of registered or certified mail. Pursuant to these rules, this complaint would be considered timely filed. Furthermore, R. 1:3-3 granted plaintiff three extra days to file a complaint, which would extend the filing date to July 5, 2001, and therefore, plaintiff’s complaint would also be considered to be timely filed under this rule.

The Court found that R. 1:3-3 was revised. Previously this rule applied to service by mail, whether ordinary or certified. Effective September 1, 1996, this rule only applies where service is effectuated by ordinary mail. Consequently, this rule was found to be inapplicable here regardless of whether the rules of court apply because the April 2, 2001, final determination was delivered by certified mail.

Due to revisions to the rules of court and the statutes, the Court held that the rules of court no longer apply to the calculation of the 90-day period to appeal from the Division’s final determination. The Court opined that the specific repeal of N.J.S.A. 2A-3A-4.1 with its reference to the 90-day appeal period and reference to the rules of court and its replacement by N.J.S.A. 2B:13-1 to -15, which has no reference to the rules of court, was evidence that the rules of court no longer apply to the calculation of the 90-day period to appeal the Division's determinations. Furthermore, the amendment of N.J.S.A. 54:49-18(a) to state that the appeal period commences from the date of the Division's final determination letter without any reference to the rules of court was also found to be indicia that the rules of court do not apply to the calculation of the 90-day appeal period. The Court noted that when a complaint may be filed is a matter of jurisdiction as opposed to a matter of practice and procedure. Finding that the date of the final determination is the date the notice was mailed to the taxpayer, the Court ruled that the 90-day period commences on the date of the mailing and that the Division has the burden of establishing that date.

Motion For Reconsideration – Heico Corporation v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided April 24, 2002; Tax Court No. 002638-2001.

On the motion date, plaintiff was not represented by legal counsel due to its failure to secure one after three notices. Plaintiff did not file any papers in opposition to the Division's motion. The motion was treated as uncontested and the Court dismissed the complaint as untimely filed.

Returning with legal counsel, plaintiff filed a motion for reconsideration. The Court granted the motion in the interest of justice because it did not consider plaintiff's legal arguments when rendering its determination.

Responsible Person – Shellscape Decorating, LLC v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided September 7, 2001; Tax Court No. 004109-2000.

The Division issued responsible person notices for sales tax liabilities to the husband and wife who each controlled 50% of the company. These liabilities were initially estimated due to the company's failure to file tax returns. Plaintiff claims that the returns were not filed through no fault of their own because they hired a management company to run the business and prepare and file the sales tax returns.

The Court found that the testimony indicated that the wife was knowledgeable in the area of accounting and related matters; had previously worked as an accountant; was the designated tax partner; and that she ran the shop, making most of the day-to-day operating decisions. The husband was found to be a sophisticated, knowledgeable businessman and a passive investor who was actively employed at another business. Both husband and wife signed or cosigned loans for the company. Although both had the authority to sign checks, the husband never exercised his authority.

The Court ruled that for sales tax purposes the wife was a responsible person of the business but that the husband was not. Although the husband had the authority to act, the Court ruled that authority alone was insufficient to classify him as a responsible person. The Court emphasized that there must be a duty to act.

Plaintiff also argued for abatements of interest and penalty claiming that the wife was a resident of a state that did not have a sales tax system and that a management company was engaged to prepare and file the sales tax returns. The Court ruled that interest would not be abated because it is a statutory definition of the time value of money to compensate for late payment. Penalties were not abated because penalties serve the purpose of acting as a deterrent to those who do not file their tax returns. Furthermore, the contractual relationship formed with the management company does not absolve the company and the responsible persons from their sales tax obligations.

Responsible Person – David Lee v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided January 11, 2002; Tax Court No. 001156-2001.

Plaintiff was the sole officer of the corporation Exterior Power Sweeping (EPS). EPS ceased business operations in September 1989. In 1991, the Division assessed sales and use tax against the corporation for the period October 1, 1983, to June 30, 1989. Sales and use tax returns were not timely filed with the Division for that period nor were they filed thereafter. EPS protested the assessment and the Division issued a Final Determination in 1993. EPS filed a complaint with Tax Court that vacated the assessment in 1997. The Division appealed

and the Appellate Division reinstated the assessment on April 30, 1999. On May 21, 1999, the Division issued a Notice of Finding of Responsible Person Status to Mr. Lee for the sales and use tax liabilities of EPS.

Plaintiff did not really dispute that he is a responsible person of EPS; however, plaintiff claimed that the responsible person notice was inequitable and barred by either laches or estoppel, or both. The Court would not set aside the assessment on the basis of laches or estoppel. The Court found that plaintiff is chargeable with knowledge of the statutes and his admitted actual knowledge renders less forceful his equitable arguments. Plaintiff did not demonstrate detrimental reliance on any action or inaction of the Division and failed to demonstrate that the Division deferred sending the responsible person notice to plaintiff so that interest would accrue. Furthermore, there is a general reluctance of the courts to grant estoppel against a public official entity.

Plaintiff also claimed that the May 21, 1999, responsible person notice was untimely due to the three-year statute of limitation period. Although no returns were ever filed, plaintiff alleges that the providing of information to the Division during the audit was a de facto filing of those returns. The Court rejected the theory of de facto filing. However, the Court stated that even if it accepted de facto filing, the statute did not limit the time period to collect taxes from the responsible person that were determined to be due within three years of the alleged de facto filing date.

Plaintiff filed a motion for reconsideration that was denied on February 22, 2002. Thereafter, plaintiff appealed the Tax Court's decision to the Appellate Division.

Time Period to File Complaint – James Liapakis v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided April 27, 2001; Tax Court No. 004298-2000.

The Division's final determination upholding the Division's gross income tax assessment was dated August 18, 2000, and mailed by certified mail on the same date. Therefore, the statutory 90-day period to file the complaint would end on November 16, 2000. Plaintiff's appeal with the Tax Court was filed on November 17, 2000. Plaintiff stated that Rule 1:3-3 of the Rules of Court, which grants three additional days to file the complaint, was inapplicable because the final determination was not sent by ordinary mail. However, plaintiff argued that the complaint is timely because the starting date for the running of the 90-day period is the date of service, August 21, 2000, per Rules 1:5-4 and 8:4-2.

The Court ruled that the Rules of Court could not be incorporated to determine or extend the statutory time period to file the complaint as the Rules relied upon applied when the parties were already in court. Therefore, the Court dismissed the complaint as untimely. The Court reasoned that the 1992 changes in the Uniform Procedure Law were the basis to distinguish the pre-1992 cases of Harris, Pennoyer, and Holmdel from the current case, that was filed after 1992.

Plaintiff appealed the Tax Court's decision. However, the appeal was dismissed because plaintiff failed to file a timely brief. (See James Liapakis v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided March 18, 2002; Appellate Division No. 005341-00TS.)

Time Period to File Complaint – Richard and Charlotte Bingham v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided October 12, 2001; Tax Court No. 002303-2001.

Plaintiff received the Division's Final Determination concerning the Division's gross income tax assessment. On June 19, 2000, plaintiff mailed a complaint to the Tax Court. The Tax Court received the complaint on June 21, 2000. Both parties agreed that the complaint must be filed by June 20; however, plaintiff argued that the date of mailing should be considered the date the complaint was filed.

Plaintiff's complaint was dismissed as untimely because the Legislature imposed a 90-day limit for filing the complaint with the Tax Court. The Court stated that the filing date of the complaint is the date the complaint is received by the Tax Court. The Court also relied on Liapakis.

Time Period to File Complaint – Martin Meyers v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided October 29, 2001; Tax Court No. 002022-2001.

The Division's January 26, 2001, Final Determination finding that plaintiff was a responsible person for gross income tax purposes was sent by certified mail on the same date. Plaintiff's appeal was filed on April 30, 2001. Both parties agreed that the statutory 90-day period to file the complaint ended on April 26, 2001. However, plaintiff claims the complaint is timely because he is entitled to three additional days to file the complaint pursuant to Rules of Court 8:4-2 and 1:3-3, which would include April 30 as April 29 fell on a Sunday.

In holding that the complaint was filed timely under Rules of Court 1:3-3, the Court respectfully disagreed with the Liapakis decision. The Court reasoned that the 1992 change in the Uniform Procedure Law would not affect the pre-1992 cases of Harris, Pennoyer, and Holmdel because N.J.S.A. 54:51A-18 is the same and refers to the use of the Rules of Court.

Time Period to File Complaint – Portuguese Spanish Palace Corp., Maria Freitas, Anthony Freitas, Fernando Brito, and Elizabeth Brito v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided April 17, 2002; Tax Court No. 002060-2001.

The Division issued Portuguese Spanish Palace Corp. (PSP) a Notice of Assessment Related to Final Audit Determination (Notice of Assessment) on June 19, 2000. On November 28, 2000, the Division issued PSP a Notice and Demand for Payment (Demand) and issued the individual plaintiffs a Notice of Finding of Responsible Person Status. Plaintiffs' accountant sent a letter dated February 12, 2001, requesting a hearing with respect to audits of the taxpayer with no reference to the individual plaintiffs. By letter dated February 22, 2001, the Division denied the request for a hearing and stated that the taxpayer had 90 days to appeal this determination to Tax Court. Ninety-two days later, on May 25, 2001, PSP and the individual plaintiffs filed a complaint in Tax Court.

As to PSP, the Court dismissed the complaint holding that the February 12, 2001, request for a hearing was beyond the statutory 90-day period to protest the June 19, 2000, Notice of Assessment. Furthermore, the Demand notice neither granted new appeal rights nor extended PSP's time period to file a protest or request for hearing from the Notice of Assessment.

As to the individual plaintiffs, the Court found that plaintiffs' February 12, 2001, request for a hearing did not incorporate or even refer to the individual plaintiffs as the letter stated it was requesting a hearing concerning the audits of the taxpayer. Consequently, the Court dismissed the complaint as untimely as it was beyond the 90-day time period to file a complaint of the Notice of Finding of Responsible Person Status.

Time Period to File Complaint – Raymond Zola v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided February 8, 2002; Tax Court No. 002233-2001.

The Division issued and mailed a final determination on March 2, 2001. Plaintiff received the final determination on March 7, 2001. About 9:30 p.m. on May 31, 2001, plaintiff e-mailed the Division a request for information. On June 1, 2001, plaintiff sent a letter to the Tax Court Clerk essentially requesting forms and information. The Tax Court Clerk recognized the filing date as June 18, 2001.

The Tax Court dismissed plaintiff's complaint as untimely, ruling that the 90-day statutory period began on March 2, 2001, and ended on May 31, 2001. Plaintiff claimed that Court Rule 1:5-4(b) stated that delivery is upon acceptance for certified mail and therefore the June 1, 2001, filing was within time. The Court opined that the court rules no longer apply due to the repeal of N.J.S.A. 2A:3A-4.1, which tied the 90-day jurisdiction period to appeal to the court rules. (See Heico Corporation v. Director, Division of Taxation, above).

Corporation Business Tax

Nonprofit Corporations – Sussex Rural Electric Cooperative v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided March 27, 2002; Tax Court No. 001790-2000.

Plaintiff claims it is a not-for-profit corporation and therefore is exempt from corporation business tax (CBT) even though it was organized as a for-profit, Title 14A corporation. Under its certificate of incorporation, there was language indicating that it was a not-for-profit corporation. The Court held that the corporation was not eligible for exemption from CBT under N.J.S.A. 54:10A-3(e) because it was organized as a for-profit, Title 14A corporation. The Court stated that tax consequences flow from the form in which the taxpayer elects to do business.

Pre-Merger Net Operating Losses – A.H. Robins Company, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided February 21, 2002; Tax Court No. 005682-95.

A.H. Robbins (Old Robins) was incorporated in Virginia and filed

New Jersey corporation business tax (CBT) returns. After facing liability claims on its Dalkon Shield product, it filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy. In December 1989, American Home Products Corporation (AHP) acquired Old Robins by structuring a merger of Old Robins into "New Robins" pursuant to the approved plan of reorganization. AHP paid approximately $2 million to New Robins and became the sole shareholder. The business address of New Robins remained the same as that of Old Robins; however, New Robins was incorporated in Delaware. In the subsequent years following the merger, New Robins sought to deduct pre-merger net operating losses (NOL) incurred by Old Robins.

The Tax Court held that New Robins could not utilize the NOL incurred by Old Robins prior to the merger. The Court dismissed all of plaintiff's arguments. First, the Court ruled that there was nothing in the Bankruptcy Code that preempted the CBT statutes regarding post-reorganizational income tax liabilities of a nondebtor entity noting that New Robins was not the debtor entitled to Bankruptcy Code protections. Secondly, the Court found that N.J.A.C. 18:7-5.13 makes clear that an NOL may not be carried over by a taxpayer that changes its state of incorporation. The Court relied on Richards Auto City where the New Jersey Supreme Court rejected the theory that continuing the same business is a persuasive factor justifying the recognition of the tax status of the merged corporation. Although Federal tax law permits the survivor of a merger to utilize the NOL, the CBT Act deals with single corporations and not two or more successive corporations.

A.H. Robins has appealed the Tax Court's decision to the Appellate Division.

Regular Place of Business – River Systems, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided December 21, 2001; Tax Court No. 5627-1999; Rubachem International, LTD. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided December 21, 2001; Tax Court, No. 5628-1999; and Rubachem, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided December 21, 2001; Tax Court No. 5629-1999.

The three plaintiffs are organized as New Jersey C corporations and share an office in New Jersey where all their administrative activities are performed. They are all separate companies and therefore each files a separate corporation business tax (CBT) return. River Systems and Rubachem, Inc. market and sell computer-related products and light bulbs while Rubachem International markets and sells industrial and commercial cleaning products and light bulbs.

General Litesearch, Inc. (Litesearch), a related but separate company, employees solicit sales on behalf of the three plaintiffs from a leased New York office building. When Litesearch solicits a sale, the Litesearch employee enters the information into a computer. The relevant plaintiff receives the information in New Jersey and arranges for the shipping of the item. Some products are shipped from the New Jersey location; however, most products are primarily drop-shipped by unrelated, third-party manufacturers. No products are shipped from the New York location. Customer payments are remitted directly to the relevant plaintiff at the New Jersey office. The revenues as well as losses, if payment is not remitted, from the sale of products made by Litesearch employees are the income or accounts receivable of the plaintiff whose products are sold.

Although Litesearch pays the payroll expenses of the employees at the New York location, Litesearch is reimbursed by the plaintiff for each employee who sells its product. Litesearch also has employees on its payroll that work out of plaintiffs' New Jersey location. Litesearch's supervision and management personnel oversee all employees at the New York location and their payroll costs are charged to the individual plaintiffs based upon sales volume. There is no written contract describing the payroll reimbursement arrangement.

The New York office building that Litesearch operates from is owned by Lemar Investment Company (Lemar), also a related but separate company. The plaintiffs pay a fixed amount for rent and one plaintiff pays for the other building costs, such as utilities, to Lemar. Both amounts are allocated to plaintiffs at the end of the year based upon each plaintiff's sales volume. Each plaintiff is charged for telephone usage per the specific calls made on behalf of each plaintiff. However, there is no written contract describing this arrangement nor is there a lease providing for rent.

Plaintiffs claim that they are entitled to allocate their income between New Jersey and New York. New York accepted plaintiffs' amended returns allocating income between New York and New Jersey.

The Court held that plaintiffs were not entitled to allocate income to New York in the computation of the CBT under N.J.S.A. 54:10A-6 because they did not maintain a regular place of business outside of New Jersey. In order for an office to qualify as a "regular place of business," the taxpayer must own or rent the facility in its own name, maintain it and be directly responsible for the expenses incurred, and occupy and use the premises by employing at least one regular employee who is in attendance during normal working hours. Although plaintiffs paid rent at the New York location, there was no written lease that provided for the rent payments and therefore it was not certain whether the payments were made on behalf of Litesearch or plaintiffs. The Court determined that none of the Litesearch employees at the New York location were regular employees of any of the plaintiffs. A regular employee is defined as one who is under the control and direction of the employer. The fact that plaintiffs reimbursed Litesearch for the actual cost of each telemarketer who made sales on its behalf did not qualify the telemarketer as an employee of the plaintiff. Moreover, there was no written contract concerning this reimbursement arrangement. Citing Shelter Development Corp., the Court ruled the activities of a related corporation cannot be attributed to the New Jersey corporation at issue.

The Court also held that plaintiffs were not entitled to allocate income under N.J.S.A. 54:10A-6 through N.J.S.A. 54:10A-8 because the allocation factor properly reflects income attributable to New Jersey. Section Eight grants the Division discretion to make adjustments to properly reflect net income attributable to New Jersey where the allocation factor does not. The Court found that plaintiffs had no employees and no property anywhere other than New Jersey.

Plaintiffs have appealed the Tax Court's decision to the Appellate Division.

Insurance Premiums Tax

Retaliatory Tax – Aetna v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided March 18, 2002; Tax Court No. 002371-2001.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 17B:23-5, New Jersey imposes a retaliatory tax on foreign life and health insurance companies. In general, paragraph a of this statute provides that the retaliatory tax is calculated by comparing the taxes and other financial obligations imposed in New Jersey on a foreign insurance company doing business in New Jersey with the taxes and other financial obligations that would be imposed on the foreign insurance company in its home state. Therefore, if the taxes and other financial obligations imposed by New Jersey are lower than the taxes and other financial obligations that would be imposed by the foreign insurance company's home state, then New Jersey would collect the difference as retaliatory tax. However, paragraph b of this statute provides that the special purpose obligations or assessments imposed by the foreign insurance company's home state shall not be considered in the calculation.

In calculating the amount of the retaliatory tax, the issue was whether the statute requires that the New Jersey side of the equation include both taxes and special purpose assessments or obligations whereas the insurance company's home state's side of the equation only include taxes, or whether the purpose of the retaliatory tax requires that both sides be symmetrical.

The Court held that the statute was clear on its face and that by its express language only the insurance company's home state's side of the equation would not include special purpose assessments or obligations imposed by the home state. In support of its decision, the Court relied on the legislative history of another insurance-based retaliatory tax statute N.J.S.A. 17:32-15, that there was no agency regulation, ruling, publication, or public notice indicating the agency's position, and a Florida case with a similar statute. Furthermore, the Court reasoned that the Legislature could have rationally and reasonably determined this result because it might encourage other states to perform a similar computation as to New Jersey life and health insurance companies engaged in business in their state and thus reduce the New Jersey company's retaliatory tax liability in those states.

No appeal was filed by the State.

Local Property Tax

NJ SAVER Rebate: Eligible Resident – Joel Cooper v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided

November 14, 2001; Tax Court No. 004436-2001.

The Division denied plaintiff's application for the NJ SAVER rebate for the tax year 2000 because plaintiff's home is titled in the name of a corporation. Plaintiff is the 100% shareholder, resides in the home at issue with his six-year-old son, and neither owns nor pays rent on any other real estate. Plaintiff testified that the house was titled in corporate name so that a lien could not be placed on the house due to judgments against him for outstanding liabilities.

The Court found that although N.J.S.A. 54:4-8.58b.e allowed an NJ SAVER rebate for eligible residents where the properties were titled in the name of a partnership, guardian, trustee, committee, conservator, or other fiduciary for any individual, the statutes neither specifically included nor excluded properties titled in the corporate name.

Finding that the purpose of the NJ SAVER rebate is to provide relief to residents from local property taxes on their principal residence, the Court held that plaintiff was entitled to the rebate reasoning that the spirit and intent of the NJ SAVER program justified the rebate in this case. However, the Court made clear that its holding should not be construed to mean that every individual who holds property through a corporation is entitled to the NJ SAVER rebate.

The Division appealed this decision.

Sales & Use Tax

Scope of the Agreement –

Boardwalk Regency Corp. and Adamar of New Jersey v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided November 9, 2001; Tax Court Nos. 006294-96 and 007935-96.

Pursuant to a closing agreement entered into between plaintiff and the Director, Division of Taxation: "No sales or use tax will be imposed in the provision of complimentary meals or complimentary liquor effective January 1, 1986. For purposes of this amended agreement, 'complimentary meals' shall mean any transaction where the patron is not required to pay any cash consideration or any portion of a price (including any possible sales tax) of food or (non-alcoholic) beverage."

This case is on remand from the Appellate Division where it questioned whether the agreement and specifically the term "provision of complimentary meals" excludes the imposition of sales and use tax on either both plaintiffs' purchase of nonalcoholic beverages and subsequent complimentary transfer to its patrons or only the complimentary transfer to its patrons.

The Court referred to another Appellate Division decision involving this same closing agreement that concerned the taxability of alcoholic rather than non-alcoholic complimentary drinks. (See GNOC Corp. v. Director, Division of Taxation, 328 N.J. Super. 467 (App. Div. 2000)). There the definition of the word "provision" was not at issue to the holding because alcohol was subject only to a wholesale tax at that time and the issue concerned whether the imposition of the retail tax on alcohol superseded the agreement. However, the Court found that the Appellate Division resolved the issue of the meaning of the word "provision" by stating that the term "provision" of complimentary alcoholic beverages precludes a tax on the purchase of the alcoholic beverages that are complimentary provided to its patrons. Furthermore, the Court found that the Appellate Division specifically disagreed with the Tax Court's reasoning that to preclude both the tax on purchase and complimentary transfer would result in a transaction unfavorable to the State and therefore an improper closing agreement because the Director has broad discretion to enter into such agreements. Therefore, the Court held that plaintiff was not subject to sales or use tax on either its purchase or complimentary transfer of nonalcoholic beverages.

The Division filed an interlocutory appeal that was accepted by the Appellate Division. □

In Our Legislature

Cape May Tourism Sales Tax Tourism Development District Levies — P.L. 2002, c.72 (signed into law on August 14, 2002) authorizes new, and broadens existing, tourism development district levies; revises the uses to which current tourism levies may be put; and allows the Greater Wildwood Tourism Improvement and Development Authority (Authority) to engage in broader tourism marketing efforts.

Under the Act, municipalities in the tourism development district are authorized to impose, in addition to the existing retail receipts tax, a 1.85% tourism assessment on hotel room rentals (including motels, boarding houses, and other transient accommodations). The tourism assessment will be administered by the Division of Taxation and will be collected concurrently with the existing tax on predominantly tourism-related retail receipts.

Proceeds from the assessment will be deposited into a separate fund within the State Department of the Treasury for use by the Authority to pay for certain services provided by a municipality in which a tourism project is located, fund tourism development activities related to the operation and maintenance of public beaches, and support tourism advertisement and promotion.

Additionally, the law removes the current $1,000-per-business limit on tourism development fees and extends these fees to renters of lodgings that are not currently subject to the State sales and use tax; removes bars and restaurants from the category of businesses allowed to offset their tourism development fees by the amount of any tax collected on predominantly tourism-related retail receipts; and exempts businesses that pay the tourism development fee or the tourism assessment from any future State or county room tax, tourism tax, beach fee, or similar tax on tourism-related business.

Finally, the law allows businesses outside of the tourism district to enter into marketing partnerships with the tourism authority. If the businesses agree to make the same payments to the tourism authority that are made by businesses in the tourism district, they can participate in the same marketing services and programs that the Authority provides to businesses in the district.

This law took effect immediately.

Cigarette Tax

Rate Increases — P.L. 2002, c.33 (signed into law on July 1, 2002) increases the cigarette tax from $0.04 to $0.075 per cigarette (from $.80 to $1.50 per pack of 20) effective July 1, 2002.

Corporation Business Tax

Business Tax Reform Act — P.L. 2002, c.40 (signed into law on July 2, 2002) reforms the Corporation Business Tax Act and other relevant sections of law to ensure that corporations and other business entities bear a fair share of the tax burden. The legislation closes numerous loopholes that had allowed profitable companies to reduce their taxable New Jersey income by shifting income to affiliated corporations outside the State and developing expenses to reduce income within the State.

Chapter 40 creates an Alternative Minimum Assessment (AMA) (i.e., tax on either gross profits or gross receipts, at the taxpayer's election) designed to ensure that companies are taxed on the true level of economic activity in New Jersey in situations where the traditional "taxable income" measure is not an accurate gauge of such activity.

The statute also provides several new tax advantages to small businesses, eliminates the savings institution and corporation income taxes, and incorporates the features of these taxes into the corporation business tax. It also facilitates tracking of the income of entities such as partnerships, which do not pay taxes but, instead, distribute income to their members, the eventual taxpayers.

Other provisions of Chapter 40 decrease tax benefits for investment companies; suspend the use of certain net operating losses for two years; disallow the deduction of interest payments made to related parties; and accelerate fourth quarter estimated payments for large taxpayers. More complex changes regarding calculations have been introduced to decrease the impact of the reform act on groups of related corporations. These include a cap on the amount of receipts "thrown back" to New Jersey and a cap on the total Alternative Minimum Assessment.

This act took effect immediately and applies to privilege periods and taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 2002, provided however, that section 26 shall apply to privilege periods ending after June 30, 1984.

Estate Tax

Tax Computation Changed — P.L. 2002, c.31 (signed into law on July 1, 2002) provides that the New Jersey estate tax is to be computed either according to the terms of the Federal estate tax in effect on December 31, 2001, or, at the election of the person responsible for filing the estate tax return, by using a simplified system to be developed by the Director of the Division of Taxation. This preserves the New Jersey estate tax as the Federal credit on which it is based is phased out. The law makes the property of New Jersey estates subject to State tax liens. It also repeals sections of the existing law which provided for (1) the voiding of New Jersey's estate tax in the event of the repeal of the Federal estate tax or the Federal credit for state legacy taxes and (2) the revision of New Jersey's estate tax in response to any substantial revision of the Federal credit. Chapter 31 took effect immediately and applies to the estate of any resident decedent dying after December 31, 2001.

Local Property Tax

County Tax Board Membership — P.L. 2002, c.51 (signed into law on August 3, 2002) requires that counties having a population of more than 510,000 shall have county tax boards with five members, no more than three of whom shall belong to the same political party. "Population" means the State population according to the most recent Federal decennial census.

The statute allows the Union County Board of Taxation to increase its membership from three members to five members. Increasing the membership of the tax board to five members is intended to result in increased efficiency in the handling of tax appeals. Chapter 51 took effect immediately.

Miscellaneous

Camden Revitalization — P.L. 2002, c.43 establishes the "Municipal Rehabilitation and Economic Recovery Act" which attempts to rehabilitate a qualified municipality, namely the City of Camden, and restore its economic vitality, which is necessary for long-term recovery. It provides a pilot program for a limited period of time during which considerable sums of State money will be invested in the qualified municipality with appropriate State supervision by a chief operating officer who is accountable to both city elected officials and the State. The legislation contains a number of tax-related benefits for residents of a qualified municipality and businesses located there.

Casinos — P.L. 2002, c.65, (signed into law on August 14, 2002) makes several changes to the Casino Control Act and the Casino Reinvestment Act. The law took effect immediately.

Fees and Penalties — P.L. 2002, c.34 (signed into law on July 1, 2002) establishes, increases, and modifies fees and penalties imposed by and on behalf of the State. The legislation, among other things, increases certain commercial recording filing fees for corporations and other business entities to be paid to the State Treasurer; institutes a $50 fee to be charged by the Division of Taxation for each check issued for payment of any State tax or penalty that is returned due to insufficient funds or stop payment order; and imposes a new $2 per day fee to be called the "Domestic Security Fee" for each motor vehicle (passenger automobile, truck, or semitrailer) that is rented from a location in this State. The law took effect July 1, 2002.

Unclaimed Property — P.L. 2002, c.35 (signed into law on July 1, 2002) reduces the amount of time ("dormancy period") private financial organizations and business associations may hold property before transferring it to the State as unclaimed or abandoned property. It also clarifies and expands the types of properties that are to be transferred to the State after the dormancy period has expired. This act took effect immediately.

Sales and Use Tax

Mobile Telecommunications Services — P.L. 2002, c.45 (signed into law on July 30, 2002) amends relevant sections of the New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act to comply with the provisions of the Federal "Mobile Telecommunications Sourcing Act," that requires a uniform method of sourcing mobile telecommunications services for sales tax purposes.

The sourcing method prescribed by the Federal legislation assumes that all wireless calls are made at the telecommunication service subscriber's residential or business street address, whichever is the "place of primary use," and permits all calls charged to such place of primary use (whether or not actually placed at, or made to, that location) to be taxed only by the taxing jurisdiction in which said place of primary use is located.

The Federal law forbids the State taxation of mobile telecommunications by any other system or method after August 1, 2002. The New Jersey legislation applies to customer bills issued after August 1, 2002.

Urban Enterprise Zones

Population Requirements for New Joint Zone — P.L. 2002, c.68 (signed into law on August 14, 2002) modifies the population parameters governing eligibility for the establishment of a joint urban enterprise zone which was authorized in a county of the sixth class (Cape May County) pursuant to P.L. 2001, c.347. Amendment of the population requirements was necessary to clarify that North Wildwood qualifies for inclusion in the zone.

Chapter 68 took effect immediately and will be applicable to zones designated on or after January 6, 2002. □

Property Tax Relief Goes to Residents

In an eight-week period between mid-July and mid-September, over $1.1 billion in direct property tax relief was paid to New Jersey homeowners and tenants. The benefits were paid through the Property Tax Reimbursement, Homestead Rebate, and NJ SAVER Rebate Programs.

Property tax reimbursement checks averaging $208 were sent to almost 84,000 senior and disabled homeowners on July 15 to reimburse them for increases in their 2001 property taxes.

Next, on August 19, homestead rebates for the 2001 tax year were mailed to over 1.5 million eligible applicants. The rebates for homeowners ranged from $90 to $775, and those for tenants from $100 to $775.

Finally, in early September NJ SAVER rebates were distributed to 1.2 million eligible homeowners. NJ SAVER rebate amounts vary by municipality, and the rebates for 2001 averaged $500. As part of the State Budget for fiscal year 2003, the Legislature mandated that no NJ SAVER rebate be paid to any individual or married couple with gross income in excess of $200,000 for the 2001 tax year.

Tax Amnesty 2002

Governor James E. McGreevey recently signed a law (P.L. 2002, c.6) allowing the Division of Taxation to implement a limited Tax Amnesty Program this spring.

The 2002 Tax Amnesty Program will run from April 15 until midnight, June 10. During that time, taxpayers will be offered the chance to pay back taxes with no penalties, no interest, no cost of collection, and without the imposition of any civil or criminal penalties.

State tax liabilities for tax returns due on and after January 1, 1996, and prior to January 1, 2002, are eligible for Amnesty. After the Amnesty period ends on June 10, 2002, an unabatable 5% penalty will be imposed and an additional collection service fee may also be imposed. This will be in addition to all other penalties, interest, and other costs authorized by law.

Amnesty covers all State taxes payable to the New Jersey Division of Taxation including the corporation business tax, sales and use tax, and gross income tax. Taxes not administered and collected by the Division of Taxation – such as local property taxes, realty transfer fees, payroll taxes owed to the Department of Labor, and Federal liabilities – are not eligible for Amnesty.

The State will mail notices to approximately 545,000 individuals and businesses who currently owe the State back taxes for the eligible years. The State also plans to undertake a full-scale public awareness campaign that includes radio and print advertising as well as some television advertisements.

CORPORATION TAX Payments to be Made by Certain Partnerships

Effective for tax years beginning on or after January 1, 2001, limited liability companies (LLCs) and limited partnerships (LPs) that are classified as partnerships for tax purposes may be required to remit corporation business tax payments. Public Law 2001, Chapter 136, requires that these entities that have corporate members or partners obtain and retain in their records the consent of each of these corporate members or partners, that New Jersey shall have the right and jurisdiction to tax and collect the tax on their income allocated to New Jersey. Form NJ-1065E has been designed to provide the required consent.

If the corporate member or partner does not consent by the filing due date of the required Partnership Return, Form NJ-1065, the LLC or LP is then obligated to remit a payment of corporation business tax on behalf of all the nonconsenting members' or partners' shares of New Jersey income allocated to New Jersey. The tax rate is 9%. In addition, an installment payment equal to 100% of the current year's tax due is required. For tax year 2001 the tax liability will be only 45% of what would otherwise be due. However, the prepayment also due is based upon 100% of the liability (not reduced to the 45% level).

The 2001 Partnership Return, Form NJ-1065, has been updated to provide the new forms, schedules, vouchers, consents, and instructions for LLCs and LPs required to comply with the new law.

Form PART-100, Corporation Business Tax—Partnership Return Voucher, is the document LLCs and LPs will use to remit payment. If an extension of time to file is required, an LLC or LP with a corporate nonconsenter must file Form PART-200-T, Corporation Business Tax—Partnership Tentative Return and Application for Extension of Time to File.

LLCs and LPs that are listed on a United States national stock exchange are exempt from this new law. Moreover, an LLC or LP which is a "qualified investment partnership" is not required to make any tax payments.

A "Qualified Investment Partnership" means an LLC or LP which is treated as a partnership for tax purposes; has more than 10 members or partners with no member or partner owning more than 50% interest; and that derives at least 90% of its gross income from dividends, interest, payments with respect to securities, loans, and gains from the sale or disposition of stocks, securities, foreign currencies, commodities, or similar income. An investment partnership shall not include a dealer in securities.

The corporation business tax payment made by an LLC or LP on behalf of its nonconsenting members or partners will be credited to the nonconsenters' accounts on the same day as it is received. This payment is then available as a credit should a nonconsenter have an obligation to file and pay tax on its own. □

GROSS INCOME TAX Retirement Plan Contributions

The Federal Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act (EGTRRA) of 2001 made a number of technical and substantive changes to the pension and retirement provisions of the Internal Revenue Code. The substantive provisions are generally designed to increase, over time, the amounts that individuals can voluntarily contribute to various retirement vehicles such as IRAs, 401(k) plans, and other deferred arrangements. In other words, employees are able to contribute a greater pre-tax amount to their 401(k), 457, 403(b), SIMPLE, and SEP deferred savings plans.

For New Jersey income tax purposes, a taxpayer does not include in gross income amounts contributed by an employer on behalf of and at his election to a trust which is part of a qualified cash or deferred arrangement which meets the requirements of section 401(k) of the Internal Revenue Code. N.J.S.A. 54A:6-21. Therefore, a taxpayer may have an increased amount of income that can be deferred from taxation in New Jersey as a result of the increase in the amount individuals can contribute to their 401(k) plans under the new provisions of the Economic

2001 CBT-100S Correction

There is a print error on page 1 of the 2001 CBT-100S. Line 4 is incorrect, and it should read:

4. Tax – If the income on Line 41, Schedule A, is greater than $100,000, multiply by .0133. If Line 41, Schedule A, is less than or equal to $100,000, enter zero. (See instructions 10(a).)

 Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001.

The New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act does not provide an exclusion from gross income for contributions to any deferred compensation plans other than 401(k) plans. Consequently, the EGTRRA provisions regarding other qualified deferred compensation plans have no effect. □

Deemed Sale
Election on Capital Gains

A tax practitioner recently inquired about the proper reporting for New Jersey gross income tax purposes of a Federal election for deemed sale of capital assets acquired in the tax years beginning before January 1, 2001. Section 311 of the Internal Revenue Code was amended under the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997 to allow taxpayers to make an election to report a gain on their 2001 tax return as if an actual sale of assets had been made and then reacquired on the same date.

The Gross Income Tax Act at 54A:8-3(c) states in part that “a taxpayer’s accounting method under this act shall be the same as his accounting method for Federal income tax purposes.” Accordingly, if a taxpayer makes the election for a deemed sale of capital assets for Federal purposes, the taxpayer must follow the same method of accounting for New Jersey tax purposes, reporting income from the deemed sale in the same period. The taxpayer’s basis in the asset for New Jersey tax purposes will then remain the same as for Federal tax purposes.

This position is consistent with the Division’s longstanding policy regarding the timing and reporting of income as previously reported in the New Jersey State Tax News: May/June 1982 (Vol. 11, No. 3, page 73), Winter 1998 (Vol. 27, No. 4, page 11), and Winter 2000 (Vol. 29, No. 4, page 4). □

Cape May County
Businesses

New legislation (P.L. 2001, c.347) effective April 1, 2002, provides for the designation of a joint municipal Urban Enterprise Zone (UEZ) consisting of North Wildwood City, Wildwood City, Wildwood Crest Borough, and West Wildwood Borough. This designation allows certified vendors in the joint zone to collect sales tax on certain sales of tangible personal property at the reduced sales tax rate of 3%. This law may change the way businesses located in these areas file their New Jersey sales and use tax returns.

Businesses Filing Cape May County Tourism Sales Tax Returns (Form ST-350)

In addition to the 6% New Jersey sales tax a 2% tourism sales tax is collected on tourism-related sales, which are sales of meals and prepared foods, admissions, and hotel occupancies. Under the Urban Enterprise Zones Act, sales of meals and prepared foods, admissions, and hotel occupancies are not eligible for the reduced sales tax rate of 3%. Therefore, vendors of goods and services that are subject to the tourism sales tax will continue to collect the 6% sales tax and the 2% tourism sales tax on those sales. Businesses will continue to report their tourism-related sales on the Cape May County Tourism Sales Tax Return (Form ST-350).

However, if a business also makes retail sales of tangible personal property from a location within the Urban Enterprise Zone, it may apply to the local zone coordinator for certification as a reduced-rate vendor under the UEZ program. If the business receives certification, a UZ-2 Certificate will be issued and monthly returns, Form UZ-50, will be sent to the business. Then, in addition to Form ST-350, the business will file Form UZ-50, and report non-tourism-related sales at the regular 6% rate and at the 3% rate for qualified reduced-rate sales. Vendors that file Form ST-350 will not receive new returns for the remainder of 2002. However, the instructions for lines 4 and 8 are amended to read as follows:

Businesses Filing Sales and Use Tax Returns (Forms ST-50 and ST-51)

Businesses that do not make any tourism-related sales file the Sales and Use Tax Quarterly Return (Form ST-50), and Sales and Use Tax Monthly Remittance (Form ST-51). If a business does not obtain certification from the UEZ Authority as a reduced-rate vendor under the Urban Enterprise Zone Program, it should continue to report and remit sales tax in the same manner on Forms ST-50/51. However, if the business obtains certification as a qualified UEZ business, it will receive monthly returns, Form UZ-50, on which all sales will be reported, whether at the reduced rate (3%) or at the full 6% rate. The business will stop filing the ST-50/51 forms, and file only the UZ-50 returns.

All inquiries concerning certification as a reduced-rate UEZ vendor should be directed to:

Safe Deposit Box Release

R.S. 54:35-19 provides that the contents of a safe deposit box standing in the name of a decedent either individually, jointly, or otherwise may not be released without at least a 10-day notice to the Director of the Division of Taxation of the intended delivery and the retention of sufficient assets to pay any tax and interest which may be assessed on the assets delivered. The statute provides that the Director may examine a decedent's assets contained in a safe deposit box.

In 1992 the Division determined that it would no longer inventory safe deposit boxes held by a decedent at the time of his or her death. On September 30, 1992, the Director issued a blanket waiver for the period October 19, 1992, to January 1, 1997, authorizing the immediate release of the contents of a safe deposit box. On October 11, 1996, the period was extended by the Director to January 1, 2002.

On January 4, 2002, the Director reissued the blanket waiver authorizing the immediate release of the contents of a safe deposit box for the period from January 1, 2002, to January 1, 2007. See below. □

Cost of Collection

It is common knowledge in the business and accounting community that failure to file and pay taxes timely can result in penalty and interest charges. Less widespread may be the knowledge that an additional expense may be incurred by failing to pay all taxes, penalties, and interest due prior to the Division of Taxation entering a certificate of debt (judgment) with the New Jersey Superior Court. This expense is the cost of collection.

Cost of collection is intended to cover the expenses incurred by the State with respect to the issuance of a certificate of debt for, and the collection of, any State tax not paid within the time prescribed by law.

The Director may impose the actual cost of collection or, in lieu

The Director, Division of Taxation, Department of the Treasury of the State of New Jersey, hereby waives the requirements of Revised Statutes 54:35-19 with respect to the issuance of the ten days notice and retention of assets for the opening of safe deposit boxes standing in the name of decedents either individually, jointly, or otherwise, or to which they had access and consents to release of the contents thereof.

This waiver is effective January 1, 2002 and shall expire January 1, 2007 unless cancelled by prior notice.

of ascertaining and imposing the actual cost of collection, may impose a fee as follows:

- Five percent (5%) of the tax or $100, whichever is greater, in the event that any tax is not paid within the time prescribed by law and a certificate of debt must be issued.
- Ten percent (10%) of the tax or $200, whichever is greater, for collection action after the issuance of the certificate of debt. This includes levy and seizure action as well as referral of the tax matter to the Attorney General.
- Twenty percent (20%) of the tax or $500, whichever is greater, in the event that the tax remains unpaid and it becomes necessary for the Attorney General to institute a legal suit against the taxpayer for the collection of the tax.

Interest or penalties shall not be assessed against any fees imposed as cost of collection; however, the cost of collection may reflect the passage of time between the date the costs were incurred and the date they are paid.

For the purposes of calculating the cost of collection based on the percentage of the tax, the tax shall mean unpaid tax, penalties, and interest.

Any fees imposed as cost of collection shall be in addition to any interest or penalties, as otherwise provided by law, and shall be payable to and recoverable by the Director, along with all penalties and interest as if they were all part of the tax imposed.

Tax Amnesty: From April 15 to June 10, 2002, taxpayers will be able to pay eligible back taxes without cost of collection charges. For more information, see the article on page 2. □

Criminal Enforcement over the past several months included:

- On July 18, 2001, a summons complaint for a disorderly persons offense was signed against Glen Helfrich for failing to file eleven (11) motor fuels tax returns and failing to remit the appropriate motor fuels tax due. On September 28, 2001, in Hazlet Municipal Court, Mr. Helfrich, responsible person of R. Helfrich & Son Corp., a school and tour bus operator, plead guilty to the charge. The outstanding tax was paid prior to the court hearing. In addition, Mr. Helfrich was fined by the court. - On September 28, 2001, in Hudson County Superior Court, George J. Halpern, Short Hills, New Jersey, was sentenced to 364 days in the Hudson County Jail after being found guilty of a violation of probation in a case involving his failure to file a 1997 personal income tax return. He was ordered not to prepare tax returns. A subsequent investigation established that both he and his son, Todd Halpern, had continued to prepare tax returns. same matter. These matters were investigated by the Office of Criminal Investigation and prosecuted by the State Attorney General's Office.

- On October 11, 2001, in Trenton, New Jersey, a State Grand Jury returned an indictment against Mark Stahl of Point Pleasant Beach, New Jersey, charging that between February and December 1996, Mr. Stahl and a corporation he owned, Markal Columbia, Inc., committed a theft of more than $75,000 in motor fuels (diesel) tax that he collected from consumers at a truck stop they owned in Knowlton Township, New Jersey, and failed to file motor fuels tax returns during that period. The Grand Jury also charged that Mr. Stahl and a second corporation, Markal, Inc., committed a theft of more than $500 in motor fuels (diesel) tax collected at a truck stop in Englewood, New Jersey, between May and October 1996, and failed to file motor fuels tax returns for that period. The amount of tax that the two related corporations collected, but failed to turn over, totals

$110,833.40. This matter was investigated by the Office of Criminal Investigation and presented to the Grand Jury by the Division of Criminal Justice. On October 12, 2001, Mr. Stahl was arrested and lodged in the Mercer County Correctional Center in lieu of $25,000 cash bail.

- On November 2, 2001, Teofelo Zarzuela of Union Township, New Jersey, was sentenced as a result of his guilty plea on one (1) count of possession of counterfeit stamped cigarettes in the Union County Superior Court. Judge Moynahan imposed a total of $3,055 in fines, fees, and costs, 18 months supervised probation, and the forfeiture of 2917.7 cartons of counterfeit stamped cigarettes valued at $116,708, as well as two handguns seized during execution of the search warrants. Charges on the handguns and hollow-point ammunition seized from the defendant's retail store are pending in Essex County. Additional subjects await sentencing in this matter.
- On November 7, 2001, Roger Toth of Carteret, New Jersey, entered a plea of guilty in Carteret Municipal Court to charges of failing to file petroleum products gross receipts tax (PGRT) returns, motor fuels tax (MFT) returns, and an application for corporate reinstatement, and failing to pay PGRT and MFT, in connection with his retail fuel oil business, Rolyn Enterprises, Inc. He was also fined by the court and is subject to civil collection of the tax, penalty, and interest. This case was referred to the Office of Criminal Investigation by the Division of Taxation's Investigations Branch-Shore Regional Office, and also coordinated with Audit Services in the revocation of the subject's license to purchase diesel fuel tax-free, thereby preventing future violations.

- On November 9, 2001, Annie M. McCoy, a resident of Millville, New Jersey, was sentenced to five (5) years of probation, 480 hours of community service and restitution of $36,316.61. Ms. McCoy was sentenced in Cumberland County based on her earlier guilty plea to a charge of theft by deception that arose

Tax Briefs

Gross Income Tax

Combat Military Pay — New Jersey tax law states that New Jersey residents are subject to tax on all their income in accordance with N.J.S.A. 54A:2-1, regardless of where the income is earned.

N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(a) states that New Jersey gross income shall consist of salaries, wages, tips, fees, commissions, bonuses, and other remuneration received for services rendered whether in cash or in property. There is no provision under the New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act, N.J.S.A. 54A:1-1, et seq., exempting hazardous duty or combat military pay from gross income tax. Thus, a New Jersey resident serviceperson must file a return and pay tax on all his or her income, including all military pay and the cost-of-living allowances, since it is compensation for services rendered.

N.J.S.A. 54A:8-1 allows special extensions of time to file an income tax return for members of the armed forces serving in an area declared as a combat zone by executive order of the President of the United States or a qualified hazardous duty area as defined by Federal statute. These qualified taxpayers are permitted 180 days to file a New Jersey income tax return after leaving the combat zone or qualified hazardous duty area. In addition, if a New Jersey resident serviceperson is hospitalized outside of New Jersey as a result of injuries received while serving in a combat zone or a qualified hazardous duty area, she/he may extend the filing time by the period of continuous hospitalization plus 180 days. Qualified taxpayers requesting an extension under N.J.S.A. 54A:8-1 must enclose a statement with the return explaining the reason for extension.

NJ SAVER Rebate

Partnership Property — In order to be entitled to the NJ SAVER rebate for the year 2000, the applicant must have owned and occupied the home as his/her principal residence as of 12:01 a.m., October 1, 2000, and have paid property taxes in full on the property for that year. N.J.S.A. 54:4-8.58b a.b.

With regard to partnership ownership situations, the law provides that "An application for an NJ SAVER rebate shall be allowed for a homestead the title to which is held by a partnership, to the extent of the applicant's interest as a partner therein, and by a guardian, trustee, committee, conservator, or other fiduciary for any individual who would otherwise be eligible for an NJ SAVER rebate." N.J.S.A. 54:4-8.58b e.

Accordingly, if the general partner has resided in the home as of 12:01 a.m., October 1, 2000, and is domiciled in this State, and uses the home as his/her principal residence, and the property taxes due on the property for the year 2000 have been paid, he/she is entitled to the rebate. Of course, documentation, including any and all writings pertaining to the partnership agreement, proof of the applicant's principal residence, etc., should be provided to the Division of Taxation to document the applicant's eligibility for the NJ SAVER rebate application.

Sales and Use Tax

Casino Contractor Registration — The Casino Control Commission has the authority to determine whether a particular seller of items to the casino industry must be registered and licensed with the State under P.L. 2001, c.134 (N.J.S.A. 5:12-92). N.J.S.A. 5:12-63(a) states that the Casino Control Commission shall have the responsibility "to hear and decide promptly...all license, registration, certificate, and permit applications and causes affecting the granting, suspension, revocation, or renewal thereof." Accordingly, questions pertaining to the licensing of "casino service industries" under P.L. 2001, c.134, should be referred to the Commission for determination. Registration for State taxes then follows as a matter of course if a license is required. For further information, inquiries may be directed to the Casino Control Commission, Arcade Building, Tennessee Avenue and Boardwalk, Atlantic City, NJ 08401 or 609-441-3422.

Miscellaneous Hotel Fees — Early Departure Fees are not subject to sales tax if they are similar to cancellation fees. If a sale is cancelled (e.g., the guest checks out early) there is no taxable transaction and the early departure fee is not subject to sales tax. However, if the hotel charges the agreed room rate for the remaining time even though the customer checked out early and never actually used the room, this charge constitutes rent for the "occupancy" (i.e., the right to use or possess) of a hotel room which is taxable under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(d).

Late Checkout Fees are subject to sales and use tax. This fee constitutes an additional rent charge for the "occupancy" (i.e., the right to use or possess) of a hotel room that is taxable under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(d).

Cancellation Fees are not subject to sales tax. If a sale is cancelled there is no taxable transaction and the cancellation fee is not subject to sales tax.

Forfeited Deposits would not be subject to sales tax because a deposit is considered to be a payment against a future sale; thus sales tax is not due on a deposit until actual delivery of the merchandise occurs to which the deposit applies. If a sale is cancelled there is no taxable transaction and the deposit is not subject to sales tax.

"Reward Points" are considered consumer incentives/promotions and are treated in the same fashion as coupons and other discounts. Sales tax is calculated differently depending on how the discount is given. Generally, if a room rate is offered at a discounted price and a third party will reimburse the hotel, the sales tax is based on the full room rate. If the hotel offers a discount on the room rate but will not be reimbursed, then the tax on the room rate is based on the discounted price. If the hotel offers a free night stay, sales tax should not be charged on the free night. If a hotel offers two nights for the price of one, sales tax is based on the cost of one night.

Use of Resale Certificates — Generally, out-of-State businesses wishing to make exempt purchases in this State must register with New Jersey. However, exceptions exist for drop shipments and "qualified out-of-State vendors" making purchases in this State for resale. A drop shipment occurs when an out-of-State purchaser who is not registered with New Jersey instructs the New Jersey vendor to deliver the merchandise to the purchaser's customer in New Jersey. The acceptable resale certificates for a qualified out-of-State vendor to use for a drop shipment are:

- (1) Purchaser's out-of-State resale certificate; or
- (2) Multijurisdiction Uniform Sales & Use Tax Certificate published by the Multi-State Tax Commission; or
- (3) New Jersey Form ST-3NR

Form ST-3NR is used by qualified out-of-State vendors to make tax-exempt purchases in New Jersey of goods or services purchased for resale. "Qualified out-of-State vendors" are vendors that: (1) are not registered with New Jersey, (2) are not required to be registered with New Jersey, and (3) are registered with another state.

In general, every vendor who sells taxable items or services must collect and remit New Jersey sales tax whenever such sales are completed by delivery of the item(s) to a New Jersey location or performance of the service within this State. However, certain out-of-State vendors may not be required to collect New Jersey sales tax if their only contact with New Jersey is limited to mailing catalogs, flyers or other advertisements to potential customers in this State and/or shipping merchandise to a New Jersey destination by means of commercial common carrier, parcel post, or the United States mail.

If a vendor maintains any place of business in New Jersey, has employees working in this State, or owns any business property here, such as a warehouse or showroom, the vendor has a physical presence in New Jersey and must register and collect New Jersey sales tax on all taxable transactions. The term "employee" includes all salespersons, consultants, customer representatives, service or repair technicians, instructors, and delivery persons, as well as independent representatives or solicitors acting as agents on the vendor's behalf.

To register, a Business Registration Application (Form NJ-REG) must be filed with the State. The vendor will receive a New Jersey Certificate of Authority, Form CA-1, which authorizes it to collect sales tax and issue or accept exemption certificates. Information on registering your business is available both in the New Jersey Complete Business Registration Package and on the Division of Revenue's New Jersey Business Gateway Services Web site at: www.state.nj.us/njbgs/

Spill Tax

Substances on the List of Hazardous Substances with Asterisks — The Division recently responded to a question regarding the New Jersey spill compensation and control tax. The taxpayer asked whether flammable and inert gases marked with an asterisk, such as propane, on the List of Hazardous Substances, promulgated by the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) at N.J.A.C. 7:1E Appendix A, are exempt from the spill compensation and control tax.

The Division replied that Department of Environmental Protection regulations at N.J.A.C. 7:1E-1.7(b)2 indicate that any flammable or inert gases listed in Appendix A and which are designated by an asterisk "shall not be considered hazardous substances."

Since tax is levied on the transfer of "hazardous substances," as defined in the Act and further interpreted by DEP regulations, the Division of Taxation will not impose the tax on any substances not considered hazardous substances in Department of Environmental Protection regulations. This would include propane, which is listed with an asterisk.

The taxpayer further inquired whether the exemption from tax applies when the propane is transported and stored under pressure in liquid form. Department of Environmental Protection regulations are currently addressing this problem. The Department of Environmental Protection proposed readoption of N.J.A.C. 7:1E at 33 N.J.R. 1262 changes the language of N.J.A.C. 7:1E-1.7(b)2 from "any flammable or inert gas listed in Appendix A and which is designated by an asterisk" to "any flammable substance or inert gas listed in Appendix A and which is designated by an asterisk." Emphasis added. This change clarifies that flammable substances, such as propane, are not hazardous substances regardless of their form — solid, liquid, or gaseous — and were not intended to be included as covered substances under the Spill Act (see Department of Environmental Protection explanation in its summary to the above rule at 33 N.J.R. 1256). Due to the above the Division of Taxation will not impose the spill tax on such substances, which would include transported propane under pressure in liquid form. □

Administration

Timeliness of the Complaint and Summary Judgment – Harry and Susan Dashoff v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided November 26, 2001; Appellate Division No. A-3966-99T3.

The Appellate Division reversed the Tax Court's summary judgment dismissal of taxpayer's complaint due to taxpayer's failure to timely protest the notice of assessment, which notice was returned to the Division as unclaimed. The Appellate Division ruled that the Division of Taxation's mailing of the notice is presumptive evidence of receipt that may be rebutted. Taxpayer alleges that he never received any notice of certified mail. Accordingly, the Appellate Division remanded the case to the Tax Court for an evidentiary hearing regarding a full factual picture of service of the notice.

Gross Income Tax

Employee or Independent Contractor – Ersel G. Seiler v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided January 16, 2002; Tax Court No. 004237-2000.

The Tax Court granted the Division's motion for Summary Judgment ruling that plaintiff was an employee of Allstate Insurance Company and not an independent contractor. The Division relied on information contained in plaintiff's divorce proceedings in the New Jersey Superior and Appellate Courts where plaintiff successfully argued that he was an employee of Allstate.

In his divorce proceedings, plaintiff asserted the following: (1) Compensation was governed by an agent compensation agreement with Allstate. (2) All premiums collected were treated in trust for Allstate. (3) Premiums were remitted to Allstate without any deduction for commission or expenses. (4) Plaintiff did not have a "book of business" that could be sold. (5) Another company, with Allstate's approval, hires and fires plaintiff's employees. (6) Plaintiff may hire employees with approval and Allstate may direct plaintiff to terminate employees. (7) Plaintiff establishes the compensation of some employees. (8) Plaintiff is paid by Allstate and receives a W-2 from Allstate. (9) Plaintiff's agency is part of Allstate's Neighborhood Office Program. (10) Plaintiff receives an expense allowance from Allstate that is tied to sales and can be used in any way but plaintiff is responsible for any expenses over the allowance. (11) Allstate owns most of the computers and all of the other office equipment. (12) Allstate assigns the phone number and pays for and maintains the sign for plaintiff's agency. (13) Allstate designs and pays for all advertisements.

Interest Deduction: Acquisition Indebtedness to Purchase S Corporation Stock – Sidman v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided November 14, 2001; New Jersey Supreme Court No. C-354 Spring Term 2001 51,806.

The New Jersey Supreme Court denied plaintiff's petition for certification. In upholding the Tax Court, the Appellate Division previously held that a shareholder's interest payments to other shareholders for their S corporation stock were not deductible from the purchaser's pro rata share.

Untimely Filing of Petition – Joyce H. Eiszner v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided October 16, 2001; New Jersey Supreme Court No. M-314 September Term 2001 51,892.

The New Jersey Supreme Court dismissed plaintiff's petition for certification due to lack of prosecution.

Keogh Plan Contributions – John and Barbara Reck v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided December 7, 2001; Appellate Division No. A-5379-99T3.

Plaintiff husband is a partner in an accounting firm. The firm established a qualified Internal Revenue Code (IRC) section 401(a) Keogh Plan. Contributions on each partner's behalf were made by the partnership to the Keogh Plan. In calculating his distributive share of partnership income for the 1992 and 1993 tax years, plaintiff deducted these contributions. The Division denied the deductions on the basis that only 401(k) plan contributions were deductible.

The Tax Court held that the accounting firm's contributions on behalf of partners to the Keogh Plan were deductible in calculating the partner's distributive share of partnership income. In its determination, the Court ruled that the firm's Keogh Plan contributions for partners were ordinary and necessary deductible business expenses pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1b, which defines net profits from business.

The Appellate Division reversed finding that the controlling statute was N.J.S.A. 54A:6-21 which stated that gross income does not include employer contributions on behalf of its employees to a 401(k) plan. Hence, the Court ruled that other contributions are not deductible even though not expressly prohibited. The Court relied on the legislative history of N.J.S.A. 54A:6-21, the regulations, and case law including Dantzler, Mutch, and Sidman. The Court also noted that Koch v. Director did not apply as it dealt with accounting principles and does not apply to cases involving the deductibility of retirement and pension plan contributions.

The New Jersey Supreme Court has granted the taxpayers' petition for certification.

Partnership's Discharge of Indebtedness Income – Michael and Patricia Scully and James Scully v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided September 21, 2001; Tax Court No. 004076-1997.

Plaintiffs Michael Scully and James Scully each own a 48.5% limited partnership interest and a 1% general partnership interest in Port-O-Call Associates, a New Jersey limited partnership (the "Partnership"). Additionally, each owns 50% of the corporate stock of a Pennsylvania corporation that owns a 1% general partnership interest in the Partnership.

The Partnership purchased a hotel with a $7 million mortgage. Subsequently, the mortgagee became insolvent and the mortgage was assigned to a corporation that acted as the receiver. Thereafter, the receiver sold the mortgage loan to Optimum Mortgage Investment Company for approximately $2 million less than the note's principal balance. Optimum's mortgage purchase was financed by the plaintiffs pursuant to an agreement that paid Optimum a fee and obligated Optimum to assign the mortgage to plaintiffs. Thereafter, plaintiffs assigned the mortgage to the Partnership.

The Partnership's Federal income tax return reported the current principal balance of the note as a capital contribution and the $2 million difference between the previous and current principal balance of the mortgage as debt-forgiveness income. The Partnership's Pennsylvania information return reported the same capital contribution but reported the $2 million difference as "Net profits from business...apportioned to Pennsylvania."

The Director determined that the Partnership realized discharge of indebtedness income in the amount of approximately $2 million, the difference between the prior mortgage principal balance and the amount of the mortgage principal when the plaintiffs contributed the loan to the Partnership which thereby discharged the mortgage debt. The Director contended that this amount is attributable to plaintiffs as discharge of indebtedness income that occurred "within a business entity" under N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(k) and (b).

The issue before the Court was whether partners are subject to gross income tax on discharge of indebtedness income realized by the Partnership. Relying on Smith v. Director the Court determined that a partnership's discharge of indebtedness income must arise in the ordinary course of partnership business operations to be includable in the partner's gross income. Otherwise the discharge of indebtedness income would retain its character, and as such, discharge of indebtedness, is not a category of income subject to gross income tax.

The Director, Division of Taxation, has filed an appeal with the Superior Court, Appellate Division.

Partnership's Discharge of Indebtedness Income – Richard and Sharon Miller v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided November 27, 2001; Tax Court No. 000054-2001.

Plaintiff Richard Miller is a partner of a New Jersey general partnership (the "Partnership"). The Partnership's only asset is one piece of real estate encumbered by a mortgage that is owned as real estate investment. This real estate is leased to a law firm some of whose partners are partners in the Partnership. When the real estate's value dropped significantly below the principal balance of the mortgage loan, the mortgagee reduced the principal balance upon the Partnership's request for a reduction.

The Partnership reported the reduction in the principal balance as other income on its Federal income tax return but did not report it on the Partnership's New Jersey tax return. Plaintiff's Federal Schedule K-1 reported his proportionate share of the mortgage reduction as other income but did not report it on either plaintiff's Schedule NJK-1 or New Jersey gross income tax return. The Director determined that the mortgage reduction resulted in forgiveness of indebtedness income to the Partnership and thereby was includable in the partner's distributive share of partnership income.

The Court applied its legal analysis in Scully, above, to the facts of this case. The Court noted that there were three differences between the cases most notably that in the instant case there was no question that the Partnership received discharge of indebtedness income and that here the real estate is owned as an investment as opposed to as a hotel and restaurant. As in Scully, the Court stated that discharge of indebtedness income "is taxable to a partner only if attributable to a partnership's ordinary business operations."

The Court ruled that the plaintiff was not subject to the gross income tax on the Partnership's discharge of indebtedness income because the income relating to the mortgage loan is not includable in the Partnership's net profits from business. The transaction involving the mortgage loan is in the nature of a capital transaction, not an ordinary business operation. Moreover, the Court added that even if the loan transaction constituted part of the partnership's ordinary business operations, the income-generating event is the reduction in principal balance, which is not part of the partnership's ordinary business operations.

The Director, Division of Taxation, has filed an appeal with the Superior Court, Appellate Division. □

In Our Legislature Cigarette Tax

Application of Cigarette Tax Stamp — P.L. 2001, c.396 (signed into law on January 8, 2002) amends the Cigarette Tax Act to revise the prohibition against affixing tax stamps to packages that do not comply with the law.

Under the legislation, distributors cannot stamp packages that:

- Do not comply with Federal cigarette labeling law, including warning label requirements and Federal trademark and copyright laws.
- Have been altered by placement of a sticker over certain required Federal labels.
- Contain cigarettes not in compliance with the cigarette ingredients disclosure requirement of the Federal Cigarette Labeling and Advertising Act.
- Were imported into the United States in violation of the Federal Imported Cigarette Compliance Act of 2000.

The law also eliminates the discretion of the Director of the Division of Taxation to resell, rather than destroy, any cigarettes confiscated as a result of having been stamped in violation of the statutory prohibition. This act took effect immediately.

Additionally, the credit, when combined with other allowable credits, may not exceed 50% of the tax liability that would otherwise be due; nor may it reduce the tax liability to less than the statutory minimum. The credit can be passed through a partnership to the partners and an unused credit can be carried forward.

To qualify for the credit the taxpayer must submit a copy of a determination from the Department of Environmental Protection that the operation of the equipment and reuse of wastewater effluent will be beneficial to the environment, and an affidavit affirming that the equipment will be used only in New Jersey when filing the tax return.

Financing for Local Development Projects

— P.L. 2001, c.310 (signed into law on January 3, 2002) broadens the mechanisms available to municipalities to finance local development projects. Certain provisions of the bill are designated as the “Redevelopment Area Bond Financing Law.” These provisions allow a municipality that has designated a redevelopment area pursuant to the Local Redevelopment and Housing Law (N.J.S.A. 40A:12A-1 et seq.) to issue bonds that would be secured by payments in lieu of taxes under a tax abatement agreement and/or special assessments on property benefiting from the improvements provided.

Other provisions of the bill are designated as the “Revenue Allocation District Financing Act.” These provisions authorize a municipality to establish one or more areas as a revenue allocation district and to designate a district agent to implement a development plan for the district. The ordinance creating the district would be submitted to the Local Finance Board, and must be approved by the board. After the creation of the district, the district agent could issue bonds or notes to finance the development of specific projects or to finance the infrastructure necessary to facilitate development within the district. This change is effective retroactively to January 1, 1998.

Tax Amnesty — P.L. 2002, c.6 (signed into law on March 18, 2002) establishes a 60-day amnesty period to end no later than June 10, 2002, for the payment of any outstanding State tax liabilities due on or after January 1, 1996, and prior to January 1, 2002. During the amnesty period, a taxpayer who has failed to pay any State tax can pay the tax without being liable for interest, cost of collection, or civil or criminal penalties normally imposed under State law.

Amnesty will not be available to any taxpayers under criminal investigation or charge for any State tax matter. Eligible taxpayers who fail to pay the tax owed during the established amnesty period will be subject to a 5% penalty which cannot be waived or abated, in addition to all other penalties, interest, or costs of collection.

This act took effect immediately.

Public Utility Taxes Transitional Energy Facility Assessment Phase-out Changed — P.L. 2001, c.433 (signed into law on January 8, 2002) freezes transitional energy facility assessment (TEFA) unit rate surcharges at calendar year 2001 rates for 2002 through 2004 and reduces that surcharge ratably for 2005 through 2006. The act took effect immediately and is retroactive to January 1, 2002.

Sales and Use Tax Exemption for Wastewater Treatment Equipment — P.L. 2001, c.322 (signed into law on January 4, 2002) exempts from sales and use tax sales of wastewater treatment and conveyance equipment provided the Department of Environmental Protection determines that the operation of the equipment and the reuse of wastewater effluent that results will be beneficial to the environment.

The bill requires the equipment purchaser to pay any applicable tax and apply for a refund after showing the equipment has been put to an exempt use. The law took effect immediately and applies to sales made after enactment.

Urban Enterprise Zone Benefits Extended — P.L. 2001, c.347 (signed into law on January 6, 2002) amends P.L. 1983, c.303 (C.52:27H-61 et seq.) and extends the life of an urban enterprise zone after the expiration of its third five-year period of designation if the municipality has an annual average of 2,000 or more unemployed persons or an average annual unemployment rate higher than the State average annual unemployment rate. This extension allows for the replacement of the final five-year period with a sixteen-year period during which the municipality receives a percentage of the sales tax revenues, according to a formula provided in the law, until the final year.

In addition, the law allows for the designation of an urban enterprise zone-impacted business district in an economically distressed business district adjacent to two or more urban enterprise zones. Certain businesses in these qualified districts are permitted to collect sales tax at the same reduced rate as qualified businesses in the adjacent urban enterprise zone.

Finally, the law provides for the designation of three additional urban enterprise zones, including a joint municipal zone. This law took effect immediately, with the exception of certain sections which took effect on April 1, 2002.

Refund Program for Hurricane Floyd Victims Extended — P.L. 2001, c.411 (signed into law on January 8, 2002) provides a six-month extension of the sales and use tax refund program for flood victims of Hurricane Floyd.

The law extends the period in which purchases of household goods, home repair materials, and replacement motor vehicles must have been made to March 31, 2001, and extends the period for claiming the sales and use tax refunds on those purchases to September 30, 2001. This act took effect immediately.

Streamlined Sales Tax Project — P.L. 2001, c.431 (signed into law on January 8, 2002) authorizes New Jersey participation in discussions of the Streamlined Sales Tax Project in an effort to simplify and modernize sales and use tax collection and administration. The project's proposals will incorporate uniform definitions within tax bases, simplified audit and administrative procedures, and emerging technologies to reduce the burden of tax collection. Chapter 431 took effect immediately.

Spill Compensation Tax

Cap Limitations Altered — P.L. 2001, c.424 (signed into law on January 8, 2002) alters certain taxes and caps on tax due pursuant to the Spill Compensation and Control Act.

This law provides that for major facilities established by the subdivision of a major facility which existed in 1986, including subsequent owners and operators, the total aggregated tax due shall not exceed 100% of the tax paid in 1999. It also allows a successor in certain corporate sales to be eligible for the same capped liability as the predecessor corporation.

The law sets the tax for any transfer of elemental antimony or antimony trioxide sold for use in the manufacture or for the purpose of a fire retardant at $0.015 per barrel and changes the cap on tax due for such transfers. The law also provides that hazardous substances not subject to regulation by the Department of Environmental Protection shall not be subject to taxation under the Spill Compensation and Control Act. Chapter 424 took effect on April 1, 2002.

Tobacco Products Tax

Tax Computation — P.L. 2001, c.448 (signed into law on January 11, 2002) lowers the tax rate from 48% to 30% and changes the basis for the calculation of the tax. The tax will be imposed on the amount paid by the distributor to buy the products from the manufacturer rather than the amount received on sales from the distributor to vendors or consumers.

The law also provides that liability for the tax accrues when the distributor resells the tobacco products. In addition, the liability for installments of tax and the reporting and record keeping responsibilities of taxpayers is clarified.

This act took effect on March 1, 2002 and applies to tobacco products sold or disposed of on and after that date, except for those tobacco products for which the tax was paid prior to the effective date.

New Jersey's 2002 Tax Amnesty Program offers taxpayers a chance to clear their consciences and clear their names. It's a way for individuals and businesses that have made an honest mistake to start fresh without fear of penalties or interest. Just pay the taxes you owe before the deadline, and you're free and clear.

And if you decide to ignore Amnesty? Well, this is amnesty, not charity. If you don't take advantage of this great opportunity you'll be charged an additional, unabatable 5% penalty. And, an additional collection service fee may also be imposed.

Amnesty is available for tax liabilities resulting from tax returns due on or after January 1, 1996, and on or before December 31, 2001. Amnesty covers all taxes administered by the Division, including corporation business tax, sales and use tax, and gross income tax. A complete list can be found on page 3. Most taxpayers will be eligible for Amnesty, except for those currently under criminal investigation or charge for any State tax matter.

Remember, this is a limited-time opportunity. Tax Amnesty is only available until midnight on June 10, 2002. So, if there's a State tax return you haven't filed, a tax bill you haven't paid, or maybe you forgot to pay use tax on that computer you bought from a catalog back in 2000, here's your chance to wipe the slate clean.

For more information, call our toll-free Tax Amnesty Hotline at 1-800-781-8407, or visit our Web site at: www.njtaxamnesty.com

What's New for Tax Year 2001

The Division of Taxation has added another member to the NJ FastFile family of paperless filing options with the introduction of NJ WebFile, and there have been a number of other legislative and administrative changes affecting the preparation of returns for the 2001 tax year.

- NJ WebFile — This new, paperless filing option allows qualified, full-year residents to file their gross income tax returns free of charge directly from the Division's secure Internet site. See page 24 for more on NJ WebFile.
- Filing Thresholds — For tax years 2001 and thereafter, taxpayers whose filing status is married, filing joint return, head of household or qualifying widow(er) and have New Jersey gross income of $20,000 or less ($10,000 or less for those whose filing status is single or married, filing separately and for estates and trusts) are not subject to New Jersey gross income tax and are not required to file a New Jersey income tax return.
- New Jersey Earned Income Tax Credit — For tax year 2001, the New Jersey Earned Income Tax Credit (NJEITC) has increased to 15% of the applicant's Federal earned income credit, up from 10% of the Federal credit in tax year 2000.

The New Jersey credit will increase to 17.5% of the Federal credit amount for 2002 and to 20% of the Federal amount for tax year 2003 and thereafter.

- Retirement Income Exclusions Increased — The maximum amounts of pension and/or other retirement income that may be excluded from New Jersey gross income have increased. The new exclusion amounts are being phased in over a four-year period that began in 2000. For tax year 2001, the maximum exclusion is $15,000 (filing status married, filing joint return), $7,500 (filing status married, filing separate return) and $11,250 (filing status single, head of household, or qualifying widow(er)).

- Credit for Taxes Paid to Other Jurisdictions — Effective for tax year 2001, the amount of income subject to tax by New Jersey to be used as the denominator of the credit calculation (Line 2, Schedule A) is the total of all taxable income reported on the return before personal exemptions and other deductions have been subtracted but after any pension exclusion and/or other retirement income exclusion has been deducted. This is the amount reported on the New Jersey gross income tax resident return (Form NJ-1040) at Line 29, "New Jersey Gross Income."
- Military Pensions — For tax years beginning on or after January 1, 2001, all U.S. military pensions and military survivor's benefits are exempt from New Jersey gross income tax. For tax years 1998 – 2000, only persons 62 years of age or older or disabled were eligible to exclude such payments from reportable income.
- Social Security Number(s) Must Now be Entered — Social security number(s) will no longer be printed on any peel-off label provided with a tax return instruction booklet or preprinted postcard. The social security number(s) must be entered in the spaces provided at the top of the return. If the taxpayers' filing status is married, filing joint return, the social security numbers of the spouses should be entered in the same order as the names.

Social security number(s) must be entered on all forms submitted to the Division of Taxation, including those with a pre-printed name and address (e.g., income tax payment voucher, extension application, or declaration of estimated tax voucher).

- Incorrect Name and Address Labels — Do not use a mailing label if any of the preprinted information is incorrect. Instead, print or type all the information in the spaces provided at the top of the return.
- Designated Contribution — The Organ and Tissue Donor Awareness Education Fund has been added to the list of organizations to which taxpayers can contribute on the New Jersey tax return. To donate to the new fund, taxpayers must specify the donation amount and enter code 03 on the line entitled "Other Designated Contribution."
- Direct Deposit for 2D Bar Code Returns — Individual taxpayers who prepare their returns with Division approved software that uses 2D Bar Coding will be given the option of having their refunds and/or homestead rebates deposited directly into a specified bank account. Previously, only returns filed with one of the NJ FastFile options were eligible to use direct deposit.
- Property Tax Relief Programs
Homestead Rebate: The maximum homestead rebate for tax year 2001 for qualified homeowners and tenants aged 65 and over or disabled is $775. The maximum rebate amount was increased from $500 to $750 for tax year 2000 (paid in July 2001). The maximum rebate is

NJ SAVER Rebate: Accelerated phase-in of this program from five years to four will result in payment of the full benefit for tax year 2001, one year sooner than scheduled. The 2001 NJ SAVER Rebate will be paid in September 2002 and will average $600.

Property Tax Reimbursement (PTR): Income limits for the PTR program have increased beginning with applications filed for tax year 2001. The new limits apply to income received for tax years 2000, 2001, and thereafter. Residents applying for a reimbursement for tax year 2001 must have total income less than:

- 2000: $37,174 if single, or $45,582 (combined income) if married, and
- 2001: $38,475 if single, or $47,177 (combined income) if married

The new income limits do not apply to reimbursement applications filed for tax year 2000. That year, single applicants had to have income of less than $18,151 in 1999 and less than $18,587 in 2000 to qualify for a reimbursement. Married applicants that year had to have combined income of less than $22,256 in 1999 and less than $22,791 in 2000 to qualify. Applicants whose income was above the limits in effect for 2000 cannot amend their applications for that year.

- Payment by Electronic Check (E-Check) — Payments of New Jersey gross income tax (including estimated tax payments) and sales and use tax can be made by e-check from the Division of Taxation's Web site at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/

Taxpayers who do not have access to the Internet can make e-check payments by calling the Division's Customer Service Center at 609-292-6400.

Employers can pay their withholding liabilities by e-check from the Division of Revenue's Business Gateway Services Web site at: www.state.nj.us/njbgs/

- Partnership Returns — Beginning with tax year 2001, all business entities required to file a New Jersey partnership return (Form NJ-1065) and which consist of ten or more partners or members must file the return electronically. For more information on electronic filing or to obtain electronic payment and filing formats, visit the Division of Revenue's Web site at:

www.state.nj.us/treasury/revenue/ or call the Alternate Filing Branch at: 609-984-7989.

- CBT Payments Required by Certain Partnerships — For tax years beginning on or after January 1, 2001, limited liability companies (LLCs) and limited partnerships (LPs) that are classified as partnerships for Federal income tax purposes are obligated to remit New Jersey corporation business tax payments on behalf of any member or partner that is a nonconsenting corporation not exempt from the tax.

A nonconsenting corporation is one that has not provided the LLC or LP of which it is a member with a statement of consent acknowledging this State's right and jurisdiction to tax and collect the tax on the corporate partner's income allocated to New Jersey. Form NJ-1065 has been updated to accommodate the new requirements.

- Phase-out of CBT on S corporation income — The tax on the "regular" income of New Jersey S corporations will be gradually eliminated as follows:

1. For S corporations with annual income in excess of $100,000 the tax rate is reduced to 1.33% for privilege periods ending on or after July 1, 2001, but on or before June 30, 2002, and to 0.67% for privilege periods ending on or after July 1, 2002, but on or before June 30, 2003. For privilege periods ending on or after July 1, 2003, no tax is imposed.
2. For S corporations with annual income of $100,000 or less, no tax is imposed for privilege periods ending on or after July 1, 2001.

"Regular" income means entire net income allocable to New Jersey that is not subject to Federal income taxation.

- Minimum Corporation Tax — For tax periods beginning on and after January 1, 2002, the minimum tax for both domestic and foreign corporations is $210. For tax periods that begin before January 1, 2002, the minimum tax remains $200. □

GROSS INCOME TAX Claim of Right Refunds

For Federal purposes, if any taxpayer must return income paid and already included in income, a deduction for this amount in the year of repayment is allowed under the "claim of right doctrine." This doctrine states that if a taxpayer is required to restore amounts which previously have been included in income, the taxpayer is permitted a deduction in the year of repayment. The administration of this deduction in the year of repayment is governed by section 1341 of the Internal Revenue Code. This section provides a taxpayer with two alternate methods of calculating a claim of right adjustment. Under section 1341, the taxpayer may either take the deduction in the year of repayment or treat the amount as if the repayment had been excluded in the year the claim of right income was first reported.

The New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act, however, does not contain provisions similar to IRC section 1341. Wigton v. Director, 12 NJ Tax 373 (1992). In Wigton, the Tax Court stated, "Federal and state case law interpreting §1341 holds that this section does not result in a reopening of the earlier taxable year. See, e.g., Skelly Oil, supra; North American Oil, supra; Kreiss v. New York State Tax Comm'n, 463 N.E.2d 33 (N.Y. 1984). The prior year is simply used as a means of determining the least amount of tax due under the §1341 recalculation." As such, New Jersey does not permit taxpayers to file an amended return to recover repaid amounts taxed in prior years since the income was received and used under the "claim of right" doctrine. Also, the New Jersey Legislature did not adopt the IRC section 1341 alternative calculation method allowing a taxpayer to compute tax due in the year of repayment using the original payment year as the basis for calculation instead of the repayment year.

For New Jersey purposes, any repayment or deduction may be applied against other income earned in the same category and in the same tax year as the repayment. N.J.S.A. 54A:5-2. If the offset results in a net loss, the taxpayer must report zero income in that category since the New Jersey income tax law in accordance with N.J.S.A. 54A:5-2 provides that taxpayers may offset their losses only against other income earned in the same category and in the same year. In other words, the taxpayer may use the amount of losses incurred during the year to offset other income in the same category on the New Jersey resident income tax return to the extent it gives no taxable income to report to New Jersey. □

GROSS INCOME TAX Qualified Conservation Contribution

The Division recently received inquiries as to the implementation and limits of the Deduction for qualified conservation contribution, under new section 54A:3-6 of the Gross Income Tax Act, signed into law as Chapter 372, P.L. 1999 on January 14, 2000.

This amendment to the Gross Income Tax Act allows a deduction against gross income for a qualified conservation contribution, as defined under subsection (h) of section 170 of the Federal Internal Revenue Code of 1986, 26 U.S.C. §170, made by the taxpayer of a qualified interest in property located in this State.

The following inquiries were recently received:

Q. When does this new amendment take effect?

A. The deduction is allowed for contributions made in tax years beginning on or after January 1, 2000.

Q. Can I file amended returns to claim this deduction?

A. Amended returns for the tax periods beginning on or after January 1, 2000, can still be filed.

Q. Is there a limitation on how much I can deduct in any one year?

A. Taxpayers are limited in any one year to the amount they can deduct for Federal tax purposes pursuant to I.R.C. §170.

Q. If I don't use the full amount of the contribution, can I carry the unused amount forward?

Interest 8%

The interest rate assessed on amounts due for the period January 1, 2002 – December 31, 2002 will be 8%.

A. Yes. You can carry the unused amount forward in accordance with the provisions of I.R.C. §170.

Q. Can I take this deduction if I sell the property at a discounted or below market value price?

A. No. This deduction only applies to property that is contributed, not sold. See July 27, 2005, Notice for additional information.

Q. Can an S corporation or a partnership take a deduction for property contributed?

A. No. Partnerships and S corporations are not recognized as “taxpayers” under the Gross Income Tax Act. Only “taxpayers” can claim this deduction.

Q. Can an S corporation or partnership contribute the property and flow the deduction out to its shareholders and partners?

A. No. The Legislature made no provisions in the amendment for S corporations or partnerships to flow this deduction out to their shareholders or partners.

Q. Can nonresidents take this deduction?

A. Yes. Nonresidents are entitled to take this deduction to the extent they contribute property located in this State.

Should you have other questions regarding the Deduction for qualified conservation contribution, please write to the Division of Taxation, Regulatory Services Branch, PO Box 269, Trenton, New Jersey 08695-0269. □

LOCAL PROPERTY TAX

State Retains Exempt Status

Recently, several municipal assessors have revoked the exemption from local property tax on State-owned property. Please note that State-owned property remains property tax exempt under N.J.S.A. 54:4-3.3, regardless of how the State may use it. Accordingly, assessors should not remove the exempt status of State-owned/State-used property.

If, however, property owned by the State is leased for private purposes, the tenant's leasehold estate may be assessable pursuant to the Leasehold Taxing Act. See N.J.S.A. 54:4-2.3, et seq. Even in the absence of a lease, where a private entity uses State-owned property for a private purpose, the private entity may be subject to local property tax pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:4-1.10.

It should also be remembered that if State government acquires property after January 1 from a non-exempt owner, the State is required to pay the property taxes for the remainder of the year. Such property would become exempt January 1 of the year following the date it is acquired, provided the municipal assessor was given notice via certified mail by January 10 of the year following acquisition. An exception is made if property is acquired between January 1 and January 10 of the tax year, and notice is given by January 10 of that same year, then exemption would begin on the date acquired.

A further exception is provided to land valued under the Farmland Assessment Act. Actively farmed agricultural/horticultural land acquired by the State for recreation and conservation use should not be subject to rollback taxes under N.J.S.A. 54:4-23.8 as amended by the Garden State Preservation Trust Act, Chapter 152, P.L. 1999. □

A report summarizing data from farmland assessment applications (FA-1) has recently been completed. The study shows that the total acreage devoted to agricultural or horticultural use in 2001 was 1,149,973 acres for the entire State.

The data for tax year 2001 reflect an increase of 3,473 acres from tax year 2000. Since 1983, the year in which the highest acreage, 1,271,882 acres, qualified for farmland assessment, the amount of qualified acreage has declined 9.6% or a total of 121,909 acres.

23.9% of New Jersey's land mass is approved under the Farmland Assessment Act. Hudson County remains the only county without farmland. Essex and Union each report less than 500 acres devoted to agricultural or horticultural use and Bergen County has less than 1,000 acres. Conversely, Salem with 57.2% has the greatest proportion of its land qualified under the Act. Other counties with large percentages of qualified farmland are: Warren 50.1%; Hunterdon 50%; Gloucester 38.7%; Sussex 33.6%; and Mercer 28.9%.

Copies of the 2001 report have been distributed to the County Tax Board Administrators. Anyone seeking specific information on qualified farmland acreage or wishing to obtain a copy of the report may do so by calling 609-292-7974. □

F.E.A.C. Adopts Values for 2002

The Farmland Evaluation Advisory Committee (F.E.A.C.) met on August 27, 2001, at the Phillip Alampi Laboratory in West Trenton to adopt a range of values for each of the several classifications of land in agricultural or horticultural use by county. In addition, the F.E.A.C. establishes values for income imputed to land used for grazing.

The thirty-eighth Report of the Committee, showing the value ranges adopted, is mailed to municipal assessors and county boards of taxation in early October of each pre-tax year. Land qualifying for farmland assessment must be assessed in accordance with its productivity and its agricultural or horticultural use rather than its market value.

The farmland values adopted by the committee for 2002 increased in 15 counties where qualified farmland is located. Increases in cropland having a B soil group rating averaged from $20.00 to $60.00 per acre when compared to 2001 values. □

Assessor Continuing Education

This is just a reminder that the Assessor Recertification Law, Chapter 278, P.L. 1999, now requires that to remain certified, tax assessors and all CTA holders must complete fifty (50) continuing education credit hours over the initial five-year renewal period which began July 2000 for all certifications in place on or before that date. Assessors who fail to meet continuing education requirements will be removed from office.

After the initial five-year period, renewal will be required every three years, by obtaining thirty (30) continuing education credit hours over three years. On average, this means assessors will be required to complete 10 hours of training each year. Again, one continuing education credit hour means 50 minutes of classroom or lecture time.

To report a new address so you can receive all mailings on this subject, call Mary Ann Miller at 609-292-7813. □

Update on PAMS

At this point most of the PAMS (Property Assessment and Management System) committees have completed their work. At the time this article was written, the State was in the process of creating a Request for Proposal (RFP) to solicit bids from software vendors in the local property assessment business. For more information about the PAMS project, see page 6 of the Winter 2000 issue of the New Jersey State Tax News.

Deductions Certified

The 2001 State Revenue Sharing Act Distribution for senior and disabled persons, surviving spouses, and veterans was delivered to the State Treasurer on September 17, 2001.

Under the provisions of R.S. 54A:10-1 et seq., as amended, the Director of the Division of Taxation certified to the State Treasurer in this report the amount of revenue sharing funds due each municipality on November 1, 2001.

The total amount of property tax deductions for senior and disabled persons and surviving spouses for 2001 was $27,228,655. That amount represents a decrease of 5.6% from 2000.

The total number of property tax deductions for senior and disabled citizens and surviving spouses for 2001 was 104,147. When compared to tax year 2000, the number of deductions decreased 7.2%.

The amount of veterans' deductions for tax year 2000 was $33,275,446. The amount of veterans' deductions for 2001 was $50,040,770. That amount represents an increase of 50%. The large increase is due to the fact that for tax year 2001 the veterans' deduction increased from $100 to $150 per deduction. The veterans' deduction will increase in $50 increments in each of the next 2 years until it reaches $250.

New Employees

During the spring of 2001, the Division of Taxation conducted a comprehensive recruiting drive to fill Auditor-Accountant Trainee, Investigator Trainee, and Tax Representative Trainee positions across the Division. The result? The Division hired more than one hundred and fifty new employees in what was the most successful recruiting effort in the history of New Jersey State Government.

All of the men and women hired are college graduates and most were from the graduating class of 2001. With the average age of a Division employee inching towards 50, these young professionals will be the future of the Division of Taxation. These new employees have been assigned among 5 of the Division's Activities, with 75 going to Audit, 34 to Compliance, 13 to Technical Services, 25 to Property Administration, and 4 to Technical Support.

Each Activity will train and develop their new employees over the course of the next year. For example, all of the trainees assigned to Local Property Branch of the Property Administration Activity are currently being given in-house training in property tax administration. Several have been enrolled in training courses for tax assessors at Rutgers University. □

Criminal Enforcement

Criminal Enforcement over the past several months included:

- In response to the New Jersey Department of Health & Senior Services, Division of Addiction Services, a draft on the issue of "loosies" (loose cigarettes sold outside of a normal pack) was prepared. This document, which explains the current law on "loosies," was forwarded to Addiction Services for eventual distribution to local health officials.

- On June 26, 2001, Spyridon H. Gizas of Dover, New Jersey, pled guilty to maintaining an illegal gambling resort and possession of over 100 cartons of untaxed cigarettes. Mr. Gizas was the target of a joint investigation between the Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) and the New Jersey State Police Organized Crime Unit investigation in Morris County. The Court imposed 18 months probation, 100 days of community service, forfeiture of $282 in cash and the 141.5 cartons of cigarettes to the State, as well as court costs and fines.
- On June 27, 2001, an ongoing investigation culminated in the arrest of Asif Hafeez. He was arrested in Matawan, New Jersey, as he was making a delivery of 280 cartons of counterfeit New Jersey stamped cigarettes to a local Krauszer's store. The manager, Mitesh J. Shah, was also arrested for possession and sale of counterfeit cigarettes and was able to post bail of $16,000. Mr. Hafeez failed to post bail of $20,000 and was remanded to the Monmouth County jail. Shortly thereafter, a search warrant was executed on Mr. Hafeez's residence in Millstone, New Jersey. Evidence was found alleging that he was involved in the import of unstamped cigarettes to the State of New Jersey and that he was involved in the manufacture and affixing of counterfeit tax stamps for New Jersey as well as for the states of Minnesota, Oregon, New York State, and New York City. A total of 39.4 cartons of contraband cigarettes and 29,793 counterfeit stamps (NYC/S, OR, MN, NJ) were seized along with various computer equipment and other documentary evidence.

- A notice to all New Jersey cigarette distributors and wholesalers was disseminated by the Director advising them of the method used by operatives relative to laundering counterfeit stamped cigarettes for refund through legitimate distributors. Suggestions for detecting future scams, such as more detailed examination of returned stock and matching serial numbers, were provided in the notice. The Office of Criminal Investigation has received several inquiries regarding the notice.
 - On July 6, 2001, Vincent Stewart of Camden was sentenced to a five-year term of probation and ordered to complete 500 hours of community service as a result of his guilty plea to an accusation involving conspiracy to commit theft by deception and false swearing. An investigation had revealed that Mr. Stewart was engaged in the practice of preparing fraudulent New Jersey homestead rebate applications for residents of Camden County for a ten-dollar fee. The investigation identified approximately 1,500 fraudulent homestead rebate applications that were attributed to Mr. Stewart. A joint investigation with the New Jersey State Police and the Division of Criminal Justice was initiated to address Mr. Stewart's activities.
- The investigation, including the use of New Jersey State Police personnel in an undercover capacity, resulted in the arrest of Mr. Stewart and his subsequent prosecution.
- On July 11, 2001, a Monmouth County grand jury returned a sixteen (16) count indictment against Michael Rosenstein, t/a Autoland Wholesale, of Neptune, New Jersey, for violations of New Jersey tax statutes. The indictment charges failure to file a sales tax return, filing false and fraudulent quarterly sales tax returns, and failure to turn over collected sales taxes. This investigation determined that the subject business had charged and collected, but failed to report and turn over, sales tax monies to the State of New Jersey for the period between April 1, 1996, and March 31, 2000.
 - On July 12, 2001, in Carteret Municipal Court, summons complaints for disorderly persons offenses were signed against Roger Toth, responsible person of diesel wholesaler Rolyn Enterprises Corporation, who failed to file three (3) Petroleum Products Gross Receipts Tax (PPGRT) Returns and ten (10) Motor Fuels Tax-Seller/User (MFT-SU) Returns, failed to remit monies due, failed to keep records required by motor fuels tax law, and failed to file an application for reinstatement of corporate charter when directed to do so by a Division of Taxation representative. This case was the result of a referral from Investigations Branch-Shore Regional Office.
 - On July 13, 2001, David B. Cohen, an accountant from Cherry Hill, New Jersey, was sentenced to a twelve (12) year term of incarceration in State prison as a result of his guilty plea to misapplication of entrusted property and failure to turn over taxes withheld. He was sentenced to concurrent prison terms of eight (8) years and four (4) years respectively, on the aforementioned charges, and an additional four (4) year consecutive sentence for failure to file his New Jersey gross income tax returns for two (2) years. In addition, he was ordered to make restitution of $632,000 to his victims. Mr. Cohen was the President of Payroll Masters, Inc., a payroll service company that failed to turn over State and Federal employee withholdings and payroll taxes. During the course of the investigation, Mr. Cohen continued to frequent expensive restaurants and Atlantic City casinos where he lost $127,000. The Camden County Prosecutor's Office was the lead investigative agency and presented the case for prosecution.
 - On July 18, 2001, in Hazlet Municipal Court, a summons complaint for a disorderly persons offense was signed against Glen Helfrich, responsible person of school bus operator R. Helfrich & Sons Corporation, who failed to file eleven (11) motor fuels tax returns and remit the appropriate motor fuels tax due. This case was the result of a referral from Taxation's Audit Services Branch-Motor Fuels Group.

- On August 6, 2001, Keith A. Edwards, trading as Omacees of Passaic, New Jersey, was arrested by the Office of Criminal Investigation when he took possession of 117 cartons of unstamped cigarettes shipped via UPS from Lou Ann's Smoke Shop (which is located on an Indian Reservation in New York State) to his grocery store. OCI also seized an additional 21.7 cartons of unstamped cigarettes already available for sale in the store's cigarette rack or found in and about the premises. Additional evidence of previous purchases from Lou Ann's Smoke Shop by Mr. Edwards was also found. This case is the result of a cooperative effort between the United Parcel Service as well as Commerce Bank security personnel who recognized unusual activity related to Mr. Edwards' personal checking account.
- On August 8, 2001, in Hudson County Superior Court, George J. Halpern of Short Hills, New Jersey, stipulated that he was in violation of the terms of the three-year probation which he had entered into in July 2000 as a result of his plea of guilty to one count of failing to file a 1997 New Jersey personal income tax return in connection with his business as a tax preparer for numerous individuals and small businesses. Mr. Halpern stipulated that between July 2000 and August 2001, he had violated the provision of his probation which prohibited him from acting as a tax preparer except under the supervision of another person responsible for his work. Mr. Halpern has two prior convictions for Federal tax evasion in addition to this conviction. In a related proceeding on the same date, Halpern's son, Todd P. Halpern, of Livingston, New Jersey, stipulated that he was in violation of the terms of a program of Pre-Trial Intervention (PTI) into which he had been admitted on July 21, 2000, as a result of his guilty plea to one count of filing a fraudulent 1997 New Jersey personal income tax return. Todd Halpern also stipulated that he was in violation of a provision which prohibited him from acting as a tax preparer except under the supervision of another person responsible for the accuracy of his work. Both Halperns are scheduled to be sentenced on the underlying guilty pleas in the fall of 2001.
- An investigator from the Office of Criminal Investigation was subpoenaed by the U.S. Attorney in Laredo, Texas, to testify as an expert witness in the case of the U.S. v. Jamie Rodriguez. Mr. Rodriguez had been arrested at the Laredo, Texas, border crossing into the U.S. in possession of 494,460 counterfeit New Jersey cigarette tax stamps. The Court found Rodriguez guilty of smuggling the counterfeit New Jersey stamps (government financial documents) into the U.S. and giving false statement to the FBI. He was remanded to the custody of the U.S. Marshall for the District to await sentencing.

- On August 8, 2001, Leonard Brooks, the President of Holiday Excursions Incorporated, pled guilty to charges of theft by deception and failure to turn over taxes withheld. Mr. Brooks, formerly known as Leonard Valdez, operated a travel agency from several locations in Camden County during the years 1995 through 1999. During this time, Mr. Brooks failed to remit New Jersey gross income tax withheld from employee wages. Mr. Brooks made full restitution prior to the plea. On September 21, 2001, Mr. Brooks was sentenced in Camden County to a term of three (3) years probation. This investigation and prosecution was a joint endeavor with members of the Camden County Prosecutor’s Office.

- On August 13, 2001, Annie M. McCoy and Christine M. Stubbs, both of Bridgeton, New Jersey, pled guilty to charges of falsifying records and theft by deception. Both individuals were involved in the preparation of fraudulent New Jersey homestead rebate applications and the subsequent receipt of fraudulent homestead rebates. On September 20, 2001, Christine M. Stubbs was sentenced in Cumberland County to a term of 18 months probation and ordered to make restitution of $700. Prior to sentencing, Ms. Stubbs had made restitution of $2,300. An additional condition of her sentencing was that she testifies truthfully against others who are the subject of an ongoing investigation with the Prosecutor’s Office. This investigation and prosecution was a joint endeavor with members of the Cumberland County Prosecutor’s Office.
- On September 21, 2001, in Superior Court, Monmouth County, Sergei Tsesarenko of Freehold, New Jersey, completed payment of $139,836.19 in restitution and was sentenced to three (3) years probation as a result of his guilty plea of October 7, 1999, to the charge of misapplication of entrusted funds (tax on diesel fuel) at his gas station in Freehold during the period July 1995 through September 1997. This case was a joint investigation with the Monmouth County Prosecutor’s Office, who represented the State in judicial proceedings.

- One hundred twenty-eight (128) complaints alleging tax evasion were evaluated in the Office of Criminal Investigation from July through September 2001.
- During the same period, sixty-five (65) charges were filed in court on sixteen (16) cases for violation of the Cigarette Tax Act, including possession of 1,813.4 cartons of contraband cigarettes valued at $70,030.45, and resulting in fifteen (15) arrests. Of the 1,813.4 cartons of contraband cigarettes seized, 358.2 cartons (20%) had counterfeit New Jersey tax stamps affixed to the packs. □

Corporation Business Tax

Entity Classification — A taxpayer inquired whether a Delaware general partnership can make an election to be taxed as a New Jersey S corporation.

The New Jersey Corporation Business Tax Act is a nondiscriminating franchise tax. Garfield Trust Co. v. Director, Div. of Taxation, 102 N.J. 420, 508 A. 2d 1104 (1986), app. dismissed 479 U.S. 925 (1986). The definition of “corporation” as contained in that Act provides:

“Corporation” shall mean any corporation, joint-stock company or association and any business conducted by a trustee or trustees wherein interest or ownership is evidenced by a certificate of interest or ownership or similar written instrument. N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4(c).

This definition is independent from the definition under IRC 7701 and regulations thereunder, which deals with entity classification for Federal purposes.

The applicable non-tax corporate, administrative provisions are to be found in the New Jersey Business Corporation Act. The public records filing requirement for corporations is derived from N.J.S.A. 14A:13-3 which prohibits a foreign corporation from doing business in New Jersey until it has procured a certificate of authority to do so, and N.J.S.A. 14A:13-4 which details the requisites for obtaining such a certificate of authority. The effect of obtaining a certificate of authority is set forth in N.J.S.A. 14A:13-5. Large, bold print on page 20 of the New Jersey Complete Business Registration Package (Form NJ REG – Rev. 3/01) specifically states that the public records filing does not pertain to partnerships.

Under the New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act a Delaware general partnership is subject to the New Jersey gross income tax as a partnership. Such an entity selection by the organizers would fit the statutory definition of partnership in N.J.S.A. 54A:1-2h.

Section N.J.S.A. 54A:2-3, at the time of enactment in 1976, was intended as an aid in entity classification for certain associations having corporate characteristics and taxable under the New Jersey Corporation Business Tax Act. At that time corporate characteristics included: limited liability for corporate debt; free transferability of corporate ownership interests; centralized management; and continuity of life. Entities that had at least three of these four characteristics were considered corporations for Federal purposes prior to 1997. At that time, due to the enactment of Federal “check the box” regulations, certain organizations were automatically classified as corporations. In that sense, 54A:2-3 is obsolescent with regard to partnerships that make a “check in the box” selection for tax treatment as a corporation. The context of this statute was intended to apply to entities which fit the corporate entity classification under the old four-prong test. Again, the universe that N.J.A.C. 18:35-1.3(a) was intended to apply to did not include entities that would have been classified as corporations under the pre-1997 four-prong test and which would constitute corporations under the CBT definition of corporations at N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4(c).

Accordingly, in a situation where a general partnership organized in Delaware has partners that are revocable grantor trusts whose owners are individuals domiciled outside of New Jersey, such entity must file the NJ-1065 partnership return. The ultimate partners would be subject to New Jersey gross income tax as nonresident individuals. Accordingly, a New Jersey S election would be unnecessary for the entity to receive “pass through” status in New Jersey.

Motor Fuels Tax

Retail Sales of Motor Fuel (Licensing) — For the purposes of the New Jersey Motor Fuels Tax Act, N.J.S.A. 54:39-1 et seq. and the Act to Regulate the Retail Sale of Motor Fuels, N.J.S.A. 56:6-1 et seq., a car rental agency that fuels its rental cars from a fixed location prior to renting them to its customers is not considered to be a motor fuel retail sales establishment subject to applicable licensing requirements.

If, however, the rental agency provides fuel to employees or others in addition to fueling its rental vehicles, it is considered to be a motor fuels retail dealer subject to licensing and applicable fair trade laws.

Sales and Use Tax

Admission to Swimming Pools and Parking — The Division responded to an inquiry regarding whether sales tax is due on admission to swimming pool facilities and fees for parking.

“There is imposed and there shall be paid a tax of 6% upon: ...Any admission charge, where such admission charge is in excess of $0.75 to or for the use of any place of amusement in the State, ...except charges to a patron for admission to, or use of, facilities for sporting activities in which such patron is to be a participant, such as bowling alleys and swimming pools.” N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3 and N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(e).

Admission to or use of a swimming pool is not taxed under the Sales and Use Tax Act.

Under the Sales and Use Tax Act, parking could only be taxed under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(3) as a storage charge. However, a parking space is not storage because storage implies that the service provider is actually performing the service of safekeeping the goods with respect to a period of non-use. This is different than the expectation of immediate use, where the property is kept in a state of readiness and is available and accessible by the owner. Therefore, since a parked car is not considered to be in storage under the statute, parking fees are not subject to tax.

Sales of Advertising Material in New Jersey — The purpose of N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.39 is to provide the purchaser of advertising or promotional material in New Jersey (whether or not the tangible personal property was purchased outside New Jersey and then delivered to the purchaser in New Jersey) with an exemption from sales and/or use tax in this State for any portion of such property ultimately delivered to other persons free of charge for use or consumption outside New Jersey through either the services of a direct mail house located in New Jersey or by other means.

However, the exemption from sales tax provided by N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.10 of the Sales and Use Tax Act is unaffected. Thus, a purchaser of advertising material or other tangible personal property in New Jersey who specifies delivery of such property in bulk by its vendor to a location outside New Jersey is also not liable for sales tax in New Jersey. Delivery in this case must be made by the vendor to the purchaser outside the State by means of a common carrier, parcel post, or the United States mail.

Where the purchaser of advertising or promotional material takes delivery of such property in this State, he may issue the vendor an Exempt Use Certificate (Form ST-4) in lieu of sales tax on the receipts from the sale in this State. The purchaser is then liable for use tax on that portion of the advertising material delivered to recipients in New Jersey or otherwise used or consumed by him in New Jersey.

Where the purchaser of advertising or promotional material takes delivery of such property in this State from a vendor who is also providing a direct mail service for the purchaser in this State, the purchaser may issue an Exempt Use Certificate (Form ST-4) to the vendor in lieu of sales tax on that portion of the property which the vendor will deliver to recipients outside New Jersey. The vendor in this case must impose the sales tax on that portion of the advertising material delivered to recipients in New Jersey and also impose sales tax on the direct mail service charge.

Aircraft Repair Charges — As amended by P.L. 1999, c.246, effective January 1, 2000, the sales tax exemption for sales of aircraft and repairs thereto provided in N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.35 now extends to: "repairs on aircraft having a maximum certified takeoff weight, as contained in the certificate type issued by the Federal Aviation Administration, of 6,000 pounds or more, including machinery or equipment to be installed on such aircraft and replacement parts therefor."

The "maximum gross takeoff weight" is made up of the weight of the aircraft plus what it carries. (It is heavier than the maximum gross landing weight, because by the time a plane lands, it has burned fuel and therefore weighs less.) This weight will be shown in the flight manual that every aircraft must carry. The FAA issues "type certificates" to the manufacturer specifying what gross takeoff weight is allowed for the particular type certificate. This allowable weight is the original certified weight. The weight referred to in the statute is the original gross takeoff weight in the specifications that the FAA gave to the aircraft manufacturer.

If a customer's aircraft meets the statutory criteria for exemption under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.35(b), the customer should present the repair shop with a properly completed Exempt Use Certificate (ST-4).

Federal Telecommunications Taxes — Receipts from the sale of intrastate or interstate telecommunications charged to an address within New Jersey are subject to New Jersey sales tax. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(f). Interstate telecommunications include international telecommunications. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(dd). The definition of "receipt" does not allow for a deduction of expenses in an otherwise taxable transaction. The Federal Universal Service Assessment is imposed on telecommunications carriers to subsidize telecommunications services to low income and rural areas. Although the assessment is imposed on the carrier, it can be passed on to the customer in connection with a telecommunications service charge. The Presubscribed Interexchange Carrier Charge (PICC) is a fee that the local telephone company charges the long distance carrier for the right to use the lines. Since the Universal Service Assessment and the PICC are expenses incurred by the carrier in connection with providing telecommunications services, when passed along to the customer, they are part of the taxable receipt which is subject to sales tax. In contrast, the Federal excise tax on telecommunications is imposed directly on the customer, and is merely collected by the carrier. 26 U.S.C.A. 4251. Accordingly, since the Federal excise tax is directly imposed on the customer, it is not subject to New Jersey sales tax.

Flag Exemption — Sales of flags of the United States of America or of the State of New Jersey are exempt from New Jersey sales and use tax.

This exemption is limited to sales of actual flags. It does not apply to representations of flags or to merchandise with a flag theme. The following are all examples of taxable items: framed prints of the United States flag; windsocks with a flag theme; flag stickers; flag pins, tie tacks, and other jewelry; tote bags imprinted with an image of the flag; dolls, teddy bears, Santa Claus figurines carrying a miniature flag; red, white, and blue ribbons; and wooden flag plaques. However, because there is a separate statutory exemption for clothing, sales of T-shirts, hats, neck scarves, socks, and other clothing items decorated with flag prints or flag embroideries are, of course, not subject to New Jersey sales tax.

If a vendor sells the actual flag banners, the pole, and the finial separately, the exemption applies only to the sale of the flag banner itself. Sales of the various pieces of hardware sold separately are subject to tax. However, if a complete flag is sold as part of a ready-to-assemble kit, including, for example, the banner, post, finial and cord, the lump sum charged for the kit will be viewed as a charge for an exempt flag and will therefore be exempt from sales and use tax.

If a flag is being sold as an antique or collectible, however, and the price charged reflects its historic and collectible value, the transaction will not be deemed a sale of an exempt "flag." For example, a battle flag flown during the War of 1812, which is sold for several thousand dollars, is deemed to be a taxable item.

Sales of flags of other nations, of the United Nations, or of other states are not exempt from New Jersey tax. The statutory exemption from New Jersey sales and use tax is limited to sales of the official flags of the United States of America and the State of New Jersey only.

Interior Decorator Services — The Division views separately stated interior design or decorator services as professional or personal service transactions which are exempt from sales tax under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(e)(4)(A). If the service provider also sells tangible property to the customer, such charges are subject to tax under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a).

The definition of "receipt" does not allow a deduction for expenses of the seller. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(d). Thus, expenses incurred in connection with the taxable sale of property (e.g., procurement fees) are also subject to tax. Expenses that directly relate to separately stated and nontaxable design/consulting services are not subject to tax. Separately stated charges for the storage and installation of tangible property are subject to tax under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(3) and 3(b)(2), respectively.

Interoffice Wrapping Supplies —

The Division received an inquiry concerning the sales and use tax treatment of wrapping materials used to package patient specimens for transport by the taxpayer from medical service providers to the taxpayer's testing laboratory.

The Division pointed out that the Tax Court of New Jersey provided guidance on the wrapping supplies exemption in Global Terminal v. Taxation Division Director, 9 N.J. Tax 152 (1987). See N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.15. The issue in that case was whether Global's purchase of chocking materials used for packing cargo containers while in transit was entitled to the exemption. Global packed and loaded the ships, but did not provide the actual transportation service.

The Court held that Global was entitled to purchase wrapping supplies (the first transaction) tax free because such supplies were used in a second and separate transaction, the stevedoring services it provided to the customer. The Court stated that N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.15 complements N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.11, which exempts transportation services, and expresses a legislative intent to exempt both the wrapping supplies used incidentally to the delivery of personal property and the charges for the transportation service in which the supplies were used.

In view of the Court's decision in Global Terminal, the Division no longer requires that the purchaser of exempt wrapping supplies use them in a "sale" transaction. That is, the N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.15 exemption may be claimed even if the purchaser of the supplies is not selling the property that is being delivered, as long as the items are used in an identifiable transaction with another party, e.g. boxes purchased by a moving company for use in moving its customer, and plastic garment bags purchased by a dry cleaner for use in wrapping its customer's cleaned garments. Wrapping supplies purchased for internal use by a business to move property from one location to another are not considered eligible for this exemption because there is no separate delivery transaction with another party.

Lease Fees — In New Jersey, the tax is imposed on the lessor at the inception of the lease and is based on either the purchase price of the property acquired for lease or the total of the lease payments attributed to the lease of such property. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(bb). If the lease payment method is elected by the lessor, tax is due on any charges made by the lessor that relate to the lease or the use of the vehicle by the lessee.

The following fees are subject to tax as charges directly attributed to the lease or the use of the property which are disclosed to the lessee in the lease contract:

- Early termination fee
- Excess mileage fee
- Excess wear and tear fee
- Vehicle disposition fee
- Reconditioning/repair fee. □

Administration

Standard for Court to Hear Motion for Reconsideration – Stephen Little Trucking and Stephen Little v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided July 9, 2001; Tax Court No. 005828-1999.

Plaintiffs sought reconsideration of the Court's previous written opinion by essentially reiterating the arguments that were raised, considered, and rejected.

The Court denied the motion by ruling that plaintiffs failed to demonstrate either that the Court erred or that the opinion was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. Consequently, the Court declined to readdress plaintiff's contentions.

Gross Income Tax

Interest Deduction - Acquisition Indebtedness to Purchase S Corporation Stock – Sidman v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided June 28, 2001; Appellate Division No. A-5591-99T5.

Plaintiff-shareholder purchased additional interests in an S corporation from other shareholders so that he controlled a majority of the corporate shares. Plaintiff's acquisition was financed with a personal note that provided for equal payments that included interest at eight percent. The Division disallowed plaintiff's reporting the interest as a deduction from his S corporation pro rata share of income.

The Court held that a shareholder's interest payments to other shareholders for their S corporation stock was not deductible from his pro rata share because there was no authority to permit such a deduction. The statute's plain language did not specifically provide for an interest deduction on personal loans in this situation. Turning to Federal tax law, the Court distinguished an Internal Revenue Service notice that permitted S corporation shareholders to deduct interest in debt-financed acquisitions by stating that neither the statute nor the legislative history reference the application of Federal principles to this issue. Furthermore, the legislative history revealed that the Legislature purposely placed a tax on gross income to limit deductions in order to avoid a perceived unfairness in the Federal system. In discussing Dantzler, where the Tax Court ruled that a partner could deduct interest connected to the acquisition of a partnership interest, the Court stated that the Gross Income Tax Act need not treat partnerships and S corporations alike as they are not identical entities. Moreover, unlike partnerships, S corporations have a separate and distinct legal identity apart from their shareholders.

Reporting of S Corporation's Sale – Miller v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided August 20, 2001; Tax Court No. 004040-2000.

In 1996, plaintiff was the principal shareholder of a subchapter S corporation that sold virtually all of its assets. This significant asset sale was not in the ordinary course of the S corporation's trade or business. Thereafter, the S corporation was liquidated and paid plaintiff a liquidating dividend that included the proceeds of the asset sale.

New Jersey's NJ-K-1 provides only one line for reporting S corporation income titled the pro rata share of subchapter S income. Therefore, on plaintiff's Schedule NJ-K-1, the S corporation reported that plaintiff's distributive share was the total of the net gain on the asset sale and the income from operations. On plaintiff's New Jersey gross income tax return, plaintiff bifurcated that figure reporting the income from operations of the S corporation as plaintiff's pro rata share of S corporation income and the asset sale as a capital gain from which plaintiff deducted his stock basis in the S corporation as well as his losses from other investments. Pursuant to an audit of plaintiff, the Division combined the S corporation's gain from the asset sale with its income from operations to report it solely in the category of pro rata share of S corporation income. As a result of the audit reclassification, the Division did not allow a deduction for his basis in the S corporation stock and his losses from other investments.

The Court held that the S corporation's sale of corporate assets was reportable by plaintiff as a gain on the disposition of property because income earned outside of the ordinary course of trade or business retains its character when passed through to the S corporation shareholders. Moreover, the Court ruled that the pro rata share of S corporation income is income from the ordinary trade or business of the corporation. In support of its holding, the Court first looked to the legislative history and found that it was not the Legislature's intent to aggregate all categories of S corporation income under the pro rata share category. The Court noted that the Federal Schedule K-1 provides lines for separate items of income that are reported on separate lines of the Federal income tax return such that plaintiff's Federal Schedule K-1 properly reported the S corporation income from operations as a separate and distinct category from the net gain on the sale of the S corporation assets. The Court added that the fact that the corporation liquidated and paid a liquidating dividend was further support for the characterization of this transaction as a gain on the sale of property.

In addition, the Court held that the plaintiff was entitled to deduct his basis in the S corporation stock from the passed through proceeds of the S corporation's sale of assets. The Court reasoned that this result was warranted because taxing the gross proceeds would be inconsistent with the New Jersey gross income tax's taxation of net gains and would be illogical with the Koch holding that forbid taxation on the return of capital. An appeal has been filed by the New Jersey Division of Taxation.

Six-Year Statute of Limitations/ Death Benefits – Joyce H. Eiszner v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided July 19, 2001; Appellate Division No. A-3339-99T2.

Death Benefits

At the time of plaintiff's husband's death, husband was a New Jersey (NJ) resident who was employed in NJ by CPC International, Inc.

(CPC). CPC provided performance plans to its current employees that consisted of stock and stock options that were contingently granted. However, if an ex-employee died, retired, became disabled, or left by reason of voluntary separation, the board of directors had discretion as to whether a payment would be made. Immediately after plaintiff's husband's death in September 1990, the board of directors authorized payment to her husband's estate. The payment was not distributed until 1992 and transferred to the husband's revocable trust, an NJ resident trust. The trust distributed these monies to plaintiff.

The Tax Court held that the payment was not a death benefit because death did not trigger the payment. The Tax Court found that the CPC Plan made payments as a result of participation in the Plan and not necessarily because of death as other employment-terminating factors, disability, retirement, and voluntary separation, might also result in a payment. Therefore, the Tax Court ruled that the payment was a performance award attributable to the deceased employee's former services. It thus constituted deferred compensation under an incentive compensation plan and it is includable in the plaintiff's gross income. On appeal, the Appellate Division agreed with the Tax Court. The Appellate Division added that to accept plaintiff's argument that the payment was a death benefit would allow business individuals to time discretionary payments at death to avoid taxation.

Six-Year Statute of Limitations

Both the husband's estate and trust each filed a 1992 gross income tax fiduciary return in 1993. The estate return included the CPC payment received under the performance plan and described it as shares and performance award. The return for the estate identified that the total amount was distributed to the beneficiary trust and listed plaintiff's address, social security number, and her status as an NJ nonresident. The trust return reported the entire income from the estate and noted the distribution of that amount to the plaintiff as beneficiary.

As plaintiff relocated her residence to Illinois in July 1991, she filed a 1992 NJ gross income tax nonresident return seeking a refund of first quarter estimated tax payments inadvertently paid to NJ. Attached to the NJ return was her 1992 Illinois individual tax return with the "Supplement to Illinois" 1992 Federal Form 1040, U.S. individual income tax return. Although the NJ return reported the net amount of CPC's payment to her husband under "Amount of Gross Income Everywhere," it did not explain the nature and source of the income, it reported no income from NJ sources as well as no NJ tax due, and the NJ estate and trust fiduciary returns were not attached. Approximately four years after plaintiff's filing of her 1992 NJ nonresident return, the Director sent a Notice of Deficiency for the amount of tax owing on the CPC Performance Plan payment.

Utilizing a common sense approach to determine whether plaintiff's NJ return's disclosure provided a 'clue' as to the nature of the income omission, the Tax Court held that the Director's assessment was not time-barred by the three-year statute of limitations because plaintiff's NJ nonresident and the attached Illinois and Federal returns' disclosure of the source or nature of the income was inadequate to apprise the Director that the income was NJ sourced. The Division had six years in which to assess additional tax under N.J.S.A. 54A:9-4(d). The Tax Court noted that the required Schedule E was not submitted to the Division along with the Federal return and that the Schedule E would have identified the source of the funds. Furthermore, the Court ruled that the Director has no duty to cross reference different returns filed by different entities not attached to plaintiff's individual return. The Appellate Division agreed finding it significant that plaintiff's NJ return did not identify the income as from an NJ source.

Sales and Use Tax
Sales of Materials and Supplies to Contractors – Stephen Little Trucking and Stephen Little v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided May 29, 2001; Tax Court No. 005828-1999.

Plaintiff was engaged in the business of selling sand, gravel, mulch, and similar materials to contractors. Although plaintiff concedes that these sales were taxable, plaintiff neither collected sales tax nor obtained direct payment certificates because he claims he is not a person required to collect tax from contractors.

The Court found that there are two statutory provisions that address this issue. First, the relevant section of N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(w) defines a person required to collect tax as every vendor of tangible personalty. One exception to the definition is that vendors selling supplies and materials to contractors are not deemed to be a person required to collect tax and the contractor is required to pay the tax directly to the Director. The pertinent part of the second section, N.J.S.A. 54:32B-12(b), provides that in order to prevent the evasion of tax there is a presumption that all receipts from retail sales of tangible personalty are subject to tax until the contrary is established by the person required to collect the tax or the customer. Additionally, this section allows the Director to authorize contractors to pay the tax directly to the Director and thereby waive the vendor's obligation to collect tax where the contractor has been issued a direct payment permit.

The Court held that plaintiff had an obligation to collect sales tax because plaintiff did not collect direct payment certificates from the contractors. Furthermore, the Court ruled that a contractor's difficulty in obtaining a direct payment permit would not be a basis for not collecting sales tax. The Court cited the simultaneous amendments to both sections, legislative intent, the Director's regulations, and the object and policy concerns of the Sales and Use Tax Act, such as effectively collecting and preventing evasion of taxes, in support of its ruling.

Over plaintiff's objections that sections 2(w) and 12(b) are independent of each other, the Court ruled that those sections were, in fact, complementary. The legislative history revealed that 1968 legislation amended both sections so that vendors were relieved from the responsibility of collecting sales tax on sales to contractors in section 2(w) and at the same time legislation added to section 12(b) permitted the authorization of direct tax payments to contractors. If the sections were read independently, the Court determined that the vendor would have no obligation to collect tax on a sale to an unidentified contractor and the Division would be handicapped in identifying the contractor and collecting the tax. The Court also found that the Director's regulations provide that a contractor must pay sales tax at the time of the materials' and supplies' purchase except where the contractor issues a direct payment certificate and then the vendor is not required to collect sales tax. (See N.J.A.C. 18:24-5). □

Local Property Tax

Property Tax Reimbursement — P.L. 2001, c.251 (signed into law on October 30, 2001) increases the income eligibility requirements for base year 2000 to $37,174 for single applicants and to $45,582 (combined income) for married couples. The new income limits will be subject to a cost-of-living adjustment based on the corresponding adjustment in the annual maximum social security benefit. Chapter 251 took effect immediately and applies retroactively to base year determinations for tax year 2000 and thereafter. The new income limits will affect only property tax reimbursement applications for tax year 2001 and thereafter.

Miscellaneous

September 11 Terrorist Attacks — P.L. 2001, c.248 (signed into law on October 4, 2001) establishes the "New Jersey Terrorism Victims' Assistance Act of 2001" which authorizes the Governor to expedite, by waiving certain administrative requirements, the payment of State benefits or the provision of assistance under State programs to victims and families of victims of the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks on the United States; and to extend, without interest or penalty, deadlines for certain filings with, and payments to, State agencies. The legislation also allows governing bodies of municipalities to waive interest on delinquent obligations for those who suffered personal or business losses as a result of the attacks. This legislation took effect upon enactment and expired on December 31, 2001.

Individual Development Accounts — P.L. 2001, c.93 (signed into law on May 10, 2001) establishes the New Jersey Individual Development Account Program within the Department of Community Affairs and appropriates $2 million to create an Individual Development Account Fund. The fund will be used to provide grants to community based organizations to implement the program and to provide a State match of $1 for every $1 of earned income deposited into an individual development account by a participant, up to a maximum of $1,500 per calendar year. Persons eligible to participate in the program must be adults with an annual household gross income that does not exceed 200% of the official poverty level. Funds accumulated in an individual development account may be withdrawn by the account holder, with the approval of the community based organization, for three purposes only: qualified post-secondary educational expenses, qualified acquisition costs of a primary residence, or qualified business capitalization expenses.

Monies deposited into or withdrawn from an individual development account, including interest from the account, are exempt from New Jersey gross income tax. In addition, the monies deposited in an individual development account and the interest income shall not be taken into account in determining eligibility for, or the amount of, assistance under State and Federal means-tested programs. The legislation took effect November 6, 2001, except for the section pertaining to the development of necessary regulations, which took effect immediately. □

Check, Please?!*

It happens every July, and continues into September. Many New Jersey residents who receive a check under one or more of the State's property tax relief programs are uncertain as to what that check is for. Beginning on July 15 with the mailing of the Property Tax Reimbursement checks, continuing into August with the distribution of more than one million Homestead Rebate checks on July 31, and stretching into September, when the NJ SAVER rebates are mailed, the Division of Taxation is inundated with inquiries.

This year, the rebate season was impacted by a number of factors which added to the uncertainty:

- Legislation which increased the amounts of both the NJ SAVER rebates and the maximum Homestead Rebates.
- An extensive newspaper and radio advertising campaign for the NJ SAVER Rebate Program.
- The mailing of notices from the Internal Revenue Service heralding the arrival of "Immediate Tax Relief."
- The mailing of the Federal Advance Payment checks.

The result? An increase in phone calls and correspondence unlike anything the Division has ever seen before.

During the 2000 rebate season the Division received 40,472 phone calls between July 1, 2000, and August 31, 2000, regarding the Homestead and NJ SAVER Rebate Programs. During that same period in 2001, we received 115,083 phone calls regarding these two programs, representing an increase of 184%. Total e-mails increased from 3,132 during July and August 2000, to 16,040 during the same period in 2001. These numbers represent an increase in total e-mails received of 412%.

The Division recognizes the complexity of the property tax relief programs and knows that that complexity is compounded by the fact

Federal Income Tax Rebates

The Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001 (EGTRRA), approved by Congress and signed by President Bush, directs the Treasury to send checks to most taxpayers this year, giving them an advance payment of a 2001 tax credit.

The Federal advance payment gives taxpayers immediate benefit of the retroactive tax rate reduction enacted by the EGTRRA for tax year 2001. The amount a taxpayer receives is based on their tax liability for tax year 2000. The IRS has stated that the advance payment is "a reduction of tax and is not taxable on the federal tax return."

For New Jersey gross income tax purposes the Federal advance payment will be treated as a Federal tax refund. As such, it is not considered taxable income and should not be reported on the taxpayer's 2001 gross income tax return. Taxpayers can find this information specifically stated in the instructions to the New Jersey gross income tax return, which enumerate "Federal advance payments" as exempt income. □

Qualified Tuition Plans

HR-1836, otherwise known as the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001, which was signed by President Bush on June 7, 2001, changed the income tax treatment of Qualified Tuition Plans established under section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code.

For Federal income tax purposes, prior to the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001, earnings in Qualified Tuition Plans were tax-deferred and then taxable (usually to the student) when distributions were used to pay higher education expenses. The 2001 Tax Act, however, provides that, beginning in tax year 2002, the earnings from a Qualified Tuition Plan will be tax-free if used to pay qualified education expenses. The exclusion from gross income is also extended to distributions from qualified tuition programs established and maintained by an educational entity other than a State (such as a private institution) for distributions made in taxable years after December 31, 2003. Also, in 2002, taxpayers are allowed to roll over credits or other amounts for a designated beneficiary from one Qualified Tuition Plan to another. Taxpayers are only allowed one rollover per 12-month period, and there is a lifetime limit of three rollovers.

For New Jersey income tax purposes, a qualified state tuition program is defined as one established under section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code. Presently, N.J.S.A. 54A:6-25 allows the earnings accumulating in a qualified state tuition program account to be excluded from New Jersey gross income. Upon distribution, any amounts that are used for higher education expenses (as defined under section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code) are then excluded from the taxpayer's income. A rollover from one account to another is considered a qualified distribution within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 54A:6-25 if it meets the requirement in section 529(c)(3)(C)(i) of the Internal Revenue Code. The amendments to Federal law regarding income tax treatment of distributions and earnings from a Qualified Tuition Plan correspond to the current treatment for New Jersey gross income tax purposes under N.J.S.A. 54A:6-25. The Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001, therefore, has no effect on the New Jersey income tax treatment of distributions and earnings from a Qualified Tuition Plan. □

The program gives qualified taxpayers the opportunity to pay delinquent taxes without having to pay interest or penalty. Amnesty applies to all taxes administered by the Louisiana Department of Revenue, and will be granted for any taxable period prior to July 1, 2001, provided the taxpayer satisfies all the amnesty conditions. Taxpayers must apply for amnesty in writing by submitting a Louisiana Tax Amnesty Application, Form R-20083. Taxpayers can also write to the Louisiana Department of Revenue, PO Box 144, Baton Rouge, LA 70821-0144.

Maryland's Tax Amnesty Program also began September 1, 2001, but ends October 31, 2001. Limousine Dealers and Repairers

The New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act was recently amended to include an exemption for the sale of a limousine to a person licensed by the New Jersey Division of Motor Vehicles. A licensee must obtain a certificate of compliance from the municipality where the licensee resides. (N.J.S.A.48:16-17).

The sales and use tax exemption also applies to charges for repair services to limousines, including replacement parts. A "limousine" is defined as (1) a motor vehicle registered under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 39:3-19.5, or registered as a limousine under the laws of another state; and (2) used exclusively in the business of carrying passengers for hire to provide pre-arranged passenger transportation at a premium fare on a dedicated, nonscheduled, charter basis, that is not conducted on a regular route and with a seating capacity of no more than 14 passengers, excluding the driver. See N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.52.

For purposes of the exemption, a limousine does not include any taxicab, hotel or airport shuttle or bus, or bus used solely to transport children or teachers to and from school. It also does not include any vehicle owned and operated without charge by a business entity for its own purposes. In order to document the applicability of the exemption for the purchase of the limousine, the customer must provide a copy of the license to operate a limousine service and the vehicle must be registered as a limousine at the time of closing the sale transaction. An Exempt Use Certificate (ST-4) must also be provided to the motor vehicle dealer.

In order to document the applicability of the exemption for parts and repair service, the purchaser must complete an Exempt Use Certificate (ST-4), citing the limousine exemption. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.52. In addition, the motor vehicle must be registered as a limousine in New Jersey or another state. The service provider should confirm that the vehicle has "Limousine" license plates. □

LOCAL PROPERTY TAX Veteran Status

P.L. 2000, c.127 (approved September 21, 2000) provides that the New Jersey Department of Military and Veterans' Affairs shall determine the status of veterans in certain non-property tax related cases.

This Act provides that the Adjutant General of the Department of Military and Veterans' Affairs shall determine whether any person is to be considered a "veteran" or a "disabled veteran” under N.J.S.A. 11A:5-1 (for civil service preference), N.J.S.A. 18A:66-2.2 (for retirement allowance), N.J.S.A. 43:15A-6.1 (for retirement allowance), and N.J.S.A. 43:16A-11.7a (for military service credit). It also extends adjudication authority to the Adjutant General concerning the statutes listed above.

As introduced, this bill had also directed the Adjutant General of the Department of Military and Veterans’ Affairs to adjudicate appeals concerning whether a person is to be considered a “veteran” for the purpose of receiving a property tax deduction, or as having a “service-connected disability” for the purposes of receiving a property tax exemption. However, this provision was removed before the bill became law. Therefore, the appeal process for property tax deductions and exemptions remains with the municipal assessor, county tax board, and various courts.

P.L. 2001, c.127 (approved June 28, 2001) extends certain veterans’ benefits, including the veterans’ property tax deduction, to certain participants in the Lebanon Crisis of 1958. See Service Periods for Veterans’ Benefits, below. □

Service Periods for Veterans’ Benefits

The Lebanon Crisis of 1958 has been added as a qualified war period for property tax benefits. On June 28, 2001, P.L. 2001, c.127 was approved, expanding certain veterans’ benefits to certain participants of the Lebanon Crisis of 1958. The start date for this period is July 1, 1958, and the end date is November 1, 1958. This mission carries with it the 14 days in the actual combat zone requirement as described in the box below.

Haiti is not a qualified war period for veteran’s property tax deduction and exemption. In a recent Veterans Guide published by the New Jersey Department of Military and Veterans Affairs, Haiti was included in a listing of New Jersey War Dates. While recent legislation has been passed designating Haiti as a wartime service period for certain civil service matters, this legislation does not extend to or affect property tax benefits. The current wartime periods for property tax purposes, as specified in New Jersey statutes, are listed in the box below. □

Operation “Joint Guard” – Bosnia & Herzegovina*	December 20, 1996	Ongoing

World War II	September 16, 1940	December 31, 1946
World War I	April 6, 1917	November 11, 1918

* Peacekeeping missions require a minimum of 14 days service in the actual combat zone except where service-incurred injury or disability occurs in the combat zone, then actual time served, though less than 14 days, is sufficient for purposes of property tax exemption or deduction. The 14-day requirement for Bosnia and Herzegovina may be met by service in one or both operations for 14 days continuously or in aggregate. For Bosnia and Herzegovina the combat zone also includes the airspace above those nations.

Tax Compliance of Bus Companies

The Division's Special Projects Unit recently joined forces with the New Jersey Motor Vehicle Services Bus Safety Inspection Unit. The results benefited both agencies and the public.

While buses were undergoing safety inspections by Motor Vehicle Services personnel, Taxation investigators were accessing the Division's mainframe computer system via remote hookup to determine if the bus company was registered with the Division of Taxation. Upon completion of the safety checks Motor Vehicle inspectors directed the bus drivers to a safe area to allow Taxation investigators time to complete their research.

For those bus companies that were either unregistered or noncompliant with New Jersey's Corporation Business Tax, calls were made to the bus company headquarters to determine the extent of the corporation's tax liability. Warrants of Execution-Jeopardy Assessment were then served upon those businesses found to have liability with New Jersey. Payment of the assessment was required before the bus was permitted to continue on its route.

As a result of the impact of this joint initiative, busing industry trade associations have asked the Division of Taxation to give members of the associations time to voluntarily comply with New Jersey tax laws.

The Division is always receptive to voluntary disclosure. The Division's voluntary disclosure program allows any taxpayer to initiate contact with the Division of Taxation in order to register, file delinquent returns, and make full payment of liabilities plus interest. In return, the taxpayer would not be subject to civil or criminal penalties.

In those instances where the taxpayer voluntarily discloses their tax liability, the Division generally agrees to a look-back period of four years (three prior years and the current year) which coincides with the Taxpayers' Bill of Rights. In those instances where trust fund taxes were collected, such as sales tax, the look-back period is not limited to four years but extends to the original date the taxes were collected.

The Special Projects Unit of the Division of Taxation will continue its compliance initiatives that focus on areas of noncompliance in order to "level the playing field" for the law-abiding citizens of New Jersey. □

INHERITANCE TAX New Waiver Form

The Division has developed a new Inheritance Tax Waiver Form (Form 0-1) which will replace the form currently in use. The use of the new form is scheduled to be phased in over the next several months.

Waivers are currently issued using preprinted, custom-sized forms (8½" × 8") printed on plain, white paper. The appearance of the new waiver form will be far different. The new form will be printed using a laser printer and letter-sized (8½" × 11"), bonded, cream-colored paper on which the Great Seal of the State of New Jersey will be watermarked.

The stamped signature of the Director, Division of Taxation will continue to be required to validate a waiver. Only originally-printed and stamped waivers may be accepted by banking institutions, county clerks, and transfer agents. As in the past, copies may not be accepted.

Waivers issued on the old forms will continue to be valid and may be filed with and accepted by banking institutions, county clerks, and transfer agents. Waivers do not have an expiration date.

It is expected that the use of the new inheritance tax waiver form will facilitate the waiver process and minimize the processing time required for the issuance of waivers. This should prove to be beneficial to both the Division and to the taxpayer.

Any questions related to the new waiver form or the validity of a particular waiver may be directed to the Transfer Inheritance Tax Information Section at 609-292-5033. □

Criminal Enforcement

Criminal Enforcement over the past months included:

- In March of 2001 the Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) arrested Abdelnasa A. Sarameh for transporting 304 cartons of contraband cigarettes. Mr. Sarameh was under Federal indictment in Ohio for money laundering and trafficking in fraudulent food stamps. His New Jersey arrest was a violation of his pretrial agreement set by the U.S. Court. At the request of the U.S. Attorney, a member of OCI testified in the U.S. District Court in Cleveland, Ohio, in regard to the New Jersey arrest. As a result, the subject was remanded to the custody of the U.S. Marshals to remain in Federal custody pending trial. He then plead guilty to the above charges and is serving a twenty-three (23) month sentence in Federal custody.

- On March 26, 2001, David B. Cohen, a Certified Public Accountant from Cherry Hill, New Jersey, entered a guilty plea to misusing more than $632,000 of his clients' funds. Mr. Cohen, the President of Payroll Masters, a payroll service company, misused the escrowed monies from clients that were designated as Federal and state payroll taxes, as well as Social Security contributions. He also entered guilty pleas to Failing to Turn Over Taxes Withheld and Failing to File New Jersey Gross Income Tax Returns.
- On April 4, 2001, OCI executed search warrants for a Union Township, New Jersey, residence with an unattached garage, and two South Carolina (SC) registered vehicles. In addition, a search warrant was executed on a grocery store in Irvington, New Jersey. As a result, five subjects were arrested by OCI for their involvement with possession and transportation of counterfeit stamped cigarettes. OCI seized two conversion vans, two handguns, $37,984 in cash, 1,897.7 cartons of New Jersey counterfeit stamped cigarettes and 1,020 cartons of New York State/City counterfeit stamped cigarettes. These arrests and seizures are the result of a joint investigation by New Jersey's Office of Criminal Investigation and the New York State Department of Taxation and Finance Office of Tax Enforcement, and the New York City Finance Department Office of Tax Enforcement with the assistance of the Union County Prosecutor's Office and the Union Township and Irvington Police Departments.

- Working with United States Customs at Newark International Airport, a new cigarette smuggling scam has been uncovered by the Office of Criminal Investigation. Passengers from Pakistan are traveling with large amounts of English-made unstamped cigarettes such as Benson & Hedges. The bags are left at the Air Cargo Terminal and the passengers immediately make a return trip to Pakistan. The bags are left for unidentified parties to pick up with no United States address. This has occurred on four occasions. OCI seized 190.9 cartons on the first occasion, 245 cartons on the second, 160 cartons on the third, and 284.5 cartons on the fourth.
- On April 7, 2001, a State Grand Jury returned indictments against George S. Scott, of Edison, New Jersey, on numerous charges, including Theft by Deception, Money Laundering, and the Failure to File New Jersey Personal Gross Income Tax Returns for the years 1998 and 1999. The joint investigation between the Division of Criminal Justice and the Office of Criminal Investigation established that the subject had failed to report $2.3 million that was generated by a real estate scam operated by Mr. Scott during the years 1998 and 1999. It was also determined that Mr. Scott failed to remit the combined income tax liability due in the amount of $147,681.

- On April 20, 2001, Thomas B. Ellis Jr. was sentenced in U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia to twelve (12) months incarceration in a Federal Correctional Institution, twenty-four (24) months of supervised probation, and restitution of $173,692.24 as a result of his guilty plea to Federal Mail Fraud charges. Mr. Ellis was the subject of a joint investigation with the Federal Bureau of Investigation relating to the filing of fictitious New Jersey income tax returns and the receipt of fraudulent refunds. The investigation revealed that Mr. Ellis, using fictitious or assumed identities, victimized forty (40) States, the District of Columbia, and the Federal Government. This case emphasizes that with State and Federal cooperation, tax-related crimes with multijurisdictional aspects can be successfully prosecuted.
- On May 16, 2001, the Cumberland County Grand Jury indicted four county residents on charges of Theft by Deception and Falsifying Records. Christine Marie Stubbs, Tonya Darnell Redding, and Paula Denise Jones, all of Bridgeton, together with Annie M. McCoy of Millville, filed multiple fictitious or fraudulent

New Jersey Homestead Rebate Applications and received fraudulent rebates. The individuals, collectively, have been charged with filing 154 New Jersey Homestead Rebate Applications and receiving $58,785.01 in Homestead Rebates.

- On May 21, 2001, Steven J. Lawlor, a Certified Public Accountant from Demarest, New Jersey, plead guilty to one count of Misapplication of Entrusted Property. Mr. Lawlor prepared fraudulent sales tax returns for a used car business and filed these returns during the Division's Tax Amnesty Program in 1996.
- On May 21, 2001, Vincent Stewart, of Camden, New Jersey, plead guilty to one count of Conspiracy to Commit Theft By Deception based on his preparation of approximately 1,500 fraudulent New Jersey Homestead Rebate Applications for residents of Camden County. This joint investigation with the New Jersey State Police and the Division of Criminal Justice resulted in Mr. Stewart's arrest in January. The investigation was a major factor in reducing Homestead Rebate fraud in the area.

- The Office of Criminal Investigation has begun a joint enforcement project with the Audit Services Motor Fuels section to cite, in municipal court, sellers and users of special fuel (diesel and kerosene) who have failed to comply with Division requirements to obtain a bond as part of the licensing procedure, and who are subsequently operating without a license or a bond.

the City of Newark relative to contraband cigarette activity, as well as related offenses and licensure. A total of forty-four (44) locations were visited. At twelve (12) of those locations, contraband cigarettes were seized. One arrest was made as a subject was making a delivery to a retail store of Delaware stamped cigarettes and untaxed tobacco products.

- On June 7 and 8, 2001, the Division of Taxation sponsored the FTA Tobacco Tax Section Northeast Regional Meeting in Lambertville, New Jersey. The day-and-a-half meeting was well attended with 50 representatives of State, Local, and Federal agencies concerned with tobacco tax issues. The Office of Criminal Investigation received positive feedback on all aspects of the conference.
- On June 18, 2001, a State grand jury returned a true bill on an indictment naming the Office of Criminal Investigation case subject A-AAACE Mechanical Contractors and its corporate officer Jeffrey Biggiani of Parsippany, New Jersey, in the following four (4) counts: Theft by Failure to Make Required Disposition of Property Received (2nd Degree), Misapplication of Entrusted Property (2nd Degree), Failure to Turn Over Sales Taxes (3rd degree), and Misconduct by a Corporate Official (2nd degree). This investigation determined that the subject business had charged and collected, but failed to report and remit sales tax monies in the amount of $81,344.00 over the period of

- One hundred and forty-one (141) complaints alleging tax evasion were evaluated from April through June 2001 in the Office of Criminal Investigation.

Corporation Business Tax

Bank Subjectivity — The Division responded to questions about the subjectivity to New Jersey Corporation Business Tax of a New York bank, qualified to do business in New Jersey, that wishes to provide mortgages to New Jersey customers. The questions and answers follow.

If it qualifies to do business in New Jersey and does not close a particular loan in New Jersey (e.g. it closes the loan in New York), then: (1) Is nexus created? (2) Is the income from the loan New Jersey source income?

- (1) Nexus is created due to activity in New Jersey related to the loan, such as inspection of property, etc. The loan closing itself is not the only factor considered. However, becoming qualified to do business in New Jersey subjects the bank to filing and remitting at least the minimum tax.

- (2) Yes, income is sourced to New Jersey.

If it qualified and does close a particular loan in New Jersey (but does not maintain any office in New Jersey) then: (1) Is nexus created? (2) Is the income from the loan New Jersey source income?

- (1) There is no nexus for a tax based on income if the corporation does not meet the criteria of N.J.S.A. 54:10A-2 and N.J.A.C. 18:7-1.6. But it may be required to file a minimum return and pay the minimum tax. See Pomco Graphics v. Director, 13 N.J. Tax 578 (1993).

- (2) The income from the loan is New Jersey source income.

If it does not qualify to do business in New Jersey and closes the loan in New York, then: (1) Does the mere fact that the mortgage loan is secured by a property in New Jersey create nexus? (2) If it assigns the loan (i.e., sells it) upon closing, is the income from sale considered New Jersey source income? The income from the assignment (which is a common industry practice) is called "yield spread premium."

- (1) If the foreign corporation is not qualified to do business in New Jersey, and there are no other facts creating nexus, then the foreign bank may not be subject to New Jersey corporation income tax (i.e., the second tier tax N.J.S.A. 54:10E-1). See Chemical Realty Corp. v. Taxation Div. Director, 5 N.J. Tax 581 (1983) affirmed 6 N.J. Tax 448 (App. Div. 1984) (holding

New Jersey had no nexus under due process claims to tax interest and other income from loans secured by New Jersey realty (six financing transactions)). However, this is a facts and circumstances determination.

- (2) The income may be sourced to New Jersey if the corporation is considered subject to tax.

The administrative rule relating to subjectivity of foreign banks is found at N.J.A.C. 18:7-1.14.

Gross Income Tax

Stock Option Treatment — The Division has been getting many inquiries from taxpayers receiving stock options and has compiled the following explanation of New Jersey gross income tax treatment:

- Nonqualified stock options — Nonqualified stock options are taxable as compensation in the same manner as prescribed for Federal purposes. Taxpayers will not realize a taxable gain until the options are exercised. The gain is then measured by the difference between the fair market value of the options at the time of exercise and the taxpayer's exercise price.
- Incentive stock options — The taxability of incentive stock options is also based on the Federal treatment. Thus, incentive stock options may be received and exercised by an employee without recognizing any gain. If the requisite holding period is met, the taxable event is the sale of the stock and gain or loss will be realized to the extent of the difference between the option price and the sale price of the stock. Such gain or loss is reportable in full under N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(c). The adjusted basis to be used when determining the gain or loss for New Jersey purposes is the same as the adjusted basis for Federal income tax purposes.

- Qualified stock options — For New Jersey gross income tax purposes the taxable event with respect to an employee's qualified stock option plan that meets all the standards required under Federal law is not deemed to occur at the time the option is granted or exercised. Instead, the taxable event occurs at the time of the sale of the stock. Accordingly, where all the requirements of Federal law have been met which would make the sale of the stock a capital gain, similar treatment will be accorded for New Jersey gross income tax purposes and such gain is reportable in full under N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(c).

Sales and Use Tax

Horse Boarding — The service of boarding horses is deemed to be "storing all tangible personal property not held for sale in the regular course of business," and is therefore taxable pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(3). The horse-boarding business must be registered as a vendor and collect New Jersey sales tax on its charges. It may claim a resale exemption when purchasing feed for the horses that it boards. Separately itemizing the charges for feeding a customer's horse will have no practical effect. If the business charges customers for the feed, the charge is taxable under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a). If the feeding is simply included in the boarding charge, the entire charge is taxable as a service under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(3).

If a customer rents a horse stall and does not receive any service or tangible personal property in connection with the rental (e.g., food and hay, grooming service, routine care), then the transaction is treated as a rental of real property, rather than as storage service, and is not subject to sales tax.

Drugs and Cosmetic Treatments

— Creams and ointments sold to physicians which a physician applies to patients' skin as part of their medical treatment may be purchased without paying sales tax.

The taxability of creams and ointments sold to physicians which the physician then gives to patients for their own use as part of the services the physician provides for compensation depends upon whether the cream or ointment is a "medicine or drug." If the product is generally recommended and used to cure, treat, or alleviate "pain, ailments, distresses, or disorders of the human body," it is treated as an exempt drug. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.1. However, if it is generally sold as a sunscreen, skin softener, moisturizer, "wrinkle cream," etc., it is treated as a cosmetic and is taxable whether sold to the physician or directly to the user.

Sales of Parts for Corrective Eyeglasses

— The sale of "corrective eyeglasses" is exempt from New Jersey sales and use tax. The medical exemption provision, N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.1, explicitly exempts sales of corrective eyeglasses and other artificial devices to correct or alleviate physical incapacity. The provision also explicitly exempts "replacement parts" for these exempt medical items.

Based on this statutory language, the sale of a complete pair of corrective eyeglasses, including both the lenses and the frames, is of course exempt. In addition, if the frames are sold separately, the exemption will also apply, assuming that the frames will become part of a new pair of corrective eyeglasses, or will replace the old frames on an existing pair of corrective eyeglasses.

Medical Illustrations — The Division responded to an inquiry regarding the taxability of case-specific medical drawings. The illustrator explained that these illustrations are custom-made to the specifications of the lawyer handling the matter and of the physician or other expert witness who might be testifying. They are not reusable for other purposes, and may not be resold.

The sale of these case-specific drawings is deemed to be the sale of tangible personal property pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a), rather than the sale of a professional “service” as that term is used in N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(e)(4)(A). Receipts from this sale in New Jersey are, therefore, subject to sales tax. The attorneys are selling a nontaxable professional service, N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(e)(4)(A); they are not deemed to be “reselling” the medical illustrations to clients. Therefore, the attorneys are considered to be the retail purchasers of the illustrations which they use in rendering their nontaxable services. Therefore, the attorney may not claim a resale exemption when purchasing the illustrations.

Purchases Taken (or Delivered) to and from New Jersey — Sales of taxable goods and services in New Jersey are subject to 6% New Jersey sales tax, unless a specific statutory exemption applies (e.g., resale, exempt organization, or various specific exempt uses). Sales tax liability will arise if the goods are picked up or delivered in New Jersey and no specific exemption applies. There is no exemption based on the purchaser’s status as a nonresident of the United States, and nonresidents are therefore not entitled to any refunds of New Jersey sales tax upon leaving the country.

If, however, the customer does not take possession of the goods in New Jersey, but instead requests shipment by the seller to his address abroad, the transaction is not treated as a New Jersey sale, and no New Jersey sales tax will be due. The same is true if the goods are shipped directly to a freight forwarder for shipment outside the United States.

A New Jersey resident will be required to pay 6% use tax when he returns to New Jersey with taxable goods that were purchased outside of this State, including in a foreign country. If the returning New Jersey resident has new merchandise delivered to a New Jersey address from abroad, or if he brings back newly-purchased merchandise (i.e., property purchased no more than six months earlier), the use tax will be due on the original purchase price. N.J.S.A. 54:32b-7(b). However, if the returning resident used the property elsewhere for more than six months, the 6% use tax is calculated instead on the current fair market value of the property, rather than on its original purchase price. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-7(b)(1). New Jersey’s credit for sales and use tax paid in another jurisdiction does not extend to taxes paid to foreign nations. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-11.

If a nonresident of New Jersey comes to New Jersey with taxable property that he has already owned and used elsewhere, no tax is due. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-11. However, if he purchased goods abroad and has the new purchase shipped directly to New Jersey, his new home, then the purchase is treated as a New Jersey transaction for sales and use tax purposes. In that case, he will owe 6% New Jersey use tax on the merchandise, as would any New Jersey resident. □

Interest Waiver Due to Reliance on Written Advice of Division — L&L Oil Service, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, 18 N.J. Tax 514 (Tax Court 2000), aff’d as modified, June 26, 2001; Appellate Division No. A-3386-99T5.

Plaintiff claims that interest on its tax liability should be waived because it reasonably relied upon several Division advisory letters, some of which are to other companies in the industry, and an article in the New Jersey State Tax News. Plaintiff sent a subpoena to a Tax Counselor, a Division employee, to testify about advisory letters she and her colleagues sent.

The Appellate Division upheld the Tax Court’s quashing of the subpoena stating that plaintiff improperly sought to use the Division employee’s testimony to advance alleged contrary legal conclusions citing authority that “expert witnesses may not render opinions on issues of law.” Furthermore, the Court found that the testimony would have been of minimal relevance to the waiver issue because the inquiry and advisory letters were in the record.

The Appellate Division affirmed the Tax Court's holding that plaintiff could not rely upon advisory letters to other companies because differences in business operations may lead to different tax consequences.

The Tax Court found that none of plaintiff's inquiry letters fully and accurately described the nature of plaintiff's operations and neither the Division's correspondence nor the New Jersey State Tax News even suggested that plaintiff's actual maintenance and service operations were exempt from sales tax. The Appellate Division affirmed.

Untimely Complaint – Corri-gan's, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided June 15, 2001; Tax Court No. 000121-1999.

On January 14, 1999, plaintiff filed a complaint in the Tax Court appealing the Division's October 13, 1998, Final Determination concerning a Sales and Use Tax and Corporation Business Tax assessment. The Division moved to dismiss the complaint due to its untimeliness.

After looking at various statutes concerning the aforementioned assessments, the Court ruled that plaintiff's complaint must be filed within ninety days after the date of the October 13, 1998, Final Determination. As the date of the Final Determination was October 13, 1998, the ninety-day period for appeal expired on January 11, 1999. Consequently, the Court granted the Division's motion.

Failure to State a Claim – Mayer & Schweitzer, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided June 25, 2001; Tax Court No. 001800-2000.

Plaintiff, domiciled in New Jersey, is a market maker and licensed broker dealer of securities in twenty-two states.

Initially, plaintiff filed 1992 – 1995 Corporation Business Tax (CBT) returns that allocated sales to New Jersey based upon the trader's location. Thereafter, plaintiff filed amended returns that allocated sales to New Jersey based upon the purchaser's location.

The Division moved under R. 4:6-2(e) to dismiss the complaint due to plaintiff's failure to state a claim upon which relief may be granted. The Court denied the Division's motion opining that plaintiff was entitled to an opportunity to present facts before the Court to show that the securities at issue were integrated with its business carried on in another state.

Corporation Business Tax Amount Includable in the Numerator of Receipts Fraction – Stryker Corporation v. Director, Division of Taxation, 18 N.J. Tax 270 (Tax Court 1999); aff'd, Appellate Division No. A-736-99T5 (July 21, 2000); aff'd, Supreme Court of New Jersey, A-27 September Term 2000 (June 14, 2001).

Osteonics, a New Jersey corporation, is the wholly owned subsidiary of plaintiff Stryker, a Michigan corporation. Both corporations are located in the same building in Allendale, New Jersey. Stryker manufactures orthopedic hip and knee replacements and sells its products to Osteonics, whose function is to market, sell, and process customer orders for Stryker's products. After the order is placed, Stryker packs and ships the products to Osteonics' customers throughout the United States, via common carrier F.O.B. Allendale.

In calculating the numerator of the receipts fraction, Stryker allocated sales to Osteonics by the ship-ment's destination state. Accordingly, Stryker included sales of only New Jersey customer destination shipments in the numerator of the receipts fraction. Pursuant to an audit, the Division determined that all sales to Osteonics should be included in the numerator of the receipts fraction regardless of customer destination.

The Tax Court held that Stryker's sales receipts from its direct shipments to Osteonics' out-of-State customers are includable in the numerator under N.J.S.A. 54:10A-6(B)(6) because the receipts are earned in New Jersey but not includable under N.J.S.A. 54:10A-6(B)(1) because there were no physical shipments to Osteonics. On appeal, the Appellate Division upheld the Tax Court.

The New Jersey Supreme Court reviewed the legislative history of the Corporation Business Tax Act and addressed Stryker's three arguments: (1) the allocation formula violates the Commerce Clause, more specifically the doctrine of internal consistency; (2) these receipts are not other business receipts under N.J.S.A. 54:10A-6(B)(6); and (3) the Legislature's repeal of N.J.S.A. 54:10A-6(B)(3) implies their intent to exclude these receipts from the numerator.

The Court first addressed whether the application of the Division's methodology would cause manufacturers to be taxed twice in violation of the Commerce Clause; once on their transactions with the dealers and then a second time on their product shipments to the destination state. The Court rejected that argument noting that the doctrine of internal consistency requires that a tax is structured so that it would not result in multiple taxation if applied by every state. Because the manufacturer and dealer transaction is treated separately from the dealer and customer transaction, no state would require the manufacturer to allocate the receipts from the wholesaler's sale of the product. Hence, the Court held that there is no threat of multiple taxation and no Commerce Clause violation.

Addressing the issue of whether Stryker's sales to Osteonics were other business receipts under the general catch-all provision of N.J.S.A. 54:10A-6(B)(6), the Court rejected Stryker's claim that (B)(6) was inapplicable because (B)(1) and (B)(2) dealt specifically with the shipments destination to determine whether or not the receipts are included in the numerator. It was noted that neither N.J.S.A. 54:10A-6 nor the regulations thereunder contemplated drop-shipment scenarios. The Court found that (B)(6) was not limited by (B)(1) or (B)(2) because the legislative history did not indicate that the product's ultimate destination should trump the determination of whether or not the receipt was attributable to the State. Under the substance over form doctrine, Stryker's drop-shipment transactions result in the realization of intrastate sales to Osteonics which fall into the (B)(6) catch-all net that permits the Division to plug loopholes in the Corporation Business Tax Act to effect a fair apportionment of receipts to the State.

Finally, the Court found that the deletion of N.J.S.A. 54:10A-6(B)(3) in 1967 was not done with the intention of restricting inclusion in the receipts fraction to only sales of product shipments to destinations in the State. Essentially, deleted section (B)(3) included sales where the orders were received or accepted in New Jersey and the property was located in New Jersey at the time of the order. Although the sales in the instant case would have been treated as New Jersey sales under this provision, the section did not encompass or even relate to out-of-State drop-shipment type sales.

Based upon the aforementioned, the Court held that the receipts at issue were included in the numerator of the receipts fraction. In a concurring opinion, Justice Stein addressed the concern of amici curiae that upholding the lower courts would unduly burden New Jersey manufacturers. Justice Stein stated that there was no incompatibility between legislation benefiting New Jersey manufacturers and the lower courts' rulings, and that the sales at issue would not have been includable had Osteonics been formed as a division rather than as a subsidiary.

Sales and Use Tax

Complimentary Alcoholic Beverages – GNOC, Corp. t/a The Grand v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided April 3, 2001; Supreme Court of New Jersey No. A-35 September Term 2000.

Plaintiff purchased alcoholic beverages from its wholesaler free of sales tax pursuant to a resale certificate. Upon audit, the Division assessed use tax on the purchase price of alcoholic beverages that were provided to patrons on a complimentary basis.

Addressing the issue of whether the purchase of alcoholic beverages constituted a nontaxable sale for resale, the New Jersey Supreme Court affirmed the Appellate Division's and Tax Court's determination that there was no resale of the alcohol because there was either no consideration or legally insufficient consideration for the complimentary drinks. Therefore, the transaction between plaintiff and the wholesaler constituted a taxable retail sale and not a nontaxable sale for resale.

The New Jersey Supreme Court next addressed the issue of whether the wholesaler's sales to plaintiff are exempt from sales tax because they are beverage sales for human consumption off the premises where sold under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.2. After reviewing the legislative history, the Court found that when the Legislature exempted the sales tax on retail sales of alcoholic beverages by enacting the exemption under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.34, it simultaneously deleted the exclusion for alcoholic beverages from the N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.2 exemption. However, when the Legislature re-enacted legislation that effectively subjected alcoholic beverages to the retail sales tax by repealing the exemption under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.34, it inadvertently failed to re-enact the exclusion for alcoholic beverages from the N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.2 exemption. Regardless, the Court found that alcoholic beverages (on and off premises) were made subject to taxation under the Assembly Appropriations Committee Statement to Assembly Bill No. 3610, P.L. 1990, c.40. Furthermore, the Court found the fact that alcoholic beverages were not included as products entitled to the fifty percent sales and use tax exemption provided to retailers located in urban enterprise zones to be further evidence of its taxability. Based upon the aforementioned, the Court held that the Legislature clearly intended to subject all alcoholic beverages to sales and use tax regardless of whether they were for consumption on or off the premises.

Complimentary Alcoholic and Nonalcoholic Beverages – Adamar of New Jersey t/a Tropicana Casino and Resort v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided April 3, 2001; Supreme Court of New Jersey No. A-36 September Term 2000.

As to the issue of taxability of complimentary alcoholic beverages, the facts are identical to the companion case of GNOC v. Director, Division of Taxation. The Court affirmed the decision of the Appellate Division as supplemented by the Supreme Court's opinion in GNOC.

As to the issue of taxability of non-alcoholic beverages provided as complimentary beverages, the Court also affirmed the Appellate Division's decision to remand to the Tax Court the issue of the scope of the closing agreements between the plaintiff and the Division.

Maintaining or Servicing Real or Personal Property – L&L Oil Service, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, 18 N.J. Tax 514 (Tax Court 2000), aff'd as modified, June 26, 2001; Appellate Division No. A-3386-99T5.

Plaintiff is in the business of pumping waste oil, sludge, and anti-freeze from storage tanks located on both commercial and residential properties into its trucks. After removal, the waste materials were transported to plaintiff's facility where the waste was either refined or processed for sale.

Customers paid plaintiff to remove the materials and sometimes clean the tank. Plaintiff's invoices usually charged a lump sum price for pumping and removal without charging sales tax. However, a few invoices included a separate transportation fee and a few charged sales tax.

Pursuant to an audit the Division assessed sales tax on sales for the removal of waste materials where sales tax was not previously charged. The Tax Court upheld the Division's assessment and the Appellate Division affirmed.

The Tax Court held that plaintiff's waste removal services were subject to sales and use tax because they constituted maintenance or servicing, and the removal allowed the tanks to be used again for their intended purpose of collecting waste. The Appellate Division modified the holding stating that plaintiff's services did not maintain property because the word maintain "...connotes more the concept of repair or preventive maintenance as opposed to emptying a tank so that it can be refilled." The Appellate Division held that the removal of waste fluids from a tank that remains in use for the benefit of the user falls under the term servicing.

The Appellate Division upheld the Tax Court's rejection of plaintiff's alternative theories of non-taxability on the basis that the charges to its customers were exempt (1) as acquisition of raw materials because L&L was not the purchaser; (2) as transportation charges after granting an allocation of the lump sum charge between removal and transportation; and (3) because plaintiff did not have a license from the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) to perform maintenance or repair involving hazardous waste contained in storage tanks, even if such license was required. The Appellate Division noted that nothing in the DEP statutes or regulations indicated that plaintiff's removal business did not constitute providing a service. Furthermore, the DEP statutes and Sales and Use Tax Act could not be read in pari materia because they don't have the same purpose or object; DEP statutes were enacted to prevent groundwater pollution whereas the Sales and Use Tax Act was enacted to raise revenue.

Admission Charges Imposed by Government Entities – Meadowlands Basketball Associates v. Director, Division of Taxation, 19 N.J. Tax 85 (Tax Court 2000), aff'd April 26, 2001; Appellate Division No. A-187-00T1.

Plaintiff is the owner of the Nets of the National Basketball Association. Pursuant to a license agreement, the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority (NJSEA) leased the Continental Airlines Arena to plaintiff for the Nets to play their home basketball games. The license agreement included the requirement that on behalf of the NJSEA plaintiff charge, collect, and transfer to the NJSEA a 10% "admission impost" on the price of admission of each ticket sold to home games. The impost fee was included and separately stated on the face of each ticket. Plaintiff did not charge or collect sales tax on the impost charge; however, it did collect and remit sales tax on the price of admission. Pursuant to an audit, the Division assessed plaintiff sales tax on the 10% admission impost fee.

The Tax Court held that the impost fees to the Nets games were subject to sales tax as admission charges to athletic events under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-9(f)(2) because the proceeds did not inure exclusively to the benefit of elementary or secondary schools. The Court found a New York Tax Appeal Tribunal case with similar facts to be unpersuasive. Plaintiff appealed on the basis that the impost fee is exempt under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-9(a)(1), which generally exempts from sales tax a governmental agency's amusement charges and sales of goods and services.

The Appellate Division affirmed. The Court ruled that the impost fee was an admission charge, not an amusement charge or a sale of goods or services, and therefore did not qualify for the subsection 9(a)(1) exemption. Regardless, even if the impost fee was found to be exempt under 9(a)(1), the Court ruled that the impost fee would be subject to the subsection 9(f)(2) provisions concerning admission charges to athletic events. To be exempt under this subsection, the proceeds of admission charges to the Nets basketball games must inure exclusively to the benefit of elementary or secondary schools. Per statute, these proceeds were used only for the purposes of NJSEA. Therefore, the impost fee was held to be subject to sales tax. Finally, the Court found the unpublished New York Tax Appeal Tribunal holding that admission charges qualify as services to be unpersuasive because the decision did not consider New York's counterpart to subsection 9(f). □

Corporation Business Tax

Payment Obligations of Certain Partnerships and Limited Liability Companies — P.L. 2001, c.136 (signed into law on June 29, 2001) provides a mechanism that assures the fair taxation of the owners of limited liability companies and limited partnerships. A limited liability company, foreign limited liability company, limited partnership, or foreign limited partnership that is classified as a partnership for Federal tax purposes may obtain the consent of each of its owners that are not individuals, trusts, or estates subject to the New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act, N.J.S.54A:1-1 et seq. (for example, each owner that is itself a corporation) that this State has the right and jurisdiction to tax the owner's income derived from the activities of the limited liability company or limited partnership in New Jersey. A business that does not have the consent of all its owners must pay a corporation business tax liability, on behalf of its nonconsenting owners, on each of the nonconsenting owner's shares of the business's New Jersey income.

The limited liability companies and limited partnerships will also make estimated payments of their nonconsenting members' current year's taxes. These payments will be based, where appropriate, on the prior year's income of the company or partnership.

Chapter 136 is effective, retroactively, for privilege periods beginning on or after January 1, 2001. Transition provisions exempt the companies and partnerships from making estimated payments for tax year 2001 and reduce the final payment of tax on behalf of the nonconsenting members for 2001, due in 2002, to 45% of the amount otherwise due to account for the enactment of the new provisions in the middle of a tax period.

Corporate Mergers —

P.L. 2001, c.193 (signed into law on July 31, 2001) permits a corporation organized in New Jersey to change from an operating corporation to a holding corporation with one or more wholly owned subsidiaries by use of a merger without shareholder approval or a transfer of assets. The bill allows a corporation (parent) to form a direct subsidiary and an indirect subsidiary (a subsidiary owned by the direct subsidiary), and to merge the resulting parent corporation into the direct subsidiary. The direct subsidiary would then become the new parent corporation, and the original parent corporation would become a subsidiary. This merger method does not require shareholder approval if the new parent corporation is structurally identical to, with the same shareholder rights and directors as, the old parent corporation.

Also, the act provides that the Secretary of State, upon filing of the certificate of merger, forward a copy of the certificate to the Director of the Division of Taxation. Chapter 193 took effect immediately.

Gross Income Tax

Commuter Transportation Benefits

— P.L. 2001, c.162 (signed into law on July 17, 2001) allows State and local government employers to offer qualified transportation fringe benefits to their own employees as an employee set-aside program. As a result, this act provides the full advantage under the Federal Internal Revenue Code of the tax incentives for qualified transportation fringe benefits recently extended under Federal tax law in the Federal Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century (TEA-21), Title IX of Pub. L.105-178. The legislation allows State and local employees to choose to have the benefit deducted from their salary, receive any combination of the transportation benefits, or continue to receive the amount as salary, and allows the State and local governments and employees to take advantage of the Federal tax benefits.

For New Jersey gross income tax purposes, the exclusion provided for employer provided commuter transportation benefits shall not apply to any commuter transportation benefit unless such benefit is provided in addition to and not in lieu of any compensation otherwise payable to the employee.

The act also amends the Travel Demand Management Program in the Department of Transportation (DOT) to make the DOT program similar to (but not the same as) the Federal program and makes some technical updates to that program. The act makes the DOT trip reduction tax benefits (which, unlike the Federal benefits, allow an employee to exclude the benefits from income only when the benefits are offered in addition to, rather than instead of, cash salary) comply with the same annual levels as the Federal benefits, effective for 2002. So as not to take away any current State benefits, but also allow the State and Federal benefits at the same levels, the State benefits are increased to $1,200 annually beginning in 2002, when the Federal transit benefits are also scheduled to increase to $1,200 annually.

Additionally, Chapter 162 clarifies an important part of the New Jersey gross income tax effects of the 1998 TEA-21 tax changes, which allow the “flip-side” of salary reductions: employers can save money by paying their employees to not take employer-provided parking. Usually the election of this option by one employee would have the tax effect of making every other employee’s parking taxable, but the same provision that allows the salary reductions also permits the non-taxation of employees who don’t cash out of their parking. Chapter 162 took effect immediately.

NJ-AIDS Services Fund — P.L. 2001, c.217 (signed into law on August 24, 2001) allows taxpayers to make a voluntary contribution to the “NJ-AIDS Services Fund.” This act took effect immediately and applies to taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 2002.

tlement of intestate estates when heirs are missing or unknown. In such cases, the share of property to which the missing or unknown heirs are entitled would be held for a period of two years. After that period, if the heirs remain missing, the property would be divided among the known heirs. In cases where there are no known heirs, the bill provides that the property would be presumed abandoned and handled in accordance with the "Uniformed Unclaimed Property Act." Chapter 109 took effect immediately.

Insurance Premiums Tax

Nonprofit Health Service Corporations May Convert to For-profit Health Insurers — P.L. 2001, c.131 (signed into law on June 29, 2001) provides that a nonprofit health service corporation may convert to a for-profit (domestic stock) health insurer. After conversion, all insurance premiums collected by the domestic stock health insurer will be subject to the insurance premiums tax. The legislation also establishes a Health Service Corporation Conversion Temporary Advisory Commission consisting of 15 members within, but not of, the Department of the Treasury. This act took effect immediately.

Local Property Tax

Reassessments Required in Certain Circumstances — P.L. 2001, c.101 (signed into law on June 14, 2001) provides that when an assessor has reason to believe that property comprising all or part of a taxing district has been assessed at a value lower or higher than is consistent with the purpose of securing uniform taxable valuation of property, or that the assessment of property is not in substantial compliance with the law and that the interests of the public would be promoted by reassessment, then the assessor must make a reassessment of the property in the taxing district that is not in substantial compliance. Chapter 101 took effect immediately.

Distribution of Miscellaneous Revenue — P.L. 2001, c.140 (signed into law on July 2, 2001) permits municipalities to distribute certain municipal revenues to real property taxpayers as a credit against property taxes owed for that local budget year. The credit must be more than one tenth of a penny. Landlords of multifamily dwellings are required to "pass through" to their tenants any savings in property taxes realized. Chapter 140 took effect immediately.

Homestead Rebate — P.L. 2001, c.159 (signed into law on July 16, 2001) increases the maximum benefit under the Homestead Rebate Program for homeowners and tenants who are age 65 or older or disabled from $500 to $750 beginning with Homestead Rebates paid in calendar year 2001. For Homestead Rebates paid beginning in 2002, the maximum amount will be indexed annually to the cost of living.

For purposes of this legislation, "cost-of-living adjustment" is defined as the factor calculated by dividing the consumer price index for all urban consumers for the nation, as prepared by the U.S. Department of Labor as of the close of the 12-month period ending on August 31 of the tax year, by that index as of the close of the 12-month period ending on August 31 of the calendar year preceding the tax year in which the recomputation of the maximum Homestead Rebate is made.

This legislation increased the tenant Homestead Rebate paid in 2001 and thereafter to tenants who are not 65 or disabled to $100, eliminating the three-year phase-in which, under prior legislation, was scheduled to end in 2003. The legislation also increased the minimum rebate for tenants who are 65 or disabled to $100 this year.

Miscellaneous

Veterans' Benefits — P.L. 2001, c.127 (signed into law on June 28, 2001) expands certain veterans' benefits to those who served in Lebanon, or on board any ship actively engaged in patrolling the territorial waters of that nation, on or after July 1, 1958, for a period of at least 14 days commencing on or before November 1, 1958. Any person otherwise qualifying for veteran status under the bill who received an actual service-incurred injury or disability is to be classed as a veteran whether or not that person completed the 14 days' service requirement. This legislation took effect immediately.

Business Registration — P.L. 2001, c.134 (signed into law June 29, 2001) requires providers of goods and services to the State and its agencies, to casinos, and to subcontractors under those State and casino contracts to register their businesses with the Division of Revenue. This act took effect on September 1, 2001.

Delineated Municipal Areas — P.L. 2001, c.155 (signed into law on July 13, 2001) revises the Local Redevelopment and Housing Law to provide that a delineated area in a municipality may be determined to be in need of rehabilitation if more than half of the housing stock in that area is at least 50 years old, or a majority of the water and sewer infrastructure in that area is at least 50 years old and is in need of repair or substantial maintenance. This legislation also expands the definition of a delineated area to include current exemptions and abatements allowable. Chapter 155 took effect immediately.

Casino Reinvestment Development Authority Urban Revitalization Act — P.L. 2001, c.221 (signed into law August 24, 2001) establishes the Casino Reinvestment Development Authority urban revitalization incentive program to be administered by the Casino Reinvestment Development Authority (CRDA). The program aims to facilitate the next phase of Atlantic City's development into a destination resort and to assist urban areas throughout the State with development and revitalization projects.

To be eligible for project grants, a casino licensee is required to submit a project proposal to, and receive approval from, the CRDA and the Department of Community Affairs, to invest a minimum of $20 million of its investment alternative tax obligations to develop an entertainment-retail project or community and housing development project, in $10 million increments for one or more such projects, in an urban area outside of Atlantic City. A casino licensee approved for participation in the incentive program is further required to extend its investment alternative tax obligations with the CRDA to 35 years from the current 30-year requirement. The bill requires the licensee's investment alternative tax obligations during the additional five years to be divided in such a way that Atlantic City receives 25%, South Jersey receives 25%, and North Jersey receives 50%. The bill takes effect on October 23, 2001.

The Division of Taxation understands that the cataclysmic events of September 11, 2001 have created special problems not previously contemplated and wants to assure the victims of the tragedies in New York and at the Pentagon that it stands ready to assist them in any way it can to provide administrative remedies. In many private ways our employees are doing their part in aiding the victims and now they will work publicly to minimize the distraction of tax issues.

For those businesses and individuals directly affected by the attack, the Division of Taxation will extend the due date of returns and payments due between September 11 and November 30, including returns on extension, until December 15, 2001. Examples of those directly affected include victims whose place of employment was damaged or destroyed during these attacks, relief workers, taxpayers with records destroyed in the attacks, businesses destroyed or damaged, businesses whose accountants or payroll services were directly affected, and victims on the airlines.

For those individuals that were indirectly affected due to being stranded away from home or unable to access their funds, the Division will extend the due date for filing and payment of returns due during September to 10 business days after their due date.

Taxpayers who are entitled to the relief described above should write "September 11, 2001 – Terrorist Attack" in red ink at the top of the return they file. If they receive a notice from the Division of Taxation they should contact the Division as instructed on the notice and explain why they are entitled to relief.

In addition, the Division of Taxation will suspend compliance activities such as levies and seizures for directly affected taxpayers for 6 months.

This unprecedented tragedy may have effects not anticipated or considered in the above policy. The Division will closely monitor the situation and issue additional direction if warranted. For additional guidance, please continue to monitor the Division's Web site or write to State of New Jersey, Division of Taxation, Attn: Emergency Management Project, PO Box 269, Trenton, NJ 08695-0269.

The employees of the New Jersey Division of Taxation offer their prayers and condolences to all those affected by this attack.

Payment of NJ SAVER Rebates Accelerated

Legislation signed by Acting Governor DiFrancesco on June 18, 2001 (P.L. 2001, c.106) means larger NJ SAVER Rebate checks than originally expected for New Jersey homeowners in September.

The legislation accelerates the phase-in of the NJ SAVER Rebate by increasing the amount to be paid this year to an average of $500, rather than an average of $360. NJ SAVER Rebates were supposed to reach the full benefit amount of an average $600 in 2003, but instead will reach that amount next year, one year ahead of schedule.

The amount of the NJ SAVER Rebate varies from town to town because it is based on 1997 effective school tax rates which are different for each municipality. The 2000 NJ SAVER Rebate checks will be mailed on or before September 15.

New Jersey residents who owned, occupied, and paid property taxes on a home in New Jersey that was their principal residence on October 1, 2000, are eligible to receive the NJ SAVER Rebate for that year.

Homeowners who qualified and applied for both the Homestead Rebate and the NJ SAVER Rebate will receive whichever rebate provides a greater benefit.

Although the amount of the NJ SAVER Rebate will increase to an average of $500 for tax year 2000, many senior citizens and disabled homeowners will still receive a larger Homestead Rebate and therefore will not receive the NJ SAVER Rebate.

For further information about the NJ SAVER Rebate Program call the NJ SAVER Rebate Hotline at 609-826-4282. Division representatives are available from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday (except holidays). □

Inheritance & Estate Tax Returns

The Inheritance Tax Section of the Individual Tax Audit Branch is frequently called upon to advise estate representatives as to their responsibilities related to the filing of inheritance and estate tax returns and the payment of the tax.

An inheritance tax return must be filed within eight months following a decedent's death unless the Director grants an extension of time to file. The return must generally be prepared, executed, and filed by the executor or administrator of an estate. In cases where an executor or administrator is not appointed, any beneficiary entitled to share in the estate may file the return. A surviving joint tenant is permitted to file the return in cases where a decedent dies intestate and the entire estate passes to the surviving joint tenant or tenants.

The inheritance tax is due on a decedent's date of death. It may be paid at any time within the following eight-month period without penalty. An executor or administrator is personally liable for payment of any and all inheritance taxes to the extent of the estate funds in his possession. Beneficiaries and surviving joint tenants are likewise personally liable for payment of the tax.

The personal representative of an estate must first deduct the inheritance tax from estate assets before making distribution to a beneficiary. In the case of real estate, the personal representative must collect the tax from the beneficiary before transferring it to him. In situations where tax is payable on assets which have not come into the possession or control of the personal representative, the tax should be paid to him by the beneficiary who received the property. If the beneficiary does not pay the tax, the personal representative must pay the tax from estate funds in his possession.

An estate tax return must be filed within nine months following a decedent's death unless the Director grants an extension of time to file. Generally the executor or administrator of an estate must file the tax return. In cases where an executor or administrator is not appointed, an heir at law may file the return.

The estate tax is due on a decedent's date of death. It may be paid at any time within the following nine-month period without penalty. The tax is payable out of the same funds from which the Federal estate tax is payable. Executors, administrators, trustees, grantees, donees, and vendees are personally liable for the payment of the tax.

Arbitrary tax assessments may be issued in situations where required inheritance tax and estate tax returns are not filed. An action at law may be brought in the name of the State against any person liable for the payment of inheritance taxes and estate taxes. Certificates of Debt may be filed in Superior Court against the executor, administrator, or the beneficiaries of an estate.

Questions related to the filing of inheritance and estate tax returns and payment of the taxes should be directed to the Individual Tax Audit Branch - Inheritance and Estate Tax, PO Box 249, Trenton New Jersey 08695-0249. The Inheritance and Estate Tax Section may be reached at 609-292-5033, 609-292-5035, or 609-292-7147.

Koch Benefits Extended

In the summer 1999 issue of the New Jersey State Tax News, page 5, an article titled “Koch Decision” discussed the New Jersey Supreme Court’s ruling in Sidney and Dorothy Koch v. Director. The Court overturned a long-standing judicial doctrine requiring taxpayers to use their Federal adjusted basis when determining gain or loss on the disposition of property.

In its finding the Supreme Court stated that the intent of the Gross Income Tax Act was to tax “economic gain” not a return of capital. The Court did not define “economic gain” but did focus on a taxpayer’s method of accounting, basis, what item(s) impact basis, and how they may be treated/accounted for differently for Federal and State tax purposes, thus creating inequities.

Although the Koch case dealt solely with the disposition of a partnership interest, the Division believes that the principle of the Koch Court’s opinion can be extended to the sale of a sole proprietorship or rental property not held by a business entity. The Division also takes the position that the Koch case does not apply to transactions in the day-to-day operations of the business.

With this in mind the Division established a policy that keeps a taxpayer’s method of accounting the same for both Federal and State purposes, thus requiring taxpayers to annually use the same depreciation expense allowed or allowable for Federal purposes in determining net income for New Jersey income tax purposes.

Next the Division looked at how to determine whether a taxpayer was able to utilize the depreciation claimed, i.e., basis adjustment.

Since depreciation expense directly impacts basis when calculating the gain on the disposition of a sole proprietorship or rental property not held by a business entity, the Division now permits an adjustment to basis for the depreciation expense not utilized for New Jersey tax purposes. The unutilized depreciation expense represents the amount by which the depreciation allowed or allowable exceeds gross receipts in any given tax year. In adopting this approach the Division is in parity with the principle of the Koch decision.

Therefore, a taxpayer that is a sole proprietor or that owns rental property not held by a business entity is entitled to a Koch type basis adjustment, but only in those instances where gross income before any expenses or deductions (gross receipts) does not exceed the depreciation expense allowed or allowable in the same year. □

Example: A taxpayer purchases a rental property for $200,000 and is claiming a $10,000 depreciation expense annually. The taxpayer sells the property at the end of Year Four for $190,000. The taxpayer has the following entries:

Gross Receipts	Depreciation	Depreciation Not Utilized for NJ Tax Purposes
Year One	$ 8,000	$10,000	$2,000
Year Two	10,000	10,000	0
Year Three	12,000	10,000	0
Year Four	9,000	10,000	1,000
		Koch Adjustment Allowed	$3,000
Cost	$200,000
Depreciation Expense	(40,000)
Federal Adjusted Basis	$160,000
Koch Type Adjustment	3,000
NJ Adjusted Basis	$163,000
Sale Price	$190,000	Sale Price	$190,000
Federal Adjusted Basis	160,000	NJ Adjusted Basis	163,000
Federal Gain	$ 30,000	NJ Gain	$ 27,000

Continuing Education for Assessors

The Tax Assessor Recertification Bill (c.278, P.L. 1999), which was signed into law on December 8, 1999, and became effective on July 1, 2000, has changed licensing requirements for all holders of New Jersey Tax Assessor Certificates. As a result, Tax Assessor Certificate Holders must be recertified through a Continuing Education Program if they want to keep their licenses in force. The intent of recertification is to help assessors keep abreast of changing property tax statutes and regulatory requirements that can impact local property tax revenues.

Chapter 278, P.L. 1999, provides that all tax assessor certificates issued prior to July 2000 will expire in five years. Therefore, for a tax assessor to remain certified, he or she must complete continuing education requirements of fifty (50) continuing education credit hours over a five-year period. One continuing education credit hour means 50 minutes of classroom or lecture time.

Beyond the initial five-year renewal period, renewal will be required every three years, provided that continuing education requirements of thirty (30) credit hours are obtained over three years.

Assessors who fail to meet continuing education requirements will be removed from office.

Any questions concerning assessor recertification should be directed to Richard Stier of the Property

Administration Branch at 609-292-7974. A list of approved Continuing Education Recertification Programs can be found on the Internet at:

LOCAL PROPERTY TAX Tax Maps

The Director of the Division of Taxation has oversight of the preparation, maintenance, and revision of tax maps in the State. The New Jersey Administrative Code pertaining to tax maps is administered through Property Administration's Local Assessment Compliance Unit (formerly the Engineering Section). The purpose of this article is to stress to tax assessors and land surveyors the importance of proper tax map maintenance.

A tax map is an essential tool of the assessor. A tax map gives an entire picture of all real property within a taxing district. It shows the location, size, shape, and area of each parcel for determining value. An assessor working without an up-to-date tax map seldom makes an accurate inventory of all taxable real property within his/her district. In many instances, entire parcels are omitted or listed on tax rolls with incorrect dimensions. Ideally, tax assessors should furnish deeds to their New Jersey licensed land surveyors whenever land transfers occur that require changes to property lines. In addition to deeds, maps of major and minor subdivisions should be provided to the surveyor for plotting. This can be accomplished on a weekly, monthly, or yearly basis so the assessor has a current workable map. Each tax map should be brought up to date prior to the assessing date of October 1 in each year.

Maintenance should include periodic review of all sheets for line weight (heaviness) and lettering integrity to ensure legibility and symbol (type of lines) compliance. When an assessor is notified of changes in railroad use or sale of railroad property by Local Assessment Compliance, those changes must also be reflected on the tax map. Some municipalities have not assessed former railroad use properties for over 30 years. Today, many maps are in electronic format, which makes this task easier. However, sheets that are maintained manually should be reviewed as well for compliance. This will reduce inspection and approval time for revaluation and certification in the future.

The cost of maintaining a tax map is nominal in comparison to the benefits a municipality receives through identifying new ratables. After spending thousands of dollars to make a tax map, it would be wasteful and costly if updates were not made.

Any tax assessor or land surveyor requesting assistance in regard to tax map matters can contact Bill Black at 609-292-9459. □

Criminal Enforcement

Criminal Enforcement over the past months included:

- On December 22, 2000, the Office of Criminal Investigation participated in the execution of search warrants with the Salem County Narcotics Task Force, which resulted in the arrest of the target, Anthony Saxton. The warrants authorized the search of the subject's personal residence, several rental properties, and his clothing business, "Just For Kids." This tax case is pending action before the Salem County Grand Jury.
- On January 19, 2001, Vincent Stewart of Camden, New Jersey, was arrested by members of the New Jersey State Police on charges of Conspiracy to Commit Theft based on his preparation of fraudulent New Jersey Homestead Rebate applications for residents of Camden County. This joint investigation with the New Jersey State Police, the Division of Criminal Justice, the Camden County Prosecutor's Office, and the Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) was initiated by OCI after Mr. Stewart was identified as the preparer of approximately 1,500 New Jersey Homestead Rebate applications that were filed indicating that the applicant was either blind, disabled, or over 65 years old. Mr. Stewart is currently incarcerated in lieu of $7,500 bail.
- On January 25, 2001, Samuel H. Brangan entered a guilty plea to Failure to Turn Over Taxes Collected (3rd Degree), in the amount of $86,576.25 for sales tax collected and not remitted. Mr. Brangan of Pineville, Pennsylvania, was the President of the now defunct industrial cleaning corporation KEI Industrial Services, Inc., of Levittown, Pennsylvania. As a condition of his plea, he will make full restitution of the $86,576.25 within a three (3) year period.

- The Office of Criminal Investigation has just successfully completed a joint multi-state and Federal criminal tax investigation involving the fictitious filing of 139 personal income tax returns with 38 states, the District of Columbia, and the Federal Government. Refunds were claimed totaling $173,692. The perpetrator filed fictitious refund claims averaging $1,200 in each of the affected jurisdictions thinking the claim for refund would not be large enough to cause suspicion in any single agency.

New Jersey was one of the lead states in this high-profile investigation. Our case was initiated when information was received that two fictitious New Jersey gross income tax returns had been filed resulting in fraudulent refunds totaling $2,064. Our investigation revealed that a credit union in Virginia, the depository account for the refunds, was also the depository account for $48,873 in refunds from 28 different states. A joint investigation with the Federal Bureau of Investigation was entered into which resulted in the identification of additional depository accounts totaling $173,692 of fraudulent refunds from 38 different states, the District of Columbia, and the Federal Government.

The target, Thomas B. Ellis Jr., pled guilty in February 2001 in the U. S. District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia to violating Title 18, United States Code, Section 1341, Mail Fraud. He surrendered to U. S. Marshals and was incarcerated in a Federal facility in Alexandria, Virginia, pending his sentencing scheduled for the spring of 2001.

- On February 5, 2001, subject James D'Alessandro entered a guilty plea to a two (2) count accusation of Failure to Pay Over Taxes (3rd Degree) and Failure to Turn Over Taxes Collected (3rd Degree). Mr. D'Alessandro of Berlin, New Jersey, is the owner of a specialty automobile repair business in Atco, New Jersey, that failed to remit sales tax collected from customers during the time period targeted. In addition, Mr. D'Alessandro also failed to pay his New Jersey gross income tax liability for the same years. On March 9, 2001, Mr. D'Alessandro was sentenced in Camden County to a five-year term of probation and ordered to make full restitution of all taxes, penalties, and interest owed for his New Jersey gross income tax liability, and the New Jersey sales tax owed by his business, Quarter Mile Performance, in Atco. This case was a joint investigation between the Camden County Prosecutor's Office and the Office of Criminal Investigation.
- On February 6, 2001, Anish Shah of Freehold, New Jersey, a self-employed tax preparer and accountant, was arrested by the Bayshore Narcotics Task Force in Hazlet, New Jersey, for Possession of a Controlled Dangerous Substance with Intent to Distribute (both powder and rock cocaine) which he delivered with completed tax returns to his clients. Also found in his possession were eight (8) cartons of unstamped domestic cigarettes. OCI determined that the cigarettes were purchased from a New York State Indian Reservation and shipped by UPS to the subject's New Jersey home. OCI has filed additional charges of Possession of Untaxed Goods, Transportation of Contraband Cigarettes, No Consumer License and No Invoices.

- On February 7, 2001, a joint investigation with U.S. Customs Air Cargo Team at Newark International Airport resulted in the seizure of 152.1 cartons of unstamped foreign cigarettes. Kaleem Muhammed of Highland Park, New Jersey, attempted to import the contraband cigarettes into New Jersey. Mr. Muhammed has been charged with Possession of Untaxed Goods, No Consumer License, and No Invoices.
- On February 9, 2001, Harinder Singh of Saylorsburg, Pennsylvania, and Kmal Singh of Tannersville, Pennsylvania, corporate officers of Natasha, Inc., were each sentenced to five (5) years probation and ordered to make restitution of $126,008.62 in New Jersey State motor fuels tax, plus civil penalties and interest of $126,786.88, and a fine of $25,000 over the period of the probation. As a condition of the plea, a check representing the total motor fuels tax due in the amount of $126,008.62 was received by OCI on February 20, 2001.

- On March 8, 2001, Kuo I. Chang of Toronto, Canada, was arrested by Delaware River and Bay Authority Police in Pennsville, New Jersey, for transporting 490.8 cartons of Virginia stamped cigarettes. Mr. Chang was wanted on an outstanding warrant from Toronto. OCI coordinated with the different agencies including U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service (USINS), FBI, and the Salem County Prosecutor's Office. The subject was remanded to the Salem County Jail. OCI filed additional charges including an indictable possession of contraband cigarette charge. Subject has been detained on the basis of the USINS investigation along with OCI charges.
- On March 12, 2001, in Mt. Olive Municipal Court, retailer Town & Country Gulf, Inc. pled guilty to a charge of selling diesel fuel without a license and was fined.
- On March 18, 2001, OCI, along with members of the New Jersey State Police Cargo Theft & Robbery Unit, arrested Abdelnasa A. Sarameh of North Bergen, New Jersey. Based upon information from the New Jersey State Police, a joint surveillance was set up at a storage facility in Secaucus, New Jersey. Subsequently, the subject arrived and was arrested as he unloaded his rental vehicle of 233 cartons of Virginia stamped cigarettes into the open storage unit. Seventy-one (71) cartons of cigarettes were found in his storage facility, which had affixed NY State and/or City indicia or no indicia. Also found was documentary evidence that indicates the subject has been involved in a long-term smuggling operation. He later admitted to smuggling for over five (5) years. The subject was convicted in Maryland in 1994 for transportation and possession of contraband cigarettes. He is currently under Federal indictment in the Northern District of Ohio for money laundering and trafficking in fraudulent food stamps. OCI has forwarded a copy of the arrest information for the U.S. Attorney to issue a warrant on the subject, as he violated pretrial travel restrictions. Mr. Sarameh's bail was set at $75,000 and he was remanded to the Hudson County Jail in lieu of bail. The subject was brought before the U.S. Magistrate in New Jersey pending a bond revocation hearing and placed on electronic monitoring. OCI will testify in Ohio concerning the subject's violation of pretrial restrictions.

- Ninety-eight (98) complaints alleging tax evasion were evaluated from January through March 2001 in the Office of Criminal Investigation.
- During the same period, January through March 2001, fifty-six (56) charges were filed in court on fifty (50) cases for violations of the Cigarette Tax Act including possession of 1,521 cartons of contraband cigarettes valued at $53,235.00, and resulting in fourteen (14) arrests. □

rangements where the PIN number and instructions for use are sent to the customer over the Internet. A prepaid calling card arrangement is defined as the right to purchase telecommunications services that must be paid for in advance, that enables the origination of calls using an access number or authorization code, provided that the service provider knows the number of minutes remaining on an ongoing basis. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(II).

As of January 1, 2000, tax is imposed on such retail sales under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(g), which states that if the sale does not take place at the vendor's place of business, it shall be deemed to take place at the customer's shipping address, or if there is no item shipped, at the customer's billing address.

Thus, a registered vendor must collect New Jersey sales tax on sales of prepaid calling card arrangements made over the Internet to customers located in New Jersey. The credit card billing address may be used to determine the location of the customer for tax purposes. If the seller is not registered to collect New Jersey sales tax, or is registered but fails to collect the tax, the customer is liable for use tax on the amount paid under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-6(H).

Clarification: Advertising Space in a Publication Distributed Free of Charge — An article in the New Jersey State Tax News, spring 2001 issue, p. 14, explained that a charge for advertising space (e.g. half page, back cover) in an advertising publication which is distributed free of charge is not subject to sales tax. The article further stated that the publisher should pay sales tax on the purchase of the publication (paper, printing, etc.) directly to the seller of such property and services.

The Division was questioned on the applicability of this treatment to businesses engaged in direct-mail advertising, where individual coupons or a bound booklet are regularly mailed to recipients in a specific geographic area. The Division responded that the Sales and Use Tax Act imposes tax on charges for direct-mail advertising processing services in connection with distribution to New Jersey recipients. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(5). Therefore, charges made to local advertisers, which may include the design of the advertisement, advertising space, and the direct-mailing service, are subject to sales tax to the extent that the publication is mailed to recipients in New Jersey. These charges are not merely for advertising space, but rather, are deemed to be for the direct-mail advertising processing service.

The tax treatment described in the spring 2001 article is applicable to the situation where an advertiser is selling space in a publication that is distributed free of charge by means other than direct mail, e.g. an auto shopper or apartment rental guide available at a supermarket. This distinction is based on the fact that the law specifically imposes sales tax on direct-mail advertising services. □

In Our Courts Administration

Regulations – Lenox Incorporated v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided February 2, 2001; Tax Court No. 007049-98 & 007050-98.

The Court requested that the Division address the “function and significance” of N.J.A.C. 18:7-13.8(d) that required a taxpayer to file notice of Internal Revenue Service (IRS) changes to plaintiff's corporate taxable income within 90 days of the IRS changes in order to qualify for an extended two-year period to file for a refund. The Division submitted the Certification of William J. Bryan, III and a Supplemental Brief to the Court. Rather than respond to the brief, plaintiff served on the Division interrogatories concerning the explanations contained in the Supplemental Brief and the Bryan Certification. The Division objected to answering the interrogatories.

After analyzing well-settled case law, the Court found that the reasonableness of a regulation could not be a function of its factual foundation because factual findings are not required in order to promulgate a regulation. The Court stated: “In order to overturn a regulation as unreasonable and beyond the scope of the administrative agency's power, a party must demonstrate that no conceivable state of facts would sustain the regulation.” Therefore, the Court ruled that the Division need not answer the interrogatories because any possible elicited factual information would not be relevant to the issue of the regulation's reasonableness nor would the answers lead to discovery of admissible evidence.

Timely and Conforming Complaint – Harold Weingold v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided February 7, 2001; Tax Court No. 1818-00.

The Division sent plaintiff and plaintiff's lawyer the final determination concerning his protest by certified mail on January 25, 2000. Plaintiff's lawyer signed for his letter but plaintiff did not pick up his letter. On March 29, 2000, pro se plaintiff wrote a letter to the Tax Court Clerk stating: "Please accept this letter as a petition to accomplish the following: to inform your office I plan to represent myself before the Tax Court pro se, and to appeal the final determination by the Division of Taxation pursuant to New Jersey S.A. 54A:9-10." Several communications occurred between the Tax Court Management Office and plaintiff that resulted in plaintiff submitting additional information. Plaintiff was advised that his papers had been filed as of May 12, 2000.

The Court held that the March 29, 2000, letter indicated an intention to make a complaint, but was not in fact a complaint because it "does not comply in any respects with any way, shape, or form being a complaint which would be compatible with the rules." There was no named plaintiff, defendant, no claim, no fee submitted, and nothing that the Division could be charged with answering. The Court noted that pro se litigants are chargeable with the rules governing the content required to be in a complaint.

The Court also ruled that the letter sent and received by the lawyer attributes notice of the final determination to plaintiff as well as does the letter sent to plaintiff that he did not collect. Therefore, the Court dismissed the May 12, 2000, complaint as untimely.

Corporation Business Tax Time Period to File Refund Claim – Godwin Pumps of America v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided January 22, 2001; Tax Court No. 001789-2000.

Plaintiff's 1993 corporation business tax (CBT) return was originally due on January 15, 1994, and with the approved extension the deadline was July 15, 1994. Plaintiff paid the full CBT on June 30, 1994. On July 13, 1998, plaintiff filed an amended 1993 CBT return seeking a refund. The Division denied the refund claim because it was not timely filed pursuant to the N.J.S.A. 54:49-14 four-year statute of limitations as calculated per N.J.A.C. 18:7-13.8.

N.J.A.C. 18:7-13.8 states that generally the four-year statute of limitations for filing a CBT refund claim begins to run on the later of the date of payment or the filing of the CBT return. However, where filing and payment are made before the due date (the original due date of the return and not an extended due date), the return's due date is deemed to be the payment date and the statute of limitations runs from the date of payment. Applying that language to the instant case, the Court held that plaintiff's 1993 refund claim was untimely because it was filed (July 13, 1998) four years and 13 days after the 1993 CBT payment (June 30, 1994).

The Court dismissed plaintiff's argument that the CBT refund statute of limitations should be governed by N.J.S.A. 54:2-39 because that section applies to property taxes. Likewise, the Court also found that N.J.S.A. 54:49-6(b) was inapplicable because it applies to situations where a deficiency assessment is protested. Moreover, the Court reasoned that the Legislature could have adopted the language of N.J.S.A. 54:49-6(b) for governing the statute of limitations on CBT refund claims but that it did not.

Gross Income Tax Calculation of Resident Tax Credit – Mark and Donna Regante v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided January 24, 2001; Appellate Division No. A-2105-99T5.

On appeal from the Tax Court's holding in favor of the Division was the issue regarding whether the methodology for determining income in the numerator of the resident tax credit should exclude deductions not recognized by New Jersey even though the deductions are permitted in a foreign jurisdiction.

Affirming the Tax Court, the Appellate Division held that income not subject to tax in a foreign jurisdiction is excluded from the numerator in the calculation of the resident tax credit. The Court noted that the reasoning behind the legislation enacting the resident credit is to at least minimize, if not eliminate, double taxation. The Court also upheld the Tax Court's holding that there was no equal protection violation even though two New Jersey residents earning the same income in two different states may pay different income taxes to New Jersey. The Court reasoned, as did the Tax Court, that both residents are treated identically in terms of calculating the income subject to taxation in the foreign jurisdiction.

Director, Division of Taxation, decided February 8, 2001; Tax Court No. 004219-2000.

On April 13, 2000, the Division sent a notice of deficiency to plaintiff concerning gross income tax (GIT). Plaintiff sent a July 12, 2000, written protest to the Division via mail that was postmarked July 24, 2000. By letter dated August 8, 2000, the Division denied plaintiff's protest because it was filed after 90 days of the issuance of the notice of deficiency. On October 7 or 8, 2000, plaintiff mailed a complaint to the Tax Court that was received on October 12, 2000. The issue is whether the complaint was timely filed with the Tax Court.

N.J.S.A. 54A:9-2(b) provides that a GIT deficiency becomes an assessment after 90 days of the mailing of a notice of deficiency where taxpayer did not protest the deficiency pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54A:9-9. According to N.J.S.A. 54A:9-10(a), an appeal to the Tax Court must be filed within 90 days after the GIT assessment. Furthermore, N.J.S.A. 54:49-18(a) provides that the time to appeal to the Tax Court begins from the date of the Director's final determination.

The Court ruled that R. 1:3-3, which adds three days to the 90-day filing period in Tax Court, was not applicable to the statutes concerning the sending of a notice of deficiency, the filing of a protest, and transformation of the deficiency into an assessment by operation of law because these statutes are not proceedings in the Tax Court governed by N.J.S.A. 54:51A-18.

The Court found that the April 13, 2000, notice of deficiency became an assessment by operation of law on July 12, 2000, (equivalent to the date of the Director's final determination) because a protest was not timely filed with the Division; therefore, the date to file a timely complaint with the Tax Court expired 90 days thereafter on October 10, 2000. As filing with the Tax Court occurs upon receipt of the complaint, the October 12, 2000, receipt was held to be untimely.

Local Property Tax Property Exempt Under Continued Character Exception – Job Haines Home for the Aged, Plaintiff, v. Bloomfield Twp., Defendant, New Jersey Tax Court, decided February 16, 2001, Docket No. 001135-2000.

Plaintiff was an established property tax-exempt Title 15A nonprofit corporation operating both a skilled nursing and a residential health care facility situated on five acres. Plaintiff appealed when it was partially assessed at $1,250,000 for tax year 2000 for an under-construction (80% completed and unoccupied) assisted living facility. When complete, all three facilities were interconnected.

At issue before this Tax Court was whether as of the pretax year October 1, 1999, valuation date the partially-erected structure could be assessed for taxes if it was an addition to an existing tax-exempt structure. In order to obtain property tax exemption under N.J.S.A. 54:4-3.6, plaintiff had to show, in part, "actual use" for a specified exempt purpose. Intended or projected future use is not qualifying.

As concerns "actual use" prior courts had determined, "Even where the character of a building under construction and its adoption to exempt use are evident, a property tax exemption does not attach until actual use commences." See Hillcrest Health Service System, Inc. v. Hackensack City, 18 N.J. Tax 38 (1998), and Holy Cross Precious Zion Glorious Church of God v. Trenton City, 2

N.J. Tax 352 (1981). “The single thread that runs through the cases...is that there must be actual use made of the buildings in accordance with the exemption statute. Actual public use or being ready to provide such public use is the required quid pro quo.” See Grace & Peace Fellowship Church, Inc. v. Cranford Twp., 4 N.J. Tax 391 (1982).

However, this decision holds that Tax Court had previously carved out an exception to the “actual use” rule for property exhibiting a “continued exempt character.” See Paper Mill Playhouse v. Millburn Twp., 7 N.J. Tax 78 (1984). In Paper Mill Playhouse, exempt property which discontinued “actual use” for a two-year reconstruction period after it was destroyed by fire was allowed to retain exemption, reasoning that having been nontaxable it would not impact the municipal budget. The Court distinguished the Paper Mill Playhouse exception by explaining that it only applies where there is a preexisting exempt building, not on a vacant parcel.

Present plaintiff merely erected an addition to an already tax-exempt structure, was not an historic ratable, would not be an added assessment upon the construction’s completion and exempt use, and was granted exemption under the “continued character exception.”

Denial of Refund of Taxes Paid by Mistake – J.C. Trapper, LLC, Plaintiff, v. City of Jersey City, Defendant, decided February 22, 2001; Tax Court of New Jersey; Docket No. 001816-2000.

In this action, plaintiff, J.C. Trapper, LLC, sought to recover property taxes and interest paid to defendant Jersey City on property owned by the City. The subject two lots were vacated in 1976, in favor of adjacent landowner. In 1987, title to those lots reverted to Jersey City. However, plaintiff and its predecessor continued to pay property tax and interest totaling $492,741.06 on those lots from 1988 through part of 1999. Plaintiff sought refund of the amount paid based on N.J.S.A. 54:4-54 referred to as the “Taxpayer Mistake Provisions” which provides for the refund of taxes “...Where one person has by mistake paid the tax on the property of another supposing it to be his own...”

The Court cited McShain v. Evesham Twp., 163 N.J. Super. 522, and Farmingdale Realty Co., v. Farmingdale, 55 N.J. 103, which both dealt with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 54:4-54. In McShain, plaintiff paid taxes on lots which, without their knowledge, were assessed to them but owned by others. A refund was ordered. In Farmingdale, the subject property was assessed twice. Judge Kuskin concluded that, if the payments in question were made “by mistake,” refund is mandatory, not discretionary even though the statute provides that “the governing body...may return the money paid in error....” While the phrase “may return” might invest the governing body with discretion when a taxpayer has mistakenly paid taxes on property owned by another, such discretion is not applicable where a taxpayer has mistakenly paid taxes on property owned by the taxing municipality. The Court made the point that, in the former situation, the municipality is entitled to collect the taxes, and the refund of a mistaken payment could have been made discretionary in the event no procedure is available to the municipality to obtain payment of taxes from the correct taxpayer. In the latter, no taxes were due the municipality, and the municipality may not retain taxes mistakenly paid.

The Tax Court defines “mistake” as used in N.J.S.A. 54:4-54 as a mistake of fact not a mistake of law. A mistake of fact can be illustrated by a misunderstanding of ownership and might be refundable. Taxes paid under a statute later declared to be unconstitutional are paid under a mistake of law and are not subject to refund.

Relief is available under N.J.S.A. 54:4-54 only when taxes are paid by a taxpayer who, when making payment, believes they are due because: (1) the taxpayer is unaware that an assessment on another’s property is included in the assessment on the taxpayer’s property; or (2) the taxpayer doesn’t know the facts to enable him to dispute ownership of the property. The mistake (as per N.J.S.A. 54:4-54) cannot be simply an incorrect interpretation of, or erroneous action taken on the basis of, facts known to the taxpayer which provided a sensible basis for disputing ownership. If taxpayer is unsure of the ownership of a property, then taxpayer should file an appeal or a declaratory judgment action. The taxpayer may not seek relief under statute after paying the taxes for years and seeking no resolution of the ownership issue.

Because the Taxpayer Mistake Provisions broaden taxpayers’ remedies beyond the statutory right to appeal, such an expansion is to be construed narrowly, especially when the additional remedy has no limitations period.

Court held that none of the payments made by plaintiff and its predecessors were made “by mistake” under N.J.S.A. 54:4-54. Plaintiff and its predecessors had knowledge of the facts relating to ownership of the property. This knowledge provided a plausible basis for contesting the obligation to pay. Neither sought a judicial determination to clear this up until approximately 11 years later.

In settling appeals for 1988, 1989, 1990, and 1993, plaintiff’s predecessor not only failed to contest ownership, but also willingly accepted the property tax obligations on the subject property. As demonstrated by the settlement agreements and site plan application, predecessor did not pay taxes “by mistake.” As its predecessor’s assignee, plaintiff is chargeable with, and bound by, the significance of predecessor’s acceptance of the tax obligations of the subject property.

In 1961, the New Jersey Supreme Court, in Rosa Systems v. Linden Dari-Delite, Inc., 35 N.J. 329, 334, held that when a payment is made voluntarily, it “cannot be recovered on the ground that there was no liability in the first instance.” A payment is not voluntary only if “induced by the wrongful pressure of the payee and the payor has no immediate and adequate remedy in the courts to resist (the payment).” Plaintiff and its predecessor had such an available remedy.

Although the assessor mistakenly assessed the subject property to plaintiff and its predecessor, plaintiff’s knowledge of the ownership issue was not diminished. The mistake to which the Taxpayer Mistake Provisions of N.J.S.A. 54:4-54 refer is the mistake of the taxpayer, not that of the tax assessor or municipality.

The Court, based on four analyses, concluded that defendant did not realize a windfall by retaining the taxes it collected from third parties on property it owned. (1) Predecessor made prior settlements by allocating settlement of lots under appeal and aggregating assessable value as single economic unit. (2) As per Liva Group, LLC v. Paramus Borough, 17 N.J. Tax 609, “Barring proof of fraud or other compelling circumstances a settlement will be enforced in accordance with its essential terms.” Predecessor agreed to the assessments. Predecessor and plaintiff (as successor-in-title and assignee) could not now attack the settlement. (3) Attempting to undo the settlement is a violation of the doctrine of judicial estoppel. “Judicial estoppel is an equitable doctrine precluding a party from asserting a position in a case that contradicts or is inconsistent with previous position or a related proceeding.” Tamburelli Properties Ass’n. v. Cresskill Bor., 308 N.J. Super. 326. For purposes of judicial estoppel, this litigation and the earlier tax appeals are related legal proceedings and the plaintiff may not now contradict what was earlier agreed upon. (4) Denying plaintiff relief is consistent with decisions in other contexts which permit municipalities to retain taxes and other monies which should not have been collected, such as a taxpayer who fails to appeal overassessments.

Sales and Use Tax

Prototypes – Urso & Brown, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided January 4, 2001; Tax Court No. 000051-99.

Plaintiff is in the business of designing and producing point-of-purchase displays for merchandise sold in retail stores. Initially, plaintiff completed a design sketch of a display for a customer. If the customer approved the sketch, plaintiff engaged a fabricator to prepare a prototype with materials selected by plaintiff. The fabricator prepared the prototype along with drawings or blueprints for the display. Plaintiff inspected, paid for, and presented the prototype to the customer for review but did not charge its customers for the creation of the prototypes at issue. If the customer decided to place an order, plaintiff commenced to manufacture the displays. The prototype generally has no further utility and was not alleged to be for resale. At issue is whether the prototypes are subject to sales and use tax and, if so, whether they qualify for either the production or research and development exemption.

In deciding which entity purchased the materials, the Court found that plaintiff provided the materials to make the prototypes to the fabricators. Therefore, the Court ruled that the prototype purchases constituted tangible personal property upon which fabrication services were performed and, therefore, subject to either sales tax under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(1) or use tax via N.J.S.A. 54:32B-6(C). Furthermore, the Court ruled that the transactions between plaintiff and the fabricators did not qualify for a N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(e)(4)(A) exclusion as professional or personal service transactions where the prototypes were an inconsequential element of the transaction because the real object of the transaction was to acquire the prototypes for use as a sales generating device. Finally, the Court noted that even if the fabricators had provided the materials to make the prototypes, the transaction would be a taxable sale of tangible personalty under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a) or B-6(A).

Turning to whether or not the prototypes qualified for exemption from the Sales and Use Tax Act, the Court ruled that the prototypes did not qualify for the N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.13(a) production exemption because the prototypes were neither necessary for nor directly and primarily used in the manufacturing process. The Court also held that the transaction did not qualify for the N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.14 research and development exemption because the prototypes were used as a sales generating device and were not used directly and exclusively in research or development. Furthermore, the Court found the prototypes were not purchased for or used in "research and development in the experimental or laboratory sense" because the use of the prototypes to satisfy specific customer requirements is not in the "nature of a study which seeks new knowledge in, or a new understanding of, a scientific or technical field or subject." □

Division Congratulates Special Olympic Medalists

Barbara McGill and Mary Rohman have been good friends and constant companions since they met at St. Elizabeth's Home more than 45 years ago. Both have been Division employees since 1979.

The Special Olympics oath is: "Let me win. But if I cannot win, let me be brave in the attempt." Mary and Barbara proved this statement true on March 17, 2001, when they participated in the Special Olympics bowling competition at the Colonial Lanes in Lawrenceville. They both received medals: Barbara a gold, and Mary a bronze. This is not the first time they have received medals. They have both participated in the Special Olympics for many years and have won numerous medals.

It was not always easy for Barbara and Mary to participate in these games. Originally they were told they would never be able to bowl because of their handicaps. But with the help of Michael Goshorn, the Director of St. Elizabeth's Home, who built them a ramp on which to place their bowling balls, they beat the odds. The ramp allowed them to build the momentum required to knock over the pins. This opened doors not only for Mary and Barbara but for wheelchair-bound participants as well. Mary and Barbara are very proud to know that they helped set the trend for other Special Olympic athletes in wheelchairs.

They practice every Saturday at Colonial Lanes and you can see by the look on their faces that the ability to participate in sports has done something wonderful for them. With proud smiles they tell of both the "strikes" and "gutter balls" that they have made in their bowling careers. On March 31, 2001, Mary and Barbara advanced to the State Finals. Barbara took home another gold medal and Mary received a ribbon for fourth place.

Mary and Barbara have triumphed in so many areas in their lives. The Division of Taxation is fortunate to have two such overachievers within its ranks and extends congratulations and support to both of these admirable women.

NJ SAVER Rebate Applications

Applications for the 2000 NJ SAVER rebate will be mailed to homeowners over a two-week period in early May. The Division of Taxation has found that staggering the mailing of the applications makes it easier for applicants with questions about the program to get through to the Division by phone. The deadline for filing NJ SAVER rebate applications is July 2, 2001, and rebate checks are scheduled to be mailed on or before September 15, 2001.

Most eligible homeowners will be able to file their NJ SAVER rebate applications by calling the automated NJ SAVER Rebate Filing System at 1-877-658-2972 or 609-826-4288. The system will be available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week beginning May 1, 2001. On average, automated telephone filing takes about a minute and a half for most homeowners who have previously applied for the NJ SAVER rebate and whose information remains unchanged, and about three and a half minutes for those who did not file last year. Applications can also be filed online from the Division's Web site at:

www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/

Applications will be sent to homeowners who applied for and received a 1999 NJ SAVER rebate (or who would have received one had their homestead rebate not provided a greater benefit), as well as to individuals who built or purchased a home between October 2, 1999 and October 1, 2000. Other individuals who have been identified as potentially eligible for the rebate will also be sent applications.

The NJ SAVER rebate program, now in the third year of its scheduled five-year implementation period, provides direct property tax relief to New Jersey residents who own, occupy and pay property taxes on a home in New Jersey that was their principal residence on October 1 of the year for which the rebate is being claimed. NJ SAVER rebates will average $360 for tax year 2000, $480 for tax year 2001, and $600 for tax year 2002, when the program is fully phased-in.

Homeowners are entitled to receive either a NJ SAVER rebate or a homestead rebate, whichever provides a greater benefit. For many senior citizens, the homestead rebate will be greater. This may change as the NJ SAVER rebate amount increases to its maximum. Homeowners eligible for both the homestead and NJ SAVER rebates should continue to file separate applications for each rebate to ensure that they are receiving all the benefits they are eligible for.

NJ SAVER rebates are exempt from New Jersey gross income tax, and a homeowner does not have to report the amount of the rebate on the New Jersey resident income tax return. However, the IRS has advised that for Federal income tax purposes, a taxpayer who itemized deductions and claimed a deduction for property taxes on the 1999 Federal income tax return must report the amount of any property tax rebate received during 2000 as income on the 2000 Federal return. Taxpayers who used the standard deduction, or who itemized but did not claim a deduction for property taxes, do not have to report a property tax rebate as income.

New Jersey taxpayers who must include the amount of their property tax rebate as income on their Federal return should report the rebate on Form 1040 at Line 21, Other Income, and describe it as "property tax rebate."

For further information about the NJ SAVER rebate program call the NJ SAVER Rebate Hotline at 609-826-4282. Division representatives are available from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday (except holidays). □

Protests of Reck v. Director Decision

The Division of Taxation has appealed the Reck v. Director, Division of Taxation, 18 N.J. Tax 598 (March 2000) Tax Court decision regarding the treatment of Keogh contributions and is adhering to its original position on this issue consistent with the Tax Court's ruling in Dantzler v. Director, Division of Taxation, 18 N.J. Tax 490.

Many taxpayers have filed amended income tax returns based upon the Reck Tax Court decision in order to request refunds for their Keogh contributions previously filed and paid. Other taxpayers have been assessed and billed by the Division for deficiencies created from deducting the Keogh from income or from refunds already processed to the taxpayer which must be repaid.

The Director is offering an alternate protest and appeal process for the benefit of those taxpayers filing protests with the Conference and Appeals Branch for denials of requested Keogh refunds or redeterminations of assessed deficiencies. If the only protested issue involved is whether or not Keogh plan contributions are deductible when computing individual or partner's distributive share of partnership income, the taxpayer may be able to take advantage of the alternate process of the choice of either a Closing Agreement or a regular Conference. If the original protest does not indicate a prefer-

Taxpayers protesting issues in addition to Keogh contributions must follow the regular conference process and resolve and/or concede the other issues. Taxpayers protesting non-Keogh pension plan contributions must also follow the regular process. The protest will be acknowledged and moved to the unassigned backlog pending the scheduling of a conference. After the conference, a Final Determination will be issued which will provide further appeal rights to the Tax Court of New Jersey.

Taxpayers entering into a Closing Agreement will be bound by the court of last appeal's final decision of Reck v. Director, Division of Taxation, 18 N.J. SALES AND USE TAX Spring Cleaning

With the improved weather comes the annual ritual of spring cleaning. Window cleaning, clearing out the garage or basement, painting, and other household cleaning are just some of the work to be done.

With the busy schedules kept by New Jersey families, more and more service companies have sprung up to provide these services. Following is a list of some of the most common spring maintenance projects performed by these companies and an explanation of how sales tax is applied.

Examples of Maintenance Services:

Mowing Lawns Taxable

Trimming Trees Taxable

Painting:

Interior or Exterior Taxable

Pest Control Treatment Taxable

Pest Control Inspections ... Exempt

Cleaning Services

(except carpet cleaning).. Taxable

Power Washing Taxable

Trash Removal

(non-contractual)..... Taxable

Windows Taxable

Carpet Cleaning Exempt

When contractors perform maintenance services, their bills should separately state the charges for materials and for labor. The contractor charges sales tax on the labor portion of the bill. The contractor may not charge you sales tax on the cost of the materials and supplies used for the job. However, if the contractor charges you a lump sum for the maintenance service without separating the charge for materials from the charge for labor, you are required to pay the sales tax on the total amount of the bill.

Maintenance services preserve the existing condition of your real property, but do not rise to the level of a capital improvement. A capital improvement means an installation of tangible personal property which increases the capital value or useful life of the real property (land or building). The item(s) installed must be permanently attached to real property. If the work performed on your real property results in a capital improvement, the contractor may not collect sales tax from you on any charges (materials or labor), provided you give the contractor a properly completed Certificate of Capital Improvement (Form ST-8). This form is available by calling the Division's Customer Service Center (609-292-6400), from the Forms Request section of the Automated Tax Information System (1-800-323-4400), by stopping in at one of our field offices, or on the Division of Taxation Web site at:

CORPORATION TAX

Notice of Business Activities Report

The Corporation Business Activities Reporting Act ("Act") requires the annual filing of a Notice of Business Activities Report by a foreign corporation (i.e., not incorporated in the State of New Jersey). Every foreign corporation not filing pursuant to the New Jersey Corporation Business Tax Act (N.J.S.A. 54:10A-1 et seq.) or the New Jersey Corporation Income Tax Act (N.J.S.A. 54:10E-1 et seq.) but that carries on various activities in the State or that receives in excess of $25,000 income from New Jersey sources is required to file such report.

Every foreign corporation subject to the Act (N.J.S.A. 14A:13-14, et seq.) must file an annual Notice of Business Activities Report (Form CBA-1). The reports are required for calendar or fiscal accounting years or parts thereof. The report must be filed on or before the fifteenth day of the fourth month after the close of such calendar or fiscal accounting year.

The failure of a foreign corporation to file a timely report may prevent the use of the courts in this State for all causes of action that may arise at any time prior to the end of the last accounting period for which the corporation failed to file a required timely report.

Pursuant to confidentiality provisions of the State Tax Uniform Procedure Law (N.J.S.A. 54:50-8), only the defendant against whom an action is instituted in any New Jersey Court by a foreign corporation is entitled to know whether the plaintiff foreign corporation has filed such report.

All requests to the Division of Taxation for information as to whether a corporation filed a report must be in writing and include:

- A copy of the complaint and/or summons served upon the defendant (including defendant's and plaintiff's business name and complete mailing addresses).
- If this request is made by anyone other than the defendant, then that party must be a party to the court action, or either a Power of Attorney form or a letter (on corporate or business letterhead) signed by a corporate officer or principal of the business must be attached.

The Notice of Business Activities Report is also used to aid the Division of Taxation in determining whether or not a foreign corporation has "nexus" in New Jersey. The Notice of Business Activities Report asks questions seeking "yes" or "no" responses regarding specific corporate activities in New Jersey. If a question is answered in the affirmative, the taxpayer is requested to supply the date the activity began. Although the report has proved to be a successful tool in the discovery of new taxpayers "doing business" in New Jersey, it also prevents corporations from being caught unaware that they have a tax filing responsibility. □

Cable Television Service Providers

The New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act provides an exemption for the purchase of machinery, apparatus or equipment with a useful life of greater than one year, and for use directly and primarily in the production or transmission of radio or television information, by:

- Commercial broadcasters operating under a broadcasting license issued by the FCC (effective 1/5/96); or
- Providers of cable/satellite television program services (effective 6/1/96).

The statutory exemption for providers of "cable/satellite television program services" is applicable to equipment used in producing cable television programming or in transmitting or distributing cable television programming to cable television service providers. It does not apply to equipment purchased or used by cable television service providers that receive programming from other sources, which is then redistributed to cable television subscribers and customers. Cable television service providers are those companies that are subject to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 48:5A-1 et seq.

An Exempt Use Certificate (Form ST-4) must be provided to the vendor as evidence of the exempt nature of the sale of qualified equipment. The statutory provision to be referenced on the ST-4 is N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.13(e). □

NJ Estate Tax

In addition to the transfer inheritance tax, the State of New Jersey imposes an estate tax on the estates of resident decedents. The tax is triggered when there is a Federal estate tax liability. The New Jersey estate tax is designed to absorb any portion of the tax credit allowable for state death taxes under the Federal estate tax law that is not fully taken up by the aggregate amount of all death taxes paid to any state, U.S. territory or the District of Columbia. The New Jersey estate tax does not increase the estate's overall tax liability. Estates that are partially or fully exempt from the New Jersey transfer inheritance tax may be subject to the New Jersey estate tax.

The estate tax is determined by subtracting the amount of inheritance, legacy, and succession taxes paid to this State and elsewhere

from the allowable Federal credit. The tax liability is reported by the filing of the New Jersey Estate Tax Return (Form IT-Estate) which may be obtained by writing to the Inheritance and Estate Tax Section of the Individual Tax Audit Branch, PO Box 249, Trenton, New Jersey 08695-0249 or calling 609-292-5033 or 609-292-5035.

The New Jersey estate tax obligation is in no way discretionary on the part of the taxpayer. It may not be satisfied by payment of additional Federal estate taxes in lieu of claiming the allowable state death tax credit on the Federal estate tax return.

For estates of decedents dying on or after March 1, 1992, interest accrues at the rate of 10% per annum on any New Jersey estate tax not paid within nine months of a decedent's date of death unless an extension of time in which to file the Federal estate tax return is granted by the Federal government. The Director of the Division of Taxation may then reduce the interest chargeable to 6% per annum for the period until the expiration of the Federal extension.

New Jersey law requires that a copy of the Federal estate tax return be filed with the Individual Tax Audit Branch within 30 days after the filing of the original return with the Federal government. Also, a copy of any communication from the Federal government making any final change in the return, or confirming, increasing, or reducing the tax shown to be due must be filed with the Branch within 30 days of receipt. □

Web Site Redesign to Debut in Spring

The New Jersey Division of Taxation's Web site will soon have a new look, and much more. The long anticipated redesign of our site will be debuting shortly after tax season in the spring of 2001. In addition to our new design, we have incorporated enhanced features and better Web site accessibility. These new features include:

Ease of Navigation. Taxpayers may reach any page in the Division's site from anywhere in the site via the arched navigation bar.

Content Sensitive Menus. The arched navigation bar also provides "drop-down" menus to related links within that particular area of interest.

Improved Graphics. As a part of our new look, the Division has moved away from over-the-counter graphics and has incorporated custom photos of various places and scenes from New Jersey.

Scrolling "Hot News." The Hot News of the day will appear on a scrolling menu on the home page and will be updated daily. Come and take a look at what's hot!

Fill-in Forms. Last year, taxpayers and practitioners were able to complete their corporation business tax forms online. Completed forms could then be printed and sent to the Division. The response to these new "fill-in" forms was outstanding. In response to this, our fill-in forms have been expanded to include all reproducible forms in every tax.

Minimal Scrolling. Taxpayers will no longer need to use their browser scroll bar to view the pages. Through improved design and use of Dynamic HTML, each page will have an internal content scroll area when necessary.

Improved Site Search Results. Although our search engine has not changed, we have enhanced our search ability. Through the use of keywords and metatags, taxpayers and practitioners will be able to receive more documents and pages appropriate to their search.

Standard Navigational Links. Each page includes the same standard navigational links found on the State's Web site.

Compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act. The Division's goal is to successfully

service all taxpayers and practitioners. In keeping with this philosophy, we have incorporated several enhanced features into our redesign:

- Alternate tags for images. All images will have text "tags" which will explain what the image is. In the event the user is having the page read to them, they will hear an explanation of the image.
- Text version of all pages. Each page will have a text only version to accommodate taxpayers and practitioners with Web browsers incapable of handling dynamic HTML or those individuals with slower processors.

We are looking forward to the unveiling of our new site. Please take a look and then complete our new online survey and tell us what you think. □

Landfill Developer Reimbursed

The Advance Group was the first developer to execute a Redevelopment Agreement under the Municipal Landfill Site Closure, Remediation and Redevelopment Act. The agreement was executed on May 18, 1998, and the project encompassed the construction of a mall on a former municipal landfill. The mall houses numerous retail stores and restaurants.

Pursuant to the Act the developer was entitled to recover 75% of its closure costs. These costs amounted to $1,076,449. The developer was therefore entitled to receive the sum of $807,336.75.

The vendors at the mall commenced business during the period from August 1998 through May 1999. Since commencement of business, the total amount of new sales taxes generated from the site have amounted to $1,497,445.17. A reimbursement check in the amount of $807,336.75 was forwarded to the developer in February 2001. □

Criminal Enforcement

Criminal Enforcement over the past months included:

- On September 27, 2000, Anthony Foti of Brick, New Jersey, was sentenced to five (5) years probation and ordered to pay restitution of $76,184, plus penalties and interest in the amount of $23,816, to the State of New Jersey. The sentencing is in response to Mr. Foti's guilty plea to an accusation of collecting but not remitting the sales tax from his business, An-Jo Car Company, Inc., of Toms River. The investigation of Mr. Foti's used car business covered the period of April 1, 1996 through March 31, 1999. Mr. Foti paid $10,000 at the time of sentencing with the balance of restitution to be paid over the course of the probation period.

- On October 4, 2000, at Newark International Airport, U.S. Customs Inspectors alerted the Office of Criminal Investigation about a shipment of cigarettes from the United Arab Emirates. An examination of the cigarettes found them to be unstamped imports manufactured in England. A total of 399 cartons were seized by Customs, in cooperation with the New Jersey Division of Taxation, as they did not bear the Federal Trade Commission and U.S. Food and Drug Administration required markings for importation into the United States.
- On October 18, 2000, David B. Cohen of Cherry Hill, New Jersey, was the subject of a sixty-eight (68) count indictment in Camden County. Mr. Cohen, a corporate officer of Payroll Masters, Inc., was charged with failing to turn over Federal and State tax withholdings in excess of $600,000 that were entrusted to his payroll service. In addition, Mr. Cohen was charged with failing to file New Jersey gross income tax returns for the years 1998 and 1999. This case was presented by the Camden County Prosecutor's Office.

- On January 5, 2001, U.S. District Judge Robert Payne sentenced Ahmed O. Mohammed in the Eastern District of Virginia for interstate contraband cigarette trafficking and other related charges. The prosecution is based on Mr. Mohammed's arrest by the New Jersey Office of Criminal Investigation with substantial assistance from the New York City Department of Finance, Office of Tax Enforcement, and from criminal information filed as a result of a Maryland arrest. The New Jersey arrest took place in June 2000 in Fairview, New Jersey, at a storage facility where Mr. Mohammed kept the 1,166 cartons of contraband cigarettes. The defendant was sentenced to eighteen (18) months incarceration, three (3) years of supervised release thereafter, with a specific condition of supervised release that the defendant be turned over to the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service for deportation to Sudan. The defendant was also ordered to pay a special assessment of $200, restitution to the State of New Jersey in the amount of $202,546, and restitution to the State of Maryland in the amount of $8,514. In addition, 1,166 cartons of cigarettes and $4,744 in cash were forfeited by the defendant to the State of New Jersey.
- On October 25, 2000, Paul Lo-Papa of Watchung, New Jersey, was indicted by a State Grand Jury for failure to file New Jersey gross income tax returns for the years 1996, 1997, and 1998. The joint investigative efforts of the Division of Criminal Justice and the Division of Taxation's Office of Criminal Investigation determined that Mr. LoPapa failed to report total taxable income of $155,185 for the three years indicated. He was also indicted for failure to pay gross income tax in the amount of $5,299, which was due on the above-referenced taxable income. The investigation determined that Mr. LoPapa had generated the above-mentioned unreported income through his real estate company known as Castle Rock Real Estate.

- On October 25, 2000, James D. Joyce entered a guilty plea to two (2) counts of a State Grand Jury indictment that had been handed down on July 23, 1991. Mr. Joyce became a fugitive prior to the indictment for securities fraud, in which investors were bilked out of nearly two million dollars ($2,000,000), and failure to file New Jersey gross income tax returns for the years 1987 and 1988. He was arrested in Phoenix, Arizona, last year, where he was working as a cook in an airport cafeteria. Mr. Joyce had lived in the Cayman Islands and Texas prior to his arrest. Sentencing in this matter is scheduled for January 2001.
- On November 13, 2000, two Pennsylvania corporations and their corporate officers entered guilty pleas in Mercer County Superior Court, waived presentence reports, and were sentenced under the terms of a plea agreement. The two corporations, Pratt Temporaries, Inc. and Employer's Management Group, Inc., both of Fort Washington, Pennsylvania, operated a temporary employment service business in New Jersey known as London Personnel Service. The corporations each plead guilty to a one (1) count accusation of failure to turn over taxes withheld (second degree) in excess of $75,000 for New Jersey gross income tax withheld from employees pay during the years 1993 through 1999. Prior to the plea, the corporations made full restitution of almost one million dollars ($1,000,000) in withholding taxes. William D. Black, Jr., the Vice President of the corporations, also entered a guilty plea to one (1) count of failure to turn over taxes withheld (third degree) in excess of $32,000 for the year 1995. He was sentenced to a four-year term of probation. Robert S. Brown, the President of the corporations, entered a guilty plea to a one (1) count accusation of failure to file New Jersey gross income tax returns for the years 1995 through 1998, and was sentenced to a four-year term of probation. The New Jersey gross income tax returns were filed prior to the plea. Both corporations and the responsible corporate officers executed a consent judgment for interest that is due in excess of $318,000, which will be paid within three years.

- On November 17, 2000, a resident of the State of New Jersey was stopped at the U.S. Immigration Station at Laredo, Texas/Mexico Border. U.S. Border Patrol Narcotics K-9 "hit" on a spare tire mounted under the bed of the rented pickup truck the subject was driving. Border Patrol Agents lowered the tire and found 494,460 counterfeit New Jersey cigarette tax stamps concealed inside. The subject was arrested by the U.S. Border Patrol Agents and turned over to the FBI in cooperation with the New Jersey Division of Taxation's Office of Criminal Investigation, and was charged by the U.S. Attorney's Office with violating Title 18 U.S.C., Forgery.

- On December 12, 2000, a State Grand Jury handed up a thirty-five (35) count indictment against seven people on charges that they defrauded about ten million dollars ($10,000,000) from twenty-five (25) victims in a bogus investment scheme. A State Grand Jury indicted the following targets of tax evasion: Jeffrey Burd, Edison, New Jersey, was charged with failure to file New Jersey gross income tax returns for the years 1998 and 1999 (2 counts); Kevin Bradley of Edison, New Jersey, was charged with failure to file New Jersey gross income tax returns for the years 1998 and 1999, and failure to file corporation business tax returns for Corporate Management Services for the years 1998 and 1999 (4 counts); Byron Jackman of Irvington, New Jersey, was charged with failure to file a New Jersey gross income tax return for the year 1998, and failure to file corporation business tax returns for Metropolitan Institute of Network Technology for the years 1998 and 1999 (3 counts); John Vitale, Jr. of Gladstone, New Jersey, was charged with failure to file corporation business tax returns for Access Entertainment for the years 1998 and 1999, and failure to register a business (3 counts). The thirty-five (35) count indictment also charged the above targets with theft by deception, money laundering, and misconduct by a corporate officer. The investigation determined that the above-referenced tax evasion counts represent a total of $598,000 of tax due on total unreported income of $9,364,000 for the combined years 1998 and 1999. The New Jersey Division of Taxation Office of Criminal Investigation, the New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice, and the Hudson County Prosecutor's Office investigated the case.

- Eighty-three (83) complaints alleging tax evasion were evaluated from October to December 2000 in the Office of Criminal Investigation.
- From October to December 2000, fifty-one (51) charges were filed in court on thirteen (13) cases for violation of the Cigarette Tax Act including possession of 637.5 cartons of contraband cigarettes, valued at $22,312.50, resulting in eleven (11) arrests. □

Receipts Fraction and Over-the-Road Haulers — The Division responded to a question about the calculation of the New Jersey receipts fraction in the case of long-distance hauling. The rule is found at N.J.A.C. 18:7-8.10(c) 4.iii, and includes an example. Conceptually it has two parts that must be calculated in order to arrive at the numerator of the receipts fraction. First, the fraction of revenue miles in New Jersey over revenue miles everywhere is multiplied by the total freight revenues; and that result is multiplied by a fraction which is the long-distance hauling costs over the sum of local pick up and delivery costs and terminal operation costs plus long-distance hauling costs. This result is then added to a second amount.

The second amount is calculated as follows: The total freight revenues are multiplied by a fraction which is the consignments (i.e. revenue from deliveries) to points in New Jersey over total freight revenues. That result is multiplied by local pick up and delivery costs and terminal operating costs over local pick up and delivery costs and terminal operating costs plus long-distance hauling costs.

The sum of the products of paragraph one and paragraph two are considered to be the receipts from services performed in New Jersey. That amount is divided by the receipts from everywhere to produce the receipts fraction for use in the allocation factor.

Sales of Assets — The Division responded to a question asking whether or not income from the sale of a business is to be included in the apportionment factor for the company's New Jersey corporation business tax return. The largest portion of the sale of assets is the sale of good will.

In general, income generated as the result of sale of assets that are located in New Jersey would be included in calculating the apportionment factor, and would specifically be included in the numerator of the receipts fraction. In this case the good will was integrally related to the business conducted in New Jersey (the company had a 97 percent allocation factor for its prior year) and, therefore, would be included.

In this case, however, this taxpayer may not be eligible to apportion income. As described in the inquiry, the office in Delaware may not be considered a bona fide office for purposes of allocation unless it meets the requirements of being a "regular place of business" N.J.A.C. 18:7-7.2. This includes having an employee in attendance during regular business hours performing significant duties related to the business of the taxpayer.

Gross Income Tax

No Surcharge on a Deemed Distribution of Federally Qualified Employee Retirement Plan Loan in Default

— A taxpayer who borrowed from his Federally qualified employee retirement plan, and then defaulted on that loan asked about the taxability of the deemed distribution and if the Division would impose a surcharge on him.

For New Jersey purposes, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1(j), amounts distributed or withdrawn from an employee trust that were attributable to contributions to the trust (which were previously excluded from gross income) are taxable for New Jersey gross income tax purposes. This means that deemed distributions from a Federally qualified employee retirement plan are given the same treatment as individual retirement accounts in that New Jersey income tax liability is calculated only on amounts distributed in excess of actual contributions.

The New Jersey tax rate is determined in accordance with N.J.S.A. 54A:2-1 and contains no additional tax surcharge for a deemed distribution. Also, the fact that a taxpayer paid a surcharge on the deemed distribution for Federal purposes does not reduce taxable income for New Jersey purposes.

State Income Taxation of Waterway Workers

— Recently, P.L. 106-489 was signed into law preempting the state taxation of wages earned by interstate waterway workers. This Bill provides that a licensed pilot or other worker “on a vessel operating on the navigable waters of more than one State” shall be subject to the income tax laws only in the state in which he/she resides.

New Jersey’s current policy, as stated in the New Jersey State Tax News, April 1993 issue, is that income attributable to a nonresident seaman’s employment on ships operating exclusively between New Jersey ports and foreign ports, or ports of other states, is not considered to be New Jersey source income. Also, a seaman who is in New Jersey simply because his ship has entered a New Jersey port for the purpose of foreign or interstate trade is not subject to the gross income tax for income earned during that period. Residents are taxed on their full income no matter where earned.

Thus, P.L. 106-489 does not change the New Jersey gross income taxation of an interstate waterway worker.

Sales and Use Tax

Golf Course Sales — The Division received an inquiry concerning the application of sales tax to various charges made by a golf course in New Jersey and responded as follows:

1. Membership Dues — Exempt from tax.
2. Greens Fees — Exempt as admission to a facility where the person will be a participant in a sporting activity. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(e)(1).
3. Golf Cart Fees — Taxable as a rental of tangible property. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a).
4. Lessons — Exempt from tax as personal service transactions.
5. Pro Shop Merchandise — Articles of clothing that are adaptable for everyday use such as golf shirts, pants and hats are exempt; however, articles of clothing that are designed for use during a sporting activity, such as golf shoes, are subject to tax. N.J.A.C. 18:24-6.1 et seq. Most other items sold in a pro shop are taxable as the sale of tangible property.

6. Golf Club Rental — Taxable as a rental of tangible property. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a).
7. Driving Range Golf Ball Fee — Since the charge includes entrance to the range, it is treated as an exempt admission to a sporting facility where the customer is to be a participant. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(e)(1).
8. Food and Beverages — Taxable if sold for on-site consumption. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(c).
9. Entertainment — Any admission charge or cover charge to a place of amusement is subject to tax. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(e)(1).

Aerial Spraying on Farms — N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.16, the statutory provision governing the farming use exemption from sales and use tax, was amended effective January 6, 2000. P.L. 1999, c.314. Prior to the amendment, the exemption did not apply to any services. However, the amendment extended the exemption to “production and conservation services” sold to a farmer if they are used “directly and primarily in the production, handling, and preservation for sale of agricultural or horticultural commodities at the

farming enterprise of that farmer.”

The aerial spraying of fertilizers, pesticides, or cover crop seeds on a farmer’s crops is an exempt service, assuming that it is used directly and primarily for one of the exempt purposes identified in the statute. N.J.A.C. 18:24-19.2; N.J.A.C. 18:24-19.4(c)4. The farmer should present the service provider with a properly completed Farmer’s Exemption Certificate (Form ST-7) to support the claimed exemption.

Fireworks Display — The service of producing a fireworks show is not subject to sales and use tax. The fireworks service provider is not deemed to be selling the fireworks materials themselves. Instead, the materials are used in order to perform a nontaxable service. Therefore, the fireworks service provider is liable for sales tax if the materials are purchased in New Jersey, or compensating use tax if materials purchased without payment of sales tax are used in New Jersey.

Paint Your Own Ceramics — The Division responded to an inquiry regarding the sales and use tax collection and payment obligations of a paint-your-own ceramics and pottery studio, thus:

1. Retail sales to a customer of pre-made ceramic items or of the supplies needed to decorate them are taxable. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a).
2. When the studio charges the customer an hourly fee for use of the studio, including the right to use necessary supplies, the fee charged is not taxable to the customer. In this situation, the studio is liable for the sales or use tax on the ceramic pieces, tools and supplies provided to customers who use the studio.

3. Charges for classes are not subject to sales tax. If ceramics pieces and supplies are provided as part of the class, they are taxable to the studio, not to the student. If they are sold to the students, for prices separate from and in addition to the class fee, then they are taxable instead to the student.
4. Charges for parties are nontaxable. The studio (not the customer) is liable for sales or use tax on the supplies.
5. Discount coupons are treated as “vendor discounts.” Customers should be charged sales tax on the reduced price for a taxable item, after the discount is subtracted from the price. N.J.A.C. 18:24-1.4. The studio is liable for sales or use tax on any taxable items given away free.

Shop Supplies — Automobile dealers, car repair mechanics and auto body shops are required to pay sales tax on the various tools and shop supplies which they use or consume in their business but which, unlike paint or new filters, do not become part of their customers’ vehicles. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a); 54:32B-2(e). They are deemed to be the retail purchasers of these items. Generally, their expenses in purchasing these items are treated as part of their overhead (like real estate rental, employee salaries, office supplies, phone lines, etc.) and are only indirectly reflected in the fees for their services or the markups that they charge for parts or items sold as is. However, if instead they choose to itemize an explicit “shop supply” fee on a customer’s bill, doing so will not make this portion of the bill nontaxable. The shop supply fee will be viewed as simply part of their charges for taxable services or for taxable parts, paints or fluids resold to the customer. The full charge will therefore still be subject to sales tax.

Federal Subscriber Wire Charges

— Although telecommunications service providers may choose to separately itemize the Federal subscriber wire charges, these amounts billed to customers simply reimburse the service providers for a Federal tax expense incurred by the provider in order to provide the service to the subscriber. The subscriber line charges itemized on a customer’s bill are treated as part of the price charged for the taxable service. Thus, they are part of the taxable “receipt” within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(d). Specifically, excise taxes imposed on vendors, which the vendors in turn choose to separately state to their purchasers, are included in the “receipt” on which sales tax is computed. N.J.A.C. 18:24-1.4(b).

Teleconferencing Service — The New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act imposes tax on receipts from telecommunications services charged to a service address in this State N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(f). Telecommunications means the act of originating or receiving messages or information through any kind of one-way or two-way communications. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(cc). The tax does not apply to calls that pass over or through New Jersey without originating or terminating here. The New Jersey Tax Court has held that services provided in connection with or by means of telecommunications are included within the meaning of the statute. See Aetna Burglar & Fire Alarm Co. v. Director, 16 N.J. Tax 584 (1997). For purposes of teleconferencing services, the Division treats the location of the person who has arranged for the teleconference call as the service address. When a New Jersey customer arranges for a teleconference, such charges are subject to tax under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(f).

The statute includes within the definition of "telecommunications" all services and equipment provided in connection therewith or by means thereof. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(cc). Thus, additional services such as call confirmation, call registration, call participation, call reminder, etc. are taxable as services performed in connection with the teleconferencing service when billed to a service address in New Jersey. For a more detailed discussion of teleconferencing, see New Jersey State Tax News, Winter 1992.

Advertising Space in a Publication Distributed Free of Charge

— The charge for the advertising space (e.g., half page, back cover) in an advertising publication that is distributed free of charge is not subject to tax. The charges for the materials and services that go into printing the publication are subject to tax. The publisher may simply pay tax on the purchase price of the publication (e.g. paper, printing, etc.) directly to the seller of the property and printing service. If the seller or printer of the publication is located outside of New Jersey and does not collect New Jersey tax, the publisher is responsible for paying the 6% compensating use tax directly to the State with regard to the advertising material that is distributed in New Jersey. The tax is based on the amount paid for the printed material by the publisher. □

In Our Courts

Administration

Adequate Notice – Harry and Susan Dashoff v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided December 3, 1999; Tax Court No. 004747-98.

The Division mailed to plaintiff's home address a notification of a pending audit examination of their records that was returned to the Division on December 5, 1995, due to it being unclaimed after three notices. On December 10, 1996, the Division sent plaintiff a notice regarding the basis of an estimated assessment that was also returned to the Division after being unclaimed pursuant to two notices. Thereafter, the Division sent a February 10, 1997, notice of assessment related to final audit determination to plaintiff's home address that was also returned to the Division as unclaimed from three delivery attempts. The notice of assessment determined that the plaintiff owed gross income taxes for tax years 1976 through 1995, excluding 1980 and 1994, for failure to file returns. After sending a June 30, 1997, notice of demand for payment of tax that also went unclaimed, the Division entered a certificate of debt (COD) against plaintiff on August 11, 1997, which the plaintiff acknowledged receiving.

On August 21, 1998, plaintiff filed a complaint with the Tax Court

seeking relief from the COD. On April 30, 1999, the Division moved to dismiss plaintiff's Tax Court complaint as being filed untimely. Plaintiff filed an opposition to the motion to dismiss and a cross motion to suppress the Division's defenses because: (1) the Division's motion to dismiss the complaint should have been filed within 90 days after service of the answer, (2) the Division's failure to answer interrogatories and produce documents on October 16, 1999, (3) the requirement of certified mail without also regular mailing is a constitutional violation and (4) the plaintiff did not receive the notices, and it would be inappropriate under the law and constitution to hold the plaintiff to the Division's estimated assessment.

As to the plaintiff's claim that the Division's motion to dismiss for untimely filing must be filed within 90 days of service of the answer, the Court ruled that the Division's motion was timely because Rule 4:6-2 permits a motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction to be made at any time in the pleadings.

Addressing the issue of whether the Division's motion should be suppressed because of the Division's failure to respond to interrogatories and produce documents, the Court dismissed plaintiff's claim because when a motion is made to dismiss for untimely filing the parties cease exchanging discovery during the pendency of the motion.

After examining the envelopes, the Court stated that they all showed the mailings were to plaintiff's last known address, there was adequate postage, and that there were several delivery attempts that were unclaimed and therefore returned to the Division. The Court ruled that the Division had complied with all statutes regarding mailing that required that notices of assessment be sent by certified mail to the plaintiff's last known address which is presumptive evidence of the plaintiff's receipt. Furthermore, the Court could not determine that either the statutory form of service was insufficient or that the statutory notice requirements violated the constitutional principles of procedural due process because the notice requirements are reasonably calculated to apprise the taxpayer of the pendency of an action and that there was an official mailing from the Division.

The Court held that the plaintiff's August 21, 1998, complaint was untimely as to the February 10, 1997, notice of assessment. The Court held that the Division complied with the statute by sending the notice of assessment by certified mail to plaintiff's home address, that failure to send the notice by regular mail does not invalidate the notice of assessment, and that the plaintiff failed to file a timely appeal within 90 days of the notice of assessment. Furthermore, the Court noted that the date of the assessment, not the date of the COD, fixes the time for challenging the underlying tax liability.

Responsible Person Status – Frank J. Miles v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided April 24, 2000; Tax Court No. 6310-98.

At issue is whether plaintiff is a responsible person for employees' gross income tax (GIT) payroll withholdings that were not paid over to the Director and whether he is relieved of any liability by following his superior's directions not to make those payments.

Plaintiff was hired as the Chief Financial Officer, vice president and treasurer, of Accurate Information Systems, Inc. (AIS) reporting to the president, Mr. Stephen Yelity. Under plaintiff's employment contract, he was paid between $90,000 and $100,000 annually and initially granted 5% of the company's stock. Plaintiff had check signing authority and the Court found that he signed all company checks. Plaintiff had limited authority to hire and fire employees, signed, prepared and/or supervised the preparation of AIS tax returns, and was involved in the financial aspects of the company. When plaintiff was hired, one of his responsibilities was to solve AIS's financial problems including tax liabilities owed to various states and the IRS. Plaintiff negotiated the IRS debt and either plaintiff or his corporation, MJ Financial Answers, lent AIS money, without any prospect of repayment, to make the final installment payment to the IRS.

The evidence showed that AIS payroll tax returns were filed but that tax checks were not remitted to the Division. The Court further found that vouchers authorizing payment of payroll taxes were prepared and that sometimes payroll tax checks were prepared and signed but not forwarded to the Division. Testimony indicated that Mr. Yelity directed plaintiff regarding which checks should be and should not be released over plaintiff's protests. Despite Mr. Yelity's testimony that the decision not to pay taxes was a joint decision, the Court found that it was specifically Mr. Yelity's decision not to pay the payroll taxes and that he decided who would be paid when there was not sufficient funds to pay all creditors.

The Court held that plaintiff was a responsible person and personally liable for AIS's nonpayment of payroll taxes. In making its determination, the Court applied the nine-factor test first articulated in Cooperstein v. Director, Division of Taxation, 13 N.J. Tax 68 (Tax 1993), aff'd, 14 N.J. Tax 192 (Appellate Division 1994) certif. denied, 140 N.J. 329 (1995). Then the Court compared the facts of this case with prior cases where individuals were found to be personally liable and opined that plaintiff had as great as or greater responsibility as they did.

Although the Court found that Mr. Yelity decided alone that payroll taxes would not be paid, the Court quoted Federal Circuit Court opinions that essentially stated that a superior's instructions not to pay taxes do not relieve an otherwise responsible person from his duty to ensure that taxes were paid. Furthermore, the Court noted that the issue of whether Mr. Yelity was a responsible person was not before the Court.

Gross Income Tax

Calculation of Resident Tax Credit – Mark and Donna Regante v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided October 15, 1999; Tax Court No. 000496-1996.

Plaintiff claims that in calculating the resident tax credit that both as a matter of statutory interpretation and constitutionality the fraction must be calculated so that deductions allowable in the numerator are limited to those allowable in the denominator. In other words, plaintiff claims that the methodology for determining income in the numerator should be identical with the methodology for determining income in the denominator.

Citing Ambrose v. Director, Division of Taxation, 198 N.J. Super. 546 (Appellate Division 1985), the Court held that the Division properly interpreted the statutory phrase "subject to tax" to refer to income actually taxed in the other state. Furthermore, the Court noted that the Division's regulations correctly interpret the statute.

Plaintiff's claim that the Director's interpretation of the statute results in a denial of equal protection was also rejected as the Court held the statute is constitutional. The Court noted that a taxpayer residing in New Jersey and working in Pennsylvania would pay a different amount of tax to New Jersey than if the taxpayer earned the same income by working in New York. However, the Court concurred with the holding in Jenkins v. Director, Division of Taxation, 4 N.J. Tax 127 (Tax 1982) that there was no equal protection violation because the credit is applicable equally to all New Jersey residents. Furthermore, the Court ruled that plaintiff had failed to show that the legislative classification pertaining to the resident tax credit was irrational or arbitrary.

Sales and Use Tax

Calculation of the Average Annual Volume – Continental Gypsum Co. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided November 1, 2000; Tax Court No. 002150-99.

The sole issue revolved around the proper calculation of the base level of volume (BLV) to determine the use tax exemption attributable to purchases of natural gas. In general, an eligible person's exemption is based on their BLV, which is equal to their average annual volume (AAV) of non-utility natural gas units purchased and delivered between January 1, 1992, and December 31, 1995. The Director explained via Public Notice, 29 N.J. Reg. 5029(b), that the calculation of the AAV was based upon actual purchases between 1992 and 1995 divided by the number of years the eligible person was in operation between 1992 and 1995. Therefore, if no purchases were made in any calendar year between 1992 and 1995, then that year would not count in the computation. Similarly, if non-utility gas was purchased only in 1995, then the total 1995 purchases would equal the BLV.

In July 1995, plaintiff Continental Gypsum Co. (CGC) commenced purchasing and accepting deliveries of non-utility gas. CGC purchased 473,070 therms in 1995, 3,399,160 therms in 1996, and 4,820,116 therms in 1997. The Director determined that CGC's BLV was 473,070, the total 1995 purchases. First, CGC argued that average annual volume should be based upon its 461,411 therm full monthly production capacity, which was reached in October 1997, multiplied by twelve, or 5,536,932 therms. Alternatively, CGC claimed that its BLV should be 1,474,440 therms, its December 1995 purchases of 122,870 therms multiplied by twelve.

In upholding the Director's Final Determination, the Court reasoned that the Director's interpretation of calculating BLV was not unreasonable. The Court dismissed CGC's first claim by ruling that the statute was clear that any year subsequent to 1995 could not be used in calculating the BLV. Addressing CGC's second claim, the Court ruled that "CGC had failed to demonstrate that the Director's interpretation was unreasonable and furthermore that the Director's interpretation was more reasonable than either of CGC's alternative proposals." The Court stated that the "Director's construction is reasonable, as it is surely not 'plainly unreasonable.'" Although the Court noted that there were several other reasonable alternatives that could be employed to calculate the BLV, it lacked authority to implement a method of calculation more reasonable than the Director's method.

CGC also claimed that the Director's Public Notice was de facto rulemaking that is prohibited under the Administrative Procedures Act. The Court found that this Notice was essential because the statute could be interpreted several different ways. The Court noted that although an assemblyman had contested the Director's method of calculation, the legislation was not amended. In distinguishing Metromedia v. Director, Division of Taxation, 97 N.J. 313 (1984), the Court held that there was no requirement that the Director's pre-audit determination be adopted by a formal regulation. □

Administrative Procedures Act — P.L. 2001, c.5 (signed into law on January 16, 2001) revises New Jersey's Administrative Procedures Act to enhance access to the rule-making process. The legislation requires regulatory agencies to publish a calendar of their rule-making plans, provides for an extension in the time allowed for comment on proposed rules, and ensures official response to members of the public petitioning an agency to adopt or change a rule.

The law also provides that, in reviewing an administrative law judge's decision, an agency head shall apply an elevated standard in deciding whether to reject or modify findings of fact as to the credibility of lay witness testimony, requires each rule-making agency to publish a table of specified matters that are of interest to regulated parties, and requires that administrative rules expire after five years.

This legislation takes effect on July 1, 2001, but does not apply to any rule proposed in the New Jersey Register, or to any contested case filed prior to the effective date.

As this issue of the State Tax News went to press, legislation was pending which would affect both the NJ SAVER and Homestead Rebate Programs. The legislation, referred to as “Property Tax Relief Now!” by Acting Governor Donald DiFrancesco, has already passed the Senate. It accelerates the phase-in of the NJ SAVER rebate and doubles the amount to be paid this year to an average of $500. The legislation would also increase the maximum homestead rebate amount for senior and disabled citizens from $500 to $750, and index the maximum rebate amount to inflation. In addition, the legislation accelerates the homestead rebate amount for tenants who are not 65 or older or disabled to $100, and also indexes that amount to inflation.

Additional information regarding the legislation will be available on the Division's Web site (www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/) once it is signed into law.

Form NJ-1040EZ Introduced

The Division of Taxation has developed a simpler, one-page income tax return/homestead rebate application for residents, Form NJ-1040EZ. Created with New Jersey earned income tax credit filers in mind, the new form is designed to make filing easier and less time-consuming, particularly for those who wish to apply for the new credit, but who are not required to file a State return because their income is below the minimum filing threshold. To qualify to use Form NJ-1040EZ, a taxpayer must have been a full year New Jersey resident during 2000, and have income limited to wages, interest or dividends. Other limitations apply. For example, individuals whose filing status is married, filing separate return, or those who wish to use the Pension Exclusion or Other Retirement Income Exclusion cannot use Form NJ-1040EZ. □

What's New for Tax Year 2000

In addition to a new tax form, this year brings a new earned income tax credit, and several other legislative and administrative changes.

- New Jersey Earned Income Tax Credit — New Jersey households that file for and receive a Federal earned income credit which is based on having at least one “qualifying child,” and whose New Jersey gross income is $20,000 or less, and whose filing status for both Federal and New Jersey purposes is either married, filing joint return, head of household or qualifying widow(er) are eligible for a refundable New Jersey credit. To apply, eligible residents must file a New Jersey income tax return and complete the New Jersey Earned Income Tax Credit Schedule portion of the form they file. Benefits are being phased in over a four-year period. The amount of the New Jersey credit for 2000 will be equal to 10% of the applicant’s Federal earned income credit.

- Higher Filing Threshold — The thresholds at which taxpayers become subject to the New Jersey gross income tax and are required to file a New Jersey income tax return are being increased over a three-year period which began with tax year 1999. For tax year 2000, the minimum threshold is $15,000 or less (married, filing joint return, head of household, or qualifying widow(er)), $7,500 or less (married, filing separate return) and $10,000 or less (single filers and estates and trusts).
- Retirement Income Exclusions Increased — The maximum amounts of pension and/or other retirement income that may be excluded from New Jersey gross income have increased. The new exclusion amounts are being phased in over a four-year period. For tax year 2000, the maximum exclusion is $12,500 (filing status married, filing joint return), $6,250 (filing status married, filing separate return) and $9,375 (filing status single, head of household, or qualifying widow(er)).
- Health Insurance Deduction for Self-Employed — Effective for tax year 2000, self-employed individuals and holders of more than 2% of the shares of an S corporation may deduct the amount paid for health insurance for themselves, their spouses and their dependents.
- Qualified Conservation Contributions — A gross income tax deduction is allowed for qualified contributions made for conservation purposes of certain interests in real property located in New Jersey. The amount of the deduction is the amount of the contribution allowed as a deduction for Federal income tax purposes.

- Online Extensions — During the tax filing season, a four-month extension of time to file the New Jersey income tax return may be requested online by using the interactive version of extension request Form NJ-630 located on the Division of Taxation's home page at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/ Requests for extensions of time to file 2000 New Jersey income tax returns may be filed online until 12 midnight, April 16, 2001. If a payment is required with the online extension application, the payment must be made by credit card.
- Direct Deposit of Refund — A taxpayer who files a return using NJ TeleFile, NJ PC File, or other electronic method may request that either their New Jersey income tax refund check, or homestead rebate check, or both, be directly deposited into their account at a bank or other financial institution.
- NJ TeleFile Program — The NJ TeleFile Program has been expanded so that even more New Jersey residents will be able to use this "paperless" filing method. The changes this year include:
—No income limit: You can TeleFile your New Jersey return regardless of your total income, if you had income only from wages, interest ($2,500 or less) or dividends ($2,500 or less).

Tax Year 2000 Corrections

MEDICAL EXPENSES DEDUCTION

As a result of a late change to Federal Form 8853, the instructions for completing Line 4 of the New Jersey medical expenses deduction worksheet now contain an error. The worksheet is used for calculating the amount of medical expenses taxpayers can deduct on their New Jersey resident (Form NJ-1040 and NJ-1040EZ) and nonresident (Form NJ-1040NR) returns.

The instructions for completing Line 4 of the New Jersey medical expenses deduction worksheet direct taxpayers to enter the amount of qualified medical savings account contributions from "Line 7, Federal Form 8853." The reference to Line 7 is incorrect.

Taxpayers who are reporting medical savings account contributions should use the amount from Line 5 of the 2000 version of Federal Form 8853.

CORPORATION TAX Gain/Loss on Sale of Subsidiary

Many taxpayers that sell a subsidiary which has been part of its consolidated Federal tax return are not reporting the correct amount of capital gain or loss for New Jersey purposes.

In general there are two methods to account for an investment in subsidiary stock. The first is the Cost method. The original amount of the investment is recorded and remains constant for as long as it is owned. There are no adjustments made to the investment account for the subsidiary's earnings or for dividends received. The second method is the Equity method. Under this method the investment account is adjusted each period for dividends received and subsidiary earnings, and deferred taxes are recognized. The use of these methods can result in vastly different investment basis.

When an invested subsidiary is part of the same combined group, the investment account is eliminated in consolidation. The consolidation results in a similar investment basis as if the equity method had been used.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 18:7-11.15(b) New Jersey corporation business tax returns must be filed on an unconsolidated basis. If for New Jersey tax purposes the Cost method of subsidiary investment was utilized, the basis used for determining the gain/loss from a subsidiary sale will be different from the basis used for Federal

GROSS INCOME TAX Reporting and Recognition of Income

A tax practitioner recently inquired as to the taxability of distributions and deemed distributions from Regulated Investment Companies and Passive Foreign Investment Companies for gross income tax purposes. The practitioner also asked if a taxpayer who elects to defer the reporting of the income or to defer payment of the tax for Federal purposes would be accorded the same elections for gross income tax purposes.

The Division published its position on the reporting of income from such entities in an article entitled "Accounting Methods" in the Winter 1998 issue of the New Jersey State Tax News, Volume 27, Number 4, page 11.

The Gross Income Tax Act at 54A:8-3(c) Accounting Methods, states in part that "A taxpayer's accounting method under this act shall be the same as his accounting method for Federal income tax purposes." A taxpayer's method of accounting for Federal income tax purposes determines not only the method used to compute income but also determines when income is to be recognized and reported.

Taxpayers that receive distributions and/or deemed distributions from Regulated Investment Companies or Passive Foreign Investment Companies must recognize and report the income in the same period as they do for Federal tax purposes. If a taxpayer makes a Federal election that allows them to defer recognition and reporting of the income until some future time or event, they may do so for gross income tax purposes.

A shareholder of a Passive Foreign Investment Company (PFIC) that elects to be treated as a Qualified Electing Fund (QEF) and files Federal Form 8621 to make an election to extend the time for payment of the tax, with interest, on their share of the undistributed earnings of the QEF, cannot make such an election for gross income tax purposes.

There is no provision in the Gross Income Tax Act like those contained in IRC sections 1291 and 1294 that allow taxpayers to elect a deferral of payment of the tax owing, with interest, on undistributed income from a QEF. For gross income tax purposes taxpayers must pay the tax in the same period that the income is recognized and reported. □

INHERITANCE TAX Waivers for Nonresident Decedents

The nonresident inheritance tax is a privilege levy on the transfer, by a nonresident decedent, of real and tangible personal property located in this State. Accordingly, the transfer of intangible personal property is not subject to the tax in the estate of a nonresident. Intangible personal property includes such items as bank accounts, stocks, bonds, patents and partnership interests. The situs of intangible personal property is deemed to be at the domicile of the decedent. Therefore, any state death taxes would be levied by the decedent's domicile state.

Waivers are needed for the transfer of New Jersey real estate only. A nonresident inheritance tax return is required in all estates containing New Jersey real estate and tangible personal property.

If the nonresident's estate includes any items of intangible personal property which would have required a waiver had the decedent been a resident, the personal representative must submit an affidavit of domicile directly to the bank, transfer agent, etc., to obtain the release of those assets. The bank, transfer agent, etc., has the authority to transfer those assets if convinced, by the proofs submitted, that the decedent was domiciled outside of New Jersey.

The content of the affidavit of domicile utilized to effect the transfer of such New Jersey intangible personal property, is described in N.J.A.C. 18:26-11.1(b)2. The affidavit should include the following information concerning the decedent:

1. Place of residence and voting;
2. Social and business affiliations;
3. Where the last five income tax returns were filed prior to death;
4. Date of commencement and length of actual residence in place claimed as legal domicile;
5. Whether decedent formerly resided in New Jersey and, if so, what facts are relied upon to establish abandonment of New Jersey and intention not to return.

Nonresident estates having only intangible personal property need only follow this procedure. There is no need to file a nonresident inheritance tax return. □

E-Mail Responses to Bills

In an effort to make it easier for taxpayers to resolve notices they receive, the Division has begun to include e-mail addresses on many of the Statements of Account and Billing Notices being sent out. Taxpayers who have access to e-mail may reply to these addresses to notify the Division of discrepancies between their records and the Division's, and can be sure that the correspondence is being sent to the appropriate area of the Division.

E-mail addresses are now included on Statements of Account and Billing Notices for the following taxes:

- NJ Gross Income Tax (individual)
- NJ Gross Income Tax (employer withholding)
- Alcoholic Beverage Tax

- Atlantic City Luxury Sales Tax
- Business Personal Property Tax
- Cape May County Tourism Sales Tax
- Public Community Water System Tax
- Motor Fuels Tax
- Petroleum Products Gross Receipts Tax
- Sales and Use Tax (including Sales and Use-Energy and Urban Enterprise Zone)
- Spill Compensation and Control Tax
- Tobacco Products Wholesale Sales and Use Tax

The e-mail address printed on a Statement of Account or Billing Notice should be used for resolution of that notice only and should not be used for requests for information or general tax inquiries. General e-mail should be sent to the Division at:

taxation@tax.state.nj.us or, through the Division's Web site at:

www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/ □

LOCAL PROPERTY TAX Farmland Acreage

A report summarizing data from farmland assessment applications (FA-1) has recently been completed. The study shows that the total acreage devoted to agricultural or horticultural use in 2000 was 1,146,500 acres for the entire state.

The data for tax year 2000 reflects a continued decline in the amount of qualified farmland since the enactment of Chapter 48, Laws of 1964 (the "Farmland Assessment Act"). Since 1983, the year in which the highest acreage, 1,271,882 acres,

qualified for farmland assessment, the amount of qualified acreage has declined 9.9% or a total of 125,382 acres.

23.9% of New Jersey's land mass is approved under the Farmland Assessment Act. Hudson County remains the only county without farmland. Essex and Union each report less than 500 acres devoted to agricultural or horticultural use. Conversely, Salem with 54.4% has the greatest proportion of its land qualified under the Act. Other counties with large percentages of qualified farmland are: Hunterdon, 50%; Warren, 49.8%; Gloucester, 37.8%; Sussex, 33.7% and Mercer, 29.5%.

Copies of the 2000 report have been distributed to the County Tax Board Administrators. Anyone seeking specific information on qualified farmland acreage or wishing to obtain a copy of the report may do so by calling 609-292-7974. □

LOCAL PROPERTY TAX F.E.A.C. Adopts Values for 2001

The Farmland Evaluation Advisory Committee (F.E.A.C.) met on August 24, 2000, at the Phillip Alampi Laboratory in West Trenton to adopt a range of values for each of the several classifications of land in agricultural or horticultural use by county. In addition, the F.E.A.C. establishes values for income imputed to land used for grazing.

The thirty-seventh Report of the Committee, showing the value ranges adopted, is mailed to municipal assessors and county boards of taxation in early October of each pre-tax year. Land qualifying for farmland assessment must be assessed in accordance with its productivity and its agricultural or horticultural use rather than its market value.

The farmland values adopted by the committee for 2001 increased in all 20 counties where qualified farmland is located. Increases in cropland having a B soil group rating averaged from $20.00 to $40.00 per acre when compared to 2000 values. □

LOCAL PROPERTY TAX New System to Replace MOD IV

The Division of Taxation has published an RFI (Request for Information) to acquire a comprehensive system for local property assessment and tax administration. This new comprehensive system will be known as the Property Assessment and Management System (PAMS).

The new system will replace the State's current MOD IV batch system and individual vendor municipal applications with a fully integrated online transaction system, which will perform the same tasks, but provide additional functionality, seamless integration, uniform processing, improved performance, and streamlined maintenance functions.

PAMS will achieve the following:

- Internet access to local property tax data for citizens, businesses and governmental agencies, and electronic submission of data to and from taxation systems;
- Accurate and uniform data collection, utilization and reporting of real property assessment information and the billing

LOCAL PROPERTY TAX Deductions Certified

The 2000 State Revenue Sharing Act Distribution for senior and disabled persons, surviving spouses and veterans was delivered to the State Treasurer on September 15, 2000.

As required by the provisions of N.J.S.A. 54A: 10-1 et seq., as amended, the Director of the Division of Taxation certified to the State Treasurer in this report the amount of revenue sharing funds due each municipality on November 1, 2000.

The total amount of property tax deductions for senior and disabled persons and surviving spouses for 2000 was $28,835,474. That amount represents a decrease of 8.9% from 1999.

The total number of property tax deductions for senior and disabled citizens and surviving spouses for 2000 was 112,176. When compared to tax year 1999 the number of deductions decreased 7.4%.

The amount of veterans' deductions for tax year 2000 was $33,275,446. For tax year 1999 the amount of veterans' deductions was $17,043,098. The large increase is due to the fact that for tax year 2000 the veterans' deduction increased from $50 to $100 per deduction. The veterans' deduction will increase in $50 increments in each of the next 3 years until it reaches $250 for tax year 2003.

The total number of veterans' deductions for 2000 was 337,344. When compared to tax year 1999 the number of deductions increased .9%.

The total amount of property tax deductions and veterans' deductions includes the additional 2% each municipality is reimbursed for administrative costs as a result of c.30, P.L. 1997. □

Criminal Enforcement

Criminal Enforcement over the past several months included:

- On June 22, 2000, Ahmed O. Mohammed of Brooklyn, New York, was arrested by the Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) when he was observed loading his vehicle with contraband cigarettes (1,166 cartons) from a storage unit in Fairview, New Jersey. As a result of the investigation, we determined that Mr. Mohammed was involved in an ongoing multi-state cigarette smuggling enterprise. The evidence shows that the contraband cigarettes were purchased in the State of Virginia. Thus, the case was referred to the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Virginia for Federal prosecution. On August 1, 2000, Ahmed O. Mohammed was indicted by the Federal Grand Jury sitting in Richmond, Virginia. This case is part of OCI's involvement in a multi-state task force involving the U.S. Attorney General's Office to prosecute the multi-state traffickers. OCI received substantial assistance in this case from the New York City Department of Finance, Office of Tax Enforcement.
- On July 10, 2000, Anthony J. Billings, a real estate appraiser based in New Brunswick, New Jersey, was sentenced to five (5) years probation. The sentence was a result of his guilty plea for tampering with time sheets he submitted to North Brunswick Township and failing to file New Jersey gross income tax returns for the years 1995, 1997, and 1998. Mr. Billings was ordered to make full restitution in the amount of $12,439.22 to the State of New Jersey. This investigation was a joint effort with the Middlesex County Prosecutor's Office and the Office of Criminal Investigation.

- On July 18, 2000, in Old Bridge Township Municipal Court, KRSM, Inc., trading as Madison Exxon, a gasoline retailer/convenience store/auto repair facility, pled guilty to recklessly or negligently filing false tax returns for the period January 1, 1997 through December 31, 1999. The false returns resulted in the underreporting and underpayment of $16,141.52 in sales and use tax.
- On July 21, 2000, in Hudson County Superior Court, George J. Halpern, of Short Hills, New Jersey, was sentenced on a guilty plea he had entered on May 1, 2000, to one count of failing to file a 1997 New Jersey personal income tax return in connection with his business as a tax preparer. Mr. Halpern was sentenced to three (3) years probation, ordered to perform 300 hours of community service, fined $5,000, and is precluded from acting as an accountant or tax preparer, except under the supervision of another person who will be responsible for the accuracy of his work, for three years. Prior to sentencing, Mr. Halpern had made restitution to the State of New Jersey of $26,492. In the same proceedings, Mr. Halpern's son, Todd Halpern, of West Orange, New Jersey, was accepted into a Pre-Trial Intervention Program (PTI) pursuant to a plea of guilty he had entered on May 1, 2000, to a charge of filing a fraudulent 1997 New Jersey personal income tax return (phony W-2s). The term of Todd Halpern's supervision under PTI is one year, during which time he must complete 100 hours of community service, pay $125.00 in court fees, and is precluded from acting as an accountant or tax preparer except under the supervision of another person who will be responsible for the accuracy of his work. Prior to acceptance into PTI, Todd Halpern had made restitution to the State of New Jersey in the amount of $3,392. The Office of Criminal Investigation investigated this case with the substantial assistance of the Division of Taxation's Audit Activity and Investigations Branch, and the case was prosecuted by the Attorney General's Office.

- On August 11, 2000, Superior Court Judge Irvin J. Snyder sentenced Dok Yu Ryu, of Browns Mills, New Jersey, to four (4) years imprisonment for attempting to bribe a State Division of Taxation Special Agent. Mr. Ryu, owner of Tri-State Wholesale Distributors, Inc., (a New Jersey cigarette distributor) pled guilty to bribery in State Superior Court in March. He was also fined $10,000 personally, and his company was fined $75,000.
- On August 28, 2000, in Trenton, New Jersey, a State Grand Jury indicted Truyen T. Vo on separate counts of filing fraudulent New Jersey State income tax returns and failure to pay tax for the years 1995 to 1998. It is alleged that Mr. Vo failed to report $281,409 in illegal gambling income resulting in the failure to pay $26,099 in personal income tax, penalty and interest. Mr. Vo and four associates were also indicted for promoting gambling in a sports betting operation. This case was investigated jointly by the New Jersey State Police, the Division of Criminal Justice, and the Office of Criminal Investigation and was presented to the Grand Jury by the Attorney General's Office.

- On August 29, 2000, a joint investigation was entered into with the Cumberland County Prosecutor's Office based on information that several individuals in Cumberland County may have filed multiple fraudulent New Jersey Homestead Rebate Applications and may have received multiple rebates. As a result of the investigation, three Bridgeton, New Jersey, residents have been charged with Theft by Deception. The investigation is continuing.
- On September 12, 2000, Misa Corp t/a Metro Liquors of East Rutherford, New Jersey, was found to be operating without a current retail cigarette license. Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) personnel visited the location at the request of Newark Field Audit personnel, who indicated that the company had failed to cooperate by supplying requested cigarette invoices. Those documents were obtained from the distributor and turned over to Newark Field Audit for examination. One count of Operating without a Current Retail Cigarette License and one charge of No Invoices have been filed in the Newark Municipal Court.

- On September 20, 2000, members of the Office of Criminal Investigation participated in the execution of a search warrant in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, with agents from the United States Postal Inspection Service. The location was the residence of an individual suspected of filing over 380 fictitious New Jersey Homestead Rebate Applications and the fraudulent receipt of $113,000 in rebates. The suspect used a sophisticated scheme involving banks in Pennsylvania, New York, Virginia and California to launder the proceeds and avoid detection. Evidence relating to homestead rebate fraud in New Jersey was seized at the residence together with $4,900 in cash and $17,000 in United States Savings Bonds. The resident was arrested on Federal charges of Mail Fraud, Forgery, Identity Fraud and Fraudulent Use of a Financial Access Device.
- The Office of Criminal Investigation assisted the Office Audit Motor Fuels Group in the prevention of the retail sale of gasoline at less than cost by three (3) New Jersey shore area gas stations.
- One hundred (100) complaints alleging tax evasion were evaluated from July to September 2000 in the Office of Criminal

criminal enforcement - from pg. 9

Investigation.

- From July to September 2000, fifty-four (54) charges were filed in court on seventeen (17) cases for violating the Cigarette Tax Act including possession of 1,452.4 cartons of contraband cigarettes, valued at $50,834.00 and resulting in seventeen (17) arrests. □

Sales and Use Tax

Farming Use Exemption — Legislation expanding the scope of the farming use exemption from sales and use tax was signed into law as P.L. 1999, c. 314, on January 6, 2000. The exemption applies to sales made on or after January 1, 2000. The legislation amends the farming use exemption by substantially expanding the scope of the exemption and reducing the scope of certain exclusions from the exemption.

The exemption provided by N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.16 now applies to purchases of tangible personal property, production services and conservation services. However, it applies only when the property or service is purchased for use or consumption directly and primarily in the production for sale, or handling for sale, or preservation for sale of agricultural or horticultural commodities. In addition, the exemption applies only to purchases by a farmer of property or services used in his own farm, i.e. it does not apply to purchases by contractors or other service providers doing work for the farmer.

Three categories of tangible personal property are not eligible for the farm exemption: purchases of automobiles, energy, or materials used to construct a building or structure. However, the law has carved out an exception to this exclusion. Thus, a farmer's purchases of materials to construct a silo, greenhouse, grain bin or manure handling facility might be eligible for the farming use exemption if the facility will be used directly and primarily in production, handling or preservation for sale of the farmer's agricultural or horticultural commodities.

Farmers making exempt purchases of goods or services under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.16 must present their vendor with a properly completed Farmer's Exemption Certificate (ST-7). The Form ST-7 was amended in February 2000 to reflect the recent changes in the law, and copies of the updated form are now available.

P.L. 1999, c. 314, also amends the container and wrapping supply exemption provided by N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.15. The amendment allows an exemption for the sale of containers used in a farming enterprise. Farmers claiming an exemption under this provision must use an Exempt Use Certificate (ST-4) to support their exemption.

The policies implementing the amended farming use exemption have been codified in the Division's new sales tax regulations at N.J.A.C. 18:24-19.1 et seq.

In Ground Pools — The Division responded to an inquiry concerning the installation of a safety cover for an in ground pool. The installation of the pool itself, with associated plumbing and decking, is a capital improvement to real property. As such, the contractor pays tax on the materials and supplies and the labor is exempt from tax. The property owner is not charged any tax on the improvement and may issue a Certificate of Capital Improvement (Form ST-8).

A safety cover is not permanently affixed to the realty. Rather, it remains tangible personal property that may only be utilized during periods of extended non-use. Therefore, the cover is subject to tax when sold to the property owner. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a). A charge for installing the cover is also subject to tax. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(2).

Manufacturer Rebates — For the purposes of the New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act, sales tax must be charged on the total "receipt" from a retail sale; i.e., the actual amount of the sales price payable to the retailer. See N.J.A.C. 54:32B-2(d). This is so regardless of whether that sales price will be paid entirely by the customer, or by moneys paid by the customer's friends and family, or by a combination of the customer and the manufacturer.

If the retailer chooses to sell an item at a discounted price, the customer should be charged tax on the discounted price payable to the retailer, not on the original price before reductions. The reduced price is the "receipt" on which the 6% sales tax is calculated.

When a customer pays full price, but is reimbursed by the manufacturer for part of that price in the form of a manufacturer's rebate, the tax is due on the full price originally payable to the retailer. This is because the retailer is receiving the full price and sales tax sence of some physical injury, disability or pain involving the hand and may therefore qualify for exemption. A specific determination letter is required in such a case.

Moist heat packs are not generally useful in the absence of some injury or illness, and they are customarily and primarily used to serve a medical purpose. Therefore, moist heat packs can qualify for exemption under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.1. The exemption does not apply if the heat packs are sold to a medical services provider (e.g., doctor, physical therapist, nursing home, hospital) which uses it in providing services for compensation and does not transfer it to the patient for home use. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.1 (last paragraph). However, if it is sold to the patient for home use, the exemption applies even if an insurer, rather than the patient, is actually paying for the item.

Recalibration Services — The Division replied to an inquiry regarding the taxability of “recalibration” services. The inquirer sells precision weights, balances and laboratory apparatus to vendors of this equipment and also provides recalibration services to the end users of this equipment. It performs the service at its New Jersey location and then ships worldwide. It charges a fee for this service.

The recalibration service is deemed to be a service of maintaining or servicing tangible personal property, which is taxable pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(2). The service is subject to New Jersey sales or use tax under the provision even if the equipment itself was exempt at the time of purchase pursuant to the manufacturing of research and development exemptions, N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.13a or N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.14, respectively. However, the New Jersey tax applies only if the recalibrated items are then shipped to a New Jersey address, or picked up in New Jersey. The service will not be subject to New Jersey tax if the recalibrated items are shipped to customers outside of the state. □

Adequate Notice – Leonard Santos v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided January 21, 2000; Tax Court No. 002138-1999.

By letter dated January 10, 1995, the Division notified plaintiff’s corporation that it intended to conduct an audit of plaintiff’s business. The letter was addressed to the business at their P.O. Box in Trenton. After plaintiff alleged that there was a complete loss of its accounting records, the Division mailed an arbitrary assessment to the corporation at its North Broad Street, Trenton site address on December 5, 1995. The postal service could not deliver the letter and returned it to the Division. On December 8, 1995, the arbitrary assessment was mailed to the Trenton P.O. Box. This letter was also returned to the Division by the postal service with a “Box Closed” notation on the envelope.

On July 15, 1996, the Division sent a notice and demand for payment of tax to the corporation at the Trenton P.O. Box address. Plaintiff’s wife signed the mailing receipt. This notice advised the corporation that it had 90 days to appeal the Division’s determination of tax liability. The corporation neither protested the notice with the Division nor did it file a complaint with the Tax Court.

On July 15, 1996, the Division also sent a notice to plaintiff stating that he was personally liable for unpaid corporate taxes. This notice was sent to plaintiff’s address at Monmouth Junction, New Jersey, but was returned by the postal service with a notation “Attempted, Not Known.” Thereafter, the Division secured a Pennsylvania address for plaintiff through a credit-reporting agency. On October 3, 1996, the Division sent a notice to the PA address concerning plaintiff’s personal liability for corporate taxes and stated that he had a right to an administrative hearing provided he complied with N.J.A.C. 18:1-1.8 by filing a proper protest. This mailing was signed as received by plaintiff’s wife. On November 5, 1996, plaintiff’s accountant filed a nonconforming N.J.A.C. 18:1-1.8 protest. The Division’s Conference & Appeals Branch denied the protest as untimely and advised that an appeal to the New Jersey Tax Court must be made within a 90 day period. Plaintiff neither inquired as to why the protest was untimely nor did it file a complaint with the Tax Court.

On December 17, 1996, the Division’s Judgment Section advised plaintiff that his protest was received and that the corporate tax liability was fixed because there was no timely challenge to the corporate determination. Plaintiff was simultaneously advised that the issue of his personal liability for taxes could be challenged if he filed a proper protest. Furthermore, plaintiff was notified that a Certificate of Debt would be filed against the plaintiff if the information were not supplied by January 10, 1997. Neither the plaintiff nor plaintiff's representative responded to the Division's December 17, 1996, letter. On January 17, 1997, the Division sent a notice to plaintiff advising him that on January 16, 1997, the Division entered a Certificate of Debt against him as a responsible person of his corporation.

There was no communication from plaintiff or his representatives until March 25, 1999, when plaintiff filed a motion in Superior Court seeking an order to vacate the judgment. The Superior Court judge denied the motion because the Tax Court had jurisdiction and allowed plaintiff 30 days to file the application with the Tax Court. Plaintiff then filed a motion similar to the one filed in Superior Court.

The Court granted the Division's motion to dismiss the complaint for untimely filing. The Court ruled that plaintiff had adequate notice of the nature and extent of the tax liability imposed both on the corporation and him personally because (1) plaintiff's wife had signed for notices of both the corporate assessment and the responsible person assessment, (2) the certification of plaintiff's accountant indicated that plaintiff was aware of the notices at least by November 1996, (3) although plaintiff requested a hearing in November 1996, plaintiff did not file a conforming protest in accordance with N.J.A.C. 18:1-1.8 or respond to or comply with Division communications thereafter, and (4) plaintiff did nothing more until over two years later when it filed a motion in Superior Court. The Court also ruled that the Division's notices provided plaintiff with an opportunity to be heard but plaintiff did not avail himself of that opportunity in a statutorily timely manner.

Division's Duty to Provide Notice of Changes to Tax Statutes – Schirmer-National Co. v. Director, Division of Taxation, 17 N.J. Tax 495 (Tax Court 1998); Motion for Reconsideration, denied January 4, 1999; No. M00348-96, aff'd, Appellate Division, No. A-3877-98T2 (March 31, 2000).

The Tax Court followed its decision in Aetna Burglar & Fire Alarm Co. v. Director, Div. of Taxation, 16 N.J. Tax 584 (Tax Court 1997) that alarm monitoring services carried through telephone telecommunications are subject to sales tax pursuant to P.L. 1990 c.40.

Plaintiff also argued that the provisions of P.L. 1990 c.40 were so broad in taxing telecommunications that the sale of burglar alarm monitoring services should not be subject to tax until the time the Division provided proper notice of the tax law change. The Tax Court ruled that taxpayers are "put on notice of legislative enactments on the date the legislation becomes effective." Consequently, the Division of Taxation was not obligated to provide taxpayers with notice of changes in the tax law. The Appellate Division affirmed.

Bankruptcy Discharge – Lloyd M. Cohen v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided June 13, 2000; Tax Court No. 008458-96.

Plaintiff confessed to embezzling approximately two million dollars from his clients/creditors. The Chancery Division of the Superior Court appointed a custodial receiver to marshal assets and collect embezzled monies to satisfy the claims of the victims. In the process, the receiver entered into a closing agreement with the Internal Revenue Service and the Division where New Jersey Gross Income Tax returns (NJ-1040s) were filed for the periods 1986 through 1994 and taxpayer, not the receiver, would be responsible for payment of any tax, penalty, and interest. Pursuant to a court order, plaintiff and other interested parties were notified of the proceeding that approved of the terms and conditions of the closing agreement including the understanding that plaintiff was the sole and primary person responsible for payments of tax, penalty, and interest.

On July 24, 1996, the Division issued an assessment against plaintiff for the above mentioned tax liability. Plaintiff filed a timely complaint in Tax Court challenging the Division's assessment primarily on the grounds that the assessment was not valid against him personally because the NJ-1040s were filed by his custodial receiver. Plaintiff also filed for Chapter 7 with the United States Bankruptcy Court and the petition included the tax liabilities pertaining to the July 24, 1996, assessment. On or about February 14, 2000, the Bankruptcy Court granted plaintiff a Chapter 7 discharge.

On January 6, 2000, the Division filed a motion for summary judgment to dismiss plaintiff's complaint. After numerous adjournments to allow plaintiff time to respond, plaintiff's only submission was a copy of the order granting his Chapter 7 discharge.

The Court validated the Division's July 24, 1996, assessment by granting summary judgment in favor of the Division because plaintiff failed to present facts in opposition to the Division's motion. Failure to do so deemed the facts, as set forth by the Division, undisputed. The Court ruled that the receipt of a bankruptcy discharge does not invalidate Tax Court proceedings and that the issue of the discharge should be litigated in Bankruptcy Court because of its significant expertise.

Statute of Limitations and Record Retention – Alpha I, Inc., v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided June 13, 2000; Tax Court No. 00373-1999.

Plaintiff did not provide the Division with purchase records to support the expenses pertaining to the first quarter of 1994. Therefore, the Division determined the use tax liability for the first quarter of 1994 by extrapolating the results of their examination of records pertaining to subsequent periods two to three years thereafter.

Plaintiff claims that the use tax assessment should be set aside because there was no requirement to retain purchase records for longer than three years pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:32B-16. However, under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-27(b), the Director is permitted to issue assessments of sales and use tax for up to four years from the date of the filing date of the return.

In upholding the Division's assessment as timely in conformity with the statute of limitations on assessments, the Court rationalized that to quash the assessment "would in effect reward taxpayer for destroying records that are still subject to an audit and additional assessment." The Court ruled that the three-year retention period set a minimum time period to retain records and that "[a]lthough the taxpayer was not required to keep records beyond this three-year period, destruction of the records would put the taxpayer in jeopardy because additional assessments may be levied until the expiration of the four-year statute of limitations." Therefore, the Court opined that taxpayer placed itself in peril by disposing of their records prior to the expiration of the statute of limitations period.

Corporation Business Tax Income Includable in the Numerator of Receipts Fraction – Stryker Corporation, v. Director, Division of Taxation, 18 N.J. Tax 270 (Tax Court 1999); aff'd, Appellate Division, No. A-736-99T5 (July 21, 2000).

At issue is whether the Division properly included in the numerator of Stryker's receipts fraction all receipts generated by drop-shipment transactions that occurred in New Jersey but which were destined for out-of-State customers.

Osteonics Corporation, a New Jersey corporation, is the wholly owned subsidiary of plaintiff Stryker Corporation, a Michigan corporation. Although Stryker and Osteonics are located in the same building in Allendale, New Jersey, Stryker paid all the real estate related costs.

Stryker manufactured hip and knee replacements. Stryker sold its products to its customers through its corporation Osteonics, whose sole function was to receive and process orders for Stryker's products. Osteonics' computers transmitted customers' orders to Stryker's computers. Then, Stryker packed and shipped the products to Osteonics' customers throughout the United States, via common carrier F.O.B. Allendale, without any intervention by Osteonics. Thereafter, Osteonics would bill its customers.

Upon the receipt of customers' payments, Osteonics would retain a portion of the receipts and remit the balance to Stryker. Although Stryker did not invoice Osteonics for each order, company representatives reviewed Osteonics' sales receipts in order to determine price and profit allocations. Essentially, Osteonics retained an approximate twenty-percent gross margin and the payments from Osteonics to Stryker include a profit to Stryker.

In calculating the numerator of the receipts fraction, Stryker allocated sales to Osteonics by the shipment's destination state. Accordingly, for tax purposes, Stryker included sales of only New Jersey customer destination shipments in the numerator of the receipts fraction. Pursuant to an audit, the Division determined that all sales to Osteonics should be included in the numerator of the receipts fraction regardless of the ultimate destination state of the customer.

The Tax Court held that plaintiff's sales receipts from its direct shipments to Osteonics' out-of-State customers are includable in the numerator under N.J.S.A. 54:10A-6(B)(6). The Tax Court found that this statute required inclusion in the numerator of all receipts earned by the taxpayer in New Jersey including the intrastate transactions between plaintiff and Osteonics. The Tax Court also noted that the sales at issue were not includable under N.J.S.A. 54:10A-6(B)(1) because there were no physical shipments to Osteonics.

On appeal, the Tax Court was upheld. The Appellate Division found throughout all Stryker's arguments there existed a constant, single theme that for tax purposes the two transactions, the sale of the product to Osteonics and the sale by Osteonics to its customers, should be treated as one transaction. However, the Appellate Division disagreed, opining that these sales were includable in the receipts numerator under N.J.S.A. 54:10A-6(B)(6) because Stryker realized income from sales of manufactured products located in New Jersey to New Jersey based Osteonics.

Gross Income Tax
Period to File Refund Claim –
Clifford D. Wenrick v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided May 12, 2000; Tax Court No. 003571-99.

Plaintiff filed his 1994 New Jersey Gross Income Tax return (NJ-1040) on May 28, 1998, claiming a $699 refund due to excess employer income tax withholding. Although plaintiff alleges that he filed for and was granted an extension for the 1994 Federal tax return, an extension was not requested in New Jersey.

The Court found that N.J.S.A. 54A:9-8(a) was the operative statute relating to limitations on refund claims concerning New Jersey Gross Income Tax. This statute states that the amount of the refund "shall not exceed the portion of tax paid within the three years immediately preceding the filing of the claim plus the period of any extension of time for filing the return."

The Court ruled that obtaining a Federal extension in and of itself does not automatically trigger a New Jersey extension. N.J.A.C. 18:35-6.1(a) permits a four-month extension to file the NJ-1040 where by the original due date of the NJ-1040 the taxpayer at the time of application for Extension To File (1) paid 80% of the tax liability computed on the NJ-1040 when filed and (2) attached a copy of the application for automatic Federal extension. As plaintiff never filed a request for extension with New Jersey, the Court ruled that plaintiff was not entitled to the four-month extension.

Due to the May 28, 1998, filing of the NJ-1040, the Court ruled that plaintiff was entitled to a refund of 1994 taxes to the extent they were overpaid three years preceding the date the return was filed, between May 28, 1998, and May 25, 1995. As the employer-withheld taxes were deemed paid on April 15, 1995, per N.J.S.A. 54A:9-8(h), the original 1994 NJ-1040 due date, the taxes at issue are more than three years after the date of payment. Therefore, the Court denied plaintiff's refund request.

Partner's Distributive Share – Ronald J. Gumbaz v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided March 30, 2000; Tax Court No. 3494-97.

Since 1981, plaintiff retained a 25% partnership interest in MTSG. Plaintiff's capital contributions to the MTSG partnership had a balance of $20,883 as of 1993. However, plaintiff's balance in his MTSG capital account was negative $28,403 as of December 31, 1993 due to partnership losses over the years.

In 1993, MTSG's amount of net income earned from its only investment in One Arkansas Associates was $60,528 and it received $868 in cash. MTSG reported plaintiff's distributive share of partnership income as $15,132 and distributed $217 to plaintiff. Plaintiff's Federal tax return also reported a $47,010 loss from an S corporation. Plaintiff did not own interests in any other partnership in 1993.

Plaintiff's 1993 NJ-1040 reported zero income for plaintiff's distributive share of partnership income. The Division adjusted plaintiff's 1993 NJ-1040 return Line 20, Distributive Share of Partnership Income, from $0 to $15,132. Plaintiff claims that this income is not taxable because either (1) the income should be considered as a return of capital, (2) that the partnership income should be netted against the Subchapter S corporation loss or (3) that only the distribution received by him should be subject to tax. As discussed below, the Court rejected plaintiff's theories and held that plaintiff's $15,132 distributive income share of partnership income is taxable under N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1k.

Distribution: N.J.S.A. 54A:5-4 states that a partner's distributive share of partnership income or gain received by the partnership shall be subject to tax whether or not distributed. Plaintiff claims that the partnership actually received $868 and therefore that, not the $15,132, should be the basis for his New Jersey income tax as he is a cash basis taxpayer. The Court responded that the $60,528 of net income MTSG earned from One Arkansas Associates indicates the amount of income that MTSG has the power to demand distribution of from One Arkansas Associates. The fact that MTSG chose not to withdraw the full amount does not mean it was not earned or available to the partnership. Furthermore, the Court stated that "received" does not mean that the income must be physically or actually put in your hand. Therefore, the Court ruled that regardless of MTSG's actual withdrawals, MTSG received $60,528 of income from One Arkansas Associates of which $15,132 is plaintiff's 25% taxable portion regardless of whether the partnership actually received the money.

Return of Capital: Plaintiff claims that he is being taxed on the return of capital because he has a negative MTSG capital account balance and he has not yet realized his investment in the partnership. The Court ruled that plaintiff's distributive share of partnership income could not be considered a return of capital because in order for the income to be characterized as a return of capital the partnership interest must be sold.

Netting of Income and Losses: Plaintiff contends that he should be permitted to offset the 1993 partnership income against prior year partnership losses because he received no New Jersey tax benefit for partnership losses prior to 1993. The Court ruled that the Gross Income Tax Act does not specifically provide for a loss carryforward and therefore a taxpayer forfeits the loss if it cannot be offset by income in the same tax year.

Alternatively, plaintiff claims that he should be able to offset his 1993 $15,132 partnership gain against the 1993 $47,010 loss of the S corporation. The Court found that N.J.S.A. 54A:5-2 prohibits an inter-category offset by not permitting a taxpayer to apply losses within one category of gross income against gross income of another category. In 1993, New Jersey did not recognize S corporations and therefore there was no category of gross income to offset. In 1994, N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1p was added to tax the net pro rata share of S corporation income; however, the Court found that these are two separate categories of gross income and an inter-category offset is prohibited.

Sales and Use Tax Admission Charges Imposed by Government Entities – Meadowlands Basketball Associates, v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided July 24, 2000; Tax Court No. 000665-98.

Plaintiff is the owner of the Nets of the National Basketball Association. Pursuant to a license agreement, the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority (NJSEA) leased the Continental Airlines Arena to plaintiff for the Nets to play their home basketball games. The license agreement included the requirement that plaintiff charge, collect, and transfer to the NJSEA a 10% “admission impost” on the price of admission of each ticket sold to home games. The impost fee was included and separately stated on the face of each ticket.

Plaintiff did not charge or collect sales tax on the impost charge; however, it did collect and remit sales tax on the price of admission. Pursuant to an audit, the Division assessed plaintiff sales tax due on the 10% admission impost fee.

Plaintiff argued that the impost fee is exempt under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-9(a)(1), which exempts from sales tax the purchase and sale of certain goods and services by specified governmental agencies. It was clear that NJSEA was a specified governmental agency as it was created pursuant to the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority Law, P.L. 1971 c.137, N.J.S.A. 5:10-1 to -38. However, the Court ruled this particular exemption only applies to situations where NJSEA is the vendor, purchaser, user or consumer, not where it imposes an admission charge.

The Court found that N.J.S.A. 54:32B-9(a) does not apply to admission charges imposed by government entities to athletic events because it is addressed in N.J.S.A. 54:32B-9(f). Paragraph (f) states that admission charges collected by State agencies are exempt from sales and use tax except in the case of collection of admission charges to athletic games. In the case of athletic games, the statute states that admission charges are exempt only if they inure exclusively to the benefit of elementary or secondary schools. As NJSEA used the impost charge to fund its statutory mandate of constructing and operating professional sports facilities in New Jersey, the admission charges were held to be subject to sales tax.

Finally, the Court reviewed a New York Tax Appeal Tribunal decision concerning nearly identical facts that granted an exemption in this situation after finding that admission charges are a service. The Court found three reasons as to why the New York decision was not persuasive. (1) Decisions of New York courts are not binding on New Jersey courts or controlling in interpreting New Jersey statutes. (2) The New York determination was decided by an administrative tribunal, not a court, and was not subject to judicial review. In New York, the taxing authority cannot seek review of an adverse administrative tribunal decision. (3) A comparison of the New York and New Jersey statutes concerning admission charges reveals a significant difference in that New York does not include political subdivisions or state agencies in the admission charge discussion. On the other hand,

N.J.S.A. 54:32B-9(f) is dispositive of the issue of taxability. □

In Our Legislature Petroleum Products Gross Receipts Tax

Phase-Out — P.L. 2000, c.156 (signed into law on November 16, 2000) phases out, over a three-year period, the Petroleum Products Gross Receipts Tax for fuel used to generate certain electricity. The legislation eliminates the application of this tax to the sale of fuel used by a utility, co-generation facility or wholesale generation facility to generate electricity sold at wholesale or through certain retail sales channels. This law took effect January 1, 2001.

Unclaimed Property

Energy Assistance Funding — P.L. 2000, c.132 (signed into law on September 21, 2000) provides funding to an existing statewide non-profit energy assistance organization that helps needy families pay their energy bills with temporary financial assistance. The supplemental funding would be derived from the unclaimed property held by the State’s electric and gas utilities that is transferred to the State under the “Uniform Unclaimed Property Act (1981).” The law also creates the Unclaimed Utility Deposits Trust Fund to hold unclaimed utility deposits. This legislation took effect immediately. □

NJ Earned Income Tax Credit Program

Legislation approved by Governor Whitman August 14, 2000 (P.L. 2000, c.80) created the New Jersey Earned Income Tax Credit Program (NJEITC).

Under this new program, New Jersey households that receive a Federal earned income credit which is based on having at least one "qualifying child," and whose New Jersey gross income is $20,000 or less, and whose filing status for New Jersey purposes is either married, filing joint return or head of household or qualifying widow(er), are eligible for a refundable New Jersey tax credit.

Benefits under the New Jersey Earned Income Tax Credit Program are being phased in over a four-year period. The amount of the New Jersey credit for tax year 2000 will be equal to 10% of the applicant's Federal earned income credit. The NJEITC amount will increase to 15% of the Federal earned income credit for tax year 2001, 17.5% for tax year 2002 and will total 20% of the Federal credit for tax year 2003 and thereafter.

To apply for the NJEITC, eligible residents must file a New Jersey resident income tax return and complete the New Jersey Earned Income Tax Credit Schedule portion of the tax return form. Those who wish to receive the credit must file a tax return even if they do not owe any tax to New Jersey and are not required to file a return because their income is below the minimum filing threshold. The New Jersey earned income tax credit reduces the amount of New Jersey tax owed, if any, or may give the taxpayer a refund. The Division plans to introduce Form NJ-1040EZ for tax year 2000 to simplify the filing process for those whose income is below the filing threshold. See the winter issue for more details.

For tax year 2000, taxpayers are not required to file a New Jersey return if their income for the entire year is $10,000 or less (filing status single), $15,000 or less (filing status married, filing joint

Sales and Use Tax Initiatives

Tax policy and procedures for collecting and remitting sales and use tax have been the focus of intense activity both in New Jersey and nationally.

Sales and Use Tax Review Commission. Effective March 1, 2000, the New Jersey Legislature created a Sales and Use Tax Review Commission to evaluate and report on proposed legislation that would either expand or contract the base of the New Jersey Sales and Use Tax law. Thus, for example, if legislation is proposed that would create a new exemption from sales tax, the Commission would be required to review it and report its conclusions to the Legislature.

The Commission consists of 10 members — the State Treasurer, three persons from the Executive Branch appointed by the Governor, two persons appointed by the President of the Senate, two persons appointed by the Speaker of the General Assembly and two persons appointed from the general public by the Governor. John Baldwin, former Director of the New Jersey Division of Taxation, has been appointed by Governor Christine Whitman to be the Chairman of the Commission. Division of Taxation personnel will assist the Commission in the performance of its duties.

The Commission's duties involve obtaining a fiscal impact determination and providing a brief policy analysis concerning proposed legislation that would affect the base to which the New Jersey Sales and Use Tax law would apply. Within 90 days after the introduction of such legislation, the Commission is required to provide its recommendation to the New Jersey Legislature on the proposed legislation.

Members of the Sales and Use Tax Review Commission as of June 1, 2000 are: John R. Baldwin, Chairman; Deborah R. Bierbaum, AT&T; Jessica Furey, Department of Law & Public Safety; John T. Hanson, New Jersey Commerce Commission; Bernard B. Kornmehl, Assistant State Treasurer, Tax Policy; and Robert K. Thompson, Director, Division of Taxation.

All inquiries should be directed to Nicholas K. Catalano, Executive Secretary for the Commission at:

century. The State of New Jersey supports the goals of the Project and is involved as a Participating state. Representatives from the New Jersey Division of Taxation attend monthly meetings and participate in the Work Group discussions.

The goal of the project is to reduce the burdens and costs that are currently imposed on local and remote sellers of property and services under the current systems for collecting, reporting and remitting taxes. The new system will increase uniformity, retain state flexibility, and maintain the highest level of security and privacy. It will ease consumer concerns regarding tax collection in online commerce transactions and streamline compliance for e-commerce companies as well as bricks and mortar businesses.

The Project plans to have a pilot launched in the fall of 2000. The pilot is intended to test the capabilities and limits of the current tax collection software, and will include several participating states, many software vendors and numerous retailers. It is anticipated that the information gathered in the pilot will assist the Work Groups in designing the new system. Additional information on the Project can be found at:

Sales Tax Holidays in Other States

If you buy an item outside New Jersey that would not be tax-exempt in New Jersey, and you do not have to pay sales or use tax to the state where you bought it, you are still required to pay New Jersey “use tax” when you bring that item into New Jersey for use in this State. New Jersey’s use tax rate is 6%, just like the sales tax rate.

For example, if you purchased a computer during Pennsylvania’s “Tax-Free PC” week, and brought it into New Jersey to use here (or had it delivered to New Jersey), you must pay use tax to New Jersey if you did not have to pay sales or use tax to Pennsylvania. On the other hand, if you bought a shirt tax-free during a tax holiday in New York, you do not owe use tax to New Jersey, because the shirt would have been tax-exempt if you had purchased it here.

If you owe New Jersey use tax, send your payment to the State along with a completed Form ST-18, Individual Use Tax Return, within twenty (20) days after the property is brought into New Jersey. You can order use tax return forms from the Division’s Automated Tax Information System (1-800-323-4400 or 609-826-4400) or from the NJ TaxFax Service at 609-826-4500. Form ST-18 can also be downloaded from the Division’s Web site:

CORPORATION TAX Schedule I for Inactive Businesses

In order to minimize the administrative burden placed on inactive corporations, in lieu of completing the entire CBT-100 or CBT-100S tax return for tax year 2000, such corporations need only complete Schedule I and attach it to page 1 of the return. Taxpayers must report the minimum tax liability, the installment payment (if applicable), and the annual report and/or registered agent change fees on page 1 of the Corporation Business Tax Return. Remittance for the entire balance due must be submitted with the return and Form CAR-100, the Corporation Business Tax Payment and Annual Report. Form CAR-100 is required to satisfy the annual report filing requirements.

An inactive corporation is a corporation that, during the entire period covered by the tax return, did not conduct any business, did not have any income, receipts, did not own any assets, and additionally for New Jersey S corporations, did not make any distributions and did not have any change in ownership.

To obtain a copy of Schedule I, call the Division of Taxation’s Forms Request message system from a Touch-tone phone at 1-800-323-4400 (within NJ, NY, PA, DE or MD) or 609-826-4400 (anywhere) or write to Taxpayer Forms Services, PO Box 269, Trenton, NJ 08695-0269. Schedule I is available through NJ TaxFax at 609-826-4500 and can be downloaded from the Division of Taxation Web site at:

In lieu of Schedule I, a statement

GROSS INCOME TAX Invalidation of NYC Tax on NJ Residents

New Jersey residents working in New York City have had to pay the New York City Nonresident Earnings Tax for all of 1999 although New York residents working in New York City have not had to pay that tax since July 1, 1999. On April 4, 2000, the highest court in New York invalidated the New York City Nonresident Earnings Tax back to July 1, 1999, thus equalizing the New York City Nonresident Earnings Tax on New Jersey residents and New York residents. New Jersey residents will be able to claim a refund of the New York City Nonresident Earnings Tax paid after July 1, 1999.

A taxpayer affected by the invalidation of the New York City Nonresident Earnings Tax — and many taxpayers will not be affected — must adjust the credit claimed for taxes paid to other jurisdictions on a New Jersey Amended Income Tax Resident Return (1999 Form NJ-1040X). The change in the amount of the credit is to be shown on Line 38 of the 1999 amended return. The taxpayer must state in the “Explanation of Changes to Income, Deductions and Credits” box on the same page as Line 38 that “This is an amended return reporting refund of New York City Nonresident Earnings Tax.”

To determine if an amended 1999 New Jersey gross income tax return has to be filed, a taxpayer must use the total tax paid to New York less the amount of refund of New York City Nonresident Earnings Tax he expects to receive. If this amount is less than the amount found on Line 8 of the New Jersey Schedule A, the taxpayer needs to file an amended New Jersey gross income tax return with a corrected credit for taxes paid to other jurisdictions. If this amount is greater than the amount on Line 8 of the New Jersey Schedule A, a taxpayer is not required to file an amended New Jersey gross income tax return. If the taxpayer filed claiming a separate credit for taxes paid to New York City, he must file an amended New Jersey gross income tax return including a corrected tax credit for New York City.

Any resulting liability for New Jersey gross income tax must be paid with the filing of the amended 1999 New Jersey gross income tax return (Form NJ-1040X). The New Jersey Division of Taxation will waive both penalty and interest on that liability if the taxpayer files the amended 1999 New Jersey return and pays the gross income tax shown due on that return by December 15, 2000.

Information on the procedures New Jersey residents are to use to obtain a refund of the New York City Nonresident Earnings Tax is published on the Web site of the New York State Department of Taxation and Finance at:

www.tax.state.ny.us □

GROSS INCOME TAX Investment Clubs

The Division has received several telephone inquiries from investment clubs inquiring where to deduct their expenses related to portfolio income on their Partnership Return, Form NJ-1065.

N.J.A.C. 18:35-1.3 defines a partnership as “a syndicate, group, pool, joint venture and any other unincorporated organization through or by means of which any business, financial operation or venture is carried on and which is not a corporation, trust or estate within the meaning of the New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act. Only entities that qualify for and elect to be treated as partnerships for Federal tax purposes (for example, Limited Liability Companies and Limited Liability Partnerships) and are in business shall be treated as partnerships under the Gross Income Tax Act.”

An investment club is generally not considered to be in business if its main source of income is interest, dividends, and gains on disposition of its stock and securities. The activities of an investment club are treated essentially in the same manner as the activities of an individual investor. Individual investors must report their investment income in the respective categories of income on their New Jersey Gross Income Tax returns and are not allowed deductions against their portfolio income, unless specifically allowed.

Accordingly, an investment club is not required to file a New Jersey Partnership Return, Form NJ-1065, unless it constitutes a business. Instead its members are required to report their share of the club's income, per their Federal Schedule K-1, in the appropriate category of income on their New Jersey Gross Income Tax returns.

If an investment club constitutes a business, the club must file Partnership Return, Form NJ-1065, and can deduct its expenses that meet the criteria of an ordinary business cost or expense as outlined in N.J.A.C. 18:35-1.1(d)1. □

INHERITANCE TAX

Executor Commissions

The Governor recently signed legislation (P.L. 2000, c.29) which amended N.J.S.A. 3B:18-14 and affects the manner in which the Division determines the executor's commissions allowable as a deduction for Transfer Inheritance Tax purposes. The New Jersey Administrative Code (N.J.A.C. 18:26-7.10) will be amended to reflect these changes.

The statute as amended now provides that commissions on all corpus received by the fiduciary may be taken as follows:

- 5% on the first $200,000 of all corpus received by the fiduciary;
- 3.5% on the excess over $200,000 up to $1,000,000;
- 2% on the excess over $1,000,000; and
- 1% of all corpus for each additional fiduciary provided that no one fiduciary shall be entitled to any greater commission than that which would be allowed if there were but one fiduciary involved.

The Internal Revenue Service has taken the position that it is not bound by the provisions of N.J.S.A. 3B:18-14 unless a court has approved the allowance of executor commissions. Current practice in New Jersey is to refrain, except in extraordinary circumstances, from incurring the additional costs and delay of submitting an executor's accounting for judicial approval. A court determination as to the allowance of executor's commissions is rare. In order to allow practitioners the ability to administer estates with greater certainty, the statute has been amended to clarify that a fee calculated pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 3B:18-14 is the normally appropriate commission and that a court determination is necessary only if a beneficiary objects to the statutory fee calculation.

The calculated commissions may be reduced by the court having jurisdiction over the estate only upon application by a beneficiary adversely affected upon an affirmative showing that the services rendered were materially deficient or that the actual pains, trouble and risk of the fiduciary in settling the estate were substantially less than generally required for estates of comparable size.

The act was signed by the Governor on June 16, 2000 and took effect immediately. For Transfer Inheritance Tax purposes, it will apply to the estates of decedents passing away on or after its effective date. □

Discovery Contract Expires

The Delinquent Tax Discovery Services contract, which the Division of Taxation entered into in March 1995, officially expired on July 28, 2000. Under the contract, MBIA Muniservices (formerly Municipal Tax Bureau (MTB) and the Law Offices of Nicholas Panarella) was authorized to "discover" businesses and individuals delinquent in filing returns for Corporation Business, Sales and Use and/or Gross Income Tax, and to collect the associated tax due.

The 5-year contract resulted in the "discovery" of 5,600 delinquent taxpayers and the collection of more than $20 million in delinquent taxes, interest and penalties. Collections were predominantly for the individual gross income tax (62%) followed by the corporation business tax (26%) and the remainder (12%) for sales and use and employer gross income tax. □

Hazardous Waste Pickup Service

During the course of an audit of a taxpayer's records it was noted that there was a general misunderstanding regarding the taxability of hazardous waste pickup service.

N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(4) of the Sales and Use Tax Act imposes sales tax on the receipts from the services of maintaining, repairing or servicing real property. Garbage and trash removal services fall within the meaning of this section of the law. However, the law does provide an exemption from tax for receipts related to garbage and trash removal whenever these services are performed on a "regular contractual basis for a term of not less than 30 days."

Under N.J.A.C. 18:24-13.2, trash includes garbage or rubbish. "Removal" includes only the operation of picking up and physically removing contained

waste from the premises and does not include activities related to maintaining or servicing property or any processing of the waste. Examples of trash removal services include a private company picking up garbage at a house or picking up industrial sawdust at a plant. N.J.A.C. 18:24-13.2 does not distinguish between hazardous and nonhazardous contained waste.

Accordingly, the service of picking up and removing hazardous or nonhazardous waste, (i.e. chemical drums, contaminated dirt, fluorescent bulbs, sludge, etc.) is subject to tax unless the service is performed for the same customer on a regular contractual basis for a term of not less than 30 days. This service must be performed at least once a month for consecutive months in order for the exemption to apply.

For sales tax purposes, a distinction is made between trash removal services as described above, and services performed on real property which constitute a capital improvement to the property; for example, removing asbestos from a building or excavating contaminated soil or removing an underground tank. □

Weigh Stations

When you see truckers pulling into a weigh station, an area utilized by the State Police to check the weight and safety conditions of trucks on our major highways, did you know that New Jersey Division of Taxation personnel are hard at work too?

Investigators from the Investigations Special Projects Unit have been working with the State Police for several years at these stations to identify unregistered, out-of-State vendors with New Jersey “nexus.” Nexus occurs when business activities create tax consequences. Investigators interview the operators of these vehicles and review invoices to determine if nexus exists.

In many cases Taxation personnel determine that a Jeopardy Assessment is appropriate. This determination can be made when the taxpayer may quickly depart the State and make collection of the tax doubtful. Investigators issue Warrants of Execution – Jeopardy Assessment and make demand for immediate payment. Failure to make payment can result in the seizure of the vehicle and its contents. Payment of these assessments is often done by bank-to-bank wire transfers.

To date Taxation has collected approximately $11 million from the weigh station and other Nexus Compliance projects. □

eral Treasury Department that administers the Federal Offset Program, recently conducted a seminar in Washington, D.C. for all states that intend to or are already participating in this program. Almost every state sent representatives to the seminar — New Jersey sent five — representing enforcement and collection areas and internal system units within the Division of Taxation.

The Federal Offset Program allows states that have taxpayers who owe personal income tax to send information to the Federal government and receive any Federal income tax refund to apply against the state debt. This program has been very successful in a small, controlled pilot project conducted during the spring of 2000 by New Jersey. This State collected over $1,162,000 on 10,000 submitted accounts. New Jersey expects to expand this program next year to submit all outstanding gross income tax debts to the program. Federal refunds offset for the seven states participating in the pilot program amount to over $21,000,000. □

Taxpayer Accounting Branch

In its most simple terms, the Mission Statement of the Taxpayer Accounting Branch is to review bills and refunds and answer taxpayer correspondence, so that taxpayers can pay what they owe, receive what is due to them, and correct any errors in their accounts.

Most bills and refunds issued by the Division of Taxation are automatically computer-generated. Some may be flagged for review, based on certain predetermined criteria, which are in place to prevent erroneous bills and refunds from being sent to taxpayers. These flagged bills and refunds are reviewed and corrected by the Taxpayer Accounting Branch.

When taxpayers dispute a bill or discover a discrepancy with the amount of refund received, their correspondence should be sent to the Taxpayer Accounting Branch. All letters received from taxpayers in response to any notices are reviewed. When the information necessary to correct an account is received, Taxpayer Accounting staff will adjust the account and notify the taxpayer that the problem has been resolved.

When a taxpayer responds to a notice or corresponds with the Division for any other reason, it is very important to provide as much information as possible both as to the identity of the taxpayer and the nature of the problem. In order for the Taxpayer Accounting Branch to respond to a taxpayer, all correspondence should include:

1. Full name and identification number of the taxpayer as it appears on the Division notice;
2. Tax type and period in question;
3. Nature of the problem;
4. Taxpayer's phone number; and
5. Taxpayer's current address.

When a taxpayer or his representative responds to a notice, the correspondence should be sent to the Post Office Box shown on the notice. This insures that it gets to the office that initiated the notice and is best suited to resolve the problem.

In Fiscal Year 2000, Taxpayer Accounting personnel:

- Responded to nearly 120,000 pieces of correspondence;
- Reviewed more than 68,000 bills and almost 47,000 refunds;
- Collected more than $4 million; and
- Made almost 290,000 adjustments or corrections to accounts.

Additionally, Taxpayer Accounting is, and will continue to be, very heavily involved in the Property Tax Reimbursement, NJ SAVER Rebate, and Homestead Rebate programs, and staffs Tax Practitioner Hotlines for tax practitioners who are unable to resolve client problems through normal channels. □

LOCAL PROPERTY TAX Excluded Sales & Equalized Values

The following is a review and clarification of the Division's practices concerning the exclusion of certain sales from the Table of Equalized Valuations based upon the nonusable 06 category. The nonusable category 06 refers specifically to transactions that convey only a portion of the assessed unit. This conveyance is usually referred to as an apportionment, split-off, cut-off, or subdivision; for example, a parcel sold out of a larger tract where the assessment is for the larger tract. In order to support a nonusable claim of this nature the Division of Taxation's Assessors Handbook (Exhibit X-9F) states that an assessor must show in Section Two on the SR-1A the following:

1. Date of the split-off (approved subdivision);
2. Number of the new lots created by the split-off;
3. Size of the new lot conveyed from the deed;
4. Source of the information.

Frequently, however, the proper information regarding these sales is not set forth in Section Two of the SR-1A. Often an assessor will insert the block and lot numbers which will be given in the future to that portion of the original property being conveyed. The assessor should always insert the current block and lot numbers which appear in the present tax list; that is, the block and lot number should be that of the whole original parcel assessed. Additionally, the assessor should use the original assessment for the entire parcel assessed and not substitute the new assessment which will be given to the particular property that is conveyed.

At times questions arise concerning sales which were reclassified or have not been given a nonusable 06 status by the Division. One example where a nonusable 06 designation is sometimes misapplied is in the classification of roadway acquisitions by State, County or Municipal agencies. When land is dedicated for road expansion, sidewalks, and other roadway purposes, the portion of the original lot that is split off should be classified as a nonusable 15, sales to a governmental entity.

Another way that the nonusable 06 category is erroneously applied concerns the transfer of property that was previously split off for roadway improvements. If the sale of minor portions of a property for roadway or easement purposes does not significantly affect the assessed value of the remaining parcel, then a subsequent sale of that parcel cannot be excluded under the nonusable 06 designation. For example, a town is increasing the width of a street by ten feet and the average depth of a lot is 200 feet. The assessor deducts five (5) feet of depth from the properties on both sides of the street to reflect that modification. After a review of the market data, the assessor determines that no changes to the current assessed value are justified. Because the changes to the property did not significantly affect its value, a sale after this split-off would not qualify for the nonusable 06 designation. If an assessor claims this exclusion on the basis of a split-off, evidence of a substantial change in the assessed value needs to be documented.

Specific concerns arising from this policy statement on the nonusable 06 category that require further clarification should be directed to the Local Property Section within Property Administration at 609-984-3466. □

LOCAL PROPERTY TAX Co-op/Continuing Care Properties

As the result of cooperation of 215 co-operative housing corporations and continuing care facilities throughout New Jersey, the Property Administration Branch of the Division of Taxation was able to effectuate a complete update of all existing co-op/continuing care files for the NJ SAVER Rebate Program.

Some 7,400 changes were made to the co-op/continuing care database, which entails 32,000 housing units. These updates enable eligible property owners to file their NJ SAVER Rebate applications by telephone or online through the Division of Taxation Web site, as can most other New Jersey homeowners.

Co-operative housing corporations and continuing care facilities, although responsible for property taxes, are transferred and ultimately assessed in a different manner than other residential dwelling units. Rather than recording a deed at the County Clerk's office indicating a real estate transfer, these properties are bought and sold via privately held stock plans. The assessment of these types of structures is done in the aggregate rather than by individual block and lot. The names, addresses, etc. of new owners are controlled internally, usually by a Property Management Company. □

LOCAL PROPERTY TAX

Tax Maps

Tax maps submitted to Property Administration, Local Assessment Compliance for revaluation purposes are required to be current. A current tax map is one that has every deed, major and minor subdivision, and condominium unit plotted by the New Jersey Licensed Land Surveyor responsible for making revisions. The municipal tax assessor is responsible for providing the surveyor with the necessary deeds and subdivision maps. Each sheet must comply with the latest regulation in the New Jersey Administrative Code 18:23A-1 et seq., as far as lot and block numbering system and all lot and block required details. No tax map will be approved without an up-to-date revision block indicating the date of latest revision, name of the responsible land surveyor and New Jersey license number. In addition to the revision block an up-to-date "To show conditions as (date)" statement must be shown on the Key Map. Other items checked are legibility; properly marked block limits indicated with heavy solid lines; details of condominiums; details of riparian lands; proper railroad names, limits, and classification of railroad property as assessed by the State; sufficient dimensions for each lot and acreage for lots over one acre. This office is not limited to the above items.

Prior to revaluation the tax assessor should review the tax map with his surveyor based on the guidelines stated above. This will provide for an orderly and expeditious approval of the tax map.

Local Assessment Compliance will reject any tax map from the examination process which, in its opinion, has not been adequately checked for compliance with the regulations by the surveyor. Such rejection will delay inspection and approval for revaluation.

Regular communication between the tax assessor, the surveyor, and Local Assessment Compliance is imperative when tax map matters are not clear for proper compliance with the requirements.

The tax assessor may request the latest edition of the administrative code entitled, "Tax Maps, Regulations and Standards, February 1996" by contacting our office at 609-292-5327. □

Assessor and County Tax Board Compliance Units

The Local Assessment and County Tax Board Compliance Units were created in Property Administration in 1997 and charged with reviewing the statutory, administrative, and procedural responsibilities of tax administrators, tax board commissioners, and assessors.

In the past three years the Local Assessment Compliance Unit, under the direction of Jim Coll, has conducted periodic inspections of assessors' offices for compliance with statutory responsibilities. It has conducted reviews of assessors' offices to determine if municipal assessors have adequate staffs and equipment to carry out the administrative functions of their positions. This group has worked with the Department of Treasury to perform Local Government Budget Reviews of municipal tax assessment offices to determine if assessment offices are managed in a fiscally responsible manner.

Local Assessment Compliance contains two additional units. The Railroad Property Unit classifies, assesses and taxes railroad properties and assesses and computes railroad franchise tax. The Tax Maps Unit reviews and approves municipal tax maps for conformity to current specifications and as required for municipal revaluations.

Under the direction of Patty Wright, the County Tax Board Unit reviews county procedures for adherence to the statutes, administrative code, and official State policies; gives written directives, revises official forms, and provides tax boards with current information on State programs such as the Regional Efficiency Aid Program (REAP). Its personnel attend tax board meetings and appeal hearings to see that all taxpayers are treated with uniformity. A biannual newsletter, established this year, keeps county officials informed of pertinent legislation such as the Recertification law, as well as judicial decisions and current policies.

In 1997, the Director of the Division of Taxation instituted the use of the Certificate of Outside Employment (Form OE-1) to review the job-related activities of local tax officials. The County Tax Board Compliance Unit issued OE-1 forms to local taxing officials that year. Assessors forwarded completed forms to the county board of taxation offices that maintain them as a public record. County tax administrators, tax board commissioners and tax board staff members have filed their OE-1s with the Division of Taxation. This group completed its initial review of the OE-1 forms in all county tax boards in 1998 to ascertain any potential conflicts of interest that appear. As commissioners are State employees, their OE-1 filings are forwarded to the New Jersey Executive Commission on Ethical Standards.

The Local Assessment Compliance group investigates potential conflicts of interest proactively. Conflicts of interest that hinder the uniform application of the law are serious matters. The Division's objective is to ensure that all taxing officials remain fair, unbiased and objective in the discharge of their statutory duties. Upon discovery of a potential conflict of interest, this Unit arranges a meeting with the official in question to determine if an actual conflict exists. Often, the official is found not to have a conflict of interest and the issue is concluded. Subsequent interviews may determine, however, that an assessor's conflict of interest must be settled. If this cannot be accomplished administratively, either the assistance of the Attorney General's Office is requested or the issue is resolved judicially. □

17.8 cartons of export cigarettes were seized with counterfeit New Jersey tax stamp affixed to the packs. This is the first incidence of a "stick-on" adhesive type stamp. This investigation is continuing.

Halpern of Short Hills, New Jersey, entered a plea of guilty to one (1) count of failing to file a 1997 New Jersey personal income tax return in connection with his business as a tax preparer for numerous small businesses and individuals. Mr. Halpern has already made restitution of $24,843 in tax, with penalty and interest outstanding. In the same proceeding Mr. Halpern's son, Todd P. Halpern, of West Orange, New Jersey, entered a plea of guilty to filing a fraudulent 1997 New Jersey personal income tax return (phony W-2s) on his share of income from his father's business. Todd P. Halpern has made full restitution of $2,682 in tax, penalty and interest. This case was referred to the Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) by the Division's Audit Activity Branch. The case was investigated by OCI with the substantial assistance by Taxation's Audit Activity and Investigations Branch, and was prosecuted by the Attorney General's Office.
- On May 17, 2000, Operation "Boilermaker" targets Christopher Grungo of Burlington, New Jersey, and Brenda Grungo of Shamong, New Jersey, were sentenced in response to their guilty pleas regarding a scheme

Christopher Grungo was sentenced to five (5) years incarceration in State prison and ordered to make restitution of the $158,000 of Petroleum Products Gross Receipts Tax. A third subject, Carlos Lopez, was permitted to enter the Pre-Trial Intervention Program. All three were arrested in March 1999 by the Office of Criminal Investigation during the execution of a search warrant at a contraband cigarette/counterfeit stamp operation in Perth Amboy, New Jersey.

Both defendants were arrested for Possession of Stolen Property, a 2nd degree crime, Possession of more than 2,000 Unstamped Cigarettes, a 4th degree crime, Transportation of Contraband Cigarettes, No Licenses and No Invoices, which are Disorderly Persons Offenses. The 5,400 cartons of unstamped cigarettes which were seized from the subjects by the Office of Criminal Investigation (OCI) were the proceeds of a hijacking in Illinois. OCI and members of the New York City Department of Finance Office of Tax Enforcement had Mohammed under surveillance. OCI rented a storage unit at the same location that Mohammed was storing his contraband cigarettes. A total of 1,166 cartons of Virginia stamped cigarettes were seized as well as $4,743 in cash. The subject has been charged with Possession of more than 2,000 Contraband Cigarettes, a 4th degree crime, and Transportation of Contraband Cigarettes, No Invoices and No Consumer License, all Disorderly Persons Offenses. The subject was remanded to the Bergen County Jail in lieu of $15,000 cash bail, no 10%.

- Eight-five (85) complaints alleging tax evasion were evaluated from April to June 2000.

From April to June 2000, one hundred and one (101) charges were filed in court on twenty-seven (27) cases for violating the Cigarette Tax Act including possession of 1,665.2 cartons of contraband cigarettes, valued at $56,617 and resulting in twenty-four (24) arrests. □

Corporation Business Tax

Federal Disabled Access Credit —

The Division replied to an inquiry about the Federal disabled access credit under IRC 44. Under that credit, an eligible small business is entitled to a nonrefundable disabled access income tax credit for expenditures incurred to make a business accessible to disabled individuals. The amount of the credit is 50% of the amount of eligible access expenditures for a year that exceed $250 but do not exceed $10,250.

For New Jersey purposes if an election is made to take a Federal credit rather than to take a deduction for an otherwise deductible expense, the deduction may not be taken for New Jersey purposes. AT&T v. Director, 13 N.J. Tax 534 (1993).

Where, for example, a Federal election is made to take a credit for an amount paid to acquire or modify equipment or devices for disabled individuals, the same basis should be used for depreciation for New Jersey as for Federal purposes. N.J.S.A. 54:10A-4(k)(2)(F)(i). New Jersey depreciation is not uncoupled from Federal depreciation for property placed into service during accounting periods beginning on or after July 7, 1993. This principle should be applied consistently as well as at the time of the sale of property.

NYC Commercial Rent or Occupancy Tax — The New York City Commercial Rent or Occupancy tax is an annual levy imposed on tenants of premises occupied, used, or intended to be occupied or used for the purposes of carrying on or exercising any trade, business, profession, vocation, or commercial activity. Rentals exclusively for residential or nonbusiness purposes are exempt. Tax is measured by a tenant's base rent and is imposed for tax years running June 1 through May 31.

The New Jersey tax add back statute which was amended by P.L. 1993, c.173, now refers to taxes "measured by profits or income, or business presence or business activity." The New York City Commercial Rent or Occupancy tax is deemed measured by business presence and is therefore to be added back. The CBT-100 instruction 16(f) was updated to reflect the statutory revision.

Nexus Independent Contractors — For sales tax purposes the in-State activities of an independent contractor (agent) would make the out-of-State seller subject to registration with the Division of Taxation. See definition of "vendor" N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(i) and "person required to collect the tax" N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(w).

For corporation business tax purposes independent contractors may solicit or make sales or maintain an office in New Jersey without subjecting the out-of-State principal company to liability for tax based on or measured by income. Sales representatives who represent a single principal would not be considered independent contractors. A foreign corporation would be subject to income-based tax if the independent contractor maintained a stock of goods in the State under consignment or for purposes other than for display and solicitation. N.J.A.C. 18:7-1.9(e).

Patronage Dividends from a Cooperative (New Jersey) — Corporation A is a member patron of a cooperative and does business with the cooperative during the year. The cooperative distributes patronage dividends to Corporation A at the end of the year under IRC 1388. Under IRC 1385 Corporation A would include the dividend in gross income but not deduct it under IRC 316.

For New Jersey purposes, the patronage dividend would be considered business income to Corporation A. This is implicit in the notice in New Jersey State Tax News, May/June 1991, p. 57, which discussed aspects of this issue, as did the Nov/Dec 1983 issue at p. 164.

Second, as noted in the Nov/Dec 1983 New Jersey State Tax News, p. 164, the patronage dividend is not a dividend within the meaning of the dividend deduction.

Third, the Division would consider that the patronage dividend is in the nature of "return or allowance" and should be shown as such as a reduction in the cost of goods sold. This would be reflected on Line 5, Schedule A-2, Form CBT-100, and noted on Line 2, Schedule A, of Form CBT-100. In this fashion the patronage dividend would not be sourced independently of the gross receipts to which it relates.

Gross Income Tax

Taxability of Employer

Contributions to a SEP Plan —

The question of the excludability from gross income of employer contributions in a Simplified Employee Pension (SEP) was decided by the New Jersey Tax Court in the case of Richard and Janet Mutch v. Division of Taxation, 9 N.J. Tax 612 (1988). In this case, the Tax Court found that once the contributions were deposited into the taxpayer's SEP account, ownership of the funds was effectively transferred to the employee. The employer had no control or claim over the SEP account and the taxpayer could withdraw the funds at any time. In addition, the limitations on such a withdrawal (i.e. possible 10% early withdrawal penalty tax for those under age 59½ and funds can only be taken at one-year intervals) was not sufficient to overcome the fact that there was receipt of the contribution when it was made. Thus, the employee has constructive receipt of employer contributions made to the SEP account. For this reason it must be included in the employee's gross income in the year the contributions are made.

Credit Card Unemployment

Insurance — Under the New Jersey Gross Income Tax Act, New Jersey gross income includes only amounts from specifically enumerated sources as set forth in the sixteen categories of gross income pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1. Under N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1, payments received pursuant to an unemployment insurance agreement with a credit card company do not fall into any of the enumer-

ated categories of income.

Therefore, the unemployment insurance benefits a person receives from a credit card company for making credit card purchases is not considered taxable income for New Jersey purposes.

Sales & Use Tax

Horse-Keeping Businesses — The Division has received several inquiries from businesses that are primarily engaged in the business of boarding or training customers' horses, renting horses for recreational trail riding, and leasing horses to customers for longer periods. The businesses have asked whether they might be eligible to claim the farming use exemption from sales tax.

The farming use exemption from sales and use tax applies to the purchase of qualified tangible personal property (not including automobiles, energy, or materials used to construct a building or structure, with a few exceptions) and services that are used directly and primarily in the production, handling, or preservation for sale of agricultural commodities on farms. The scope of this exemption is based on the language of N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.16, which is part of the Sales and Use Tax Act. The business of boarding and training horses and renting horses to customers is not an agricultural production business for the purposes of this statute. Therefore, it is not eligible to claim exemption under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.16.

It is quite possible that the activities of a business might be statutorily deemed "agricultural use" for purposes of local property tax law, and thus qualify the land for farm land assessment, and the business not qualify as a "farming enterprise" within the meaning of the Sales and Use Tax Act by reason of the wording of N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.16. If a business is primarily engaged in boarding or training customers' horses and in renting horses to customers for trail riding, it is not primarily engaged in producing an agricultural product. Therefore, although it may be viewed as a farm for property tax assessment purposes, it does not qualify for the farming use exemption from sales tax.

A business that is primarily engaged in breeding and raising horses for sale is, however, treated as a "farming enterprise" for sales tax purposes; the horses that it breeds and raises for sale are deemed to be an agricultural "commodity." Thus, a horse breeding farm is eligible for the farming use exemption when it purchases qualified tangible personal property (e.g., feed) or services (e.g., shoeing) used in raising its horses for sale.

While a business that boards horses or rents horses to customers may be ineligible to claim the farming use exemption from sales tax, it does need to register as a vendor. Many of its transactions will be taxable and the business will be required to collect sales tax. Charges for boarding horses are taxable unless a statutory exemption applies under the specific factual circumstances. For example, if the business boards horses for a horse dealer who is in the business of selling these horses, the dealer may use a Resale Certificate (ST-3) and claim a resale exemption from sales tax. If it boards horses for a horse breeder, i.e., a farmer who is in the business of raising and breeding horses for sale, or if it boards a plow horse for a farmer who uses the horse for farm work, these farmers may use a Farmer's Exemption Certificate (ST-7) and claim the farming use exemption from sales tax. (However, it appears unlikely that horse dealers or farmers would board their horses off their own premises.)

If, instead of charging a lump sum for boarding, the business itemizes the sales and services provided as part of boarding, the following general rules will apply. Separately stated charges for stall rental are exempt from sales tax for any customer. Stall rental is treated as the rental of space, which is essentially a real estate transaction and therefore not subject to sales tax. Charges for feeding the horses are viewed as taxable charges for the sale of tangible personal property, N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a), and are subject to tax unless the customer is entitled to claim a specific statutory exemption as explained above (e.g., farm use for a breeder, resale for a dealer). Separately stated charges for grooming or shoeing horses are taxable as charges for maintaining tangible personal property, N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(2), unless the customer is entitled to a specific statutory exemption as explained above.

Charges for training horses are treated as nontaxable charges for professional services. They remain nontaxable even if some grooming is provided as an inconsequential element of the training service. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(e)(4)(A).

When a business that provides

riding horses to customers charges customers who borrow horses by the hour or by the day for trail riding, it is deemed to be renting horses to them. Since these rentals are treated as retail sales, N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(f), the amounts charged for use of the horses are subject to tax. If a business provides horses to customers for much longer periods – contract periods of longer than 28 days – the business, as the lessor, is subject to the lessor's use tax which is calculated on either its purchase price for the horse or the total value of the lease. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(bb).

Although a horse boarding, training, and rental business is not eligible for the farming use exemption, it is eligible to claim a resale exemption when it purchases horses that it uses for rental to customers. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(e)(1)(A). However, if it ever uses some of those horses to give riding lessons or for any other purpose that does not constitute "resale," it will then be liable for compensating use tax on the fair rental value of those horses which it purchased tax-free and used for a purpose inconsistent with resale. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-6.

The business is also entitled to a resale exemption when it purchases feed for the horses that it boards. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(e)(i)(B). However, it may not claim the resale exemption when it buys feed for the horses that it trains (unless it charges the customer separately for the feed). This is because training is a nontaxable service and when the feeding is just incidental to the training service and no separate charges are made for the feed, the trainer is deemed to be the retail purchaser of the feed. See N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(e)(4)(A).

Motor Vehicle Sales to Farmers — A farmer may use the Farmer's Exemption Certificate (ST-7) when purchasing equipment, for example, a farm tractor, that is used directly and primarily in the process of growing, producing, or raising farm products on a farm for the purpose of sale. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.16. A "farm tractor" is not designed primarily for road use and not required to be registered with Motor Vehicle Services.

If instead the farmer is purchasing a truck tractor or other commercial truck with a manufacturer's gross vehicle weight rating of more than 18,000 pounds, which is being registered with Motor Vehicle Services pursuant to N.J.S.A. 39:3-24 or N.J.S.A. 39:3-25 as a farm vehicle, then the appropriate certificate to use is the Exempt Use Certificate (ST-4). See N.J.S.A. 54:32B-8.43. The ST-7 may not, under any circumstances, be used when purchasing a passenger automobile or similar vehicle.

Sale of Depositions or Hearing Videotape to Law Firm — A most difficult transaction in sales and use tax administration is the "mixed" transaction where the vendor provides services accompanied by the transfer of property. The Division must look to the consequentiality of the property to determine the tax consequences. In the case of photographers and videotape producers, the Division takes the position that the overriding purpose of the customer is to obtain the photo, videotape etc. Such transactions are taxable as the sale of tangible personal property under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a).

For sales tax purposes, a law firm is not treated as the reseller of certain goods and services, although a law firm often charges its clients for goods and services that would be taxable if purchased at retail. For example, a law firm is not required to collect tax on the often substantial charges for copying documents, (taxable under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a)) or for faxing services (taxable under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(f)), because they are provided to the client in conjunction with the professional legal services as the object of the agreement. Thus, the law firm is treated as the retail purchaser of copying and faxing services and must pay tax on such services, rather than collect tax from their client. The same analysis applies when a law firm is purchasing a videotaped deposition. The video production company may purchase blank tapes with a Resale Certificate and must charge sales tax on the sale of the videotape, regardless of how billed. Separately stated charges for a video playback service at hearings, depositions, etc. are not subject to sales tax.

Car Wash Business — A car wash business in New Jersey must collect and remit sales tax on the amounts that it charges customers for all services and all merchandise. These receipts will be taxable as either the sale of the service of maintaining and servicing tangible personal property, N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(b)(2), or the sale of tangible personal property, N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a), respectively.

A car wash is generally treated as the retail purchaser of the various substances that it purchases for use in cleaning, washing, drying, polishing, deodorizing and otherwise maintaining its customers' vehicles. Therefore, as the retail purchaser, it must pay sales tax on these shop supplies. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(a).

The car wash may claim a resale exemption when it purchases items that it simply resells to customers as is. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(e)(1)(A). Examples would include cans of deodorizer spray, chamois cloths, jars of wax, etc., sold over the counter to customers for their own use.

In some limited circumstances, certain purchases of tangible personal property by the car wash for use in servicing customers' cars may be treated as purchases for resale. If the product purchased by the car wash is meant to become a "physical component part" of the vehicles on which the car wash performs its services, the product is deemed to be purchased for resale. N.J.S.A. 54:32B-2(e)(1)(B). In that case, the car wash may present a resale certificate (ST-3) when purchasing these items from a vendor who is registered to collect New Jersey tax. An example might be purchases of waxes that the business uses to wax a customer's car, and which are intended to leave a hard wax finish that remains on the customer's vehicle.

Sales of Energy to Exempt Organizations — The Energy Tax Reform legislation, effective January 1, 1998, imposed New Jersey Sales and Use Tax on natural gas, electricity, and utility service. P.L.

1997, c.162. The sales tax replaced the gross receipts and franchise tax which was imposed on utilities and passed along to all customers, including religious organizations, as part of the rate charged by an energy vendor. The Energy Tax Reform legislation was enacted with the same broad taxpayer base as the gross receipts tax that it replaced in order to maintain sufficient revenue for distribution to municipalities. Thus, the exempt organization provision in the New Jersey Sales and Use Tax Act was amended to make it clear there is no exemption for gas, electricity, or utility service purchased by otherwise exempt organizations, such as schools, churches, and nursing homes under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-9(c)(3).

Prepaid Gas Cards — The Division responded to correspondence concerning the taxability of prepaid gasoline cards.

Gasoline is exempt from New Jersey sales tax as a motor fuel. Thus, a prepaid gasoline card is not subject to tax.

A prepaid gasoline card should not be confused with a prepaid telephone calling card. Prepaid phone cards became subject to the retail sales tax as of January 1, 2000. P.L. 1999, c.248. Prior to that date, the tax was imposed at the time of use rather than at the time of sale. Prepaid phone cards are subject to tax as telecommunications services under N.J.S.A. 54:32B-3(f).

Universal Service Assessment/ Presubscribed Interexchange Carrier Charges — Effective January 1, 1998, the Federal Communications Commission imposed the Universal Service Assessment on telecommunications carriers in order to fund the government's Universal Service Program. The Universal Service Program subsidizes telecommunication services to low income and rural communities as well as schools, libraries and health care facilities. The telecommunications company passes the cost of the Universal Service Assessment to its customers as part of the monthly bill for service.

The Presubscribed Interexchange Carrier Charges (PICC) are fees that the local phone company charges the long distance company for the right to use the telephone lines. The phone company also passes along this cost to its customers.

The New Jersey Sales and Use Tax regulations provide that excise taxes which are imposed on vendors, such as the Universal Service Assessment, are included in the receipt on which sales tax is computed. N.J.A.C. 18:24-1.4(b). Since telecommunications services, including cellular, are subject to New Jersey sales tax, the Universal Service Assessment is also subject to sales tax.

The definition of receipt does not allow a deduction for expenses of the seller, which become part of the taxable amount. Since the PICC is an expense incurred by the service provider which is passed along to customers, it is includible in the taxable receipt. □

Gross Income Tax Claim for Refund Following Paid Assessment — Pamela Cater and Thomas P Rowe. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided

April 28, 2000; Tax Court No. 002224-1999.

In April 1993, the Division issued a deficiency assessment for the amount plaintiffs claimed as a credit for taxes paid to other jurisdictions on their timely filed 1989 New Jersey gross income tax return. Plaintiffs filed a petition for a redetermination of the deficiency under N.J.S.A. 54A:9-9(b). After an administrative conference was held, the Director's July 1994 final determination disallowed the claimed credit. In August 1994, plaintiffs paid the deficiency and did not exercise their right to file a complaint with the Tax Court.

In January 1999, plaintiffs requested a refund by filing an amended 1989 New Jersey gross income tax return that claimed the same credit for taxes paid to other jurisdictions as the original 1989 return. The Division denied the refund request in January 1999 and noted as it did in its March 1999 final determination that this same matter was previously heard and decided in the prior July 1994 final determination. Thereafter, plaintiffs filed a complaint with the Tax Court.

As a general rule, N.J.S.A. 54A:9-8(a) provides that generally a taxpayer must file a refund claim within the later of three years from the time the return was filed or two years from the time the tax was paid. Although plaintiffs concede that the refund claim is untimely under 54A:9-8(a), plaintiffs claim that this general rule is inapplicable because they filed a timely petition for redetermination of the deficiency under N.J.S.A. 54A:9-9(b) and therefore their refund claim lies within the exception of N.J.S.A. 54A:9-8(e). First, the Court ruled that section N.J.S.A. 54A:9-8(e) does not extend the time a taxpayer has to file a refund claim. Secondly, the Court ruled that although N.J.S.A. 54A:9-8(e) permits the Director to determine whether or not a taxpayer made a tax "overpayment" that can be credited to the taxpayer after the expiration of the applicable period of limitations, the payment of a deficiency assessment does not constitute an "overpayment." Therefore, the Court found that 8(e) was inapplicable to the instant case.

The Court found that the Director could consider a refund claim involving a paid gross income tax additional assessment under N.J.S.A. 54A:9-10(b). That section permits a taxpayer to file a refund claim provided that taxpayer did not protest or appeal from the additional assessment of tax. As plaintiffs previously protested the additional 1989 assessment, the Court found that this section was inapplicable.

The Court dismissed plaintiffs' complaint for untimely filing. Furthermore, the Court noted that the application of the res judicata doctrine was also appropriate in this case. The Court stated that the Division's denial of plaintiffs' 1993 petition for redetermination of the 1989 tax deficiency involving the claim for credit for taxes paid to other jurisdictions was exactly the same issue plaintiffs presented in their 1999 refund claim. "The doctrine of res judicata is designed to bar relitigation of a cause that has been finally determined between the parties on the merits by a tribunal with appropriate jurisdiction. See Roberts v. Goldner, 79 N.J. 82, 85

(1979). Our Supreme Court has observed that, as a general rule, an adjudicative decision of an administrative agency should be accorded the same finality that is accorded the judgment of a court. See Bressman v. Gash, 131 N.J. 517, 526. I have concluded that an application of the doctrine is appropriate in this case." Opinion, page 6.

Interest Deduction – Acquisition Indebtedness to Purchase Shares in S Corporation – Carol and David Sidman v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided April 24, 2000; Tax Court No. 1031-99.

Plaintiff David Sidman was a 4.32% shareholder in a corporation that qualified as a New Jersey subchapter S since January 1, 1994. In 1993, plaintiff purchased an additional interest in the corporation from two other shareholders so that he controlled 91.4% of the corporation. Terms of the purchase were a downpayment of approximately 7% and equal monthly payments over 15 years with interest at 8%.

At issue is whether a subchapter S shareholder may deduct interest paid on a loan used to purchase shares in the corporation to determine net pro rata share of S corporation income. The Court found that N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1p was the applicable provision associated with this issue and simply stated that gross income includes the taxpayer's net pro rata share of the S corporation's income. The Court stated that neither was there a New Jersey statute that permitted shareholders to deduct interest pertaining to their acquisition indebtedness concerning an S corporation nor did N.J.S.A. 54A:5-1p or its legislative history reference the application of Federal principles to this issue. Therefore, the Court held that there was no authority to permit plaintiff to deduct interest pertaining to the S corporation acquisition in determining the net pro rata share of his S corporation income.

Motor Fuels Tax

Assessment - Inadequate Records – Harvey Nobel & Beaverbrook Motors, Inc. v. Director, New Jersey Division of Motor Vehicles, decided June 19, 2000; Tax Court No. 323-1999.

Harvey Noble is the shareholder of Beaverbrook Motors, Inc. (hereinafter BMI), a corporation that operates tow trucks and small tractor-trailers, as well as the sole proprietor of Beaverbrook Motors, a Gulf service station (hereinafter service station).

BMI vehicles obtained the majority of their fuel from the service station on an as-needed basis. At the time of each BMI fuel purchase, the service station processed a “house account” slip at the full-posted price. The house account slips were totaled and then debited to BMI’s account on a daily basis through an inter-company accounting. Periodically, a settlement was made for the purchased fuel.

Pursuant to a Division of Motor Vehicle (DMV) audit, BMI was assessed tax due to DMV’s denial of BMI’s claimed fuel tax credit for motor fuel tax paid to New Jersey where fuel was used out-of-State because BMI’s records were insufficient to establish fuel purchases in New Jersey. In accordance with the regulations, DMV used a 4 mpg factor to estimate fuel use because BMI did not maintain adequate records. After a conference, DMV’s Final Determination upheld the audit assessment providing that “bartering is not an acceptable means of proving that fuel was purchased and the tax was paid.”

The Court first addressed whether DMV was precluded from claiming insufficiency of records as the basis for the assessment and limited to defending the assessment on the language contained in the Final Determination. The Court observed that case law did not require that an administrative agency state all possible grounds and theories to support their assessment nor did it preclude it from developing defensive theories to justify the assessment as long as it acts within the statutory period and meets due process requirements. The Court found that BMI was aware that DMV considered its records insufficient, that there was no claim of surprise or prejudice, and that case law indicated that alternative arguments would not prejudice the taxpayer because the Tax Court reviews proceedings de novo.

Addressing the issue of whether or not the house account slips constituted sufficient proof of New Jersey fuel purchases, the Court found that BMI’s records were not in accordance with the Regulation’s requirements because the records did not state all the required information. The Court refused to tailor an equitable remedy by relaxing the requirements of the Regulation. Furthermore, the Court stated that “[w]hether or not the taxpayer followed acceptable accounting procedures is also irrelevant since its use of acceptable accounting procedures is not the standard for compliance with the New Jersey Motor Fuels Use Tax Act.”

Finally, the Court upheld DMV’s estimated fuel use of 4 mpg based on the standard announced in the International Fuel Tax Agreement Audit Manual to calculate the use tax liability in the absence of adequate or complete records. Therefore, the Court upheld DMV’s Final Determination.

Sales and Use Tax

Assessment - Inadequate Books & Records – TAS Lakewood, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, decided April 18, 2000; Tax Court No. 003058-98.

The Division’s audit of plaintiff’s 1993 and 1994 New Jersey sales tax returns revealed discrepancies between gross receipts reported on plaintiff’s filed tax returns. Plaintiff’s 1993 New Jersey sales tax return reported gross sales of $47,115 whereas its 1993 Federal corporation income tax return reported gross sales of $1,040,157. Plaintiff’s 1993 New York general business corporate franchise tax return reported gross sales of $1,040,157; and that $207,491, or 19.95%, of these sales were attributable to New York. As to 1994, plaintiff’s New Jersey sales tax return reported gross sales of $62,533 whereas its Federal corporation income tax return reported gross sales of $882,748.

The Division was unable to audit plaintiff’s books and records because plaintiff disposed of them when it ceased business operations. In determining the

$76,061.76 plus interest sales tax assessment, the Division recalculated the amount of New Jersey gross taxable sales for 1993 and 1994 by accepting US gross sales as reported on the corporation income tax returns as total sales and reducing that amount by the approximate 19.95 percentage of 1993 sales attributable to New York.

Plaintiff challenged the Division's assessment claiming that (1) sales were not subject to sales tax, (2) sales attributable to New Jersey are lower than the Division determined, (3) it is entitled to sales tax credit for tax it paid to suppliers on goods and services subsequently resold, and (4) sales consummated with exempt entities amounted to approximately 5% of its sales. Substantiation for plaintiff's allegations rested on the testimony of its vice president and 50% shareholder who acknowledged that there was no documentary proof to support his testimony.

The Court ruled that where the plaintiff fails to maintain records the Division is permitted to determine the amount of tax from available information, including external indices, and that this determination carries a presumption of correctness. The Court held that not only did plaintiff fail to rebut the presumption but that it had reviewed the audit figures based upon plaintiff's tax returns and found it to be reasonable and justified by law. □

Inheritance Tax

Executor Commissions — P.L. 2000, c.29 (signed into law on June 16, 2000) amends N.J.S.A. 3B:18-14 to clarify the calculation of the commissions to which executors of estates are entitled for Transfer Inheritance Tax purposes. This legislation became effective upon enactment. (See article on page 5.)

Miscellaneous

Earned Income Tax Credit — P.L. 2000, c.80 (signed into law on August 14, 2000) establishes a New Jersey Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) program which will provide a refundable tax credit for eligible New Jersey residents with gross income of $20,000 or less who receive a Federal earned income credit that is based on having at least one "qualifying child." The amount of the New Jersey EITC will be equal to a percentage of the recipient's Federal earned income credit, with benefits to be phased in over four years. The New Jersey credit will amount to 10% of the Federal earned income credit for tax year 2000, 15% for tax year 2001, 17.5% for tax year 2002, and 20% for tax year 2003 and thereafter.

Petroleum Products Gross Receipts Tax

Rate Set at Statutory Minimum — P.L. 2000, c.48 (signed into law on June 30, 2000) sets the Petroleum Products Gross Receipts Tax rate on fuel oils, motor fuels and aviation fuel at the current 4 cents per gallon rate, the minimum statutory rate allowed. This prevents a possible administrative determination to increase the cents-per-gallon rate triggered by higher Statewide average gasoline prices. This law took effect immediately.

Constitutional Amendment

Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 1 (filed with the Secretary of State on June 30, 2000) proposes a Constitutional amendment providing for the dedication of revenues from the petroleum products gross receipts tax, and certain amounts from sales tax on revenues from the sale of new motor vehicles, for transportation purposes. The proposed amendment to the Constitution will be on the ballot for the general election on November 7, 2000. □

NJ “Participating State” in Streamlined Sales Tax Project

By her letter of intent, dated August 10, 2000, Governor Whitman has committed the State of New Jersey to being a “Participating State” in the interstate discussions of the Streamlined Sales Tax Project. The purpose of this Project is to develop a simplified system of state sales and use taxation.

As a Participating State, New Jersey is now entitled to vote at all Project meetings, and can more directly impact the direction of Project recommendations. Prior to becoming a “Participating State,” New Jersey had attended the Project’s monthly meetings and participated in Work Group discussions as an “Observer State” without voting rights. More information on the Streamlined Sales Tax Project appears in the Sales Tax Initiatives article on page 2 of this issue.

NYC Commuter Tax

In April 2000, the New York State Court of Appeals, the Empire State's highest court, ruled that New York City's income tax on the residents of New Jersey, Connecticut, and other commuting states is unconstitutional. Governor Whitman praised the New York Court's decision and sent a letter to New York Governor George Pataki urging him to take immediate steps to rebate to New Jersey commuters the estimated $80 million that has been unfairly collected since New Jersey took the matter to court.

Governor Whitman called the decision "a clear-cut victory for the 240,000 New Jerseyans who cross into New York City to work each day. This will provide a $110 million tax break for New Jerseyans who work in New York City," said the Governor.

New Jersey filed a class action lawsuit in June of 1999 challenging the constitutionality of the New York law that repealed the New York City commuter tax for New York State residents who live outside the City, but required other commuters who work in the City to continue paying the tax. A provision in the New York law states that if a court finds the law unconstitutional, the repeal of the commuter tax would apply to anyone commuting into New York City, regardless of where they live. □

Online Business Registration

State Treasurer Roland M. Machold recently announced that new business registrations can now be completed online. Machold said, "Thanks to Governor Whitman's commitment to streamlining State services, we are able to offer this online business registration service as an alternative to filing in person or through the mail. This Internet-based filing option will help to both speed and ease the process of starting a new business."

"Governor Whitman has done a great deal to attract new businesses to the State. This new online filing alternative is another step in her commitment to make New Jersey not only a great place to operate a business, but an easier place to start one as well," added Machold.

The Online Business Registration service, which is administered by the Division of Revenue's Bureau of Business Services, will provide businesses with temporary sales tax certificates and will enable businesses to register for business taxes and employer contributions for unemployment and disability.

Patricia Chiacchio, Director of the Division of Revenue said, "In Fiscal Year 1999, the Bureau of Business Services processed 50,000 new business registrations. Now new businesses can fulfill their State filing obligations anytime, 24 hours a day, without having to visit a State office or wait for paperwork to arrive in the mail."

The Online Business Registration service can be found online at the NJ Business Gateway Services site at: www.state.nj.us/njbgs □

The New Jersey Business & Industry Association, founded in 1910, is a statewide employer association of over 16,000 members representing every industry in the State. NJBIA keeps its members informed about changes in laws and regulations affecting New Jersey businesses, and NJBIA lobbying staff testify frequently before the Legislature and State agencies to advocate for the interests of business.

Mr. Woodford has long worked, as a member of NJBIA's Tax Committee, to support New Jersey businesses and to make them more competitive by developing and advocating for legislation that promotes tax equity. Over the years he has been involved in many important tax issues affecting New Jersey businesses, including the taxation of business personal property and the development of the sales and use tax.

During the Whitman Administration, Mr. Woodford supported the legislation which provided business incentives for New Jersey businesses in the form of tax credits for research and development expenditures, and new jobs investments, among others, as well as the legislation which provided tax benefits for small, New Jersey-based high technology companies.

Mr. Woodford served as NJBIA's corporate secretary for 14 years. In addition, he has both served on and testified before a number of State tax policy commissions.

Commenting on Mr. Woodford's retirement, Robert K. Thompson, Director of the Division of Taxation said, "Bob was a good friend to the Division of Taxation and worked hard to keep the relationship between our two organizations mutually beneficial. I will miss him as a colleague and a friend, but will continue to look forward to working with NJBIA with the same enthusiasm that we have had all along." □

GROSS INCOME TAX Working in NJ Home for NY Employer

The State of New York will impose New York income tax on earnings derived by a New Jersey resident with respect to work performed at home for a New York employer. As the New Jersey activities are undertaken in connection with the New York employer, the New York Department of Taxation and Finance deems that those earnings are properly subject to New York income tax. The following discussion deals with some of the reasons for this treatment.

Often, in matters involving multistate taxation, the states adopt balancing tests to determine which state has the more compelling interest in the income or transaction at issue, and so, may be treated as the taxing state. Thus, for example, an employer's home state is treated as the taxing state for corporate income tax purposes unless the employer has a "regular place of business" in another state. In that case, the employer may allocate its income away from the home state and to the other state for those purposes. N.J.S.A. 54:10A-6. The "regular place of business" must be actually "maintained, operated and used" by the employer. N.J.A.C. 18:7-7.2(a). Thus, the employer must have a substantial presence at that place; in that regard, an employee's home office simply reflects the employee's location, not the employer's. An area selected by the employee in the employee's home for use as an office remains merely a room within the employee's home regardless that it is being used by the employee on the employer's behalf. The only connection between the employee's home office and the employer is that the employee works at home. That connection is simply too ephemeral to treat the employee's home office as a "regular place of business" of the employer. Hoeganaes Corp. v. Director, Division of Taxation, 145 N.J. Super. 352, 359 (App. Div. 1976). Accordingly, an employer is not allowed to allocate income away from its home state and to another state based solely on its employee's use of a home office in the latter state.

Determining whether the employer's home state may tax the earnings of an out-of-state employee paid with respect to work performed at home also involves that balancing test. In this situation, the focus of the employee's work is to continue the job that had been performed at the employer's home state location. It is also done with a view to returning to that location. Carpenter v. Chapman, 97 N.Y.S. 2d 311, 313 (App. Div. 1950). Furthermore, it is immaterial to the employer where the employee performs the services, as long as the task is accomplished. As a factual matter, the employee's services are only complete when the results are delivered to the employer's office. Colleary v. Tully, 415 N.Y.S. 2d 266, 268 (App. Div. 1979). Accordingly, the out-of-state employee's home office is too slight a break with the employer's business location to relieve the employee from tax liability to the employer's home state. Cf. Speno v. Gollman, 45 N.Y. 2d 256, 360 N.Y.S. 2d 855, 858-859, 319 N.E. 2d 180 (Ct. App. 1974).

That analysis, and consequent result, promotes administrability of the income tax, which benefits both employers and state governments. Employers would encounter costly and difficult compliance problems should they be required to withhold tax for every jurisdiction in which an employee performed services on a de minimis basis. Should the employer have multiple employees working at home in various states for health reasons and for varying periods of time, the employer, and each state's taxing agency, would be required to track and verify all the various withholding returns and tax payments. This is not a burden that should be readily imposed on employers. Allocating the income to the employer's home state thus "serves to protect the integrity of the apportionment scheme by including income as taxable where it results from services substantially connected with" the taxing state. Colleary v. Tully, supra, at 268. Accordingly, in these circumstances, income is taxed by the state that has the primary connection with the services that are being rendered. □

SALES AND USE TAX Casual Sales

The warmer months are times when people clean out their attics, closets, and garages. Some decide to sell their old or used items in a yard sale while others decide to see how they can do in a more mercantile atmosphere. Since New Jersey has many flea markets throughout the State, a person may hope their venture at a public venue would prove to be more lucrative than setting up a table in front of their home.

Most people know that making isolated or occasional sales of personal property that was purchased by the individual for their own use is considered to be a casual sale and is not subject to sales tax. However, some individuals making these types of sales are presumed to be in the business of making retail sales and, therefore, are required to be registered with New Jersey and to charge, collect, and remit New Jersey sales tax.

The following are important points in determining if a sale is deemed to be a "casual sale" or not:

- The owner of the property to be sold in a casual sale must be a person who is not engaged in the business of selling that kind of property at retail (e.g., a computer salesperson selling old display racks).

- The property to be sold in a casual sale must be the property purchased by the owner for his/her own use, not property purchased tax-free with the intention of resale (e.g., a carpet dealer who purchases a new desk and chair for use in his showroom and sells the old furniture).

The owner of the property sold in a casual sale may commission a sales agent to act on his/her behalf during the casual sale, whether or not such sale will be held by auction. A sales agent is required to impose and collect sales tax:

- When the property is removed from the premises of the owner for sale at another location in New Jersey (i.e., a flea market, auction house, shop, etc.).
- Whenever such property was purchased by the owner for resale (whether or not the property is removed to another location in New Jersey for sale).

GROSS INCOME TAX S Corporation Distributions

A practitioner recently posed this question to the Division: How does a New Jersey resident report a distribution from an S corporation?

For New Jersey gross income tax purposes, the taxability of a distribution from a Federal S corporation that has made a New Jersey S corporation election is governed by the priority system established in IRC Sections 1368 and 1371 and must be calculated after the close of the S corporation's tax year. The taxpayer must, however, use their New Jersey adjusted basis and their New Jersey AAA and E&P when determining the taxability of a distribution.

A distribution from a "hybrid" corporation must be allocated based on the corporation's New Jersey allocation factor, to both the income earned inside New Jersey and the income earned outside New Jersey. A "hybrid" corporation is a Federal S corporation that has not made a New Jersey S corporation election and the corporation conducts business both inside and outside of New Jersey. Distributions applicable to income earned inside New Jersey are considered taxable distributions from a C corporation (provided there is sufficient accumulated earnings and/or current period earnings) and are reportable by a resident shareholder as dividends. IRC Sections 1368 and 1371 govern the taxability of distributions applicable to the income earned outside New Jersey.

A distribution from a Federal S corporation that has not made a New Jersey S corporation election and allocates 100% inside New Jersey is taxable as a dividend to the New Jersey resident provided the S corporation has sufficient accumulated earnings and/or current period earnings.

A distribution made to a nonresident shareholder is not taxable for New Jersey gross income tax purposes. However, if the nonresident shareholder has income from other New Jersey sources, the taxpayer will have to report any taxable portion of their distribution in Column A, Form NJ-1040NR, as if they were a resident.

Further information can be found concerning S corporation distributions by contacting the Division at 609-292-6400 and requesting a copy of Tax Topic Bulletin GIT-9S, Income from S Corporations. This publication can also be viewed or downloaded from the Internet by accessing the Division's home page at:

CORPORATION TAX Investment Companies

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:10A-5(d) corporations meeting the definition of an investment company receive preferential tax treatment. Their tax liability is based only upon 25% of their income with a $250.00 minimum tax.

Investment Company means any corporation:

1. Whose business consists of at least 90% of "qualified business activities."
2. Who had 90% or more of its average gross assets in New Jersey, measured at cost, invested in "qualified investment assets."
3. Which meets the numerical three part business test as defined in Regulation 18:7-1.15(f).
4. Which is not a banking corporation.
5. Which is not a financial business corporation.
6. Which is not a merchant or dealer in stocks, bonds or other securities and which regularly engages in buying and selling such securities to customers.

"Qualified business activities" are measured by gross receipts and expenses as reported for Federal income purposes on a separate entity basis and include investing or reinvesting in stocks, bonds, notes, mortgages, debentures, patents, patent rights, and other securities or the holding thereof after investing or reinvesting for its own account.

"Qualified business assets" are measured by the taxpayer's assets as reported for book purposes at cost on a separate legal entity basis for balance sheet purposes and consist of stocks, bonds, notes, mortgages, debentures, patents, patent rights, other securities and cash on deposit.

The following activities are not considered "qualified investment activities":

- Making and/or negotiating loans
- Renting or leasing real or tangible personal property

investment companies - from pg. 5

- Investment in partnerships or limited liability companies
- Direct day-to-day management of operations of affiliated corporations or the actual provision of services directly or as an intermediary, for benefit of an affiliate
- Buying and/or selling of stocks, bonds, notes, or other securities for customers
- Buying and/or selling of real or tangible personal property whether it is classified as inventory, operating assets or capital assets
- Direct investment in collectibles, including but not limited to stamps, pottery, cars or gold coins
- Direct investment in trademarks or similar assets. □

Copying Returns Causes Errors

It has come to the Division of Taxation's attention that a number of tax practitioners are photocopying business tax returns and remittance forms for those clients who, for various reasons, do not have a return or remittance form of their own for an applicable tax period. The majority of the photocopying that we have found is for sales and use tax and gross income tax withholdings.

The practitioners are photocopying a form that belongs to another client, making changes to the copied return to reflect the remitting taxpayer's name and identification number. However, the altered returns still reflect the identification number of the original taxpayer in the "scan line" of the form.

Since the majority of sales tax and employer's gross income tax forms are scanned, the returns and remittances are processed to the wrong taxpayer's account. If the original taxpayer has a return already posted to the account, the altered return does not complete processing and is rejected for review by the Division of Revenue's Transaction Audit section. In the case of an employer's gross income tax consolidated quarterly reconciliation, Form NJ-927 or NJ-927-W, the wrong UI/DI rates may be reflected if an altered return is used.

The time and effort required to straighten out these accounts is a burden not only to the Division of Taxation and the practitioners, but is frustrating to the taxpayers as well, who think that they have properly filed and paid.

If a taxpayer does not receive a remittance form or return, the needed form may be obtained by contacting the Tax Registration Section of the Division of Revenue at 609-292-1730.

If, because of time constraints, the taxpayer will not receive the needed form in order to file by the due date, an informal filing can be made by cover letter. This letter should indicate the taxpayer's identification number, the tax type, tax period, tax calculation, and include a check for any tax due. This cover letter should also include a request for the proper forms and returns. □

Exclusion of Sales from Table

It is long-standing policy of the Division of Taxation to exclude sales of real property from the Table of Equalized Valuations ("Director's Table"), the assessed values of which are not representative of the assessing practices of the municipality.

Nonusable category 26 refers specifically to transactions not between a willing buyer or a willing seller. However, as has been long recognized by the courts and in the Division of Taxation's Assessors Handbook (Exhibit X-9r), category 26 is very broad in scope, and serves as a "catch-all" category. The courts have recognized that, as a catch-all, category 26 provides the basis under certain circumstances for excluding sales that fail to establish a comparative relationship between the assessed value and selling price, and which are not representative of the assessing practices of the municipality, even where the sale may be between a willing buyer and willing seller.

In both Cranbury Township v. Middlesex County Board of Taxation, 6 N.J. Tax 501 (Tax 1984), aff'd, 7 N.J. Tax 667 (App. Div. 1985), and Northvale Borough v. Director, Division of Taxation, 17 N.J. Tax 204 (Tax 1998), aff'd, 324 N.J. Super. 518 (App. Div. 1999), certif. den. 161 N.J. 147 (1999), the courts upheld the exclusion of a sale under nonusable category 26 even where the sale was recognized to be between a willing buyer and willing seller. In Cranbury, a sale was excluded because the property was receiving preferential farmland assessment, and was therefore not representative of the assessing practices of the municipality. In Northvale, a sale was excluded because the assessment resulted from application of the Freeze Act rather than from the unfettered discretion of the assessor, and was therefore not representative of the assessing practices of the municipality.

It is similarly the Division of Taxation's policy to exclude an otherwise usable sale under non-usable category 26 in those circumstances where the sale's ratio of assessed value to selling price is grossly distorted as compared to the ratios of the other sales in the municipality. In such cases, the sale is excluded even where there is no reason to question the willingness of the buyer or seller. Such a sale is excluded because the assessed value is deemed not representative of the assessing practices of the municipality. This long-standing practice was recognized and upheld by the Court in Borough of Sayreville v. Middlesex County Board of Taxation, unpublished, Appellate Division Docket No. A-1314-71, decided December 6, 1972, and by the former Division of Tax Appeals in Borough of Roosevelt v. Director of Division of Taxation, unpublished, Division of Tax Appeals Docket No. S.A. 1-77, decided January 30, 1978. More recently, the Tax Court upheld the practice in a bench opinion in the Borough of Englewood Cliffs v. Director, Division of Taxation, Tax Court Docket No. 007053-1998, judgment entered February 1, 1999, appeal pending. Copies of these opinions are available on request from the Division of Taxation.

Municipal assessors play an essential role in assisting the Division of Taxation in determining which sales to exclude from the school aid table, in accordance with their responsibilities under N.J.A.C. 18:12A-1.17. In order to ensure an accurate and meaningful average ratio and equalized value as reflected in the school aid table, it is critical that municipal assessors make every effort to assist the Division of Taxation in excluding those sales with grossly distorted ratios which are not representative of the assessing practices of the municipality. The mistaken inclusion of such sales can result in dramatic and unwarranted increases or decreases in average ratios and equalized valuations from year to year, which can impede the prosecution or defense of tax appeals and skew the apportionment of county taxes. The following are guidelines to assist in determining whether a sale's ratio of assessed value to selling price is so grossly distorted that it warrants exclusion under non-usable category 26.

It is difficult to delineate any specific formula that is applicable in all instances. The procedure utilized by the Division of Taxation consists of a review of sales within a taxing district. A good example of a sales transaction that would be excluded from the Table is one that the Division finds, through its analysis, to have a grossly distorted sale ratio, widely disparate from the cluster of all other transactions within the municipality. Just one sale on the fringes of a cluster would not warrant exclusion. Absent strong evidence to exclude a sale, that transaction should be included in the Table. The Division of Taxation typically completes this analysis at the end of the sampling period each year when the complete listings of sales, called "grantor listings," become available.
